Correction Made In Regard To Med. Admissions Tests

Candidates for admission to medical school in the fall of 1960 are advised to take the Medical College Admission Test in May. It was announced today by Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the test for the Association of American Medical Colleges. These tests, required of applicants by almost every medical college throughout the country, will be given twice during the current calendar year. Candidates taking the May test, however, will be able to furnish scores to institutions in early fall, when many medical colleges begin the selection of their next entering class.

Candidates may take the MCAT on Saturday, May 2, 1959, or on Saturday, October 31, 1959, at administrations to be held at more than 300 local centers in all parts of the country. The Association of American Medical Colleges recommends that candidates for admission to classes starting in the fall of 1960 take the May test.

The MCAT consists of tests of general scholastic ability, a test on understanding of modern society, and an achievement test in science. According to ETS, no special preparation other than a review of science subjects is necessary. All questions are of the objective type.

Copies of the Bulletin of Information (with application form bound in), which gives details of registration and administration, as well as sample questions, are available from pre-medical advisers or directly from Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau Street, Princeton, New Jersey. Completed applications must reach the ETS office by April 18 and October 17, respectively for the May 2 and October 31 administrations.

Competition Begins For Scholarship

Women students in colleges where there are Tri Delta chapters are eligible to apply. They may, or may not, be fraternity members but they should be well-qualified students, showing promise of valuable service in their future communities.

The total amount of the awards granted on any one of the 104 campuses included in the competition may not exceed $200.00.

The successful candidates will be notified by May 15, 1959.

Scholarships will be forwarded to the winners at the beginning of the term for which the awards are granted. Scholarships may be used for the 1959 summer session.

Applications are available at the Dean of Women's Office. Additional applications may be secured from

Mrs. Glenn W. Whiteman
609 W. Highland Drive
Seattle 99, Washington

Completed applications must reach Mrs. Whiteman by March 1, 1959.

Memorial Auditorium Month

I hereby make a proclamation to initiate February as Memorial Auditorium Month. It seems that at UVM when the spring semester starts, the month of February is spent by the majority of the students, at the Auditorium. In this month which I have so solemnly just dedicated, there are six basketball games, the Kake Walk Ball, the jazz concert, two nights of skits and walking and Pops night. I think you all will have to agree with me on the rightful dedication. But all this hullabaloo could be eliminated and the University could certainly save on some exhorbitant rental fees if a gymnasium or some other sort of building would be erected to facilitate these purposes. Then maybe maybe tuition could be lowered a Dime.

I'm in an awful hurry now. I have to check on some property where I want to build a bowling alley. So long for now.

W. E. DEFENSE PROJECTS ENGINEERS are often faced with challenging a ments such as systems testing for the SAGE continental air defense net

ENGINEERS explore exciting frontiers at Western Electric

If guided missiles, electronic switching systems and telephones of the future sound like exciting fields to you, a career at Western Electric may be just what you're after.

Western Electric handles both telephone work and defense assignments . . . and engineers are right in the thick of it. Defense projects include the Nike and Terrier guided missile systems . . . advanced air, sea and land radar . . . the SAGE continental air defense system . . . DEW Line and White Alice in the Arctic. These and other defense jobs offer wide-ranging opportunities for all kinds of engineers.

In our main job as manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System, Western Electric engineers discover an even wider range of opportunity. Here they flourish in such new and growing fields as electronic switching, microwave radio relay, miniaturization. They engineer the installation of telephone central offices, plan the distribution of equipment and supplies . . . and enjoy, with their defense teammates, the rewards that spring from an engineering career with Western Electric.

Western Electric technical fields include mechanical, electrical, chemical, civil and industrial engineering, plus the physical sciences. For more detailed information pick up a copy of "Consider a Career at Western Electric" from your Placement Officer. Or write College Relations, Room 200E, Western Electric Company, 195 Broadway, New York 7, N. Y. And sign up for a Western Electric interview when the Bell System Interviewing Team visits your campus.

TELEPHONES OF THE FUTURE—Making telephone products f the Bell System calls for first-rate technical know-how. To morrow's telephone system will demand even more imagina tive engineering.

Home Ec. To Sponsor Speaker

A nationally-honored speaker will address the 50th anniversary luncheon of the American Home Economics Association, on Feb. 28. The occasion will also mark the 50th anniversary of the department of home economics here at Vermont.

Scheduled to speak is Miss Hazel K. Stiebeling of Washington, D.C., director of the Agriculture Research Service's Institute of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture.

Miss Stiebeling was one of five career civil servants to receive the nation's highest civilian government employee honor, the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service. The honor came recently from President Eisenhower.

Honored with Miss Stiebeling were Werner von Braun, James V. Bennett of the department of justice; Robert D. Murphy, deputy Under-Secretary of State; and Air Force Technical Director Doyle L. Northrup.

Hour and place of the Feb. 28 luncheon will be announced shortly, according to UVM Prof. Balir Williams, president of the Vermont Home Economics Association which is sponsoring the luncheon.

Engineering Enrollment Drops

A drop of eleven percent in the enrollment of first year engineering students at U.V.M. has been noted by the Dean of the College Of Technology. This closely parallels similar declines in engineering enrollment at other United States educational institution.

When asked for a possible explanation for the decline, Dean McKee stated that the temporary business recession was a major factor. "Prospective engineering students may have received the impression from widely published reports that the demand for engineering graduates has decreased permanently due to cutbacks in defense appropriations, poor business conditions, and the efforts of industry to use highly trained technical personnel more effectively."

Asked what can be done about the shortage of engineers, the Dean suggests providing more adequate guidance for those who have adequate preparation for and an interest in engineering careers.

Pointing out that a great demand continues to exist for qualified engineers, he recalled that last year's graduates had no trouble in being placed and that the starting salaries of from $475 to $500 per month represented an increase of five percent over the average for 1957.

THE GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME

It happens every day. A young man goes off to college leaving his home-town sweetheart with vows of eternal love, and then he finds that he has outgrown her. What, in such cases, is the honorable thing to do?

Well sir, you can do what Rock Sigafoos did.

When Rock left Cut and Shoot, Pa., he said to his sweetheart, a simple country lass named Tess d'Urbervilles, "My dear, though I am far away in college, I will love you always. I will never look at another girl. If I do, may my eyeballs parch and wither, may my viscera writhe like adders, may the moths get my new tweed jacket!"

Then he clutched Tess to his bosom and planted a final kiss upon her fragrant young skull and went away, meaning with all his heart to be faithful.

But on the very first day of college he met a coed named Fata Morgana, a girl of such sophistication, such poise, such savoir faire as Rock had never beheld. She spoke knowingly of Franz Kafka, she hummed Mozart, she smoked Marlboros, the cigarette with better "makin's". Now, Rock didn't know Franz Kafka from Pinocchio, or Mozart from James K. Polk, but Marlboros he knew full well. He knew that anyone who smoked Marlboros was modern and advanced and as studded with brains as a ham with cloves. Good sense tells you that you can't beat Marlboro's new improved filter, and you never could beat Marlboro's fine flavor. This Rock knew.

So all day he followed Fata around campus and listened to her talk about Franz Kafka, and then in the evening he went back to the dormitory and found this letter from his home-town sweetheart Tess:

Dear Rock,

Us kids had a keen time yesterday. We went down to the pond and caught some frogs. I caught the most of anybody. Then we hitched rides on trucks and did lots of nutsy stuff like that. Well, I must close now because I got to whitewash the fence.

Your friend,

Tess

P.S. . . . I can do my Hula Hoop 3,100 times.

Well sir, Rock thought about Tess and then he thought about Fata and then a great sadness fell upon him. Suddenly he knew he had outgrown young, innocent Tess; his heart now belonged to smart, sophisticated Fata.

Rock, being above all things honorable, returned forthwith to his home town and walked up to Tess and looked her in the eye and said manfully, "I do not love you any more. I love a girl named Fata Morgana. You can hit me in the stomach with all your might if you like."

"That's okay, hey," said Tess amiably. "I don't love you neither. I found a new boy."

"What is his name?" asked Rock.

"Franz Kafka," said Tess.

"A splendid fellow," said Rock and shook Tess's hand and they have remained good friends to this day. In fact, Rock and Fata often double-date with Franz and Tess and have heaps of fun. Franz can do the Hula Hoop 6,000 times.

quickly. Even Mr. Murrow was disturbed. At the close of most programs he narrates, Murrow usually manages to say "Good night and Good Luck", even through the blitz and the "A" bomb. The night I heard this program Murrow's ominous bass voice only managed an eighty decibel "Goodnight."

The Application of the Thumb-Nail: In our society the application of pressure to eradicate rotten spot usually is a sign for the white washers to get busy. There are also those who will be or are already too "sensitive" to talk about or accept the business of sex as fact. There are, too, the Clingers-To-Tradition, who will say, "Well that's the nature of man, that's tradition, that's inborn," and with this will throw up their hands.

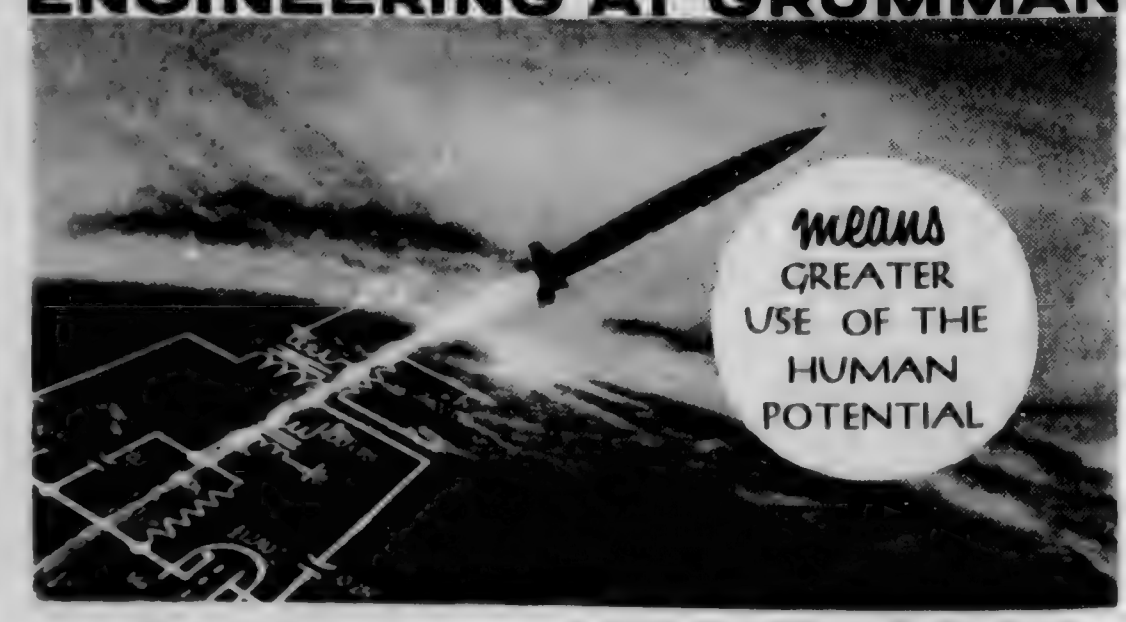
I condemn all such negative attitudes. I further condemn sex as a business, necessary to the continuance of the "good American system of free enterprise" and I condemn anyone who shrugs their shoulders at it. To beat it; to drive it back to where it belongs, in some age we have passed so long ago, we must start with ourselves.

Since a morality which allows sex to be a business is also a morality which allows the user of business-sex the privilege of listening to a Sunday morning sermon without any pang of conscience whatsoever, then we may assume that we do not have one, single morality, but two or more, for use in different walks of life. It seems ridiculous, but it is this disparity of moral standards which makes for our divorce rate, our neurotics (and the ramifications of neurosis), many of our psychotics and the majority of our inability to really communicate with each other. It is the same morality which allows one fraternity to suffer for five or six when it is expelled, and within that fraternity, it is the morality which changes the individual's moral standards into the "house's" moral standards when the pressure is on.

What I am asking from you and from those around you is for you to have the nearly time-worn attributes of strength of character and individualism. Maybe I really believe that we actually have our own individual morality, and that divergence from this for someone else's is where we run into trouble. If we are not compromised by someone else's way of playing the game, if we do not lose ourindividuality, our own image of ourselves, if we have one morality and stick by it, we are not damned as individuals, as a school, a state and as a nation. We will be imparting serious damage to the Business of Sex, to the multi-chotomous morality of our time, and heading toward the time we kid ourselves about living in.

"Goodnight."

Navy Officer Positions Open To Women



The Navy Department has announced recently that applications are now being accepted for the Officer Candidate School for women located at Newport, R. I.

The Navy currently has two programs open to outstanding young college women that lead to commissioned status. Under the Junior program you are allowed to take your initial officers training of eight weeks during the summer after your junior year in college. After you receive your degree you are commissioned and undergo eight weeks of officer indoctrination before reporting to your first duty station. The alternate program provides for 16 consecutive weeks of training following your graduation from college. Once you are commissioned you remain on active duty for three years.

The positions open to women officers are administrative in nature demanding a broad educational background and considerable executive potential. You may be assigned to a wide variety of billets in the fields of personnel administration, public relations, education and training, publications, intelligence and logistics. The training, experience, and responsibility provide an excellent background for whatever field the young graduate plans to enter upon completion of active duty. Meanwhile, the Navy offers an interesting, rewarding, and challenging opportunity for the up and coming young college girl.

Lt. Nancy M. Walsh, U.S. Navy will visit on the campus of University of Vermont, on Tuesday, February 17th. Additional information and brochures may be obtained by contacting the Placement Service, or by writing to Lt. Walsh, 560 Atlantic Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts.

ENGINEERING AT GRUMMAN

Our national security requires that our scientific manpower will not be squandered . . . that each man's potential be expanded to the utmost, increasing his earnings and his stature.

This view is particularly important now, in this Day of the Missile, when our leadership is being challenged, and ever-increasing demands are being made on the imagination and skill of the engineer.

We believe our record of responsible management and creative engineering has produced an environment where the engineer may achieve steady growth and a stable future . . . with commensurate personal recognition and reward for his creativity and skill.

Cats Lose 3 Tilts To Huskies, Redmen & Knights

by STEPHEN PROBER

On January 19, the University of Connecticut, led by the return of Al Cooper to the lineup, defeated the University of Vermont, 82-69, at Storrs. The Huskies' Yankee Conference record at that time was 5-0 while Vermont sported a poor 3-4 record.

In the first half, the Catamounts built up a 7 point lead behind the floor-shooting of Clyde Lord, Bob Kuchar and Frank Giordano. With four minutes to go in the first half, Cooper entered the game and proceeded to pour 25 points through the hoop in 24 minutes. Cooper had just recovered from a fractured wrist and had previously played a total of 22 minutes. With Cooper in the game to control the boards and Jack Rose leading the fast break, the Huskies piled up a big enough lead so that Vermont never really threatened in the second half.

The only thing that kept Vermont anywhere in contention with the UConns was the Cats' excellent floor shooting. The Huskies, with a 6'5" average under the boards, were able to control the rebounding against a shorter Vermont club. High for the Catamounts was Clyde Lord with 23 points. Frank Giordano had 12, Charles Isles had 13, and Bob Kuchar had 12.

This loss put Vermont in next to last place in the Yankee Conference standings.

The Hoopsters dropped a 73-71 decision to the University of Massachusetts in a tight game played at the winner's court on Saturday night, January 31. The Catamounts dropped their fifth Yankee Conference tilt in eight starts.

Vermont led in the early stages of the first half, and at one point held a five point advantage. The home team soon found the range, however, and passed the visitors, taking a 43-38 lead at intermission.

UMass kept its lead throughout the second half, although the Catamounts closed to within two points several times. Clyde Lord tangled with Ned Larkin in the latter part of the half, and was ejected from the game.

Captain Bob Kuchar led the scoring for both clubs, as he pumped home 19 markers. Bob Gallagher hit 17, Clyde Lord had 13, and Charlie Isles had 10 points to round out the Vermont the Vermont scoring.

The Redmen were led by Bucky Adamczyk and Ned Larkin, each with 17 points. UMass will invade Memorial Auditorium this Saturday night in the return game.

by PAUL SALVAGE

The Catamounts, who had beaten St. Mike's in the latter's Christmas Tournament, bowed to the Knights last Wednesday night by a walloping score of 74-45, before a standing room only crowd at the Memorial Auditorium. This defeat left the Cats with an 8-7 season record, and a 2-1 record in state play.

Vermont got the first basket on a long set by Bob Gallagher. Tony Nicodemo then tied it with one of his patented jumpers. Jimmy Browne of St. Mike's collected on a free throw, and the Cats lost the lead for the remainder of the evening.

The Knights came up with a 2-2 zone with Nicodemo chasing Vermont's Bobby Kuchar in a lone man for man defense. The Cats couldn't hit over the zone, and had difficulty controlling the rebounds.

Seven minutes after play opened, the teams were moving slowly, attempting to set up shots. Here the Cats staged their best rally of the night. Frank Giordano slipped through the zone for a layup after Clyde Lord dropped in for a free throw. Lord hit for two more fouls in a row, and Gallagher slashed another set from the side. This left the score 13-11, St. Michael's, and 10 minutes left in the half.

After Coach Doc Jacobs sent Ralph St. Peter into the lineup in place of Hank Knobloch, the Knights ran up nine points in the next two minutes to take a 22-11 lead.

The Cats closed the lead to four points at 27-33 with four minutes remaining in the first half, but Nicodemo, Browne, and St. Peter hit for seven consecutive points, leaving the halftime score at 34-24.

Vermont was unable to hit with any consistency, and was not getting inside St. Mike's tall backboard defense.

With fifteen minutes gone in the second half, the Knights were coasting along on a 65-40 lead. So effectively did St. Michael's check the Catamounts, that Lord was the only player to hit double figures. He had 15 points, nine of them from the foul line. Nicodemo held Kuchar to 5 points.

Neither team had a great shooting percentage, St. Mike's hitting on 27 out of 76 attempts for a 35.5 percentage. Vermont had a 22.7 percentage hitting on 15 out of 66 shots. St. Mike's had the boards under control all night, gaining a 72-51 edge in rebounds. It was St. Michael's fifth straight victory in state play.

Fill in the face next Tuesday at Waterman. Voting will be held all day for faculty and students.

Woods Trophy Award Winner To Be Decided

Here's your chance to do two things. The students and faculty can elect the outstanding basketball player on UVM's 1958-59 court squad. By doing so, they can acknowledge the team's Most Valuable Player with the Woods Trophy, donated by Woods Sporting Goods Store. This award is sponsored annually by the CYNIC, with Bob Kuchar winning last year's election.

This is how it works! Next Tuesday, Feb. 17, a voting booth will be set up in Waterman. All students and faculty members are eligible to vote.

The hoopster with the most votes will be awarded the trophy during halftime at the last home contest, Feb. 25, against Middlebury.

This is your chance to choose the player whom you think has contributed most to UVM's team play this season.

UVM Skiers Finish Sixth At Dartmouth Carnival

by FRED ROBINSON

The Catamount Ski Team, under amiable, red-haired Coach Sam Miller, tucked away exam grades and, on February 6 and 7, traveled to Hanover, NH, to participate in their first team meet of the season at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival. When the final results were tabulated, the Cats were lodged in sixth place, trailing powerful Middlebury, Dartmouth, St. Lawrence, University of New Hampshire, and University of Maine, in that order.

The meet was scored by taking the best three-out-of-four team members' results in each of the separate races, for example the slalom, and then the best three-out-of-four in the Alpine (slalom, downhill) and Nordic (jumping, cross-country) Combined. The points scored in each of these divisions were summed up and this constituted the team total.

The Alpine events took place on the first day with three Sophs —Tom Amidon and Bill Adams, both from Montpelier, Vt., and Tom Hackett from Burlington — copping 13th, 15th, and 21st places respectively in the slalom. Jake Stewart fell on his second time through the course after recording a creditable 46.4 seconds on his initial try (winning time was 44.0). If he hadn't fallen, Coach Miller stated that Jake would have finished sixth or seventh, thus picking up several additional points for the Green and Gold. As it stood, UVM finished fifth with Midd and Dartmouth in a first place deadlock. In the downhill Stewart took 8th place followed by Bill Adams and Tom Hackett in a 20th place tie, and Tom Amidon. The Cats also suffered a bad break in this event. Amidon fell and his binding released thus taking away two or three more Vermont points. Had they picked up these digits, Vermont would have been in strong contention for third place honors in final team standings. In the Alpine Combined, UVM finished 5th with Dartmouth taking top spot. Adams Stewart, Hackett, and Amidon finished 14th, 16th, 17th, and 37th, respectively.

On the following day in the Nordic events, UVM placed 6th in the cross-country, 8th in the jumping, and 6th in the Nordic Combined. Tom Hackett was tops for the Cats in the jumping with a 24th place, followed by Captain Frank Brown in 28th, "Duff" Wheeler in 29th, and Jake Stewart in 39th. About 4000 spectators watched this event on the nearly perfect jump despite the lack of an abundance of snow. In the cross-country event Danny Mosman, a member of the Fall New England Champion long distance trotters, placed 13th to lead the Cats' "Duff" Wheeler in 19th spot, George Silver in 20th, Frank Brown, 22nd, and Tom Hackett, 29th. The Nordic Combined was copped by Dartmouth with the first Vermonter, "Duff" Wheeler, pulling up in 19th spot. Brown, Hackett, and Mosman finished 29th, 23rd, and 25th, respectively. The surprise of these events was "Duff" Wheeler. He came through for the Cats against some sharp opposition.

In inter-fraternity basketball, Kappa Sig and Delta Psi lead their respective leagues with 3-0 and 2-1 records. Behind Kappa Sig is Phi Delt (2-1), and TEP, (0-3). In league B, closely following Delta Psi are AEPi and Sig Ep, each with 1-2 records. In third round contests, TEP was edged by AEPi, 29-26, and the Sig Eps defeated the Phi Delts, 40-35. Going into the fourth round, the Kappa Sigs meet TEP, Delt Psi plays Phi Delt, and the AEPi's meet the Sig Eps. In league A, Kappa Sig seems to have it pretty well sewed up. League B, however, is still pretty much of a toss-up, with Delt Psi having the biggest advantage. In league C, the standings are: Converse 3-0, Bates 2-1, Chittenden 1-2, Phelps 0-2, Wills 0-2.

The standings in inter-fraternity bowling are: League A: Delta Psi 4-1, Phi Sig 3-2, Owls 3-2, Phi Delt 3-2, Kappa Sig 2-3, Sigma Phi 0-5.

League B: Sigma Nu 3-0, Sig Eps 3-2, SAE 3-2, AEPi 2-2, ATO 1-4, TEP 1-4, Acacia 0-4.

Kittens Split Two Games

by STAN ROTHENBERG

On Tuesday, January 13, St. Michael's played host to the University of Vermont Freshmen. The Purple Squires' height was too much for the fighting Kittens who tried to work the ball for good shots. St. Michael's controlled both backboards which resulted in a 71-57 win for the Squires. Ed Hojnacki was high scorer for the winning St. Michael's five with 22 points and Hart followed with 20.

Low, with 14 and Jeffrey with 11 led the UVM attack. The Purple Squires are undefeated so far this season.

Top Teachers

Bart Jeffrey sparked the Kittens to a 50-41 decision over Johnson Teachers in a second half comeback in a game played in the University of Vermont campus gym on Friday, January 16. At the half, the Johnson club held a 24-19 advantage over the UVM Frosh, but then the Kittens exploded with Jeffrey's sharp shooting in the middle of the second half. Pete Low led the Frosh effort with 16 points while Goodroe was high for Johnson with 12. This was the third win in eight starts for the UVM Kittens.

ers into blocking each other out as he'd spin out of it and step in for easy shots. Clyde got 15 of his 23 points in the first half, along with some good assistance from Bob Kuchar and Frank Giordano.

After Vermont led, 72-69, in the second half, the "shock troops" kept the crowd roaring with their aggressiveness and rough playing.

Bob Kuchar and Charlie Isles had a head-on collision going after a loose ball and Bobby got the worst of it. A gash was opened above his eye and he was taken to the hospital for stitches after the game.

The big men for the Cats were Lord, with twenty-three points, Giordano with ten, Gallagher with twelve, and Kuchar with fourteen points.

Catamount Clippings

THE GAME!

They said it couldn't be done. The Burlington Free Press picked UConn by nine, while the Daily News gave the Huskies a seventeen point edge. The crowd gazed in awe at the size of Connecticut's ball players as both clubs warmed up. Even the most loyal of Vermont's rooters doubted the home team's chances. UConn was 6-0 in Yankee Conference play, while UVM was 3-5. Coach Fuzzy Evans' Catamounts pulled the biggest upset in the East last Saturday night by checking Hugh Greer's Huskies, 61-60.

Last year, the Evansmen battled the Huskies in both encounters, only to succumb, 99-85 and 107-95, as the Yankee champs hit a fantastic 60% from the floor. Last month, the Blue and White again topped the Cats, 82-69. February 7, 1959 will go down in basketball history as the night when David again slew Goliath.

It is difficult to single out any one here. Mentor Fuzzy Evans surprised all by starting Harry Zingg. Zingg gave added rebounding strength and provided a quick scoring punch in the early minutes of the game. Bob Gallagher fought for rebounds, as he was caught between UConn's Davis and Cooper. Still, he cleared the boards for Vermont. Charlie Isles was a key factor in the successful operation of UVM's defensive ball game, as he blocked many a shot with his aggressiveness. Clyde Lord was all over the court, rebounding, playmaking, and scoring. Clyde's brilliant ball handling was in great part responsible for the UVM club being able to keep up with the driving visitors. Vermont's all time high scorer paced both clubs with 21 points. Captain Bobby Kuchar hit for 18 points, six of them coming in the last 61 seconds of play. The little captain iced the game for the Cats on a jump shot, and four straight free throws. Connecticut grabbed the ball with six seconds to go. Jack Rose raced downcourt. A three point play would knot it up. The Catamounts steered clear, as Rose drove unmolested for a layup. The fans stood in their seats. The buzzer sounded two seconds later.

The Vermont fans thundered out of the stands as bedlam reigned in the Auditorium. The UVM players were lifted above the crowd's shoulders and carried into their dressing room. The victorious Catamounts had accomplished what they have been priming for for three years. The fans were never so great, or so loud. This is one of the few times that the UVM students outnumbered the faculty. Many faculty members attend every home game, but this can not be said for the students. The students seem to prefer going to a downtown movie, or a card game to cheering for their own basketball team.

At the St. Michael's game last week, one couldn't hear the four Green and Gold cheerleaders. The Knights' fans drowned out every attempt made by the girls. But when ONE St. Michael's fan tossed his raccoon coat on the floor and led the Winooski Park peanut gallery, the Vermont fans kept still. Are the Vermont students so afraid of straining their voices?

Support is needed by a team. The players must know that their school chums are behind them. The Frosh are the only class which turns out faithfully at every home game. It is a fact that only 25% of the UVM students go to home basketball games. This is not a record to be proud of. There are only a few home contests left. YOUR basketball team wants and needs YOUR support. . . .NOW!

AROUND THE LOCKER ROOM.

Baseball practice began this past Monday for pitchers and catchers. . . .this year's mound staff is headed by Bob Koones, Steve Cooper, and Ross Artus. . . .Captain Don "Ace" Santa Croce will perform the chores behind the plate. . . .Two new opponents were added to the Cats' schedule this season. . . . Evansmen Upset Favored Yankee Conference Leaders

by JOEL C. ULLMAN

The University of Vermont Catamounts are the toast of the Yankee Conference after last Saturday night's 61-60 upset win over the University of Connecticut. One cannot, in print, describe fully the color and thrills of one of the greatest basketball games of the decade. My attempt may fall short, but with pride I will relate an imaginative tale which came true.

There were 2000 fans at Memorial Auditorium who saw Vermont win, 61-60, over the UConn Huskies. Vermont worked to a slow lead in the opening minutes against the taller Huskies. It was accomplished by playing possession ball and setting up cuts and short picks to shoot from. Defensively, UVM used a zone, and it worked quite effectively as the Huskies could score only on tap-ins and not from the outside. This of course was due to their superior height.

Bob Gallagher, along with Harry Zingg, who was a surprise starter, did a commendable job on the boards. They fought hard for every rebound and at times it seemed as if they were punching their way out of a pile up. With Clyde Lord playing all over the court and Bobby Kuchar hitting jump shots, the Cats took a 13-10 lead after ten minutes.

The 6'8" frame of Al Cooper was not in the starting lineup, but he did come in at 11:37 of the first half. He was not that effective, as his shooting was quite cold. It was Clyde Lord in the last five minutes of the half who put on a spectacular show for the crowd as he pushed in eight points with some pretty drives and soft jump shots. The result was a halftime lead for the Cats of 35-30.

In the beginning of the second half, it looked as if the superior height of Connecticut would pay off as the Cats lost their lead and were trailing at one point by eight points. However, the stubborn Catamounts battled back from the deficit in the last ten minutes. Captain Bob Kuchar began to find the range, and proved his title as a "money ballplayer."

The Connecticut lead was cut to one point, 56-55, with only 1:58 left in the game. Kuchar threw in a jump shot with a minute and a half remaining to put the Cats back in front. Connecticut, playing sloppy ball, lost the ball to Kuchar who was quickly fouled. With the pressure on, he hit both foul shots, and the result was Vermont 59, UConn 56 with less than a minute remaining.

Cooper drove in for two points to cut the margin to one point and UConn then recovered a loose ball. However, out of nowhere raced Kuch to steal the ball back and he was fouled in the action. With six seconds remaining, Kuchar again hit both foul shots and this time decided the game. The score: UVM 61, UConn 60.

Hats off to Charlie Isles who played his usual dependable game to round out the win as a team victory. At the buzzer, the Vermont fans mobbed the ball players and carried everyone, even subs, on their shoulders to the locker room.

This enthusiasm exemplifies the inert spirit in Vermont rooters. All we need are some winners, and a suggestion to the administration at this point may be quite beneficial: Scholarships are the answer!

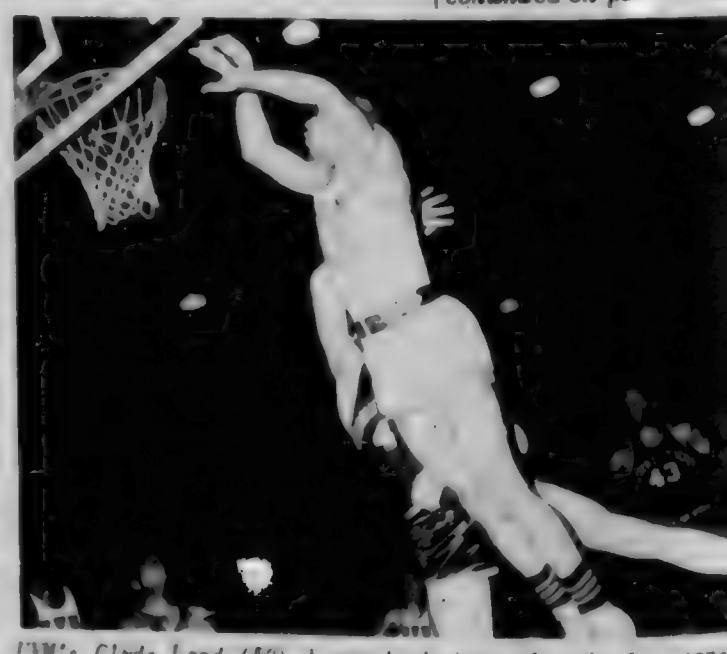
HOOPSTERS TOPPLE UNION, 85-65

by AL SHWADRAN

The Cats beat Union, 85-65, in a sloppy game played at Memorial Auditorium the night of January 14. Union tried to employ a "zone defense" against the Cats, but Vermont ripped it to shreds, despite some sloppy and poor ball handling.



Union came into town with a 9-1 record, including some good wins, but when the boys from Albany started to employ the "zone defense," the handwriting was on the wall.

For the first six minutes, it was a close game, with Union leading 13-12, but then the Cats got the lead and held it for good. The closest it got again came after eight minutes of the opening half with Vermont leading 18-17. After that, the Cats ran it up to 24-17, and 30-19, before half time when they were leading by 14 points, 42-28.

Union took advantage of Vermont's sloppy ball handling in the opening five minutes of the second half and cut the lead to ten points, 52-42. But here Clyde Lord led Vermont out to a 59-42 margin and it was all over but the shouting.

Clyde Lord found himself in the center of a "collapsing zone" around the foul line. Time and time, he tricked three Union p

Snow Sculptures Glisten During Kake Walk Weekend

by JULES OLDER

When Catamounts start anxiously scanning the skies for signs of snow, it's a pretty good indication that Kake Walk and snow sculptures are just around the corner. The sculpturing, done by members of the various living units at school, is a fascinating, traditional part of the historic week-end.

As the fabulous holiday approaches, large frame structures grow high in front of fraternities, sororities, and water. Soon this mass begins to take shape; either as a rocket, a cake, a walker, or any idea that can be the result of a resident's brain storm. By Saturday, the sculpture is completed and ready for the judges' approval.

The finishing touches are often last minute procedures, and more than one statue has had its final shaping done as the judges come up the walk. Often, too, melting snow forces a last minute change in design. For instance, one of last year's more intricate figures suddenly became a semi abstract blob accompanied by semi obscene lettering. But that's Kake Walk.

Judges are chosen from the faculty and are selected for their keen eye, cool head, sharp perception, and muscular physique. The last is particularly important because some of the boys get pretty upset if their snow statue isn't judged a winner. This year's judicators are: Captain Ralph Detherson of the Military Science Department, Professor Malcolm Daggett of the Romance Language Department, and Professor Richard Janson of the Art Department and Director of the Fleming Museum. They will award cups to the winning efforts on Saturday night.

Obviously, the most important factor in snow sculpturing is snow. When it is in scarce supply, house members are put to work gathering it from neighboring lawns. And when a respectable pile of snow has been gathered, it is treasured as a priceless commodity and well posted with guards.

So keep on gazing, skyward, loyal Catamounts, and keep on praying that "the frame won't be felled on account of rain."

Festivities Begin With Ball And Jazz Concert

by CONNIE EGNER

Kake Walk 1959 started Thursday night, the 19th, when the Elgart band played to a capacity crowd at Memorial Auditorium. A choice selection, Elgart's band proved its popularity, and set a right tempo for a carnival weekend. At ten o'clock, the bandleader crowned our Kake Walk '59 king and queen.

Walkin' fo' de Kake, a tradition dating back to the late 1890's, is the highlight of Friday and Saturday nights. Then the walkers from each fraternity, who have been training for months, do their fancy two-minute high stepping to the lively 'Cotton Babes'. Blackfaced droogies, with flashy satin suits, they hold spellbound the entire crowd with their coordination, rhythm, and kick. Three winning teams are chosen each night. Judges' on a point system, with the highest possible score 100, the walkers are rated up to 25 points for position of head and shoulders, 30 for kick, 40 for teamwork and smoothness, and 5 for special steps. The winners receive individual awards, fraternity trophies, and a Kake: Friday night judges are Messiers Steele, Brown and Pooley, while Saturday the job is in the hands of Mr. Gregg, Capt. Johns, and Mr. Cochran.

Not as deeply rooted in tradition, but fully as popular of late are the fraternity skits, imparting in all good fun, the current butt of campus jokes. Chosen by a faculty committee beforehand, this year's presentations are: Phi Delta Theta's 'Bigger Better Burlap', Sigma Nu's 'Damn Yankee', and Sigma Phi Epsilon's 'Look at the Future'. Limited to twelve minutes each, they customarily wheel in and out some uproarious laughs. The skits also vie for honors, and Friday evening Messiers Jones, Schneider, and Van Benthuysen are the select men. Saturday it's Messiers Bogorad, Teal and Lohman.

Friday afternoon's bright spot, perhaps the peak of spirit of the weekend, some jazz--Maynard Ferguson with the Salt Lake City Six. One question--does the spirit spark the music men, or do they make the mood.?

Sports fans will want to turn out for the basketball game Saturday afternoon when the Cats meet Norwich. And Sunday, Kake Walk '59 comes to its inevitable end with the annual sorority teas. And that its all over once more, over the tea, one thing's sure--KW will be the talk of the town.

KW Expenses

by DOROTHY INDICK

At Kake Walk time, one of the most perplexing questions that arises is -- money! (Hold on to those wallets!). Inflation, rising costs of living, etc. have had their effect on this memorable event. Before bringing in an "import", consider these important items:

Ball Tickets	$3.75
Flowers	5.00
Jazz Concert	3.00
Tuxedo	5.00
Walking Tickets	5.00

The fraternities access from 10 to 25 dollars which includes buffet suppers, refreshments, and decorations.

When the date is an import, the dollar signs multiply to $7.00 per night for room for three nights, and about $10.-00 extra for meals.

The grand total for a campus co-ed is about half of the amount which one would pay for an import. For a funfilled, eventful, and less expensive kake Walk, "don't get nervous, don't get flustered, don't get scared, be prepared". date a UVM co-ed--it "pays."

Acacia's Allen And Grant Add Luster To CYNIC Cover And Back Page

This year's cover of the Kake Walk CYNIC Souvenir issue pictures Acacia's Walkers, Ray Allen, '59, of South Hero, Vermont, and Howard (Buster) Grant, '61, of Vergennes, Vermont. They both walked last year and they are being managed this year by Carl Peabody, '60.

The planning of this picture began in November of last year. The Senior Staff of the CYNIC chose a sketch from a group of thirty sketches all created by Bennett F. Woll, '59, President of the Student Photography Staff. The photography was done in the SPS studio in lower Waterman and has been reproduced in a four color photo offset method by the George Little Press, the regular CYNIC printer.

Bennett F. Woll took the picture with a 4x5 Crown Graphic, using a Dormitzer Strobe light and two floods. The strobe had an effective shutter speed of 1/2500 and his lens was set at F7. Woll used Ansco chrome daylight film and was assisted by SPS Vice-President, Mazzini Bueno, Stan Everett and Robert Segal. Mazzini Bueno developed the negative--a "lengthy, difficult process," says Woll.

The costumes worn by the walkers were rented from the Hooker-Howe Company in Lowell, Massachusetts.

The walker's make-up was done by Carol Demas and Judy Gerber.

UVM is the first school in the United States to have newspapers with covers in color. Our first color cover was on the Kake Walk souvenir issue of 1954. Since then, many schools throughout the country have followed us by using color covers on their papers.

Bennett F. Woll says, "I think this is one of the best covers ever done for the CYNIC's Kake Walk Issue. The fine results would not have been possible without the help and cooperation of the walkers and my Staff."

There were 7,000 copies of this special issue printed this year. They will be distributed during intermission on both nights of walking. Additional copies will be available at the COSA office in lower Waterman.

Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra Thrills Many Who Braved Winter Winds

by TANYA LOHMAN

On Monday, February 9, the audience present to hear the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra found the evening well worth braving a Vermont winter for. Karl Muenchinger directed the ensemble with joyful dignity, making this a truly outstanding Lane Series event.

The first part of the program consisted of two works by Bach and one by Vivaldi. Bach's "Ricercare in Six Parts, from 'Das Musikalische Opfer'" blended the precision of the composer with the expert craftsmanship of the musicians. The resulting excellence was made even greater by the use of a screen behind the orchestra to direct much usually lost sound into the auditorium. The second selection was Bach's "Bradenburg Concerto No. 3, in G Major," which through the clarity of performance emphasized the idea that no recording, in spite of the number of retakes done to perfect the playing, can equal a live performance in richness. Many people, however, found it necessary to compensate for the non-existent second movement of the Concerto by indulging in profuse applause after the first movement.

The "Concerto grosso in D major" by Vivaldi gave the audience an opportunity to hear the expert solo talents of Werner Krotzinger and Johannes Rainer Koeble playing the violin, and Siegfried Barchet playing the violincello. The piece, though of a different character than Bach, was a good complement. It ended the first half of the program with gaiety and warmth showing that these performers are indeed master-craftsmen. Feeling the joy these men and women take in their career alone is enough to greatly increase interest in chamber music at this time.

The second half of the program was devoted to two works by Mozart, the "Divertimento in D major" and the "Eine kleine Nachtmusik in G major." Perhaps here, as in no other part of the program, the cooperation of the musicians leading to mutual success was apparent. The pieces were performed with richness of technique and great understanding of the human element in music. They were enthusiastically accepted by an audience who saw no need to compensate for anything by applauding at places that would break the flow of the composition as a whole.

The Lane Series was most fortunate in being able to offer the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra on its program. for this organization is doing much to further international cooperation and a closer kinship between people and fine music.

Reflections & Repartee

by ART KRAUSER

Former CYNIC writer and now studying at Rochester Graduate School in Psychology.

It would be folly for me to reflect upon any topic other than Kake Walk. The weekend is upon us with all its glory. Collegemen and women have worked for many long hard hours towards its perfection. Kake Walk has never been known to have let anyone down in the past.

It is said among members of the sexes that Kake Walk weekend either makes or breaks a romantic relationship. Three to four days of continuous co-existence really allows you to know a person; in many cases one explores too far. Thus, it is a word of caution that I would like to express right now. Although Kake Walk is known for its excesses, you needn't be known for yours.

Gay And Continuous

Kake Walk has always borne a strong resemblance to three consecutive New Year's Eve. Its festivities are gay and constant; its mood is contagious. If one allows himself a minimum, though adequate amount, of self-restraint and a maximum amount of naturalness, he can not help but blend into the pervailing spirit of excitement.

Kake Walk is the epitome of fraternity life on campus. Its planning, direction and execution is almost all fraternity. The weekend embodies a fine and constructive competitive spirit among fraternities and their supporters. The entire University family is made captive by its effervescent atmosphere. The VIA may build a snow sculpture, but it is like a drop in a bucket of Greek lettered water.

Fiction And Fact

Reviewing past Kake Walks has brought the following collection of far-fetched facts to mind.

Fact- If civil defense authorities visited UVM on Sunday, they would find it the most bombed out spot in the country.

Fact- UVM girls are more efficient than most others. They can cram into 1:30 curfews the fun that other girls stay up all night for.

Fact- K.W. weekend produces more "lines" than a year's production of the Bell [illegible] Company.

Fact- Never are [illegible] tried more [illegible] regretted [illegible]

Do's And Don'ts

Do be affectionate.
Don't be an animal.
Do comb your hair.
Don't grease up.
Do be happy.
Don't be hysterical.
Do enjoy the Walkers.
Don't try to imitate them.
Don't put off for tomorrow what you can do today.

Poetry Yet

Here are some old quotations on that outmoded, archaic and outlawed activity called drinking.

If all be true that I think,
There are five reasons we should drink.
Good wine-a friend-or being dry-
Or lest we should be by and by-
Or any other reason why.

Jeannie Reminisces Her Kake Walk Reign

by LYNN GREENBERG

It seems hard for Jean to believe that a year has passed since Kake Walk 1958. For Jean and her sorority sisters of Alpha Chi Omega, last year's Kake Walk festivities started long before February; planning for the campaign began in November, 1957, under the direction of campaign manager, Pat Deacon.

Jeannie was presented as a queen candidate at the annual Pops Night. Alpha Chi's skit used a dream theme - butterflies were dreaming about Kake Walk. Five stars appeared, each with a different aspect of the holiday. The fifth star presented the Queen, who appeared in a ball gown of white with blue chiffon.

Two of her sorority sisters, Barbara Crocker and Peggy Day, were members of her court at the ball. They were "as much if not more excited than I", said Jean.

After the holiday was over, Jean became pointed to on campus and off campus as the Kake Walk Queen. Reminiscing, Jean says, "At times it did prove embarrassing when complete strangers would greet me or point me out."

However, being Queen of Kake Walk was a wonderful thrill for Jean, a senior from Medina, N.Y. Her reign also proves wrong the old adage that beauty and brains don't mix, for Jean is a dean's list student in the college of Arts and Sciences.

During Pops Night, as well as throughout Kake Walk itself, Jean admits that she was nervous and excited.

When told that she had been elected Queen, Jeannie was "happy and surprised". Her parents and her boyfriend (who is now her fiance) were with her to share her happinees and to add a little

"Every Queen probably feels that the girls in the house are 99% of the campaign." This was Jean's comment thanking her sorority sisters for their hard work and faith in her. She is proud and pleased to have been your Queen. For this year's Queen, she wishes good luck and a very happy Kake Walk.

Weekend's Success Product Of Directors' Work And Planning

Richard Marron

by PAT JAY

During this weekend of Kake Walk fun UVM'ers should take time out to give a round of applause to the Directors, who are responsible for its smooth running. These men behind the scenes are Wales A. Newell of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Richard C. Marron, of Tau Epsilon Phi, and Alan D. Overton, of Phi Delta Theta.

In charge of production is Wales Newell, who secured the bands for Kake Walk, Larry Elgart for the Kake Walk Ball, and the Salt City Six and Maynard Ferguson for the Jazz Concert. Wales, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland W. Newell of Main Street, Woodbury, Conn., is a Distinguished Military Service student and president of Ethan Allen Rifles. He is president of Alpha Zeta, recipient of the Sons of the American Revolution Award in 1958 and is president and house manager of SAE.

Handling the financial end of Kake Walk business is Richard Marron, son of Mr. William C. Marron of 28 Robin St., Albany, N.Y. He is in charge of financial arrangements and seating for the big event. Active on campus, Marron is IFC treasurer, vice-president of the International Relations Club, President of Key and Serpent, a member of Boulder Society and president of Tau Epsilon Phi.

Publicity for Kake Walk is in the hands of Alan Overton, son of Mr. R.C. Overton of Manchester, Vt., and Mrs. N. Aronszajn of Lawrence, Kansas. Al, who releases news to the press, takes part in other campus activities. He is president of Newman Club, past vice-president of the Class of 1959, a member of IFC for two years and on the Dean's List. He is also a member of Arnold Air Society, and Gold Key. He has served two terms as president of his fraternity, Phi Delta Theta.

Helping the three directors with the tremendous job of Kake Walk, are the Assistant Directors. They are Larry Brown, Springfield, Vt., Joe Dye, Burlington, Vt., Fred Mandell, Norwich, Conn., and Jim McAuliffe, Port Washington, L.I. These four juniors have done a great deal of work throughout the year.

Brown is assistant in charge of production. He has worked with skit directors on rehearsals and staging and has also been instrumental in the planning of the Kake Walk Ball. Larry, a member of Key and Serpent, is also treasurer

Another very important member of the Kake Walk staff is Carolyn Morin, secretary to the directors. Carolyn from Middlebury, Vt., is a senior in Arts and Sciences. She is an officer in Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and is also secretary for the George Bishop Lane series. Carolyn deserves an extra tribute for her long and often thankless job.

So "hats off" to these eight people who have made the 62nd Kake Walk a reality and the best yet!

Joe Dye is handling the tremendous job of publicity. This includes poster displays in downtown windows, handling of the Poster Contest and work on the Snow Sculpture Competition. In addition to his Kake Walk work, Joe is a member of the varsity football squad and assistant steward of Sigma Nu.

Working on the actual "walking" is Fred Mandell, who was a Kake Walker himself last year, for Phi Sigma Delta fraternity. Fred scheduled rehearsals and worked directly with the walkers. He is also in charge of the campaign for Kake Walking and queen. Fred is also vice-president of Key and Serpent.

Assistant director in charge of finances is Jim McAuliffe. Jim, who works on seating arrangements and money records, also has the job of ordering the traditional canes and trophies for Kake Walk. Jim is

The Vermont Cynic Do Not Mar Kake Walk

Once again the snow-covered campus of the University of Vermont prepares itself for the highlight of the school year, Kake Walk. Excitement mounts, studies are temporarily forgotten, and extra pennies are saved for the social event of the year. It is from Kake Walk that in future years the present student body will glean precious memories of this tradition-steeped weekend.

But often times when excitement reaches a peak, one finds himself losing site of the important things and putting undue stress on less important, and perhaps unpleasant, matters. Differences of opinion between audiences and judges in past years have marred the memories and enjoyability of Kake Walk. Proper understanding, one of the hardest obtained intangibles in this world, is the key to preventing the degradation of one of the highest and oldest traditions at UVM.

Naturally, any group participating in an event, even as spectators, appreciates good judging or refereeing. When poor calls are made in a basketball game, no matter to which team the advantage falls, interest in the game wanes. Such was the case last Saturday night during the game against Massachusetts when many spectators found themselves eventually screaming at the referees rather than cheering our team. It is common knowledge that preparations for Kake Walk by many hard working people began months ago. It is therefore understandable that their incentive and spirit might drop if poor judging spoiled their efforts for recognition.

We at UVM can do something to prevent any unpleasantness at Kake Walk this year and for future years. First of all, we must realize that the judges appointed for the weekend events are carefully selected and thateveryone dislikes seeing their favorites lose. Secondly, we can suggest to the Kake Walk committee that in future years the number of judges be increased from three to five making for more opinions and better judging. This should alleviate much of the misunderstanding which is common during Kake Walk.

It should be emphasized here that the CYNIC in no way means to deride the student body or the judges for their actions during this weekend. We are merely publishing certain obvious but often forgotten rules of proper behavior and making suggestions for future Kake Walks which we hope are for the good.

AND FROM THE CYNIC STAFF AND MEMBERS WE WISH ALL OF YOU A MOST ENJOYABLE KAKE WALK.

Chaperons Present Problems

by JEROME KOLKER

Since the purge on alcohol was instituted one year ago, many problems have ensued. Aside from the major problem of finding new and clever places to hide the booze stuff, the student body has run into an even greater obstacle. This is the problem of finding some members of our illustrious faculty to chaperone at university social functions. The procedure for obtaining chaperones is as follows: Each social chairman asks certain members of the faculty to chaperone for him. After receiving their consent, he gives a social petition, consisting of the time and nature at the functions and names of the chaperones to the COSA office. This petition must be passed by COSA. The procedure is quite simple, but, as of late, getting chaperones is about as difficult as Freshmen buying liquor in the University Store. According to fraternity men the standard answers given to the question, "Will you chaperone our party?" are: I'm going out of town this weekend or it is my policy not to chaperone any fraternity affair. Definite negative answers like these leave little more to be said or done. In all fairness, the faculty cannot be condemned, for the job of a chaperone is not a pleasing one. Prior to the drinking ban, the job of chaperoning young men and women was not an admirable one, but now, the chaperones have an added responsibility placed upon their shoulders. Obviously since the University demands chaperones at social functions, and since obtaining them is such a difficult problem, there should be some kind of system worked out among the faculty, fraternities and the administration in order to insure the necessary supervision of the functions.

It is inconceivable that the University will allow unchaperoned social functions, yet it is all to conceivable that want of chaperones will result in a curtailment of these functions. The answer to the chaperone problem is not an easy one, but the administration and student body are all aware of it. We can at least feel assured that action is being taken to allow our social functions to continue.

Panel Discussion Planned For Mar. 4

On Wednesday, March 4, at 4:10 p.m. in the Student Lounge, students and faculty will have the opportunity to hear a qualified panel discuss "Athletics from the Coaches Point of View." UVM athletic policy, problems related to recruiting, training, and scheduling, the present role and function, plus aspirations for the future all will be discussed.

A panel consisting of coaches Ed Donnelly, John "Fuzzy" Evans, and Archie Post will be guided by moderator James Pooley, who heads the UVM Athletic Committee.

Many feel that the athletic system at UVM is inadequate. This should help to define its present standing, and provide helpful suggestions for the future.

COSA office and the Cultural Committee of the Student Association are co-sponsors of the discussion.

"YOUR TESTS HERE SEEM TO INDICATE YOU HAVE A KEEN INTEREST IN THE AREA OF FORM & STRUCTURE."

As long as I'm close to the subject of Memorial Auditorium, and since I formally dedicated this month as Memorial Auditorium Month, I might as well add a few facts about the Auditorium. Last week I mentioned some of the drawbacks in using the Auditorium as the main gathering place for all social events at the University. What some people failed to realize is that the University does not own the auditorium. Every time it has to be used, a very high rental fee has to be paid. The auditorium is used for basketball practices and games, the Kake Walk Ball and the actual Walking and skits and all the other social gatherings that go on there. These rentals add up to quite an enormous figure. I can't get my hands on the actual figures right now, but I feel that these could be alleviated if an adequate building could be built to accomodate these various functions. The university could save itself a bundle of money that is now being paid to the City of Burlington as owners of the Auditorium.

In one of the college papers from Florida, I read a story about a very unfortunate young student who got into a bit of trouble. The weather in Florida is in no way comparable to ours, and at this very moment some students are probably basking in the sun on one of the many beaches in the Sunshine State. The story started off by relating the newest of styles in women's bathing suits. It stated that there is not too much to them. In fact, a recent picture in town, "The Girl in the Bikini," with Briggite Bardot, reveals what I mean. I missed the picture, but I did see the coming attractions, fortunately. Anyway, the new styles are somewhat like the so-called bathing suit that B.B. was wearing. The young student was walking along the beach, and he thought he saw a beautiful white handkerchief lying on the sand. He walked over to it and bent over and picked it up. Five minutes later he was arrested for rape. Say la vie

From the Columbia Jester comes this quip . . .
There was a young flapper named Ruth
Who stepped out one night with a youth
To a masquerade ball
She wore no dress at all
When asked what she was, she said "Truth."

For those of you undergrads or alumni who are not going to abide by the University liquor regulations, I thought I might give you a very important telephone number. Call 4-9751 if in need. Those under 21 need not apply since this is the Alcoholic Anonymous Service Center.

Have a Happy, Helluva Kake Walk. So long for now.

UVM Offers Law Scholarship

This year scholarships are being given by two law schools. One is being sponsored by Boston college and another by the University of Chicago. They are offered to any student in the university who wants to study law regardless of his major college, or field of endeavor. These scholarships will provide for full tuition at the schools.

Application blanks can be picked up at the office of the department of Political Science Room 210, Old Mill. They are to be returned by Friday, February 27, along with a transcript of the student's undergraduate record, to Prof. Lyman Gould, Political Science Dept. Room 212, Old Mill.

'TWAS THE NIGHT BEFORE KAKE WALK

By Art & Bob

'Twas the night before Kake Walk
And all thru the school
Not a student was resting.
For work was the rule

Skits were near perfect
Walkers kicked high Sculptures were finished
"Hail, Kake Walk!" the cry

The last day of classes
Seemed never to end.
Yet the ball crept on closer
To dance was the trend

Back at the house
My suit was all pressed.
In no time at all
I had showered and dressed.

My date was my steady.
A rare one was she.
We had met three years past
At old Waterbury.

The buffet had ended.
We hurried downtown
I tightened my tie.
She fastened her gown

The King and the Queen
Were announced loud and clear
Then on to the parties
For soda and beer.

Friday was a day
I shall always remember.
The jazz was as cool
As Vermont in December.

At night came the skits.
Our house was on top
Then we won the walking
The world seemed to pop

Saturday, too,
Was the greatest of all
But when it came Sunday,
The world seemed to fall

I bid my girl goodbye
She said, "There's no hurry"
Because it was back
To old Waterbury

"It certainly is wonderful." My former roommate has a stereotyping way of using that phrase, and it has a habit of cropping up in a more or less conscious dream that I have every year at about this time. I say conscious because the dream does not appear to me during sleep (or half sleep) even though it does have a fixed static business to it. (A recent article in the New York Times Magazine somewhat warns about recurrent dreams with a static image. . . seems sufferers of this type of dream are likely to be psychotic.)

The phrase and the dream do have a certain connection. The dream appears at Kake Walk time and it stems from the "days of my youth," back to the mid forties, perhaps earlier, because Kake Walks then, even though attended as strongly, and catered to as much as they are now, had a more intimate appeal. There was none of this lost, factional business which has plunged our recent Kake Walks into something everyone celebrates and no one seems to really know why. The skits then had an unbrushedness, an unsmooth, unfinishedness. I can remember sitting by friends, none of us understanding a single montage. This may have been explained in that we were not old enough, and certainly because we were not in the know of the lampoon, but whatever was done, skit-wise, was more impressive. Granted a lot of this was impressive because of the child's mind. Which takes us back to "It certainly is wonderful" and the picture I have in mind now that Kake Walk is again very much here.

The picture is that of a gentleman atop the second story, cutting toenails about three feet long, with a pair of scissors equally as large. Now I admit there might be flaw in this image; that it might be incorrect in the physical detail, but there certainly is not any coloring of the spirit. I do not remember the subject of this particular skit, for reasons which are obvious. It certainly is wonderful.

What I'm saying, I guess, is that even though change is necessary, and even though yesterday's Kake Walks seem better, it is fine to have this tradition carried on. But it strikes me that the what I am trying to tell myself by connecting the somewhat derogatory: "It certainly is wonderful," with the yesteryear Kake Walk scene, is that this whole weekend, Man, is certainly not Endville. Indeed, maybe I would like to play the weekend down a little.

It is no longer legally, the big blast weekend that it was, and certainly with the inebriation wind out of its sails, the weekend looses much of its original zing, but not its original reason. This is to be our first dry Kake Walk. I confess that I await with more than baited breath, the conclusion of the weekend; to see if there are any dead soldiers. The fact that the weekend will prove a test of our maturity, the maturity which accepts authority, makes this first dry Kake Walk interesting. I can see it's abolition if we still prove to be in diapers. As students who are "intellectually curious" right down the line, it should interest us to see how that separation of traditions works. My feelings are that if we make this hump in pretty fair condition, old guard tradition looses out and there is a great deal of hope for our generation. On the other hand if there is gross contradiction of authority then a double standard of behavior exists within our system here at school too (see Clearing House 2/13) and the administration has a very definite and pressing problem on its hands.

The responsibility for all this lies with us. Can we be bigger than the denial? I would not even point at the fraternities. This certainly isn't a job for them, it's one for the individual.

"It certainly is wonderful"

Other Colleges Have Many Carnivals, But No Kake Walk

Here it is Kake Walk time again. During this weekend, UVM is an extremely popular place. However, it is interesting to note that other colleges also experience similar and equally exciting weekends.

Middlebury, for instance, has its Winter Carnival from February 19 to February 22. It will consist of "ski events," one play, and ice skits, one hockey game, one basketball game, two dances and, of course, their share of fraternity parties.

The carnival of Colby University extended from February 11 to February 15. Among their many events were a banquet for queen candidates, hockey games, song concerts and, something new, a "Bruno Brunch" and fraternity fizzles on Sunday afternoon.

Massachusetts have already had their carnival and incidentally featured the Les and Larry Elgart band. They also had a fireworks display and a ball.

As consolation for those at UVM who have been unable to get tickets or accomodations for friends or relatives, we pass on the information that the same situation exists at most carnivals and particularly acute a short time ago at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival. It was announced that facilities were so limited in Hanover that anyone wanting to see the carnival must have an invitation and a guest card.

However, interesting as these are, they are lacking the one most important event. And this event belongs to UVM alone. Of course, it's the graditional "Walkin fo' de cake." This makes our Kake Walk what it is and keeps it forever in our memories.

History Of Kake Walk Reviewed By CYNIC

Kake Walking's History Began With A Cancelled Ball In 1894

by ROGER S. ZIMMERMAN

The audience is still, silence prevails, a handkerchief drops, and 'Cotton Babes' booms out across the auditorium. Another chapter opens in the book of Kake Walk history. But how did all this evolve? Let's take a brief look at Kake Walk past.

Like most institutions, Kake Walk started small. But it has constantly increased in stature and has grown and changed with the temperament of the times, reaching the position of near perfection which it holds today. The origin of the Kake Walk tradition is, to say the least, a conglomeration of fact and myth. One report, admittedly somewhat hard to believe, states that several enterprising students, tired from their exams, met on Washington's birthday by the Chapel for a period of "grand jubilation and frolic". The whole student body showed up in costumes and masks. The report says also that a keg of beer, hidden in a loft, sprang a leak, dripped on the rafters, and discolored the walls. Another report, perhaps a more reliable one, says that a scheduled Military Ball in 1893 failed to materialize, and the disappointed students then put on their own show. Hereafter, the first signs appeared of what was to become a fabulous campus tradition.

The original Kake Walk was a boy and girl routine from which the UVM Kake Walk takes its basic form.

The Hash House

Kake Walking made its first debut in 1894 when a group of students known as "the hash house boys" (Hash house being the Common Hall or cafeteria) started the practice of "walking". These students advanced their opinion that a true Kake Walk was the celebration held at the end of a Southern Sugar Harvest, at which the couples who could walk in pairs most attractively, skillfully, or uniquely were awarded a cake for their efforts.

The first Kake Walk, which was sponsored by no one group or organization, was held in the Drill Hall of the Old Mill. Everyone was invited to participate and partake in the festival. There was the Grand March in which all the students were invited to join, with the only requirement being that each student wear a costume and mask.

One CYNIC editorial, December 1, 1900, urged "If you are not already billed for a part in the cake walk (note the spelling at this time) it is not too late yet. Of course you will be there, but if you are not concerned with any specialty, get a striking costume and go into the Grand March. Don't be afraid of making yourself conspicuous or ridiculous-that is the business of the night".

The idea of Walking caught the popular fancy at once. According to opinions of the time, it was "one of those spontaneous ebullitions of high spirits that rarely animated the whole college body".

Cotton Babes (composed in 1897 by Percy Wenrich, of Boston)

With the introduction of Cotton Babes into the Kake Walk festivities in 1904, Kake Walk began to assume its traditional form. As Kake Walk grew, its following and fame also increased. Therefore the walking moved from the Armory to the Old Opera House to the Gymnasium to its present site of Memorial Auditorium. By the 24th Kake Walk, attendance had grown so large as to necessitate it being presented for two concurrent evenings. As it grew it also sufferrd growing pains. The question was mised in the March 2, 1907 CYNIC that "Should not someone be appointed to find out beforehand all about each 'stunt' and act as a sort of censor, recommending that certain parts be left out in the final.

Drinking-A Problem Indeed

The spirits, both mental and otherwise, were so high back in 1894 that Kake Walk was abandoned in the following two years. However, the year 1907 saw the restoration of the continuing tradition, with its management now under care by representatives of the various classes. Needless to say, since the UVM administration has laid down the law on drinking, "the UVM campus has been as dry as a desert?"

Growing Pains

Snow sculpture competitions took place for the first time in 1921 years later in 1934 the first King and Queen of Kake Walk were crowned. At this time women were allowed to compete in the Kake Walk.

The early events of Kake Walk were small affairs. They were sponsored by various organizations, and were those that are packed by the Burlington Mayor Burke for the handling of these current city problems. Private student groups would enter skits as would the Medical School and other branches of the University. Eventually fraternities took over the presentation of skits and did all of the Walking.

Changes and Modifications

The Grand March was for some reason dropped. It was at the time, called the "Procession" and it was probably felt to be better to keep it for another holiday later in the Spring. But whatever the reason, the spectators became more passive and were satisfied to watch the whole affair being conducted by a relatively small group. There were constant warnings that the whole thing would be dropped if student interest was not maintained. Each Kake Walk Committee pleaded with the students to make "this Kake Walk the best of all", and every year their wish came true.

The atmosphere of Kake Walk has been greatly influenced by the times. During

Kake Walk's Winning Poster Blends Into The Excitement Of The Weekend

By DAVID STEELE

Susan Sproule, a UVM Junior and member of Pi Beta Phi sorority was the winner of annual UVM Kake Walk Poster Contest. Her poster was chosen from over forty entries for the honor of bringing the 62nd annual Kake Walk weekend to the public's attention.

Much planning and thought are represented by Miss Sproule's poster. She decided on the design after having seen several other entries under construction. She noticed that most entrants were concentrating on the heads, hands and torsos of Kake Walkers. Convinced that something of the spirit of Kake Walk was missing from these posters, Miss Sproule searched through old issues of the Ariel, and soon came to the conclusion that the high kick is one of the truly distinctive features of Kake Walk. Accordingly, Susan designed her poster around the figure of a high-stepping Walker.

Judges of the Poster Contest were Professor Francis P. Colburn, Chairman of the Art Department, Dean Thomas C. Bing, Dean of the College Education and Nursing, and Professor Edith C. Grief, Associate Professor of Economics. According to Professor Colburn, what the judges were looking for was a poster with eye appeal. "Readability, or the ability for a viewer to get the full impact of the poster without a lot of reading was of utmost importance," said Professor Colburn. In the opinion of the judges, Miss Sproule's poster best filled this requirement. In addition the poster showed originality, good planning, and superior execution. Mr. Colburn pointed out that Miss Sproule's poster was the best in an exceptionally large and exceptionally good group of entries.

Miss Sproule, a member of Pi Beta Phi, is Assistant History Editor of her sorority. The History of the local chapter is sent to the National chapter each month. In addition she is active in all women's sports, especially inter-sorority basketball, soccer, hockey, and softball.

GREETINGS and WELCOME to KAKE WALK all you IMPORTANT IMPORTS! We're glad that the wind that blew in Kake Walk (and enough snow for some really promising sculptures) brought you all, too. We hope that the spirit that descended upon us here at UVM officially last Friday night at Penny Carnival (though many of us were hitten by the Kake Walk bug long before) will soon take hold of you as you enter into what we think is the happiest kind of a Winter Carnival.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

With the beginning of the new semester, Teddi Engelhardt and Linda Diamond were initiated into the sisterhood of our chapter.

We held our pledge ribbon ceremony for the new pledges last Saturday and welcomed them with a dinner served by several SAE's.

Recently, our alumna in the Metropolitan area of New York met to organize an association of AO graduates. Barbara [illegible] was elected to be the President of the group and is now working on plans for future meetings and programs.

In keeping with the Kake Walk season, the AO's are busily working on their snow sculpture under the direction of Evie Krueger and Elaine Margolin.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

A successful rushing program was enjoyed by the members of ATO. Their banquet was held at the Olde Board Restaurant. For their principal speaker they were honored to have Professor Malcom Daggett, Chairman of the Romance Language Department, who has been a member of Alpha Tau Omega for twenty-eight years.

Election of officers produced the following slate: Jack Lancaster-President, Jerry Brink-Vice-President, Donald Morse-Treasurer; John Aines-Secretary, and Kert Dechard-Steward.

The members of ATO wish everyone a gay and happy Kake Walk.

DELTA PSI

Delta Psi had an impressive buffet dinner at their house, Thursday night. The house was extensively decorated with winter carnival scenes and the Pete Davis Combo provided dinner music. Friday and Saturday, informal parties are planned with skating on the fraternity's newly completed rink. Bill Arnold's quartet and the UVM Catamounts will play Friday and Saturday nights respectively.

GAMMA PHI BETA

The Gamma Phi's were especially pleased by a visit from Elizabeth Fey Arnold, past Grand President of International Gamma Phi Beta and present Gamma Phi representative to National Panhellenic.

New officers were installed at the first meeting of the semester.

It was a great treat Thursday night when SAE sent over a delegation of waiters for dinner.

KAPPA SIGMA

In addition to running one of their members, Bob Gallagher, for Kake Walk King this year, the Kappa Sigs have also scheduled three parties for the Kake Walk weekend. Two of the parties will be open houses with music supplied, following the two nights of "walking." Many of Kappa Sig's alumni are returning to participate in the festivities of the weekend.

PHI DELTA THETA

Phi Delt began their Kake Walk celebration with a buffet dinner at the house before the Kake Walk Ball. After the dinner, a pinning ceremony was held for Jack Fraser and Jody Hugget of East Thetford, Vt. "De Cake" Is Symbol Of Kake Walk

The traditional symbol of Kake Walk, "de cake", which is given as a prize to the winners of the walking, skits, and sculptures.

by ARNOLD D. BERLINER

Like all traditions, the colorful cake awards of Kake Walk Night have deep and historic origins. The symbol of "de cake" has, for the viewer, a significant meaning, although he may be unaware of the origin of the cake's symbol.

It started in the deep South in the days of the gentleman farmer when plantation workers would celebrate the completion of the year's work with festivities similar to that of our own Kake Walk. The younger laborers would step and kick lively to the music of fiddles. Couples were judged, in the meantime, according to the precision of the grace and agility of their partners. One by one, pairs were eliminated until the winning couple was chosen. This last and final pair of precision dancers was awarded a giant and highly decorated cake. Thus, the origin of the presentation of the cake was evolved.

Sixty-two years ago, the entire tradition of the plantation workers was imitated by the Northern Yankee, it has stayed at UVM ever since. With the development of the Kake Walk tradition, there has been a corresponding increase of competition in various campus activities. Now candidates campaign for King and Queen of the Kake Walk Ball, fraternities and sororities compete for snow sculpture and Kake Walk poster awards. Skits with a common theme have also become an integral part of Kake Walk Holiday. Here the symbolic meaning of the cake appears once again. Cakes of different sizes are awarded to the winners in each of the above categories of competition. When one realizes the work that is involved in trying to win one of the Cakes, no matter what size it may be, the winner's ecstacy should be apparent to everyone present at Kake Walk Night.

WHAT IS KAKE WALK?

1 What is Koke Walk?

Kake Walk is the oldest collegiate carnival in the United States, beginning at the University in 1901.

2. How did Kake Walk get its start?

A Military Ball did not materialize in 1893, which disappointed Frederick T. Sharp, a leader of campus affairs at that time, that he initiated the first Kake Walk in the loft of the Old Mill.

3. Why do they call it Kake Walk?

The name Kake Walk, originated in the South when, at the end of the Sugar Harvest, cakes were awarded to the winning participants, who most skillfully went through their paces via specific dance routines. Following along these same lines, not only the idea, but the name itself was then adopted and retained for the years to come.

4. What comprised Kake Walk then?

Kake Walk was reserved strictly for walking, but in 1897, there were additions. The current tradition of stunts and specialties were inaugurated. It was 6 years later in 1903 that the Washington Birthday weekend was set aside for Kake Walk, this year was a memorable one, for the fraternities first entered competitive skits.

5. Have the ice sculptures always been a part of Kake Walk?

No, ice sculptures made their first appearance on campus in 1921. They were judged by citizens of Burlington, a task now undertaken by members of the faculty.

6. What is Kake Walk today?

Kake walk today is the following group of events:

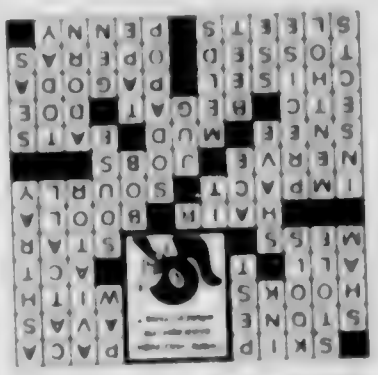
A. Pops Night and Penny Carnival - Friday, February 13 at Memorial Auditorium at 7:30. At 9:00, the King and Queen candidates are announced in skits.

B. The Royalty Reception for the candidates presented this year by Alpha Chi Sorority, whose candidate won last year's Queen Contest. The place is South Wick Auditorium on Sunday afternoon.

C. The election of the King and Queen takes place on Monday in first floor Waterman. Results are not announced until Thursday evening at the Ball.

D. Dress Rehearsal for walking is held in the gym on February 17 at 4:30 P M and February 18 at 4:30 P M.

E. Kake Walk Ball featuring the new Elgart Band begins at 9:00 on Thursday, February 19, with the crowning of the King and Queen at 10:00 P M.



F. Kake Walk Jazz Concert starts at 1:30 on Friday afternoon featuring Maynard Ferguson and his band plus the Salt City Six.

G. Kake Walking and Skits are Friday and Saturday evenings beginning at 8 P M and followed by the giving of trophies and cakes.

H. Saturday afternoon is the basketball game against Norwich.

I. Finally there are the fraternity parties and the sorority teas which round out this exciting weekend.

Four Fraternity Skits Provide Amusement, Song, And Satire

Edward R. Murrow has [illegible] the booming metropolis of Burlap, Vermont, to visit. It seems that Burlap has experienced phenomenal growth in recent years and Murrow is intent on finding out the how and whys of this growth. The honorable B.J. Dunn, Mayor of Burlap, is host to Murrow and tries [illegible] the town and how it is growing. Murrow is surprised to find that roads & hotels [illegible] have played a great part in Burlap's expansion. The University [illegible] Burlap has also had its. The ways in which it has grown are what both Murrow and you will learn tonight.

Sig Nu's "missing person"

It was a happy day on the UVM campus when one of Vermont's most prominent citizens was found missing. Indeed it proves to be a baffling case for the police. In the end, however, all of UVM rejoices, and it is in this presentation that Sigma Nu tries to provoke serious thought about lifting the lethargic atmosphere that has prevailed about the University Family. All energies are aimed in persuasion of the "Damn Yankee."

What the future may bring

What will UVM be like twenty years from now? The members of Sigma Phi Epsilon project themselves into the future in this exciting tale set to music. Two sets of rules! [illegible] Two teams of Men! No football team! (But wait till you see what has replaced it). Yes, these and many many more changes have come about at dear old UVM campus twenty years hence. From opening surprise to the finale, Sigma Phi Epsilon is sure you'll enjoy "A Look At The Future."

TEP's "Supreme Compromise"

The "Supreme Compromise" is the astonighing and humorous tale that relates the biggest dilemma facing Washington's high society since the days of prohibition. The story reveals the efforts of society to bring a certain number, missed by all, back to the nation's capitol. The comical way in which they attempt to do this, we are assured, will fill you with moments of laughter. Join with the members of Tau Epsilon Phi as they present the vivid and exciting struggle that exists between two opposing forces and the hilarious plot which they unfold to resolve the situation.

The fraternities eligible to present skits must be members of the I.F.C. of UVM. Social members or those on University probation are not eligible. Only an all-male cast composed of UVM students who are brothers or pledges of the fraternity presenting the skit is permitted. Each fraternity must supply a man to operate each spotlight and bucket lights.

A maximum budget of $350 is allowed each fraternity, and they will be reimbursed up to $50 for their expenses.

Each skit is allowed 12 minutes to get on the floor, be produced, and exit, leaving the area completely free of props, trash, water, etc. A warning bell will signal the time at the end of 9 minutes and if the skit is still on the floor at the end of 12 minutes, a final warning bell will be given.

Each skit is judged carefully, according to its plot, presentation, and properties and costumes. The point system is as follows:

1. Plot
a. Continuity	15
b. Originality	15	30
2. Presentation
a. Teamwork & smoothness	25
b. Delivery & voice	25	50
3. Properties & costumes		20
Total points		100

Skits may also be penalized from 2 to 50 points for overtime.

Skit Trophy Winners Thru The Years

Last year a new trophy [illegible] the first place winners [illegible] skit competition was awarded in honor of UVM's 16th President, Dr. Carl Borgmann who left the University last year to assume a post as Program Director of the Science and Engineering Division of the Ford Foundation.

The award, called the Borgmann Trophy, was presented Saturday night of Kake Walk last year to Sigma Nu, who placed first in the skit competition for both nights and it resided in the fraternity house this past year. Usually, if two fraternity's win on different nights, the trophy remains with Friday night's winner's house for the first half of the year and Saturday's winner's receive it for the remainder of the year.

The new Borgmann Trophy replaces the Briggs Cup which was awarded since 1898 and retired by Phi Sigma Delta upon winning four successive first places in skit competition.

GUIDE MADE UP DEFINING AND ILLUSTRATING KAKE WALKING ESSENTIALS AND SCORING

Bob Bowers' high kick illustrates one of the basic fundamentals of walking. The kick is worth thirty points.

by DOROTHY INDICK

There is an indefinable thrill which sends shivers through an onlooker as he sits in the darkened Memorial Auditorium and watches the first pair of walkers begin their efforts of teamwork and precision at the drop of a handkerchief. This is the very essence of the Kake Walk week-end and is held both Friday and Saturday nights.

Each pair of walkers constituting a team, while using the basic step, which is an over accentuation of the actual walk, adds its own distinctive steps aiming for individuality and a distinguishing style.

Walkers from Delt Psi and Kappa Sig strive for a snappy double kick and over-all teamwork. The pair from Lambda Iota is concentrating on endurance, a weave pattern, and a Russian step. Those in SAE strive for all around precision and teamwork. Each group is allowed a maximum of two minutes and twenty seconds, and a minimum of one minute and forty seconds of Kake Walking.

This amount of time seems very short, but to the walkers it is just long enough to demand all their strength and endurance. To prepare for the strenuous feat, the boys begin the practice and perfection of steps immediately following Thanksgiving vacation. Teams worked out in the Southwick gym, the boy's gym, or fraternity houses for certain periods of time. Some walkers continue to practice until the actual day of the walking. Usually, music is not used during rehearsals and seems to serve as an added stimulus during the important nights, when the audience cheers the teams on.

The walkers notice form and routine, but they are not always aware of the actual requirements for correct cake-walking--those elements which constitute the finer points of the walk. The Kake Walk directors have published a Kake Walk guide defining the "preferred manner" of walking. The booklet explains the essentials of walking referring to position and kick, and also lists the scoring.

The teams are judged on a point system; certain points are awarded for position, teamwork, etc. The following basis is used

a.	Position of head and shoulders	25 points
b.	Kick	30
c.	Teamwork and smoothness	40
d.	Stunts and special steps	5
e.	The peerade of walkers not count in the judging
		100

In reference to the position and shoulders; the head should be to the rear forming an arch with the shoulders. The kick should be done with the following points adhered: thighs should be straight parallel to the ground the rest of the leg is extended, leg should be straight and toes should be pointed. For teamwork and smoothness walkers should display a degree of coordination rapidity of movement not necessarily be considered desirable over less paried and more decisive actions. hands when raised in the above the head should have fingers extended and separated.

The walkers have a big ahead and they will perform with the best of their abilities in making the "walkin' fo' the kake" a memorable event.

Kake Walkers Spend Months Preparing For Two Big Nights

The capacity crowd in Memorial Auditorium is buzzing with excitement. Suddenly the lights are dimmed and the sound of voices quickly diminishes. In the total blackness a spotlight suddenly appears, focused upon a corner from which two men are strutting in unison out onto the floor. They salute the King and Queen of Kake Walk Weekend and then face across the floor. One of them nods to a person standing on the sidelines, who upon receiving their signal, drops a handkerchief. The UVM band bursts into the lively strains of "Cotton Babes," and the two walkers are off, beginning what is probably the most exciting spectacle of any college weekend, "Walking 'fo' de Kake."

The crowd closely follows the intricate steps and kicks of the two walkers and wildly cheers them on. After approximately two minutes of walking, the men "walk home," back to the place from which they started, thus completing their carefully contrived routine.

The high emotional feeling of the crowd is easily observed. All are greatly excited, but few are cognizant of the story behind these Kake Walkers' moment of glory.

Donald Karp, former Kake Walk director and former CYNIC editor, drops the handkerchief to start the walking as the crowd tensely watches the walkers execute their routine.

The actual walking and resultant excitement is only a small part of the Kake Walkers' story. The story actually begins, in many cases, as far back as early November, when candidates from each fraternity begin strengthening and loosening muscles in preparation for the big weekend, still four months away. These work-outs consist of exercises designed to develop leg, back, and shoulder muscles. Many teams also incorporate running into their exercise sessions to build up the wind and endurance necessary to complete a successful routine. Tedious work-outs are held daily to insure against strained muscles. After many weeks of conditioning, the walkers find themselves physically capable of beginning the routine. Boys who are walking for the first time learn the proper form in walking and kicking, while experienced walkers begin practicing the routines. This phase consists of learning the routine and polishing the steps and coordination of the two walkers. At this time, the various "trade-marks" of individual fraternities begin to show. The Sigma Nu's and Acacia are noted, for instance, for their high kicks. The Kappa Sig's are noted for their snappy walking, together with exacting teamwork, and the walkers from SAE for their high bounce along with precision and timing.

Finally the third week in February arrives, and the Kake Walkers are ready to present on another thrilling exhibition of "Walkin' fo' Kake."

The 42nd annual Kake Walk was officially initiated last Friday night at Memorial Auditorium with Pops Night. The respective sororities and fraternities presented their Kake Walk King and Queen candidates by means of various skits. The sororities, Delta Delta Delta and Pi Beta Phi, and three fraternities, Kappa Sigma, Alpha Tau Omega, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, entered candidates.

Delta Delta Delta presented their candidate Patricia Ann Funkhouser in a skit entitled "Mid-Winter Night's Dream". Pat, who comes from Hanover, New Hampshire, is a senior majoring in languages. Pi Beta Phi's skit "A New Holiday" introduced their candidate Judy Hauck, going under the slogan "Kake Walk's A Holiday With Judy." Judy, a member of the class of '59 is studying nursing.

Skip Reilly, Alpha Tau Omega's choice for Kake Walk King was presented in a skit called "Have Gun Will Travel". Skip, a senior, from Fairlon, New Jersey, is Steve, who comes from Peacham, Vermont, is campaigning as "The All Around Man." "The Keystone to a Successful Kake Walk" was sponsored by Bob Gallagher of Kappa Sigma. Bob is an English major in the class of '59.

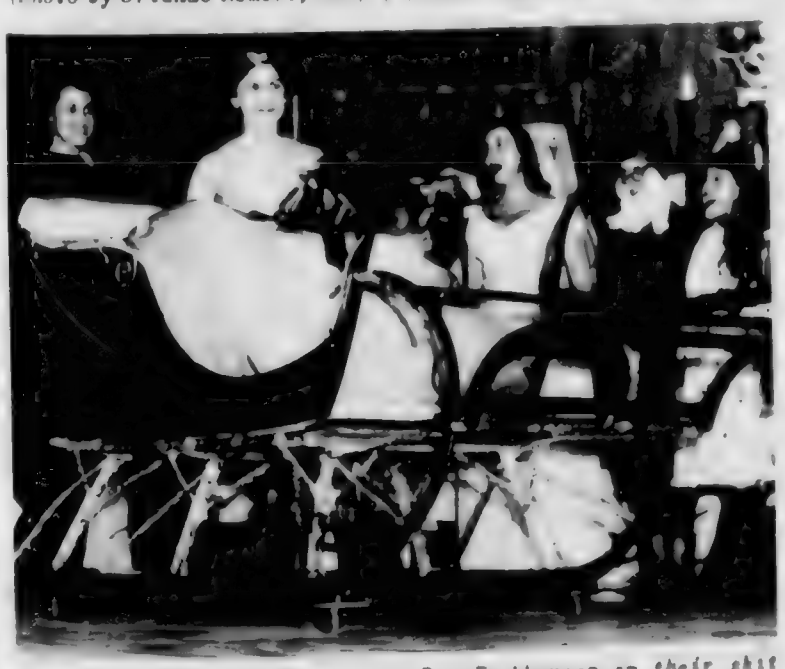
After Pops Night the fraternities and sororities put up campaign posters around "the green" supporting their candidates.

Coffee Shop Skits

Saturday the coffee shop became the theater as the sororities and fraternities once again put on skits. The Pi Beta Phi's showed "A Day at Stowe." Tri Delta then came forth with the soothing "Larry Milk and his Yogart Music."

Alpha Tau Omega followed their western style of the previous night with their "Guns of the UVM Campus." "The Spiels Brothers" was presented by Kappa Sigma. Sigma Alpha Epsilon came through in gangbuster style with their skit entitled "What's My Racket."



Campaigning continued all day Saturday with the candidates visiting the various fraternities, sororities and dorms on campus. The campaigning was brought to a formal close Saturday night. Voting took place on Monday morning with everyone having an opportunity to cast their ballot.

THE PEN IS MIGHTIER THAN THE SMOOCH

Back in my courting days (the raccoon coat was all the rage; everybody was singing Good Morning, Mister Zip Zip Zip; and money Eisenhower and coal oil Democrats back. I was in my courting days the standard way to gain a girl's heart was to write poetry to her.

I don't understand why young men today have abandoned this practice. There's something like poetry for missing a difficult pun. What's more, poems are ridiculously easy to write. The range of subjects is endless. You can write a poem about a girl's hair, her eyes, her lips, her walk, her talk, her clothes—anything at all. Indeed, one of my least effective love verses was called Ty Maud's Pencil Box. It went like this:

"To Maud's pencil box" It went like this:

In your dear little leatherette pencil box
Are pencils of yellow and red,
And if you don't tell me you love me soon,
I'll hit you on top of the head.

Honesty compels me to admit that this poem fell short of success. Nothing daunted, I wrote another one. This time I poised a snatch. I threatened myself instead of Maud.

Oh, Maud, pray stop this drivel
And tell me you'll be mine
For my sweetheads they do shrivel
And wind around my spine

My heart doth cease its beating,
My spleen uncurls and warps,
My liver stops secreting,
Soon I needs be a corpse

When this heart-rending ballad failed to win Maud, I could only conclude that she was cruel and heartless and I was better off without her. Accordingly I took back my Hi-Y pin, bade her adieu, and have not clapped eyes on her since. Last I heard, she was working in Galveston as a Plimsoll line.

But I did not mourn Maud long, for after Maud came Doris—Doris of the laughing eyes, Doris of the shimmering hair, Doris of the golden tibiae. Within moments of meeting her, I whipped up a torrent of trochaic tetrameter.

Oh, my sweet and dulcet Doris'
I love you like a Philip Morris
With its mild and rich tobacco
In its white and scarlet pack-o
I'd swim from Louisville to Natchez
For Philip Morris and you and matches

Well, of course, the dear girl couldn't resist a poem like that. What girl could?—and she instantly became my slave. For the rest of the semester she carried my books, washed my car, and cored my apples. There is no telling where it all would have ended if she hadn't been drafted.

So, men, you can see the power of poetry. Try it yourself. All you need is a rhyming dictionary, a quill pen, and a second-hand muse.

Let's drop rhyme and turn to reason. The reason Marlboro has gone to the head of the filter cigarette class is simple: better "makin's"—a flavor that pleases, a filter that works. Marlboro—from the makers of Philip Morris.

Story Written By UVM Grad Concerning The Composer Of "Cotton Babes" by ANDREW J. GERBER, '58

The story of "Cotton Babes" and its composer is taken from the Alumni Bulletin - January, 1958. It was written by Andrew J. Gerber, '58, who was a feature editor and columnist on the CYNIC. He is now a lawyer, a legal staff member of the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers, a former Kake Walker, and Alumnus, and therefore, he was asked to write the story on "Cotton Babes." Here are portions of that article.

As unique as Kake Walk itself, and as much a part of the pleasant hysteria that attacks UVM each February, is the regular resurgence of "Cotton Babes" as a local hit---on Burlington radio stations, on the juke box in the soda fountain, and during Kake Walk proper.

But little known in Vermont is the fact that composer of "Cotton Babes," Percy Wenrich, was one of the most famous and productive songwriters of the 1910's and '20's. Although no one except Joe Lechnyr ever performs "Cotton Babes" any more, Wenrich is still remembered by the outside world as the writer of some of the century's biggest and most durable hits, including "Moonlight Bay," "Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet," and "When You Wore A Tulip and I Wore a Big Red Rose."

During the early part of this century, music for the UVM Kake Walk was played by the Burlington Military Band, under the direction of the late George D. Sherman. "Cotton Babes," one of a number of cake-walking melodies popular at that time, was selected as the UVM theme song for Kake Walk and it has continued as such throughout the years.

Joseph Lechnyr, who came to the University in 1921, started playing "Cotton Babes" with the Burlington Band in 1913. And it is because of Mr. Lechnyr that we are able to listen to the melody today. In 1929, the Hayward Building was completely destroyed by fire and with it were burned many of the band's musical instruments plus every copy of "Cotton Babes." Joe wrote to all music publishers to obtain new scores, but the piece was out of print and even the plates had been destroyed. So he sat down and rewrote from memory the complete musical score for all instruments, saving the "Cotton Babes" melody for posterity.

WENRICH'S YOUNGER DAYS

Wenrich was born in Joplin, Missouri, in 1887. His father was the postmaster of Joplin, a politician of Pennsylvania Dutch descent who loved to write songs for political rallies and conventions. The boy's mother, an accomplished musician, taught him to play the piano and the organ. After he began composing, in his teens, his father would often take him to the rallies, where a Wenrich-organized glee club would perform Wenrich's songs, with lyrics written--often on the spot--by the elder Wenrich.

When Percy was twenty-one, his family allowed him to go to the Chicago Musical College to study the organ. He stuck to his studies for a while and even sold some "teaching pieces" in the classical manner; but away from home and sober influences he soon grew tired of organ lessons. He decided to try his luck as a popular songwriter and started to make the rounds of the Chicago publishing houses. His first attempts were complete flops. . . .

Just when a return to Joplin and eating seemed inevitable, he landed a job plugging songs in the music department of Gimbel's Milwaukee department store. Another song--"Under the Tropical Moon"--became a local hit in Milwaukee, and provided Wenrich with enough confidence and money to get to New York. More hard times followed, until he wrote "Rainbow". It sold over a million copies, took care of Wenrich's back rent, and established him as a professional composer.

THE FRUITFUL YEARS

The following years were Wenrich's most successful. "Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet" was President Wilson's favorite song, a source of pride to Wenrich for the rest of his life. "Moonlight Bay" soon followed, and Wenrich set up his own publishing firm in partnership with Homer Howard. After two successful years they sold their catalogue to Leo Feist, with Wenrich's services as part of the package. While writing for Feist he turned out "When You Wore A Tulip and I Wore a Big Red Rose".

Still more hits followed. During the First World War Wenrich composed "Where Do We Go From Here, Boys," which--as Wenrich himself wrote years later--"was sung by the Marines when they first went 'over the top' for the first time in World War I and the fact was headlined in all New York papers." . . .

After his retirement from vaudeville he lived in Hollywood for several years, until he was stricken with tuberculosis. He moved to Saranac Lake where his wife, too, became ill. She was hospitalized for the rest of her life. . . .

He died in March, 1952.

But every year, Percy Wenrich, composer of so many well-known hits, lives again as the UVM campus pulses to the strains of his "Cotton Babes."

Elgart Adds Flavor To Style And Theme Of Ball

by MARCIA SMITH

Stars twinkled overhead in a wintry setting at the 62nd annual Kake Walk Ball held last night, February 19, 1959. From 9.00 P.M. until 1:00 A.M. the Memorial Auditorium was transformed into a glittering "Ice Rink". Red and white barber-striped poles which supported strings of vari-colored lights surrounded the circular rink-like impression in the center of the dance floor. White snow figures against a deep blue background carried out the Kake Walk Ice Rink setting.

Behind Larry Elgart's band on the stage were traditional figures of two Kake Walkers. A crescent with "Kake Walk Ice Rink" lettered on it completed the decorations on the stage.

The customary coronation ceremony took place at 1:30 in the center of the auditorium, the King and Queen making their way through an aisle to the throneo, where they were crowned by Larry Elgart. The winners and members of the court were announced by Wales Newell, RA who was in charge of the Kake Walk Ball.

by DOBERT WEISTEIN

This year there will be fifty Kake Walk trophies awarded to both individuals, as well as to fraternities and sororities. Twenty-six will be awarded for the walking, two to each fraternity participating in the event.

There will be six awards, first, second, and third place to three fraternities and three sororities for the snow sculptures. There will be one prize for a dormitory. A poster trophy for the winning poster will be also awarded.

The king and queen will each receive a trophy and also one trophy for the fraternity and sorority which they represent.

First and second place trophies will be awarded for the skits.

As in past years, three rotating trophies will be given. The Jennings Memorial Trophy goes to the fraternity taking first place for the snow sculpture. This trophy is in honor of David Jennings, class of 1951, a former Kake Walk director, and member of Sigma Nu Fraternity, who was killed in the Korean War in 1952.

The Borgmann Trophy is awarded to the fraternity placing first in the skits. The Dean Simpson Trophy will be awarded to the sorority placing first in the snow sculpture division.

62nd KW Review Made Describing Sculptures, Skits, And Walking

by DOROTHY INDICK

Kake Walk is a time of [illegible] and competition. Fraternities and sororities vie against one another to carry off top honors in the various events held during this winter carnival. Such events include the skits, snow sculpture, and the "walkin' fo' de kake."

This week has been a white one; the weatherman has provided snow for Vermont thus affording all campus living units an opportunity to make bigger and better sculptures. Each house is getting its Michelangelo ready with chisel and hammer. The victorious masterpieces will be announced on Saturday, February 21 at 10 in the morning by the judges. Trophies will be awarded to the fraternity, sorority, and woman's dorm with the outstanding sculpture. Those judging the snow statues include Captain Ralph Detherow, of the Military Science Department; Professor Malcolm Daggett of the Romance Language Department, and Professor Richard Janson of the Art Department and Director of the Fleming Museum.

Four fraternities including TEP, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Nu, and Phi Delta Theta, which were selected beforehand, will present their skits on both Friday and Saturday nights. Twelve minutes are allotted to each group during which the fraternity must put up its props, perform the skit, and remove the props. A warning bell will sound at the end of nine minutes and a final bell will sound at the end of twelve minutes.

Skits are judged by points on the basis of: plot (continuity and originality), presentation (teamwork and smoothness, delivery and voice), and properties and costumes. For each minute overtime, a certain number of points are deducted from the total possible score. A fraternity may win one or both nights. The Friday night judges include Professor Edwin Schneider of the Engineering Department, Professor Leonidas Jones of the English Department, and Lawrence Van Benthuysen, Director of Public Relations. Those judging on Saturday night will be Professor Philipp Lohman of the Economics Department, Professor John Teal of the Political Science Department, and Professor Samuel Bogorad of the English Department.

The highlight of the holiday week-end is the actual walking. A team of walkers may be entered by each fraternity on campus. The team competes both Friday and Saturday nights. Professor E. William Steele of the Political Science Department, aided by Professor Brown and Professor Pooley will judge the walking on Friday night while Professor Robert Cochran of the English Department, Captain Johns of the Air Force, and Professor Donald Gregg of the Chemistry Department will name the victorious team on Saturday night. The judges will consider the position of the head and shoulders, the kick, teamwork, and smoothness, and stunts and special steps in awarding the prize trophies.

The coming events of Kake Walk will provide excitement for many and a time long to be remembered.

Pre-Med Society Holds Meeting

Last semester, the Pre-Med Society had an excellent turnout at its first open meeting. The President, Joel Beaman, welcomed the members and went on to discuss the purpose of the club. The Secretary-Treasurer, Ira Raff, read the minutes of the last meeting and introduced the constitution of the society. It was approved by the present body and is now awaiting final approval by S.A.

A trip to Syracuse was proposed and an excellent response was shown; however the S.A. wagon was being used at the time and other transportation was unattainable due to expenses.

Plans for future meetings were discussed, and the meeting closed with an informal discussion and refreshments.

The next meeting will take place soon after Kake Walk. With the assistance of Bond the club is trying to get a speaker to speak on the topic of Medicine in general in order to give the Pre-Med an idea of the medical profession without including the specific requirements in courses which the student obtains in college.

Future plans for the club include more speakers, an organized trip, movies related with a speaker's topic, and a social event near the end of the semester.

Notices of the speaker for the next meeting will be posted on the bulletin board in lower Waterman and in the dormitories.

Summer Jobs Available

American Student Information Service (A.S.I.S.), located in Germany, still has many summer jobs in Europe to offer American university students. Most of the jobs are in the new, fast moving German industry. Examples of employment opportunities for American students are farm work, construction work, apprentice technical positions in the chemical, civil, and mechanical engineering fields.

Agency spokesmen was recently quoted as saying "I'm sure we will have more jobs this summer than American students to fill them". Interested students should write to American Student Information Service, Josef-Ludwig Str. 4-a, Limburg-on-the-Lahn, Germany, for details.

"L&M is kindest to your taste," says James Arness. "There are two good reasons why I know you'll like 'em. They're truly low in tar, with more exciting taste than you'll find in any other cigarette."

LOW TAR: L&M's patented filtering process adds extra filter fibers electrostatically, crosswise to the stream of smoke . . . makes L&M truly low in tar.

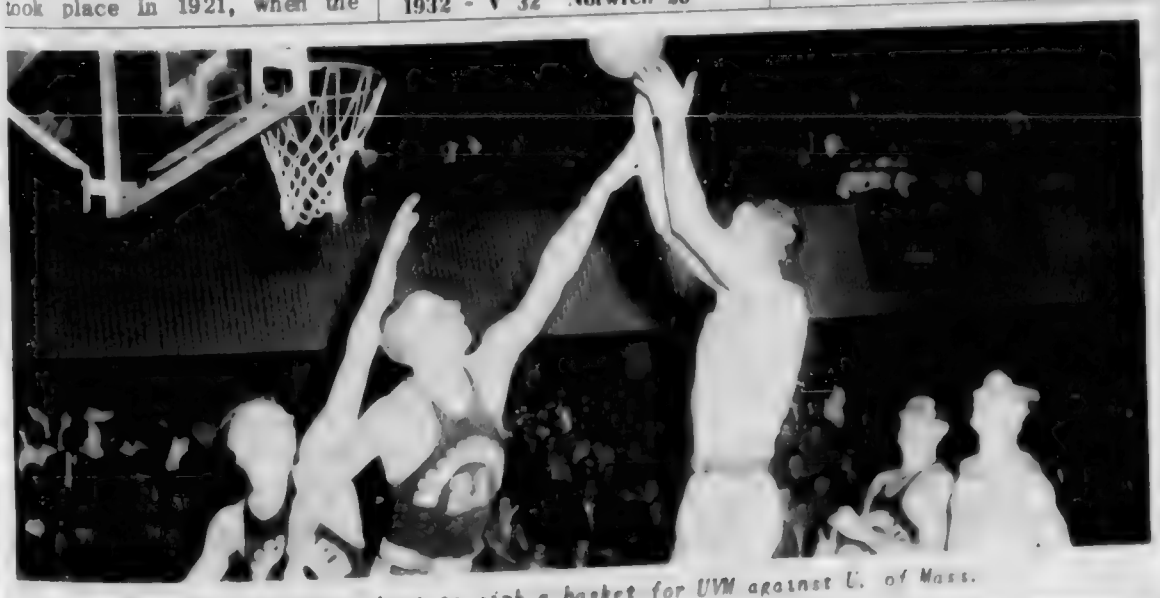
Hoopsters Host Horsemen In Kake Walk Contest

by HOWARD BUSLOFF



One of the most exciting and underrated events of the Kake Walk Weekend is the traditional basketball game. When one thinks of Kake Walk, he very rarely thinks about the basketball game. The game, along with the walkings, skits, Jazz concert, and sculptures, adds even more glamour to the weekend. The opponent this year is Norwich University. This year marks the 37th year in which the UVM Catamounts have played host to opposing forces from different schools at the Winter Carnival.

Looking over the records of past years, I found that the first Kake Walk game took place in 1908 when the home forces beat Union College by the score of 27-18. The next Kake Walk tilt took place in 1921, when the Catamounts again emerged victorious, this time at the expense of Middlebury by a 35-21 score. The overall record of the UVM Hoopsters in Kake Walk contests is an impressive 28 and 9 mark.

The only Kake Walk foe to beat us more than once is Springfield College, who have beaten the Cats in the five times that the two clubs have played each other.

Baseball Team Begins Practice In The Cage

by DICK SPODEK

Spring is here! Now don't look out the nearest window because you won't believe me, but if you walk into the cage any afternoon between 3:00 and 5:00 you will see what I mean.

Right now, while everyone is enjoying the Kake Walk holiday, the baseball team is spending its afternoons preparing for the annual southern trip which traditionally opens the baseball season for Coach Ralph Lapointe's nine. Leaving Burlington on the 25th of March, the Cats are slated to open against George Washington University the following day in the nation's capital. Following that, they will play the Quantico Marines on the 27th and the Midshipmen of Annapolis on the 28th. For those of you who will be in the New York area on March 31, UVM will play Upsala College at East Orange, New Jersey.

Returning to the team this year are 13 lettermen from last year's successful club. With Russ Henrichs gone, this year's mound staff will be paced by lefties Steve Cooper and Bob Knowles. Throwing from the opposite side are Ross Artus, Bob Flance, and Carl Carlson.

Taking a fast look around the infield, a battle is shaping up at first base between senior Bill Symonds and sophomore Joe Silveira. Chuck Zink will fill the second base position and Charlie Isles will strengthen the infield defensively at shortstop, as he returns to the team after a year of ineligibility.

Wiener and Prescott will probably vie for the 3rd base position left open by the graduation of Tom Tierney. Don Santa Croce will captain the team from his position behind home plate. Backing up Santa Croce will be Bob Davis.

Moving to the outfield, we find one open position caused by the departure of hard hitting Marty Johnson. Returning to fill the two other outfield positions will be Gerry Cassidy, a junior, and Moe Castigner, a senior. Up from the frosh team of last year to help strengthen the pitching staff will be Bob Hobbie, Spike Jarrett, Harry Zings, Fred Robinson and a transfer student from Brown University, Dave Reissig.

Quoting Coach Lapointe, "With hard work, the team should come out on top this year." Coach Lapointe has asked for managers to help out the team, and anyone who is interested should contact him in the gym office.

COOP'S HOOP BY STEVE COOPER

Welcome back fans to the "hoop" and this week (being my last for this season) will be entirely devoted to the college scene. Now is the time of the year when college basketball teams get that "tournament fever." The N.I.T. at New York City's Madison Square Garden and the NCAA playdowns are the two most popular tournaments in the country. The N.I.T. usually takes the leading independents while the NCAA playdown tournament berths are won by the winners of the various collegiate conferences. Two teams, Villanova and St. John's have already accepted N.I.T. bids while a third, N.Y.U. is fighting vainly for a bid. The "Violets" finally evened their season's record at 8-8 after nipping heavily favored West Virginia last week in overtime, 72-70.

Speaking of upsets, there have been many of them so far in this month of February, 1959. The most stunning upset of the year occurred on Feb. 9 at Mississippi State's campus where Bailey Howwell and Company defeated the top ranked Kentucky Wildcats. Also another notable upset took place at New York's Madison Square Garden where the Manhattan Jaspers trounced highly regarded Syracuse, 71-53.

The Northeast's top club, St. John's of Brooklyn, recently returned from a disastrous swing through the Mid-West. The Redmen left New York ranked 9th in the nation and returned to the city (New York of course) ranked 19th after successive defeats by St. Louis, Loyola and Notre Dame.

The most amazing club so far this season has been Auburn, ranked fourth and riding a win streak of 26 straight which includes some of last year's final contests. Auburn and Kentucky meet later this month and the winner will probably take the Southeast Conference championship. (Auburn, however, is ineligible for a post season tournament bid due to an infraction of conference recruiting rules).

As of Feb. 10, the national standings were as follows:

1. Kentucky
2. North Carolina
3. Kansas State
4. Auburn
5. Cincinnati
6. N. C. State
7. Bradley
8. St. Louis
9. West Virginia
10. Mississippi State
11. Marquette
12. Michigan State
13. Seattle
14. Oklahoma City
15. Indiana
16. T.C.U.
17. Utah
18. California
19. St. John's
20. Purdue

At present, it looks like Dell's Basketball All-American team of Tom Hawkins, Notre Dame; Jerry West, West Virginia, Bob Boozer, Kansas State; Bailey Howell, Mississippi State, and Oscar Robertson, Cincinnati comprise about the best quintet in the entire country. However, in speaking of All-Americans, one can't forget names like Johnny Cox, Al Seiden, Tony Jackson and Lee Shaeffer to name just a few.

Rumors are going around that Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson may join the Harlem Globetrotters at the end of this school year. When one thinks of the Globetrotters nowadays, the name of Wilt Chamberlain immediately comes to mind. Recently, in a newspaper article, Chamberlain said, "We have a nineteen year old player on the "Trotters" by the name of Ed Burton, who in two years will be ready to play pro ball. This boy stands 6-7 and weighs 235 pounds." I have personally seen this lad play and he is terrific. Elgin Baylor is averaging about 24 points per game in the pros; I wonder how he'd be doing in college ball this season. If any of you T.V. viewers saw West Virginia's Jerry West and Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson play in recent weeks, I guess you were convinced that these two boys are truly All-Americans. You can see Robertson display his talent again on March 7. How about UVM's stunning 61-60 upset win over UConn. It left rooters around the Connecticut area speechless and Vermont followers flabbergasted.

That's the picture for now fans. I hope you enjoyed reading this column as much as I enjoyed writing it. Next week ...k for D.H. He's cool.

Cats Drop Squeeker To UMass., 74-73; Lose State Game To St. Michael's, 65-52

Capacity Crowd Witnesses 2nd State Defeat

by BOB KUCHAR

Playing before a crowd of over 2,000 screaming and cheering students, the Purple Knights from Winooski Park defeated the unpredictable University of Vermont Catamounts, 65-52, at Memorial Auditorium last Wednesday evening. The Cats, who four days earlier had looked like one of the best teams in New England downing a powerful University of Connecticut team, continued their spectacular play through the first half of the St. Mike's encounter. Vermont played a slow, deliberate, possession-type game, the same kind used in their UConn upset, and this proved successful for the first twenty minutes. Vermont took an early lead and held on to it throughout the first half. At the halftime intermission, the statistics were fairly even and the score was even closer as UVM held a slim one point lead, 28-26.

The Catamounts just ran out of gas a little too early. The brilliant play exhibited in the Connecticut game and in the first half of this contest came to an abrupt halt. What was a nip and tuck battle during the first half, turned into a rout early in the second. The Knights scored the first basket, then an exchange of shots followed, and St. Michael's held a one point edge, 30-29. From here on, it was St. Mike's all the way. Sparked by the outstanding shooting and rebounding of Dave Mracek and Hank Gretkowski, the Jacobsmen pulled to an insurmountable eighteen point lead, thus checking the Catamount's dream of two upsets in a row.

In spite of Vermont's loss, credit should be given to the ball players for their determination, fight and team play. Charles Isles did a magnificent defensive job on Tony Nicodemo. Harry Zingg, in his second starting role, gave UVM an early scoring punch and helped Bob Gallagher in the rebounding department. Another fact to be mentioned is that Clyde Lord, Vermont's all time high scorer, went over the 1200 point mark. At this point, he had a total of 1202 points. Also, Vermont was playing minus the services of Danny Morse and Ray Wiener, both of whom were instrumental in UVM's victory over St. Mike's earlier this season.

However, if credit is to be given, I feel that the UVM student body deserves their share of it. The auditorium was packed with Vermont fans who displayed their excess energy from start to finish. From the ball players on the basketball court, these cheers are greatly appreciated.

by STEPHEN PROBER

Last Saturday night, the UVM Catamounts concluded their mediocre Yankee Conference schedule with a loss to the Redmen of the University of Massachusetts, 74-73. This game summed up the "hot and cold" type of ball playing that has plagued the Evansmen this year.

The first half saw Vermont put on one of its poorest exhibitions of basketball playing this season. The Catamounts showed little poise and basketball savvy in trying to contend the hot shooting Mass. "5". Frequently Vermont fouled unnecessarily and coupled with poor shooting from the floor and charity stripe enabled the Redmen to command a 21 point lead after 15 minutes of play. It wasn't until the last three minutes of the first half that Vermont cut the Mass. lead from 21 to 12 points as the half time score read Mass. by 41-29.

In the second half, the Catamounts switched from its Mr. Hyde to Dr. Jackel appearance as the team began to click with good sound basketball playing. They looked like the team that upended the University of Connecticut two weeks ago. Clyde Lord hit with jump shots from within the foul circle and driving layups. Bob Kuchar poured in outside jump shots; one of his shots registered his 1000th point of his college career. Controlling the backboards for Vermont were Charles Isles and Bob Gallagher.

With ten minutes gone in the half, Vermont had built up a 6 point lead and battled with Mass. until the two minute mark. At that point the game looked like a victory for Vermont, but the team fell apart when it failed to capitalize at the free throw line and went down to a 74-73 defeat.

High for the Catamounts was Clyde Lord with 27 points. Bob Kuchar had 20 points and Charles Isles had 9. The University of Mass. was paced by sophomore star Grutchfield with 2[illegible] points.

This game closed out the Catamounts schedule with a Yankee Conference record of 4-6, a far cry from the early predictions of last fall. The look to next year is rather gloomy as Vermont nears the cellar in the Yankee Conference. "Wait till next year" is the cry from only a few diehard fans but the cry should be "WE'VE HIT BOTTOM."

Catamount Clippings

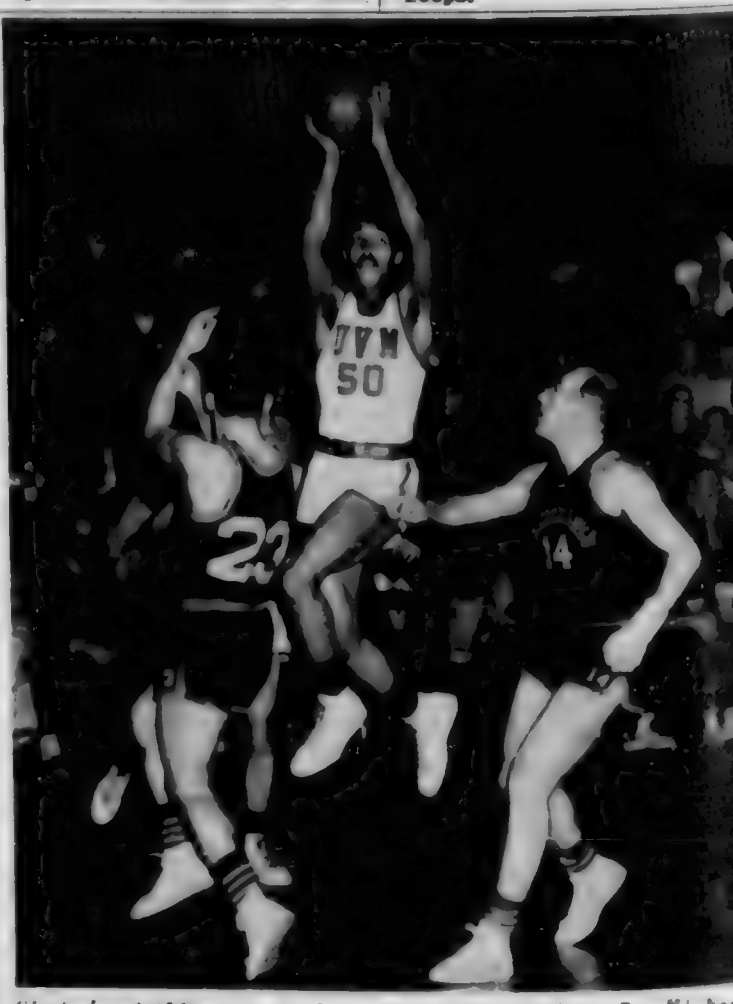
THE ABSENT SKILLS

New England colleges and universities have traditionally been famous for their hockey teams. Undergrads at Dartmouth, Middlebury and Norwich give as much support to their "Icemen" as they do to the basketball team. The hockey team at St. Lawrence is recognized as one of the finest in the East, if not in the country. Moving across Lake Champlain, we come to the University of Vermont, one of the few Northeastern schools which lacks a hockey team.

But UVM hasn't always been without a hockey team. Up until about 1950, we did have one. It wasn't particularly outstanding, but it did win its share of games and brought forth some top notch players. The reasons in back of discontinuing the sport were weather, expense and injuries, which practically covered all possible outlets in arguing for the team's continuation.

The biggest problem is the financial one. Now that the girls' dorms have been completed, construction has begun on the new Medical College building, and the new library is to follow that. Plans for a new gymnasium have been made, and chances are pretty good that it will follow the library. Unfortunately, the plans do not include an artificial indoor rink. It would cost too much. So for the time being, we better forget all about hockey at UVM.

Swimming is a major sport at schools across the country. The swimming season lasts from October through February. Presently, the only indoor pool in Burlington is located at the Y.M.C.A. President Fey has stated his wishes that when the new gym is built, it will include a swimming pool. Perhaps, then we will also be able to boast of our Mermen. But remember--first we need a new gymnasium.



Soccer is one of the oldest of all sports, and is inherited from our European ancestors. There is no reason why UVM should not be able to field a successful Soccer team. Matches could be scheduled so as not to interfere with football practice. Centennial Field could provide an excellent setting. For this sport, we do not have to wait for the new gym to be built--it could be organized within two years.

Lake Champlain affords a natural opportunity for Crew. When April and May roll around, it would be great to see our shells compete against other schools. We have the facility, and most certainly, the talent. And, for this sport, we don't need a gym. But what we do need is student pressure upon the administration. Sailing is a wonderful sport. If the University would buy the necessary equipment, as is done for every other sport, many an enjoyable afternoon could be spent on our accessible resource.

KAPPA SIG DEFEATS PHI DELT FOR I-F CROWN

by STAN MESSINGER

To end the 1958-59 season, as far as interfraternity basketball was concerned, Kappa Sigma and Phi Delta Theta squared off for the championship. The fighting ways of Kappa Sig were a little too much for the men from College Street, as the former triumphed, 25-17. The game's top scorer was Burles with nine for the winners. Sylvester [illegible] Lyford had eight points apiece for Kappa Sig. Flance, Jarret and Kolstrom had five each for Phi Delt. At the intermission the game looked very close with each team at 12 points. But then scored two quick baskets and Kappa Sig was ahead to keeps.

PATTY AND BOB REIGN OVER WEEKEND

by DOROTHY INDICK

The party's over and UVM's tired but happy students returned to the classroom filled with remembrances of the Kake Walk holiday. Open houses at sororities provided a final curtain for the 62nd annual event on Sunday, February 22.

Reigning over the week-end frolic were Queen Patricia Funkhouser, a senior of Hanover, N.H., representing Delta Delta Delta sorority, and Robert Gallagher, senior of Lyndhurst, N.J., representing Kappa Sigma fraternity, who were crowned by band leader Larry Elgart on Thursday night at the Kake Walk Ball in Memorial Auditorium.

Following the ball, on Friday afternoon, students flocked to the Jazz Concert at Memorial Auditorium where they heard two jazz groups: the Salt City Six, a Dixieland bunch, and Maynard Ferguson, the biggest up-and-coming name in contemporary jazz.

On Friday and Saturday nights, before a capacity crowd at the Auditorium, 28 black-faced walkers from thirteen fraternities walked "fo' de kake" in colorful satin to the tune of "Cotton Babes". The winning walkers on Friday night were Paul Kaplan of Yonkers, N.Y., and Robert Koones of Brooklyn, N.Y., representing Tau Epsilon Phi. Runners up in the walking on Friday night were; second place, Ray Allen of South Hero, Vermont and Howard Grant of Vergennes, Vermont, representing Acacia; third place, Ray Weiner of Flushing, N.Y., and Fred Kolstrom of Springfield, Vermont, representing Phi Delta Theta; and fourth, Avery Smith and Alcott Smith, brothers of Bellows Falls, Vermont representing Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Saturday night honors for walking also went to TEP- first; second, Dave Bell of St. Albans, Vermont, and Don Santa Croce of New York, N.Y., representing Kappa Sigma; third, Phi Delta Theta; and

Highest Scholastic Honors Obtained By Phi Mu Delta And Pi Beta Phi

The scholastic averages for the Fall semester indicate that the women beat the men by four points. The Seniors had the best average for a class with 79.84, which is 4 points better than the next class. The Frosh ended up with 72.41 average which is much better than the 70 average of the last few years.

Phi Mu Delta topped the fraternity average with 80.22 and Pi Beta Phi headed the sorority slate with 80.84. The fraternity men averaged 74.3 which was one point above the men's average for the entire University, while the sorority women averaged two points better than the University women's average of 77.4 (Freshman averages are excluded from these figures to make them comparable to the fraternity, sorority averages).

Phi Sigma Delta was second in the fraternity division with 76.61 average with the highest number of individual records averaged. Alpha Chi Omega came in second in the sorority averages with 80.53 only .31 from Pi Phi's top average.

Collegiate Chapter Observes National FFA Week

The week of February 22-28 is nationally being observed in honor of this organization of farm boys studying vocational agriculture. Since its origin thirty-one years ago there are now over 10,000 chapters in the United States with 250,000 members of which about 700 are in Vermont.

The UVM Collegiate Chapter, and others located at colleges preparing agricultural teachers, have as their major objective that of developing ability among prospective teachers of agriculture to advise an FFA chapter in a high school. Of course, there is also the objective of developing fellowship and common interest among undergraduates and upper classmen.

Activities with the group has engaged in include

1. Food sale at State Judging Contest
2. Put on a TV program
3. Annual picnic for members, their families and friends

Panel To Present "Athletics From The Coaches Viewpoint"

On Wednesday, March 4, at 4:10 p.m. in the Student Lounge, UVM students will get to hear the coaches side of the story, as a qualified panel discusses "Athletics from the Coaches Viewpoint."

Mr. James Pooley of the UVM Athletic Council will guide the panel, consisting of coaches Ed Donnelly, John "Puzzy" Evans, and Archie Post in a discussion of athletics, especially pertaining to the University of Vermont.

Special emphasis will be placed on the University policy, the problems related to the difficulties involved in the effective scheduling of events.

The viewpoints held by the coaches, the necessary backbone of any athletic system, are extremely important in the forming and maintaining of an effective program. Conference and non-conference participation, the number and types of athletes needed, as well as the present role and function, and aspirations for the future in UVM athletics should all be brought in to the open.

Few members of the University family appreciate or even realize the complexity of running a good athletic department. President Fey has expressed a desire for a sound system of athletics at UVM, and has convincingly shown the need for one. This discussion should help to clarify our present standing, and aid in showing just where we are heading in this important phase of University life.

COSA Office and the Cultural Committee of the Student Association are co-sponsors of the discussion.

UVM Applies For New Dorms As Federal Aid Is Asked

Vermont will seek up to $2,500,000 in federal funds for construction of four new dormitories, it was announced following a meeting of the University's Board of Trustees.

The Board authorized President John T. Fey to apply for federal aid for three dormitories to house up to 375 men, and for one dormitory to house up to 125 women.

President Fey indicated that additional student housing is a major University need "If UVM is to meet its responsibility to students already enrolled as well as to future students."

He said that the University has currently reached the ceiling on the number of women students it can accept, but that one additional women's residence would help to ease the limitations UVM must now place upon women applicants.

He noted that the University's three men's dormitories "barely enable UVM to meet its own requirement that all freshman men must be housed in University dormitories. The three additional residence hall units will enable the University to make the desirable first move in the direction of providing on campus living experience for more of its men students.

President Fey took the opportunity to note that sorority and fraternity houses make it possible for the University to provide on campus living units for students it might not otherwise be able to accept.

He said that he would seek federal aid for the four dormitories through the Federal Housing and Home Loan Financing Agency. Legislation now before Congress would provide federal grant-loan funds. Under the legislation, 25 percent would be available as a grant, the remainder as a loan at 2 7/8 percent interest over a 40 year period.

March Of Dimes Benefits Offered

Most people are reluctant to talk about birth defects (congenital malformations, not birth injuries). Only a few come to mind, such as a clubfoot, harelip and cleft palate. But there are 644 recognized defects that affect infants at birth. The March of Dimes will provide patient aid for children with certain specific defects and will bring its research genius to bear on the whole problem.

$1,500,000,000 a year, including $1,200,000,000 lost in wages and $125,000,000 spent by taxpayers to maintain arthritis patients unable to support themselves. Also included is $195,000,000 the Federal Government loses in income taxes. The National Foundation, which developed the Salk vaccine, needs substantial support to attack these enormously costly diseases. Give to the 1959 March of Dimes.

POVERTY CAN BE FUN

It is no disgrace to be poor. It is an error, but it is no disgrace.

So if your purse is empty, do not skulk and brood and hide your head in shame. Stand tall. Admit your poverty. Admit it freely and frankly and all kinds of good things will happen to you. Take, for instance, the case of Blossom Signafoos.

Blossom, an impecunious freshman at an Eastern girls' college, was smart as a whip and round as a dumpling, and scarcely a day went by when she didn't get invited to a party weekend at one of the nearby men's schools. But Blossom never accepted. She did not have the rail fare, she did not have the clothes. Weekend after weekend, while her classmates went frolicking, Blossom sat alone, saved from utter despair only by her pack of Marlboros, for even an exchequer as slim as Blossom's can afford the joys of Marlboro—joys far beyond their paltry price: rich, mellow tobaccos, lovingly cured and carefully packed; a new improved filter that works like a charm. Croesus himself could not buy a better cigarette.

However, Marlboro's most passionate admirers—among whose number I am paid to count myself—would not claim that Marlboro can entirely replace love and romance, and Blossom grew steadily morose.

Then one day came a phone call from an intelligent sophomore named Tom O'Shanter at a nearby men's college. "Blossom," said Tom, "I want you to come down next week for the barley festival, and I won't take no for an answer."

"No," said Blossom.

"Foolish girl," said Tom gently. "I know why you refuse me. It is because you are poor, isn't it?"

"Yes," said Blossom.

"I will send you a railroad ticket," said Tom. "Also a small salami in case you get hungry on the train."

"But I have nothing to wear," said Blossom.

Tom replied, "I will send you one suit of cashmere, two gowns of lace, three slacks of velvet, four shoes of calf, five socks of nylon, and a partridge in a pear tree."

"That is most kind," said Blossom, "but I fear I cannot dance and enjoy myself while back home my poor lame brother Tiny Tim lies ailed."

"Send him to Mayo Brothers and put it on my tab," said Tom.

"You are terribly decent," said Blossom, "but I cannot come to your party because all the other girls at the party will be from rich, distinguished families, and my father is but a humble woodcutter."

"I will buy him Yosemite," said Tom.

"You have a great heart," said Blossom. "Hold the phone while I ask our wise and kindly old Dean of Women whether it is proper for me to accept all these gifts."

She went forthwith and asked the Dean of Women, and the Dean of Women laid her wise and kindly old hand on Blossom's cheek and said, "Child, let not false pride rob you of happiness. Accept these gifts from Tom."

"Lord love you, Wise and Kindly," breathed Blossom, dropping grateful tears into the Dean's retsule. "I must run and tell Tom."

"Yes, run, child," said the Dean, a smile wrinkling her wise and kindly old eyes. "And ask him has he got an older brother."

The Vermont Cynic

Crusade Or Problems?

Instead of the editorial "we," I, as editor, would like to use the term "I" to reflect a feeling of myself and not of the editorial board or senior staff of this newspaper. There are a couple of issues that are troubling me, and this being my next to last editorial, I would like to air them.

Kake Walk is a social function topped by none. Each year Kake Walk has become just another weekend. The social functions on campus are loosing their spirit. Perhaps one reason is the drinking laws, but there is a more important factor, an intangible one, which leaves a great void in our social sphere. The answer to this problem could lie with the students in that traditions become meaningless rather than a positive, living function of our student's lives.

EDUCATIONALLY, NO ONE SHOULD HAVE ANY COMPLAINTS AT UVM BECAUSE EACH PERSON, NO MATTER WHAT SCHOOL HE ATTENDS, CAN GAIN AN EDUCATION. There are complaints shared by many (not as "sour grapes" either) with the advising committees and counselling services, since the wrong advice is given in many instances when correct, personal advice is needed.

This brings to mind an incident that occurred a few years ago. A student had exams for 13 of his 16 credits on one day. All teachers and deans were approached to correct this error. Yet, he was refused any change, and subsequently flunked out. I wonder if he had the opportunity to pass? The next year the scheduling of exams was changed to the present system.

Then there was a committee called Committee on Student's Rights, but what happened to it? You, the students, become all riled up over big issues such as tuition raises, drinking, and parking; but no one carries his feelings to an end. You still park your cars blocks from campus and you still get tickets. Nothing is ever accomplished and the administration calms off riots and problems. DO NOT TAKE ME WRONG, I AM NOT DEGRADING THE ADMINISTRATION HEADS AS THEY DO HAVE GOOD INTENTIONS IN EACH CASE; YET, HOW MANY UNIVERSITY MEETINGS ARE CLOSED TO STUDENTS?

IS APPRECIATION OF UVM LACKING?

I received a letter from a principal of a high school saying that WE SHOULD BE PROUD OF UVM AND WE SHOULD NOT COMPARE IT TO OTHER SCHOOLS. He made an excellent point, but how many students agree with him? Most of you do not volunteer or help out, but you just sit back and shout or comment without knowing much on each topic. Or you send rumors around which lead to atrocious gossip. Proof of this came during one issue of the CYNIC when by error something was left out on the society page and immediately everyone was saying that it was done on purpose.

"HOT AIR?"

I hope this is not all "hot air" to you. I wonder how many can honestly say you will return after graduation? Or will you plan to send your children to your alma mater? I would like to take a poll of these questions just to see the reaction I would obtain.

Fraternity and sorority is the most important social aspect for most college freshmen and all have to join. Many did not join, and they may have turned out for the better. Fraternities and sororities bring in many evils such as excessive competition among them; yet, without them who would supply the campus leadership or many of the social functions. There is great potential in fraternities and sororities, but are we meeting this potential?

The purpose of this editorial is to express some of my personal complaints with the campus and its life. In doing so I hope I have touched upon your problems or at least stimulated further thoughts and discussions on these matters.

Dead Week Explored

by DAVE STEELE

The University Senate has asked that the status of Dead Week be explored and reported upon at its March meeting. At the Senate's January meeting the University Council was asked to "explore the present status of Dead Week and to report on the thinking concerning its usefulness, acceptance and observance."

The present Dead Week policy was formulated in 1953. Dead Week had been observed prior to that time, but in 1953 the Joint Social Activities Board requested that the University Council clarify the status of Dead Week, especially concerning the areas of activities affected by Dead Week. The Student Association was asked to explore the question with the student body. The results of the Questionnaire sampling student opinion showed a preference for a complete Dead Week in social, academic, and athletic areas.

The University Senate, acting upon the report of the Student Advisory Committee, passed a motion providing that (1) hour tests, or quizzes covering more than one week's work shall not be given during the week just proceeding semester examinations; (2) that semester examinations shall be given only during the regular examination period except by permission of the dean of the college on request of the chairman of the department. It was the understanding of the Council that it was a generally accepted fact that all social and athletic events would be suspended during Dead Week.

It now appears that there is a need for further study on Dead Week policy. Dean Lyman S. Rowell, Dean of Administration said "It appears that there have been violations of Dead Week policies in all directions. Athletic games have been held. There have been reports of quizzes and even hour exams being given during Dead Week. Student organizations have held meetings and social affairs."

Dean Rowell indicated that there has been much dissatisfaction with Dead Week recently, and that the purpose of the present Council exploration is to attempt to arrive at a Dead Week policy that is both effective and acceptable to all concerned.

Band Uniforms Add To KW

Something new was added to the nation's oldest collegiate winter carnival, Kake Walk, when Dr. Joseph P. Lechnyr lead the Vermont Band on Friday night.

The band, which plays as traditional a part in the carnival as the colorful kake walking events themselves, were decked out in sparking new uniforms, distinctively UVM in character.

Casting aside the Green and Gold uniforms used for parade events, the band appeared in Boulder green blazers, white shirts with black ties, and black trousers and shoes. A gold UVM seal was seen on the left hand breast pocket of each blazer.

The new garb, strikingly collegiate and modern, was selected by the 60 members of the band, and will be used for all non-parade functions in the future. Purchased through the organization's uniform fund, the new combination is described as a Vermont-Ivy League outfit, with the accent on the Vermont.

ADVICE TO THE RECRUIT:

Two of my very good friends are soon to enter i the obligation of the six months plan. Now if your familiar with this plan I will be little help in plaining it. I can, however, equate it with the pict in the Kake Walk issue of CYNIC, of newly elec officers for the Army ROTC. Notice that the next the last two men are writing on the same piece of pap I know, friend, that they are all writing, or prepar to write, but the next to the last two are writing, about to write, on the same piece of paper!

Well, my two friends may as well know that this typical of the army. It did not surprise me during stint when they had two men trying to do the thing in the same space. . .that is, it did not surp me after I got used to this manner of attack. Prou the Army can make a problem where none existed before don't be bitter when you see it happen. Accept it. a good soldier. Try to do what you're told and if impossible, do it anyway. Somewhere there are al people who love you and would understand if they there.

THE NEW SYSTEM

When I was in, the Army embarked on a new syste requiring certain IQ levels for certain grades positions of leadership. This, however, can be leading, because even a fellow with an IQ of 150 be an idiot and this is easily discoverable.

THE DOUBLE THINK OF THE NEW SYSTEM

quisition, platoon leader, consolidated mess." They are false words of the new systems system of systematic double-think. "Simple" means that the idea was conceived in a simple mind and is not necessarily what you think it might be. "Easy" means difficult if not impossible. "Expedient" means that the sergeant is lazy and you're supposed to get the "simple", "easy" idea all by yourself, and if you do, and it works, he takes the credit and you're rewarded with the privilege of guard duty. "Requisition" means, whether it is a formal requisition or informal, that something is being stolen, somewhere. "Platoon leader" is the mother of the platoon, usually a lieutenant whom you will seldom see.

They do not lead because if they did everyone in the platoon would spend most of their day in the area coffee shop. "Consolidated mess" is most tricky; may lead you far off, because, though this word doesn't mean what it might mean it actually means what it says. There are many other words which the Army uses in the double-think sense, and they presently escape my mind. Civilian life for nearly three years has sufficiently brain washed me on Army lingo to be of absolutely no help.

PARTING SALUTE

My father, who was in Pennsylvania when I entered the Army from local board #3, sent me a telegram on my leaving. I only remember one phrase from it and have used it above. "Be a good soldier, son," he said. I thought of it many times when I was trying and the Army was trying against me, and perhaps that is the best advice I can give my two friends, leaving out the "son," of course. Sometimes things will be absolutely maddening, they are anywhere, but be true to yourselves and all will be well. As for this six months business: you'll hardly get used to it before you're out. . .the "look back time" passes pretty quickly. There's always something to do: lines to stand in or lines to stand in or lines to stand in. You'll find it's like one great big happy registration.

ANOTHER SYSTEM

I don't know what happened to the suggestion or proposal or whatever it was, and perhaps it is unfair to flaunt my ignorance around without consulting the source, but it was my intention to say something about the COSA's proposal to limit student leadership to those students with a certain average. I think this was to preserve the integrity of a number of offices and also to keep the student leader from being over ambitious.

I would like to add my "nay" to this proposal and the nay is based on quite a simple proposition; that more often than not the below average student needs something like a student office to sustain himself, within the academic situation. A success in one area very likely might aid a success in another. Take the wind out of his sails and he might no succeed anywhere, and take a social or political campus success away from him and he might not succeed academically. No, I cannot agree that such a limitation would help. Quite generally, in fact, I am fairly catagorically against all limitation which is imposed. It doen't make for very strong character; it is a crutch, and sometimes it cuts its own throat by excluding a real fire-ball of a contributor. At other times it imposes limits which set precidents for loss of even more latitude. It might even lead to complete abolition of student government, such as it is. Then we would have no toe-hold on our "rights."

New Trustees Appointed

Four Trustees closed out their terms of office at the meeting of the Board last Saturday.

They are Benjamin P. Myott of Enosburg Falls, Charles H. Brown of Brandon, Olin D. Gay of Springfield, and C. O. Granai of Barre.

Each of the retiring Trustees was presented a scroll in "recognition of your efforts in the cause of higher education," by President John T. Fey, who expressed "pride in and gratitude for your service."

Brown, Gay and Granai were elected to six year terms on the UVM Board by the 1953 Legislature. They will be succeeded at the April meeting of the Board by Samuel W. Fishman, Vergennes; Harry L. Spicer, Dover; and Merrill E. Perley of Enosburg, recently elected to six-year terms by the 1959 Legislature.

Myott was the second of three appointments by Gov. Johnson after the 1955 Legislature enacted charter changes aimed at making UVM "for once and all the state University of Vermont." Under the charter changes, the state-elected members of the Board were increased from nine to 12 with the Governor appointing the three additional members with approval of the Senate.

Myott will be succeeded at the April meeting by Frank Stanton of Hyde Park, first Trustee appointee of Gov. Stafford.

Others on the UVM Board include Gov. Stafford and President Fey, ex-officio, Donald A. Gannon, Wellesley, Mass.; Albert L. Gutterson, Springfield; Robert T. Holden, Bennington; Merritt S. Hewitt, Shaftsbury; Mrs. Lucia T. Ladd, Worcester; Basil B. Walsh, Goshen; George D. Mason, Brattleboro.

Also Harry Barker, New York City; Chester B. Eaton, Rutland; Charles P. Smith, Burlington; Joseph G. Davidson, Manchester; Clifton C. Stafford, Stowe; Leroy D. Ware, Richmond; Derick V. Webb, Shelburne; George L. Best, Rockville Center, N.Y.; Neil Tolman, Washington, D.C.; and Dr. Edward M. Winant, Bronxville, N.Y.

Dewey Honored

The University of Vermont will honor one of its distinguished graduates on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of his birth.

The University's Board of Trustees approved a recommendation that plans be made to honor John Dewey, philosopher-educator who graduated from this Vermont institution in 1879.

The 55th annual meeting of the Eastern Division of the American Philosophical Association, held in December on the Vermont campus, marked the opening of the anniversary celebration of Dewey's birth in 1859. Death came in 1953.

CASTRO REIGNS

A week ago Premier Castro presided at his first Cabinet meeting. His new Government acted rapidly. The reopening of gambling casinos was authorized on a Government supervised basis, an office for the development of a merchant marine was authorized, and the Government also announced that it hoped to complete the trial of Batista "war criminals", by March 1st. Havana, at the end of the week was applauding Castro's role of Premier. However many onlookers felt that many difficulties were soon to arise because Castro's revolution has stirred great expectations among the Cuban people.

GREECE AND TURKEY AGREE

At Zurich, Switzerland, two weeks ago, the prospect of an independent Cyprus grew out of talks attended by the Prime Ministers and Foreign Ministers of Greece and Turkey.

They met to end a four year conflict between Greek Cypriotes, who with support from Athens, wanted independence from Britain; Turkish Cypriotes who wanted the island partioned; the British who were determined to keep their bases and refused to allow the island to change its status without a Greece-Turkey agreement. The conference in Zurich brought a jubilant announcement of agreement between Greece and Turkey. They agreed that Cyprus would be a republic with a Greek Cypriote President and a Turkish Cypriote Vice President. Greece would hold 70% of the seats in a single legislative chamber, Turks 30%. A Treaty would guarantee independence and Britain would be allowed to keep her bases. With this split finally tied and with Britain still able to maintain her basis on Cyprus, a weak link in the NATO chain has been strengthened.

BERLIN CRISIS

Russia has thrown down a challenge to the West's freedom of access to Berlin and set a deadline; three months from now for bringing the issue to a head. The Soviet move raised two sharp issues. The first was the relatively narrow but crucial one of Western access to Berlin guaranteed by a Four Power agreement at the end of World War II. Control of the access routes by the East German regime which the Western powers do not recognize, held the threat of a new Berlin blockade. The Western powers have reached agreement among themselves that they might be willing to recognize the East Germans as "agents" of the Soviet Union provided Moscow was ready to offer firm guarantees that the access routes would remain open.

But if the Russians reject this compromise and push their program for a formal end to four power responsibility for the occupation of Berlin, the question will come up hard as to Allied alternatives. As of now there are no hopes for a compromise.

WEATHER SATELLITE LAUNCHED

The worlds first weather satellite was launched last week. From the information provided by the Vanguard II metoroligists hope to distinguish large storm formations. Eventually weather satellites are expected to spot the early development of hurricanes and typhoons, estimate winds, temperatures, and measure the gas concent of the various layers of the atmosphere.

Name Given To Med. School Addition

Vermont moved to acknowledge the "significant and generous support" of its medical alumni in connection with the University's fund drive for a new College of Medicine Building.

UVM's Board of Trustees approved a recommendation to name the $1 million first phase of the proposed $7 to $8 million medical building the Medical Alumni Building.

The first phase, currently nearing completion, will provide increased medical research facilities.

University President John T. Fey noted that UVM's medical alumni last year gave more to their college than was given by the medical alumni of any other institution. "It seems indeed appropriate," he said, "to acknowledge this significant and generous support by the name chosen for the new building."

Alumni In Boston Raise Funds

Vermont moved into the Boston area this past month to inaugurate a New England "first" in alumni fund raising, and the results turned up dramatic increases both in percentage of alumni participation and in dollars pledged.

A gathering of eight Boston area alumni of the University took over telephone facilities of the Boston branch of a national manufacturer, and placed calls to some 300 Vermont alumni residing in the Eastern Massachusetts area beyond Boston and taking in Nantucket on one end and Rockport on the other.

Actually, 295 calls were placed, 213 alumni families were reached, pledges were received from 152 or a whopping 71 percent. Dollars pledged totalled $2008. Alumni-development head Earl Lipsohn happily compares the telephone results with last year's mail solicitations which saw $610 pledged from 31 alumni of the same area.

Lipsohn praised the alumni who handled the phones from the Boston end, saying "they really did a fine job and their enthusiasm seemed to be contagious."

He also praised telephone company officials for "wholehearted cooperation." A special note of thanks will go to Air Reduction of Boston, whose eight trunk lines were made available to the Vermont alumni. The University will meet the cost of the calls, expected to be about $200, he said.

Vermont alumni who participated as callers, all members of the Eastern Massachusetts UVM Club include Rodney Belden, '53, Waltham, an employe of Air Reduction, retiring club president John Densmore, '51, Wayland, incoming president Joseph Impallaria, '54, Wellesley, Mary Lou Piche, '56, club secretary; William Crosby, '53, Newton.

Also Donald Cullimon, '50, Newtonville, Edward McGinnis, '50s Westwood; David Piscopo, '58, Newton Centre; and Frank Dion, Burlington, Vt., alumni field secretary for UVM.

Corse Fellowship Established

The Corse Fellowship of $1200 was established through the bequest of Frederick M. Corse, of the Class of 1886, to be awarded annually to a graduate of The University of Vermont holding the Bachelor of Arts degree. The fellowship may be awarded to a graduating senior or to a recent graduate with the proper qualifications.

In the words of the donor, "The candidate for this fellowship shall be a young man or woman who has displayed exceptional ability during his or her college course and gives promise of being able to acquire a liberal education. He or she should have shown during the college course ability to do independent, honest thinking, and have displayed through strength and independence of character qualities of leadership."

To be eligible for this fellowship the applicant must have completed an undergraduate major in English, or a Classical language, or two of the European languages, and must be preparing for a career in college or university teaching in one of these disciplines (in the case of an English major, the profession of journalism is acceptable as a career goal).

The fellowship will normally be awarded to a candidate who has majored in English; candidates with majors in the other languages will be considered when there is no suitable candidate in English.

Applicants must present to the awarding committee an acceptable program for the use of the fellowship. Normally, it is expected that such a program will consist of advanced study at an institution other than The University of Vermont, but alternative uses may be considered.

The holder of the fellowship is eligible to apply for reappointment, but the fellowship will not be granted to the same person for more than three years.

Further information concerning the interprepation of eligibility may be secured from the chairmen of the language departments concerned or from Dean John H. Kent. Application blanks may be secured from Dean John H. Kent, 107 Waterman Building. The University of Vermont, and must be submitted to him not later than April 15. Announcement of the award will be made on May 1.

Appointments Approved

Four appointments to the faculty were approved today by the UVM Board of Trustees, who also gave their approval to several personnel policy revisions.

Among the appointments was that of Dr. Wadi L. Sawabini, director of the UVM School of Dental Hygiene, as an assistant professor of oral hygiene and dental medicine in the College of Medicine.

Also appointed were Robert M. Ragan, as an assistant professor of civil engineering in the College of Technology, Jack E. Thompson, as an assistant professor of forestry and assistant forester in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, and Dr. John R. Fuller, as an instructor in preventive medicine in the College of Medicine.

Policy Changes

One of the personnel policy changes approved by the Trustees will permit faculty and staff members past the age of 65 to be reappointed annually on a full-time or part-time basis. Previous University policy provided for mandatory retirement at the age of 65.

The Board voted to extend the period of initial appointments for associate professorships from one to two years, and reduced the reappointment time from two to a single year. After this three-year period, if reappointed, associate professors are given continuous tenure.

In another action, the Trustees voted to require faculty members on leave of absence to advise the University by Feb. 1 of their intentions for the forthcoming academic year. This deadline will allow the University more time to seek faculty replacements when necessary.

Grants And Gifts Accepted

Teaching and research grants totaling $127,976.87 and gifts and scholarships valued at over $37,100 were accepted today by the University of Vermont, following a meeting of the UVM Trustees.

Largest single new grant was $19,200 from the National Science Foundation Fund, awarded the UVM chemistry department. $48,748.87 of the grants had not been previously reported.

UVM received gifts totaling $11,485.72 and scholarships totaling $6,950, along with more than $18,000 in industrial gifts to the departments of electrical and mechanical engineering.

In addition, the University received 250 shares of Killington Bank and Trust Company stock from Edwin W. Lawrence of Rutland, to be added to the Lawrence Fund for Debating.

In other business before the board, UVM President John T. Fey was empowered to act in leasing or selling 1426 acres of University-owned land not now in the income-producing bracket, and the Trustees approved a recommendation that UVM take no active part in litigation proceedings against the will of Mrs. Clark C. Briggs of Burlington.

THE PROBLEM CORNER

Referring to the last problem, the expression $6a^2-3b^2-20c^2-12d^2-7ab+2ac+14ad-19bc+12bd-38cd$ factors into $(2a-3b+4c+6d)(3a+b-5c-2d)$. This problem can be done in a few minutes if one sets equal to zero various pairs of the four letters and factors the remaining simple expressions.

Correct solutions to this problem were submitted by John K. Holmes, Andrea [illegible] and Mrs. Norma C. Shortsleeve.

Problem:

If $\sin X = \frac{3}{5}$ and $\cos X$ is negative, is $\cos \frac{X}{2}$ positive, negative or zero?

Leave solutions to the problems at the office of Professor Schoonmaker, Room 341, Waterman, no later than Monday of the week following publication of the problem.

Varied Topics Subject Of Trustee Meetin

The Board of Trustees gave its approval to a Ph.D. program in pharmacology thus giving the green light to UVM's second new doctoral program.

The pharmacology program is being made possible through fellowship grants from the National Science Foundation Fund, and is the second Ph.D. program the University of Vermont has embarked upon in the past two years. A UVM program in biochemistry accepted its first two candidates for the Ph.D. last fall.

In other action, the board gave its approval to anoth "double" series for t George Bishop Lane Artis Series, as well as anoth Lane Summer Series to be o fered at the UVM Sum Session. Two series, simil to this year's "red" a "blue" series, will offered in 1959-60.

A recommendation to rai the fines on over-due reser books from the Billings Libra to $1 an hour was given an by the board, as was a pr posal to increase from $1 $3 the fee charged for char ing enrollment in UVM's unde graduate colleges.

Also approved was a reco mendation requiring a $ deposit from all accept applicants in the UVM Gra uate College. A similar dep sit is required of all a cepted applicants in t undergraduate divisions.

KITTENS WIN 2 GAMES

by STAN ROTHENBERG

The University of Vermont Freshman Basketball team, paced by Dave Brandstein with 19 points and Jimmy Evans with 12, beat St. Albans Radar Station, 55-38, here Thursday afternoon. The Kittens were only behind once in the opening minutes of the game by a score of 6-0. They then came back fast to take the lead which they never gave up throughout the remainder of the contest. At the half they were on the long end of a 33-14 lead. St. Albans made a valiant try to catch the home team in the second half but could not overcome the large lead built up by the Frosh. They did, however, outscore the Frosh by 24-22 in the last half of the game.

Spearheaded by Dave Brandstein and Bernie Lamm, the UVM Kittens turned back the Norwich Frosh, 50-44, in Memorial Auditorium Saturday afternoon. In a low scoring first half with both teams having trouble with shooting the Kittens held a 21-15 margin at the end of the double period. Brandstein accounted for 14 points and Lamm had 10 for Vermont. Woener and Manke with 14 each led the Norwich attack.

Sports Questionnaire

by JOEL SELDEN

Would you support a Hockey Team at UVM?

Bob Sherriff–1962 "Yes, I think it is a shame that an institution such as UVM does not have a hockey team. With the cold weather in this region it would not be difficult to erect even an outdoor rink. I come from Needham, Mass. where hockey is one of the main sports and the boys really cry there when the warmer weather arrives. Hockey is one of the most colorful games and it is a fine conditioning sport. All the schools that we compete with in other sports have hockey teams and there is no reason why UVM should not have one."

Stan Maxwell–1962 "Yes, a hockey team at UVM would give more students a chance to participate in an athletic activity. Also, hockey is a very popular sport especially in a northern region such as Vermont. A hockey team would draw much support because hockey is a very exciting game to play and is as equally exciting to watch."

Hugh Bebort–1962 "Yes, I've always been interested in hockey and I was quite surprised when I learned that UVM did not have a team. I would most definitely try out for and support the team."

Arthur Atholz–1962 "Yes, I have played hockey for the last 13 years, the last four on the Junior Range. I expected to play for my school and I was greatly disappointed to find out that we didn't have a team. It is now my hope that we will soon have a hockey team and it is my ambition to score the first goal for the team."

Larry Cohen–1962 "Yes, as UVM is in the Yankee Conference, the school should maintain all the sports that the other league members have, including hockey. Situated close to the Canadian border, UVM could build a powerful hockey team in the next few years. Hockey is a game that creates a tremendous amount of spirit among the spectators as well as the players. I personally would like to see a hockey team at UVM."

Edward Urquhart–1962 "Yes, UVM is in one of the most ideal locations for the game of hockey. It appears to me that the administration isn't very athletically minded if it can't support a hockey team. They have ideal weather for the game and plenty of space to build a rink. I think that if the sport was played at UVM they would get tremendous participation and support from the student body."

Jack Matanle–1962 "Yes, today all across the country, universities and colleges are turning toward the fastest growing sport in the United States, hockey. Hockey has come a long way in the past few years and is now more popular than ever. I feel that if Vermont were to have a hockey team it would be supported very well."

YANKEE CONFERENCE

For thrills, chills, and excitement, you can't beat the game of basketball. As the 1958-59 basketball season draws rapidly to its close, many college students throughout the country can look back to a particular spine chilling affair that their school participated in and they witnessed.

Every section of the country has had its legends in which a so called "little team" rose up and whipped the publicized giant. This past season, the students here at the University of Vermont that were present at Memorial Auditorium the evening of February 7, 1959 had the good fortune to witness one of those Frank Merriwell legends. A UConn. team entered the auditorium that night expecting another easy Yankee Conference win. However, they met a team that outgunned them with desire, an element that isn't shown in the box score. Once again, I would like to congratulate the basketball team both those graduating this June, and those returning next season for giving their very best.

One victory, however, was not enough to dethrone the power packed Huskies from representing the Yankee Conference in the N.C.A.A. Eastern Regionals.

IVY LEAGUE

In what was supposed to be a wide open race this season between 4 or 5 teams, we now see a 2 way fight between Dartmouth and Princeton for the Ivy League title. Doggie Julian's Big Green now have the upper hand on the strength of last Saturday night's win over the Tigers of Cappy Cappen. The big disappointment in the Ivy League this year was a Cornell team that failed to jell after an early season win over powerful rival Syracuse. The rest of the league this year was mediocre to poor.

UPPER EAST INDEPENDENTS

At the start of this basketball season, Syracuse University figured to be one of the top powers among the Eastern independents. It had the makings of a powerful team built around All-American candidate Jon Cincebox, sharp shooting Ed Goldberg, and sensational John Chudy up from the frosh team.

Somewhere along the line this team, which looked so good on paper, ran into trouble and failed to live up to its preseason ratings.

Niagara's "Purple Eagles," coached by veteran Taps Gallagher, is a team that figures to be invited to the N.I.T. tournament off their fine showing against excellent competition. Here we have a young team that has really started to roll. They are led by sensational sophomore Al Butler who scored 60 points in 2 games at the Christmas Tournament in M.S.Q. and the sole veteran from the fine Niagra squad of 2 years ago, Richie Veith.

Holy Cross is another strong contender for a berth in one of the post season toumaments. A pair of 6' guards named George Blaney and Tim Shea have really helped the Purple to make a lot of noise in this section of the country. Although upset last week-end by the U. of Conn., their chances are still good for a place in either the N.C.A.A. or the N.I.T

NEW YORK CITY

It finally appears that basketball is on the upswing in the big town again. The best of the lot is the St. John's Redmen paced by Al Seiden and Tony Jackson, as good a scoring punch as one can find in the country. This year, they took the Holiday Festival at the Garden and are capable of taking the N.I.T. despite recent losses on a western campaign and a loss to arch rival Fordham.

Next in line for top honors in N.Y.C. are the Violets of N.Y.U. Here we see a team that has finally come into its own under the guidance of Lou Rossini. The Violets have taken 8 of their past 9 games since Stan Groll became eligible. They have as devastating a front wall as there is in Satch Sanders, Al Bardin, and All-American candidate Cal Ramsey. Fresh off a win over West Virginia, this may very well be the team to go all the way in the N.I.T.

This week you have had a glimpse of the independents and Conference champions from the Northeast sector of the country who have been selected for post season play in major tournaments or are being considered for selection. Next week the lower Eastern and Southern independents, Atlantic Coast Conference, Southeastern Conference, Big 10, and the Missouri Valley Conference teams will be covered. Also, a ballot will appear for you to make your choices for the All-Regional team. Vermont's own Clyde Lord is up for honors in the Eastern region also.

Hoopsters Thrash Norwich Again, 72-60
Woods Trophy Awarded To MVP Clyde Lord

Student Body Chooses Lord For 2nd Time

by BOB GOLDMAN

The old saying that lightning never strikes twice in the same place was proved false last night at Memorial Auditorium, when Clyde Lord received the Most Valuable Player award for the second time during his college career. He is the first player in the history of basketball at UVM to achieve this honor more than once. The presentation was made by CYNIC Sports Editor, Paul Stanton.

Clyde hails from Brooklyn, N.Y., where he attended Boy's High School. While Lord was at Boys', he was captain of the High School squad. He was given a berth on the New York City All Star Team, and was elected to the High School Athletic Hall of Fame. In addition to his sports activities, he was a member of the Honor Society, and he graduated Cum Laude.

UVM's Most Valuable Player.

During his four years at Vermont, the 6'1", 175 lb. senior has proved himself in both sports and scholastic achievement. He piloted the Catamounts in his junior year, and for the past two years has been named to posts on the Yankee Conference All-Star team, and the All-State team. He is the top scorer ever to graduate from the University with a total of over 1200 points for four years. This year he averaged 18.3 points per game in Yankee Conference play.

He is a member of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity, of which he is Vice President and past Secretary. He is Cadet Major in the Army R.O.T.C., a member of Ethan Allen Rifles Honorary, a past member of Gold Key Honorary, and President of the Varsity Club. Clyde is a pre-medical student majoring in Zoology, and has already been accepted to the UVM Medical School, and Howard Dental School.

Catamount Clippings

By Paul Stanton

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

The UVM basketball season is over. The team's won-lost record was 11-10 going into last night's Middlebury game. This year's record is the poorest I have seen in my three years here. Vermont was 15-5 in 1956-57, 15-10 in 1957-58, and barring an upset in last night's final encounter, 12-10 in 1958-59. At the beginning of this past season, the Catamounts looked exceptionally strong on paper. What the 'experts' didn't figure on was the strong help many of last year's Frosh squads gave this season's Varsity teams. A great many of our opponents had undefeated or nearly undefeated Frosh teams last year. We didn't.

Once again, the problem boils down to the same old thing---SCHOLARSHIPS! Without the help of athletic scholarships, the Vermont teams are and always will be paralyzed. We can never hope for anything more than a mediocre season. Vermont beat Connecticut a few weeks ago. Massachusetts pulled the same trick last week---also by one point. We lost two games to the Redmen. The away score was 73-71, while the Burlington game went 74-73. Maine beat us twice. Both games were lost by two points. IF we had just one big man to compete with our opponents' towering height, we might possibly have won those four games, giving us a Yankee Conference mark of 8-2 (instead of our 4-6 record), and putting us in a dead tie with the UConns for the top rung. A playoff would then ensue, the winner to represent the "Beanpot" schools in the NCAA post season tourney.

But, as is well known, we don't have the really big man or "goon" as otherwise called. 6'4" Bob Gallagher is our tallest rebounder. Bob deserves a great deal of credit, as does every man on the UVM five, for the great job being done under the boards. And it is great, when you stop to think that our opponents' rebounders average 6'7" or so; and that's pretty tall.

Last week, less than 600 students voted in the CYNIC's annual Most Valuable Player election. This is the lowest number of votes cast in this particular election since its inauguration six years ago. There are approximately 3,000 students enrolled at UVM. 600 votes means that 20% of the student body elected the winner. Where were the other 2,400 votes? The election was well publicized. No excuses there. As I sat at the balloting table, a couple of co-eds walked over and asked for the voting sheets. I then heard one remark, "Isn't so and so cute---I'll vote for him." Another familiar remark from the females was "What house is he in?"

This, in a nutshell, typifies the UVM student's view toward athletics. YOUR Athletic Department gives $20 worth of home admission tickets to YOU absolutely free. To me, this now seems to be a waste of time. The same number of students would attend the games as do now even if charged a $1 admission price. The Baseball season is just around the corner. Surely you have heard of that sport. And by the way, we have a team---and a GOOD one---and a fine coach---his name is Ralph Lapointe---he alone attracts many top caliber ballplayers here. Let's show the team we know they're alive. Go see a few home games. Who knows, you might even enjoy it.

FIVE BOW TO CLARKSON; WHIP ST. LAWRENCE

by FRANK C. HYMAN

Coach Fuzzy Evans' Catamount Hoopsters concluded the road games of their schedule last week by traveling across Lake Champlain to the Empire State where they were reversed by Clarkson Tech, 81-65, on Tuesday night, and salvaged an 85-78 win over St. Lawrence the next evening.

Paced by Bob Sheppard's 28 points, the Golden Knights broke open a close game early in the second half, and coasted the rest of the way to the win. The game was a nip and tuck affair throughout the first half, with the hosts leading 38-36 at intermission.

The New Yorkers ripped the cords for five straight field goals in the first few minutes of the second half, while the Cats were able to score but three points.

Captain Bob Kuchar led the UVM shooting with 20 points. Bob Gallagher had 17, while Clyde Lord had 14.

The Catamounts bounded back into the win column on Wednesday night via an 85-78 victory over St. Lawrence University. The win gave UVM a split in the road trip, and evened the Cats' season

Cats Pour It On Before K.W. Crowd

by STEPHEN PROBER

Last Saturday afternoon, the Vermont Catamounts, in their annual Kake Walk game, won easily over the Cadets from Norwich, 72-60, before a jam-packed Auditorium. This win was the Evansmen's second over the Cadets this season thus giving the Cats a 3-2 state record and an overall season record of 11-10.

The Catamounts' fast breaking game began to click in the early moments as they built up an early 10 point lead. Frequently, the Cats scored on a three and two fast break and at the close of the first half, they were ahead, 40-29. Harry Zingg provided the scoring punch as he hit for 10 of his total 15 points in the first half.

The Catamounts, in the second half, began to increase their half time lead as Gallagher and Lord controlled the backboards while Kuchar hit with jump shots from the outside. At the 10 minute mark, the Cats built up a 13 point lead. With about 6 minutes left in the game, Coach Evans emptied his bench, thus allowing his reserves to play.

The only threat from the Cadets was their captain and all time high scorer Mike Nason. The 6'2" senior from Chester, Vermont poured 19 points through the strings but to little avail, as his teammates failed to capitalize on their own shots.

High for the Catamounts was Clyde Lord with 20 points. Harry Zingg had 15 points and Bob Gallagher had 12. The team, for the second time this year, played without the services of Charles Isles who sat out the game with an injured ankle.

Skiers Take Fourth At Middlebury

While all UVM was topsy-turvey with students, parents, alumni, and other friends celebrating Kake Walk Weekend, the Green and Gold boys of the slopes under Coach Sam Miller competed against, at least until Saturday evening, eight other teams from the Atlantic seaboard area in the Eastern Intercollegiate Ski Association meet at Middlebury College during their Winter Carnival. As was expected, Middlebury and Dartmouth, winners for the last ten years, battled for top honors, with the Panthers holding off a second day surge by the Big Green to edge them out of first, 579.86-573.51. Vermont was buried in fourth behind the St. Lawrence Larries.

In bitterly cold weather, the meet began on Friday, the 20th, with the downhill in the morning and the cross-country event in the latter half of the day. Middlebury completely dominated the downhill placing teammates in the 1-2 spots and piling up 99.96 points---only .04 points from a perfect score of 100! The Cats managed a fifth in this event with 93.21 points. In the afternoon, Vermont moved up a notch, ending in fourth, with Danny Mosman placing sixth, ahead of the first Dartmouth Indian who landed in seventh. Middlebury also copped this event with 96.96 points and jumped off to a ten point spread to end the first day of competition. Incidentally, Midd. had table three of their top ski because they are only Fro and EISA rules prevent th competing.

Saturday found the cold w ther still firmly entrenched, added to this was a sprinkl of snow turning into a blizz for the afternoon jumping eve Vermont's best showing of meet came in the morning sla competition when Bill Ad and Jake Stewart finished ei and ninth, respectively, and s the Green Mountain Universi third in team competition. J Stewart was also high Vermo in the jumping, placing 12th, aiding the Cats to a fifth- event in which UVM has t bothered with all season.

The final standings were:

Middlebury	57
Dartmouth	57
St. Lawrence	57
UVM	53
UNH	53
Norwich	52
Williams	51
Syracuse	36

After the meet, all the t were given a banquet at the Team Tavern in Middlebury. Cats, however, did have a ch to participate in some of Kake Walk festivities as returned to campus Satu night.

On April 10, the Red Series presents its last concert of the season. Isaac Stern will appear, accompanied by Alexander Zakin at the piano.

Stern is named as one of the top three contemporary American violinists, along with Nathan Millstein and Zino Francescatti. The Latter appeared in Burlington in 1956 in the first Lane Series with the Vermont State Symphony. Stern's position is deserved for his technique is superb and the tone of his guarnerius violin is thrilling. Stern is constantly seeking to broaden his musical background and usually spends his spare time and vacations, delving into music scores.

Isaac Stern is well-traveled, having recently returned from a tour of England and Israel. He was the first American artist to tour the U.S.S.R. in over ten years. In his tour there the Russian people greeted him with warmth and sensitivity. He found that the Russians were sincerely interested in him as a person as well as in his work.

The State Department sent Stern to Iceland and he has performed from India to the Philippines. He has been a guest artist at the Pablo Casales Festival and played in concerts at the Edinburgh Festival.

Isaac Stern can also be heard on Columbia recordings and he has appeared on television in such programs as the "Festival of Music" and the "Telephone Hour". Twice he has had parts in motion pictures.

Stern believes in classical and serious music as a great and vital part in anyone's life. Music means a great deal to him and he hopes that Americans are beginning to realize the rich inheritance of music. The fact that Americans spent more money last year on concert tickets than baseball tickets seems to illustrate the growing appreciation of good music in our country, and Stern waits for the day when music will hold the revered place in the U.S.A. that it holds in Europe today.

AFROTC Drill Team Gains Top Honors In NE Meet

Last Saturday the U.V.M. AFROTC Drill Team won first place in the armed division of the Seventh Annual New England AFROTC Drill Meet taking place in Hartford, Connecticut.

The team is led by Cadet Captain John A. Aines, a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and the Operations Officer on the cadet staff at Vermont. The team's advisor is Captain Eugene Cahill USAF, who is an Air Science I instructor at the detachment.

This is the first time that the drill team has ever won first place in the competition. It was an exciting upset over the University of Massachusetts who has won the meet five years in a row.

The meet was held in the Connecticut State Armory where the team competed against four other New England armed drill teams. A total of thirteen teams participated in the entire competition. The armed participants included; UVM, M.I.T., Colby, UMass. and Tufts.

The competition was divided into two sessions, morning and afternoon. In the morning, Colby and M.I.T. were eliminated leaving UVM, UMass., and Tufts in the finals. The score in the semi-finals showed Vermont to be ahead by five-tenths of a point. The teams appeared to be flawless and the intricate routines drew gasps from the audience. The UVM exhibition was of the highest quality and proved to be so in the Judges' opinion also. UMass. placed second and Tufts came in third.

The team stayed over Saturday night in the officers' quarters at Westover Air Base, a Strategic Air Command installation. Upon their arrival in the afternoon, they were taken on a tour of the flight line and observed B-47, B-52, and F-104 aircraft among several other types. They dined on both Saturday and Sunday nights at the beautiful Westover Officers' Club.

The University will get an opportunity to observe the team in the Vermont State Competition to be held in late May in which Norwich, St. Michael's, Middlebury, and the UVM Army ROTC drill

Senior Class Holds Meeting

A very important meeting of all members of the senior class will be held in the Student Lounge in Waterman at 8:10 P.M. THURSDAY, MARCH 12th. The meeting will be concerned with the forthcoming inauguration of Dr. Fey on April 4 in which the seniors will be participating. Also information concerning caps and gowns and commencement will be discussed. It is necessary that each and every senior be present as the meeting will last probably until 5:00 P.M.

Formation Of Committees Begins Planning For Senior Week's Activities

The Senior class officers have chosen Dianne Morse and Jerry Heller as Executive Co-chairmen of this year's Senior Week which will take place June 11 through June 14. They will work with the Senior Class officers: Paul Rutkowski, President; Al Overton, Vice-President; Kay Reed, Secretary; Larry Freedman, Treasurer; and selected chairmen. The week will consist of a banquet and prom on Thursday night, a beach party on Friday, Class Day and Class Walk on Saturday, and Commencement on Sunday.

The preparations for the Week cannot get underway until chairmen of the various committees have been selected. All those Seniors who desire to take part in the Week's activities in the capacity of a chairman of a committee or committee member will have the opportunity to sign up for the committee of their choice on sheets which will be placed in the COSA office at Waterman Building on Saturday, March 7, and Monday, March 9. The two Executive Chairmen and the Senior class officers will choose the committee chairmen from these lists and announce their choices at the Senior class meeting to be held on Thursday, March 12 at 4 P.M. This meeting is very important as the class members will be informed at that time of the approximate amount of money that they will be assessed for the Week and the events will be explained in more detail. Nominations will also be made for the various people who will make speech presentations during the Week.

Senior class members who are interested should begin to think about the committee on which they would like to work from the following list: Banquet, Prom, Beach Party, Class Day, Class Walk, Publicity, Announcements, Tickets and Programs, Correspondence, Class Gift.

They should also have an idea as to who they would consider qualified to make the following speeches: Ira Allen Oration, Lafayette Oration, Class History, Boulder Oration, Class Poem, Pipe Oration, Tree Oration, Ivy Oration. Samples of the speeches are available in the COSA office.

This should definitely prove to be the most enjoyable series of events in each of the Senior's college career and the Chairmen are confident that this year's will be the biggest and best ever taking place at UVM.

Dr. Bond Authors Zoology Papers

A Vermont zoologist has joined with a colleague from Cornell University to study the circulatory systems of mice with hereditary muscular dystrophy.

Dr. Charles P. Bond, an associate professor of zoology at UVM, working with Dr. Samuel L. Leonard of Cornell, has authored a paper entitled "Total Blood, Erythrocyte and Plasma Volumes in Muscular Dystrophic Mice," which appears in this month's "Proceedings of the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine."

The research was carried on in the summer of 1958, under grants from the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. of America and Cornell University. The work was one phase of a continuing investigation of factors underlying muscular dystrophy being conducted by Dr. Leonard and his associates.

In the study, dystrophic mice were compared with littermates which were normal, to see if the circulatory systems of the afflicted animals had in any way adjusted to their condition. The diseased mice were found to be identical to the normal animals in total blood, erythocyte and plasma volumes per gram of body weight.

SAM Elects New Officers

Semester plans have been set up by the recently elected officers of The Society for the Advancement of Management. Douglas Mulac, president, has set forth his policy and promises. "SAM will offer a diversified and interesting program for the semester." Assisting Doug is Ira Effron as Vice-President. Ira has organized the various working committees and will serve in an advisory capacity to them. Re-elected as Secretary-Treasurer was Arthur Keness. Jerry Cutler, a senior member of SAM, will present a paper to the Society on March 19.

Jerry will talk on "The Platting Process". Dr. Nadworny, faculty advisor of SAM, urges students interested in management, to attend the business meetings. The Society offers the student an opportunity to meet top management and discuss matters which are not covered in text books. If you are interested in this organization or wish to find out more about it, contact any of the individuals mentioned above. Watch the CYNIC for time and place of next meeting.

It was at the funeral of a woman who had been thoroughly disliked in a rural community -- and for cause. With a sharply barbed tongue and a violently explosive disposition, she henpecked her husband, drove her children mercilessly and quarreled with her neighbors. Even the animals on the place wore a hunted look.

The day was sultry, and as the minister's voice droned on the sky grew darker. Just as the service ended, the storm broke furiously. There was a blinding flash followed closely by a terrific thunder clap. In the stunned silence a voice was heard from the back row of the crowded room: "Waal, she's got there!"

WILLIAM F. BLOOMFIELD, B.S.I.E., LEHIGH, '53, SAYS:

"Join me for a day at work?"

Bill is Plant Service Supervisor for New Jersey Bell Telephone Company at Dover. He joined the telephone company after graduation, has held many jobs to gain valuable experience. Now he has three foremen and 32 craft people working for him. "It's a challenging job and keeps me hopping," says Bill. "See for yourself."

"8:30 a.m. With my test bureau foreman, I plan work schedules for the coming week. Maintainipg equitable schedules and being ready for emergencies is imperative for good morale and service."

"9:10 a.m. The State Police at Andover have reported trouble with a mobile radio telephone. I discuss it with the test deskman. Naturally, we send a repairman out pronto to take care of it."

"11:00 a.m. As soon as things are lined up at the office, I drive out to check on the mobile radio repair job. The repairman has found the trouble – and together we run a test on the equipment."

"1:30 p.m. After lunch, I look in on a PBX and room-phone installation at an out-of-town motel. The installation supervisor, foreman and I discuss plans for running cable in from the highway."

"2:45 p.m. Next I drive over to the central office at Denville, which is cutting over 7000 local telephones to dial service tomorrow night. I go over final arrangements with the supervisor."

"4:00 p.m. When I get back to my office, I find there are several phone messages to answer. As soon as I get them out of the way I'll check over tomorrow's work schedule – then call it a day."

"Well, that's my job. You can see there's nothing monotonous about it. I'm responsible for keeping 50,000 subscriber lines over a 200-square-mile area in A-1 operating order. It's a big responsibility—but I love it."

Bill Bloomfield is moving ahead, like many young engineers in supervisory positions in the Bell Telephone Companies. There may be opportunities for you, too. Talk with the Bell interviewer when he visits your campus and get the whole story.

The Vermont Cynic

Farewells And Memories

It has been one year since a new senior staff has taken over the CYNIC and that year has already flown by. Our first editorial stated that the duty of this new staff was to present the news to you concisely and accurately. We wished to stimulate your thoughts and discussions, and to air your problems.

The responsibility of setting up and publishing of this newspaper has been quite an experience for us. However, there were times when we probably did not meet your standards. We apologize for this, though we usually made these mistakes unintentionally.

POLICY DECISIONS OURS

We have left the Letter to Editor column wide open and have not ever changed one word of any letter printed in that column. We have never stifled the administration's opinions, nor has the administration decided issues for us. This is one of the very few college newspapers which allows complete freedom to print any and all news accurately, completely, and objectively.

This news is of interest and concern to the STUDENTS of this University and the community as a whole. The administration has no hand in deciding who should be members or what side issues we should take.

If one would check other newspapers, he would find the administration deciding issues, choosing members of the senior and business staffs, and deciding which policies the editor-in-chief should follow. There are a number of experiences and organizations like this to which we might point but THE VERMONT CYNIC is nowhere subjected to the decisions of the administration at this University.

The freedom that is given to this newspaper benefits all of us. We, the editors, benefit, as we find no one looking over our shoulders telling us what to do. We are on our own, subject only to criticism from our advisors, or from you, the readers. You benefit by the unbiased material printed, and the freedom to comment and to improve this organization, YOUR STUDENT NEWSPAPER.

We feel we have improved this past year because of this freedom. We have a new constitution in which our duties, aims, and organization are definitely stated. We have added color to many of our issues, including the back pages of the Homecoming and Kake Walk issues. We have covered the new president's appointment, the judiciary review problems, the tuition raise, your sports and social events, the library problems, and many more of your clubs and events.

EDITORIALS

We have not been Crusaders in our editorials, although as we have attempted to point out opportunities for making UVM a better and more effective University. This, we felt, was our duty. This is also the obligation of every student, faculty and staff member of this University. We have tried to bring opinions to the students in the hope that if a cause presented itself, the students would take up the crusade. We have hoped to foster an interest in student thought and discussion without taking sides on issues, and perhaps this is where you feel we have failed you.

These and other accomplishments are history and there is little to be gained by restating them. However, there are many jobs which still lie ahead for this University as well as this newspaper. It is the job of the new senior staff to help clear the path. It is also your job.

VALEDICTION

It is all over and I, as editor, must say I must regret this ending. It has been quite an honor publishing this newspaper, worrying about deadlines, and deciding on problems at hand. I have learned a great deal from all of this, such as what makes up this school, its students, and the men behind the scenes. I hope that each member of the Senior Staff has benefitted from their experiences and gained a little more than newspaper work, but obtained the little bit of life in meeting and cooperating with people.

To all who have cooperated with us these twelve months, we give you our sincere thanks for making the CYNIC what we wanted it to be. To our printers, the George Little Press, and their staff, there are no words to express our feelings of gratitude for your part in the success of the paper.

To the new staff, there is our sincere hope that they will carry on in the spirit which we strove to maintain. To you, we wish to remind you that improvements are made through constructive criticism. Your suggestions may lead to a better University and VERMONT CYNIC.

WSGA Elections

To all women students:

This letter is in reference to the coming Women's Student Government Association Council elections which will take place at a mass meeting to be held on March 16, 1959 at 7:15 p.m. in the Ira Allen Memorial.

AFSC Offers Summer Work

Looking for a challenging summer? A summer of service with the American Friends Service Committee can provide you with an opportunity for stimulating work. The AFSC, a Quaker organization, attempts to relieve human suffering and to seek for non-violent solutions to conflicts--personal, national and international.

The AFSC offers work camp opportunities in the U.S., in which volunteers, working closely with the community, learn what is most needed. They may construct and repair buildings, or clear playground areas and organize games, or dig drainage ditches and haul crops. Local leaders educate the unit to the social and economic problems of the area. Campers join in the social activities of the community and often hold open house functions in return. Through growing knowledge and experience, volunteers gain insight into distressing but little-recognized situations in our many-sided culture.

Other work in the US includes "Internes in Industry." Interne project houses are located in factory neighborhoods where living conditions further stifle initiative. Here they see the social effects of industrialization. Project members set up discussions with leaders of labor and management. They talk with community leaders and include community activities in their social and

If you can tear yourself away from the books an learning for a minute, I'd like to have you spend a fe minutes with me on a little survey of the sad, unsolv Burlington street situation. It's sort of senseless t go into the exact locations of the messy streets, e pecially since all of them are at one point or anothe . . . messy. As I write this people are voting o several bond questions which will supposedly settl the street question for a time, and even widen Mai Street. (I still like Mr. Chaplin's solution: viz. hav a triple Mall, save the trees, tear down the hous . . . all the way up Main Street.) The voting, I pre dict, will turn down the bond issues. Bonds woul plunge Burlington into a deeper debt than the cit could stand. Just how the mayorality comes out no o can really guess (tho' we know as we read this) but m guess is that the Demo's win since the pulling power o Doug Cairns upset has wained and that gentleman ha turned back to the less conspicuous and more lucrati business of making his living instead of devoting h time to a city that needs nothing short of a Feder grant of a million dollars outright. minimum wage in the state to $1,00, which means that both UVM and SAGA Foods have a slight problem on their hands. While perhaps it is "correct" to pay students under a dollar in certain of the library positions which are student jobs, at which the student studies while working, I'd like to point out that even a high school baby sitter garners more from an evening of "sitting" than perhaps, say, a library assistant at Billings. How is the University going to morally compensate the legality.

SAGA on the other hand "hires" much student help in the kitchens and dining rooms. I herewith remind SAGA that they had better raise their per meal costs so as to maintain their present cash outlay (around 60 cents an hour on the average) or do some other figuring . . . soon. (I don't think I'm being a meany, but know from personal experience the finagling which a food dispenser can do with a payroll and a menu. My experience is not with SAGA, but similar, and I have a documentation of several cases here on campus; enough to know that a student on the spot for meals gets taken for a real ride!)

Sadly so, also, is the fact that some of the on campus jobs are not really worth paying a dollar an hour . . . BUT IT IS A LAW, NOW!

RADIO DEPARTMENT:

My understanding is that FM radio has been looked into on campus, and that the costs of a practical transmitter are presently prohibitive in the eyes of the beholders; but I should point out again that a defeatist attitude doesn't build FM radio stations.

If the University Players can garner $25,000 in five years of working, then WRUV can get the $15,000 necessary for their little project.

This is in reference to a weirdly timed article which I ran last Fall, while the advisor to WRUV, Dr. William Lewis, was hunting up information of the possibility of an FM station. He ran into stone walls. One of which is going to bring us bigger and better athletic teams. If this works, then perhaps WRUV can apply to the Athletic Department for a pittance each year (along with other organizations, i.e., Kake Walk Disposition, S.A.)

Yes, Sir, Mr. Fey there's nothing like having a rip-roaring basketball and Football team!

See you in the lines, children.

Heavy Smokers Raise Lung Cancer's Toll

A world-famed chest surgeon makes a grim prediction in the March Reader's Digest. Says Dr. Alton Ochesner: "Every heavy smoker will develop lung cancer - unless heart disease or some other sickness claims him first." Of every 100 persons who develop the disease, only five will be alive five years later.

In an article condensed from a publication of the American Medical Association, Dr. Ochsner tells author J.D. Ratcliff that lung cancer's toll in the United States has leaped from 2500 in 1930 to an estimated 35,000 last year. Cigarette sales for the same period rose in almost identical proportion.

No self-respecting gambler would accept the odds that face lung-cancer victims. Of every hundred cases, 45 are so ravaged by the time they see a doctor that surgery is a waste of time. Another eleven die on the operating table. Twelve more have their cheats closed without further surgery after inspection shows them to be hopeless; they die within a few months.

The remaining 32 face one of the most massive operations in the usually delicate surgical domain. Days of pain follow these operations. Even worse, every patient must endure at least five years of agonized suspense before he can be considered cured. Only five of the original 100 victims survive these five years.

The rapid growth of lung cancer makes early discovery imperative. Every heavy smoker over 40 owes himself the minimum protection of having a chest X-ray at least every six months, preferably every three months. With such precaution, Dr. Ochsner believes, lung cancer might become 50 percent curable, instead of 95 percent fatal. The article, "The Growing Horror of Lung Cancer," is condensed from Today's Health.

recreational plans. They come to know the neighboring families as friends.

Work camps in other countries give volunteers widely differing experiences. In Europe, the Middle East and North Africa, units serve in villages, cities and refugee camps. Through hard physical labor and friendly cooperation, they seek to do a reconciling work in situations of material need and national, racial or religious distrust. Work campers live together in small units, sharing the simple and rugged conditions of the area. They work to provide the initiative and extra manpower to clear farm land, dig towns out of mud and rubble, set up recreation programs, construct houses, schools, pipelines, and roads. They help people to help themselves, forming friendships as they labor together. Through such volunteer service they not only gain an appreciation of differing cultures, but also come to understand their own lives in a wider and richer context.

On Wednesday, March 11, at 4:10 P.M. in Rm. 239, Waterman, Rev. Richard Leidberg will talk on the work of the American Friends Service Committee, showing color slides of various phases of their summer projects. For further information on the summer opportunities for work and study projects sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, contact the COSA Office or Rev. MACMILLAN VS KHRUSHCHEV

Khrushchev reaffirmed his plan to hand over to the East Germans control of the military access routes to West Berlin. However in Washington, President Eisenhower said that the West would not give an inch in maintaining its rights in Berlin. Any such inteference, the British Prime Minister said "would lead to a dangerous situation". Macmillan also warned Khrushchev not to violate Western rights in Berlin. The warning came as Macmillan and theSoviet Premier wound formal up talks

Macmillan and the Soviet Premier wound up formal talks in a decidedly icy atmosphere.

As for whether Premier Khrushchev is deliberately moving towrd war, most Western observers believe the answer is negative. The Russians by no means are believed to have sufficient strength to achieve a decisive victory over the West despite an apparent lead in some phases of missile development.

Many observers believe that the real objective of the Soviet leader is to prevent the nuclear rearmament of West Germany. They argue that his Berlin pressures are a tactical maneuver, dangerous but controllable, to obtain concessions from the West on the issue of German rearmament and whatever else he can pick up along the way.

SOUTHERN RHODESIA

A State of Emergency was declared in Southern Rhodesia to check Negro unreat. Prime Minister Edgar Whitehead also outlawed Rhodesian branches of the African National Congress which is spearheading a drive to end white political control.

A series of riots and other incidents in recent weeks have reflected a desire by native Africans for independence. Besides Rhodesia, demonstrations also have broken out in the British protectorate of Nyasaland, French Congo, Belgian Congo, Italian run Schalia and South Africa. Under the state of emergency, the government can detain anyone for a month. It bans gatherings of more than three persons andestablishes a curfew.

CYPRUS

As of last week there were no demonstrations over the prospect of independence itself; rather the feeling was one of caution for a difficult road still must be traveled in the year before the new government takes over. Details of the agreement, signed two weeks ago were released last week. The British were to be free to continue operating military basis. Three committees will be formed to guide the transition to a republic. Clouding the scene is the well organized Communist Party. One Cypriote said, the first President will haveto be a skillful administrator, "otherwise after the first five year term, the Communists will surely take over the island".

HAWAII

A Hawaiin statehood bill was approved by the Senate territories subcommittee but a similar measure was bogged down temporarily in the House Rules Committee. The group recessed until Tuesday after a verbal battle touched off by Chairman Howard Smith who said he has "grave doubts" about the bill.

Help Fund Available

Engineering faculty and students in the College of Technology may draw on a recently created $1,000 fund for help "in time of emergency."

The fund is the gift of New York attorney Sidney W. Davidson. Both students and faculty may apply for outright gifts from the fund through Dean Edsard R. McKee.

This fund is one of many scholarship and loan fund sources available to UVM students and prospective students. Faculty and staff, as well, may draw on an additional emergency loan fund available through application to the President.

Pinnings "etc" around the green Just Notes And Quotes

In the past Kake Walk period, after the smoke has cleared away, it is again apparent that many people have chosen this holiday to become pinned or engaged.

HUSBANDS, ANYONE?

It has been alleged that coeds go to college for the sole purpose of finding husbands. This is, of course, an infamous canard and I give fair warning that, small and spongy as I am, anybody who says such a dastardly thing when I am around had better be prepared for a sound thrashing.

Girls go to college for precisely the same reasons as men do: to broaden their horizons, to lengthen their vistas, to drink at the fount of wisdom. But if, by pure chance, while a girl is engaged in these worthwhile pursuits, a likely looking husband should pop into view, why, what's wrong with that? Eh? What's wrong with that?

The question now arises: what should a girl look for in a husband? A great deal has been written on this subject. Some say character is most important, some say background, some say appearance, some say education. All are wrong.

The most important thing—bar none—in a husband is health. Though he be handsome as Apollo and rich as Croesus, what good is he if he just lies around all day accumulating bedsores?

The most important thing in a husband is health

The very first thing to do upon meeting a man is to make sure he is sound of wind and limb. Before he has a chance to sweet-talk you, slap a thermometer in his mouth, roll back his eyelids, yank out his tongue, rap his patella, palpate his thorax, ask him to straighten out a horseshoe with his teeth. If he fails these simple tests, phone for an ambulance and go on to the next prospect.

If, however, he turns out to be physically fit, proceed to the second most important requirement in a husband. I refer to a sense of humor.

A man who can't take a joke is a man to be avoided. There are several simple tests to find out whether your prospect can take a joke or not. You can, for example, slash his tires. Or burn his "Mad" comics. Or steal his switchblade. Or turn loose his pet raccoon. Or shave his head.

After each of these good-natured pranks, laugh gaily and shout "April Fool!" If he replies, "But this is February nineteenth," or something equally churlish, cross him off your list and give thanks you found out in time.

But if he laughs silverly and calls you "Little minx!" put him to the next test. Find out whether he is kindly.

The quickest way to ascertain his kindliness is, of course, to look at the cigarette he smokes. Is it mild? Is it clement? Is it humane? Does it minister tenderly to the psyche? Does it cuddle the synapses? Is it a good companion? Is it genial? Is it bright and friendly and full of dulcet pleasure from cockcrow till the heart of darkness?

Is it, in short, Philip Morris?

If Philip Morris it be, then clasp the man to your bosom with hoops of steel, for you may be sure that he is kindly as a summer breeze, kindly as a mother's kiss, kindly to his very marrow.

And now, having found a man who is kindly and healthy and blessed with a sense of humor, the only thing that remains is to make sure he will always earn a handsome living. That, fortunately, is easy. Just enroll him in engineering.

For filter smokers the Philip Morris Company makes Marlboro, the cigarette with better "makin's." Now improved filter and good rich flavor. Soft pack or flip-top box. A lot to like!

Panhellenic Council Fosters Greek Child

Through Panhellenic Council, a thirteen year old Greek girl is happy and well cared for now. She is Paraskevi, the foster child supported by each UVM sorority member. As a result of a yearly contribution, she receives a monthly cash gift, clothing and food packages, and correspondence.

Recently a progress report was sent to Panhel from the Foster Parents' Plan, Inc. Though the mother, girl, and five year old sister still live in the same house, new windows have been put in, and there are additional bedding and clothing.

Paraskevi has completed elementary studies but because of poor health, she is presently helping with light household tasks at home. She embroiders in her spare time and hopes to be a dressmaker's apprentice next year.

Panhellenic Council's foster child, Skafida Paraskevi.

Though progress has been made for the whole family's well being, the Plan urges that support be continued. Letters received from Paraskevi show the gratitude that she and her family have for the help. Having been sent a coat and two letters, she wrote, "Your presents are such a relief to me, but your letters bring me such great joy! I would never exchange them with all the gold in the world!"

Discussion Held At Hillel Brunch

By DAVE STEELE

A Hillel Brunch was held Sunday, March 1 in the Waterman Cafeteria. Rabbi Max Ball of the Ohavi Zedek Synagogue and Mr. Kenneth Smith, Assistant Professor of Medicine spoke to about one hundred persons. They discussed the problem of religious intermarriage. Both agreed that, on the whole, intermarriage was unhealthy because of the difficulty of the adjustments that must be made both in the immediate and in succeeding generations. It was pointed out that all of the three major religions - Catholic, Protestant and Jewish - disapprove on religious intermarriages. The speakers cited statistics that seem to prove that mixed marriages are usually less successful than marriages within.

The next Hillel Brunch will be held Sunday, March 15, in the Waterman Cafeteria at 11 A.M. There will be a panel discussion on a topic which will be announced later.

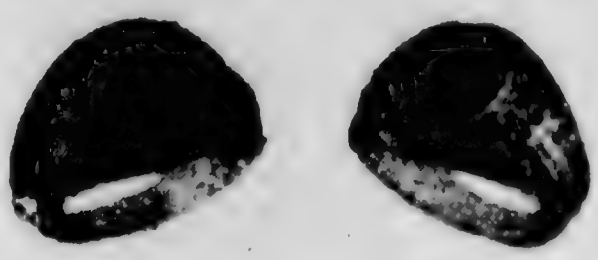
SIGMA PHI EPSILON

The Big Eps had a very joyous Kake Walk. The parties of Friday and Saturday evenings were attended by a capacity number of people. Fortunately, the newly completed party room was able to accomodate most of them.

Alumni back for the weekend were Mike Lacchilli, Mark Plotnik, Al Bassett, John Wee, and Bob Mosca.

A tribute goes to Don Capra because of his hard work, good leadership, and well planned organization, the Big Eps were able to place first in their Kake Walk skits both nights.



COLLEGE HUMOR:

A student who was asked by his dean whether he was in the top half of his class replied: "Oh, no sir. I'm one of those who make the top half possible."

How Do You Think for Yourself? (THESE QUESTIONS CAN TELL YOU A LOT ABOUT YOURSELF!*)

1. When you feel that certain fads are foolish do you talk against them? YES ☐ NO ☐

2. Do gadgets such as new cigarette lighters often intrigue you so you want to take them apart? YES ☐ NO ☐

3. Do you think that political candidates should write their own speeches instead of using a "ghost writer"? YES ☐ NO ☐

4. Given the choice, would you prefer having an apartment of your own to living at home with your parents? YES ☐ NO ☐

5. Do you prefer a salesman who is anxious to make a quick sale to one who will patiently answer all your questions about the product? YES ☐ NO ☐

6. When arriving late for a party, are you inclined to join a group of close friends rather than attempting to strike up new acquaintances? YES ☐ NO ☐

7. If you met somebody with a beard, would you tend to consider him "off-beat" and treat him with reserve? YES ☐ NO ☐

8. Are you normally reluctant to go on a "blind date"? YES ☐ NO ☐

9. Do you base your choice of a cigarette on what people tell you rather than doing your own thinking? YES ☐ NO ☐

You'll notice that men and women who think for themselves usually smoke VICEROY. Their reason? They've made a thinking choice. They know what they want in a filter cigarette. They know that VICEROY gives it to them! A thinking man's filter and a smoking man's taste!

by JUDY JACK

Every spring during a mass meeting of the WSGA, Freshman women choose twenty girls whom they feel are qualified to become Sophomore Aides. Membership is based on loyalty, leadership, willingness to work, contribution to the school, and scholarship. Contrary to popular belief a ninety average is not a prerequisite. The sophomore honorary is primarily a service group, ably advised by Miss Dorothy Pearson, the Recorder, and Mr. James E. Pooley, Associate Professor of Classics and History.

Their many and varied activities testify to the fact that they are probably the twenty busiest girls on campus, and the enthusiasm with which they attack every project makes it an unqualified success. At the beginning of the year, the Aides return early to help with the Orientation Program: they greet Freshmen and show them to their rooms, welcome parents, make introductions and do an admirable job of getting everyone acquainted. They are the guiding light behind the Big-Little Sister Program, and they prepare that invaluable "Dear Susie" booklet which no Freshman girl could do without. They serve food at the picnic in the cage, check coats at the Freshmen Dance, and act as ushers at the banquet.

Last year, the Aides were in a large part responsible for the installment of Coolidge Library, for which they also selected books. In the spring they manage the Cancer Drive, and the initiation ceremony during which each Aide-to-be receives her pin and takes the pledge. The esprit de corps which is evident in all their activities is certainly a prime factor in the success of the Sophomore Aides.

Ford Foundation Awards Grant To University

Vermont has been awarded a grant of $70,000 by the Ford Foundation for the purpose of establishing a two-year faculty seminar program on non-Western areas, it was announced recently.

The grant, one of several made by the foundation this week to strengthen teaching about Asian and other non-Western countries, will go toward establishing a seminar program for faculty members from colleges in the state.

Under the grant, UVM will direct a seminar for faculty members of several academic disciplines, including the social sciences and the humanities.

Open to a selected group of qualified and interested faculty members from Vermont colleges and universities, the seminar will be conducted on a post-doctoral level.

The specialist brought in to conduct the seminars will also assist in undergraduate instruction and library development, according to Dean George V. Kidder of the UVM College of Arts and Sciences.

The UVM grant was among $376,000 in Ford Foundation grants announced today. Other institutions receiving initial grants for teaching on non-Western areas were Indiana and Denison Universities, and Haverford College.

Santa Croce Captains Nine From Backstop

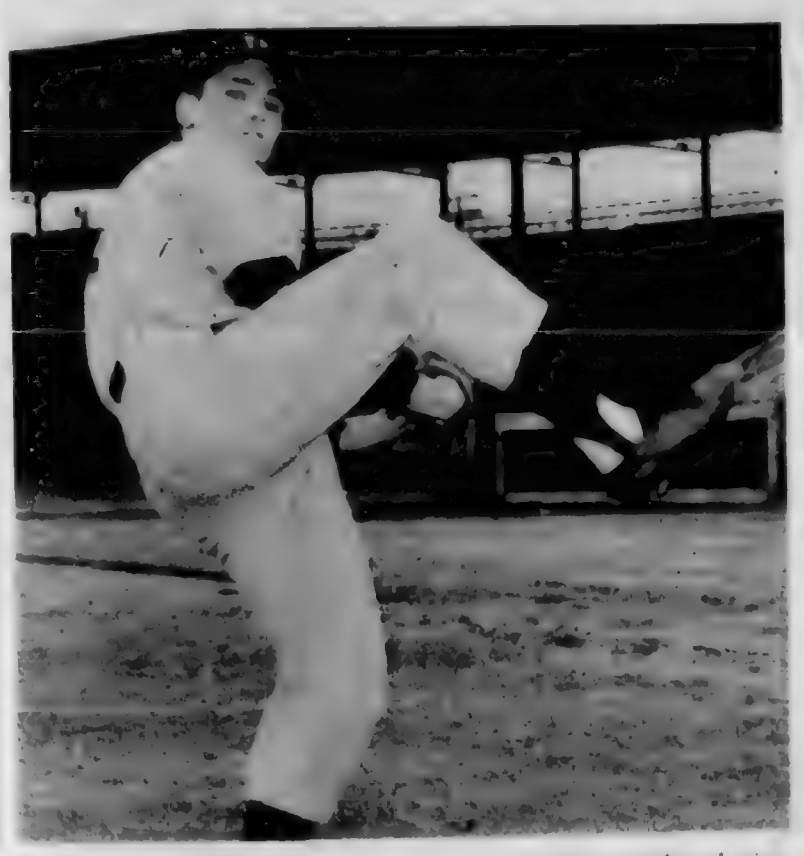
With the annual southern trip only, three short weeks off, all eyes turn to the most important part of any baseball team, namely the pitching staff. It is felt by many that a strong, well conditioned pitching staff will often make the difference between a successful season and a dismal showing.

Returning to the team this year are five top men from last year's mound staff. Heading the staff will be Ross Artus, the tall hard throwing right hander from Enosburg Falls, Vermont. Ross, who is a senior in the college of Arts and Sciences, led the team in victories last year with an impressive, 7-1 won and lost record. Although Artus had an ERA of 3.10, he compiled a total of 56 strikeouts for the season.

Right behind Artus is Steve Cooper, fireballing lefthander from Manchester, Connecticut. Steve, who is a junior enrolled in the college of Arts and Sciences, is expected to be an important part of Coach Lapointe's plans this year. Cooper had a 2-1 overall record last year but an important factor was the strong control he displayed by his Earned Run Average of 1.55. Cooper was able to strike out 29 men which was second best of all the pitchers.

Besides Cooper, there is also another lefthander back from last year's team. Bob Koones, a senior from Brooklyn, New York had a won lost record of 2-0. Although his ERA was 3.06, Koones was able to strike out 18 men in the process.



Another returning senior is Carl Carlson from Clifton, New Jersey. Carl, who is enrolled in the college of Arts and Sciences, showed the best control last year with a low ERA of 1.90. Although Carlson did not figure in any decisions last year, he struck out 16 men and was very impressive whenever Ralph called on him.

Rounding out the pitching staff is another righthander, Bob Flance. Bob who also played football last fall is a junior from Manhasset, New York and is enrolled in the college of Technology. Although his record showed 0-2 in the won-lost column, Bob displayed excellent control with a fine ERA of 1.75.

Now taking a look at the other side of home plate, we find the captain of this year's team, Don "Ace" Santa Croce. Don is a senior in the college of Technology and hails from New York City. Last year, Don's timely hitting and good handling of the pitchers was a pleasant surprise. Ace shows a terrific will to win and his fine team spirit and hustle can be easily spotted from the stands.

Backing up Santa Croce with the catching job will be Bob Davis, a junior from Gloversville, New York. Bob is enrolled in the college of Technology and will help fill an important position on the team.

Some names to look out for this Spring will be Spike Jarrett, Bob Hobbie, Fred Robinson, Harry Zingg, and Dave Reinsig. Quoting Coach Ralph Lapointe on the over-all picture of the pitching staff, "At this point I am very optimistic. This year the team has both experience and balance which if mixed in the right proportions can produce a winning combination. The new prospects are all very promising at this point and I am looking forward to a successful season." To Coach Lapointe and the whole team, may I extend my best wishes and those of the entire school for the best of luck this year. ON TO THE YANKEE CONFERENCE!!!

Frosh Woman Skier Wins At Lake Placid

Roxanne Chamberlain of Bradford, a freshman Class C racer with the University of Vermont women's ski team, overcame all opposition to win the MacKenzie Trophy in the Lake Placid Club's slalom at Whiteface Mt. on Sunday.

Though open to Class A and B racers as well, Miss Chamberlain sailed through the course in 1:06.4 to beat teammate Emma Lou Gale, Stowe freshman, who skied to second place in 1:12.03.

A former UVM skier, Helen Wichowsky, Snow Ridge, N.Y., placed third in 1:13.02 and UVMer Linda Kittle of Jeffersonville, was four seconds later in fourth place to make it a near all-Vermont finish.

UVM's women skiers had been disqualified in the slalom at the University of Vermont women's ski team meet at Stowe Saturday, after placing second to McGill in the downhill, 2.5 points behind.

McGill was the eventual meet winner with 280.3, with Colby Junior College second and Middlebury third.

Kittens Split Two Games

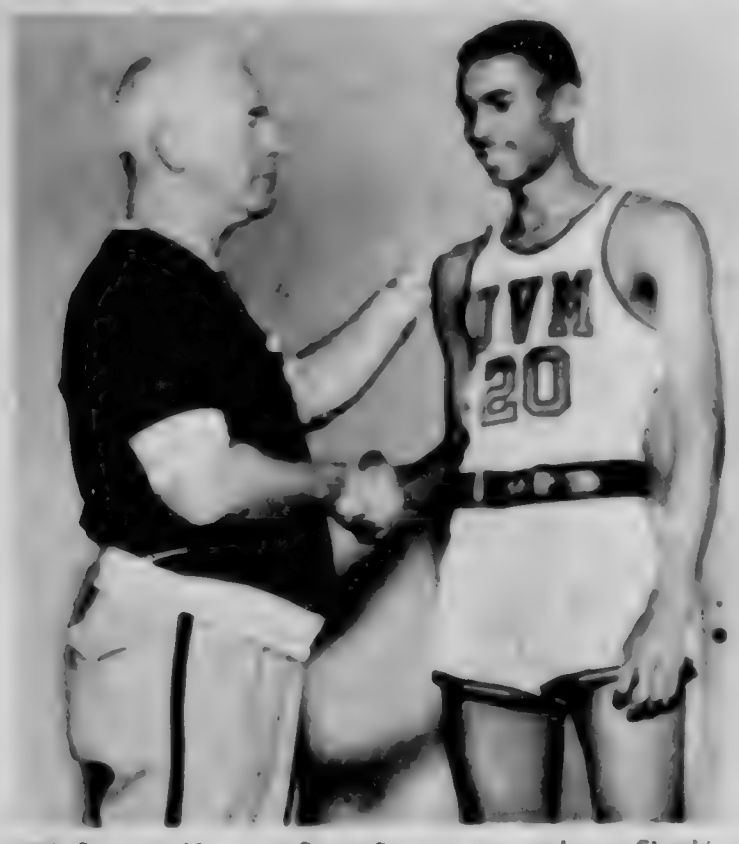
by STAN ROTHENBERG

The Bellows Free Academy, Northern League High School Champions, beat the University of Vermont Freshmen, 62-56 in an overtime game played here last Monday. The Rebwhites held a 26-18 edge at halftime, but Jimmy Evans' masterminding and some fine shooting by Jaffrey and Brown brought the Kittens into a 51-all tie at the end of regulation play. BFA got hot in the three minute overtime to outscore the Kittens by 12 to 2, and win the contest. Ollie Dunlap led BFA with 16 points, Karl Keislich and Voytek had 15 each, and Pare contributed 14. Jaffrey led UVM with 14 points, and Levi Brown added 12.

Last Thursday night the University of Vermont Freshmen, led by Brown and Evans, came from behind in the last half of play to defeat the Middlebury Frosh by a score of 51-46. Brown was high man with 14 points and Evans had 11 for the Kittens, who trailed by 27-24 at the half. Perkins, with 11, led the Middlebury Frosh attack.

UPS AND DOWNS

The wife of a middle-aged business executive met him at his office late one afternoon. As they were going down in the elevator, it stopped and a high-octane secretary got on. Poking the executive in the ribs she said gaily, "Hello, cutie pie!"



Unperturbed, the executive's wife leaned over with a smile announced "I'm Mrs. Pie."

SPECIAL TO THE CYNIC

The members of the 1958-59 basketball team have elected Charlie Isles, a junior from Jamaica, New York, to captain next season's Catamount five; it was announced today.

An Industrial Management major in the college of Technology, Charlie is a member of the Society for the Advancement of Management. In addition to his basketball talents, he is the regular shortstop on the Vermont baseball team. Charlie is a member of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity.

Charlie is a graduate of Brooklyn Technical High School, where he played both baseball and basketball. Although baseball is his best sport, he made honorable mention on the All New York City Basketball team.

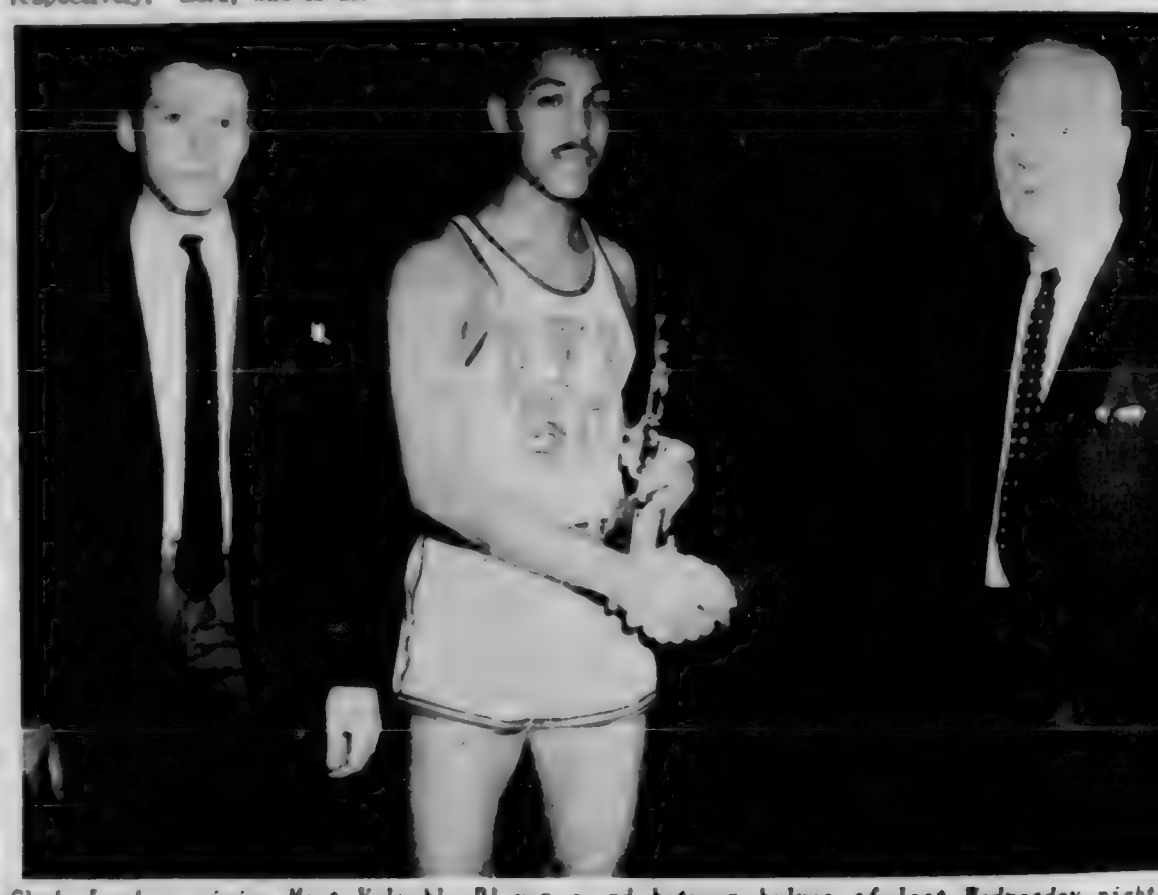
While at UVM, he has distinguished himself as the basketball team's best defensive ball player and ball handler. Charlie averaged 11.4 points per game this season. He is the Secretary of the Varsity Club.

He wants to play professional baseball after graduation, and also plans to go into the Marketing field. Charlie hit .297 as shortstop in 1957, in addition to leading the team in stolen bases; his father was a former [illegible]

End Season With 12-10 Ledger; Gallagher, Kuchar, Lord Star In Last Court Appearance

by BOB KOONES

The University of Vermont closed out its basketball season last Wednesday evening by defeating Middlebury College, 90-72. The 2,000 cheering fans saw two of the all-time greats in Vermont history dawn their green and gold uniforms for the last time. Clyde Lord and Captain Bobby Kuchar, both seniors, finished their spectacular careers by scoring 34 and 25 points respectively. Lord, who is the all-time high scorer for UVM, ended his brilliant career with a total of 1,312 points. Also to his credit goes the honor of twice being the recipient of the Wood's Trophy for being voted UVM's Most Valuable Player.



Two other seniors brought their careers to an end, Bob Gallagher and Denny Morse. Gallagher, probably the most improved ball-player on the squad, deserves more than his share of credit. Being the tallest man on the team and only 6' 4", his job was naturally the hardest of all. Grabbing rebounds doesn't come easy to a basketball player of Bob's height, but he got more than his share and he too will go down in Vermont's history as one of the greats.

Denny Morse is another boy who will be missed around here come next fall. Denny was the spark-plug of the team and Coach Fuzzy Evans will have quite a problem finding a replacement for him.

As for the game, there wasn't any doubt as to what the outcome was going to be. Vermont took an early lead, and with Kuchar and Lord hitting from all over the court, had one of its easiest games of the season. The Catamounts had a fourteen point lead at half-time, 46-32.

Moving into the second half, Vermont pulled even further away to a twenty point lead. Here, with only ten minutes remaining, Coach Fuzzy Evans started to take out his seniors and insert his second-stringers. The first senior to get a taste of the screaming and cheering crowd was Denny Morse. Bob Gallagher left a minute later and the same ovation was repeated for him. Clyde Lord left the game next and bedlam broke loose. Never before was such an ovation given to one ball-player until little Bobby Kuchar left one minute later. And probably no two ball players are more deserving of that ovation than are Clyde Lord and Bob Kuchar.

The season's record was disappointing to most Vermont fans, but there were some bright spots such as winning the St. Michael's Tournament and upsetting the University of Connecticut. A note of credit and gratitude should be given to Charlie Isles, Harry Zingg, Frank Giordano and all the other players on the squad, for without them, the team could never have existed.

Netmen Training For Successful Season

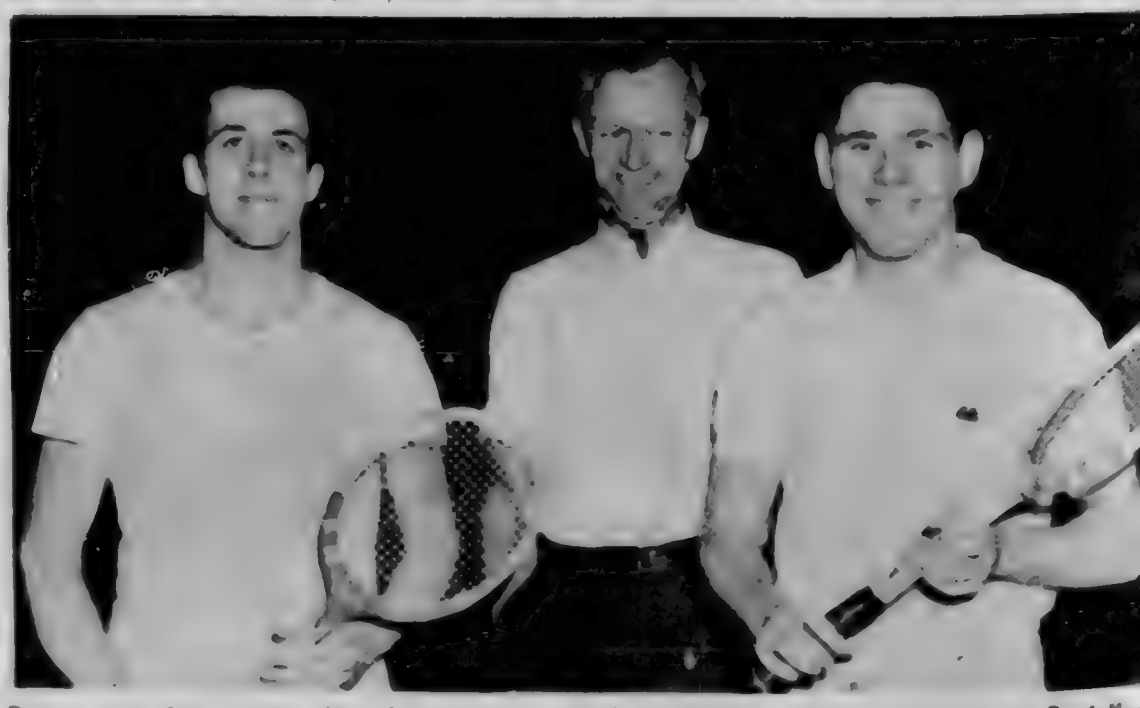
by STEPHEN PROBER

This past week, the UVM Tennis team began its indoor Spring practice under Coach Fred Marston in the gymnasium. This year, the Netmen will be out to retain the Yankee Conference Championship that they won from the University of Mass. last year.

The Catamounts will have 4 out of last year's 7 lettermen returning to form the nucleus of this season's squad. They include co-captains Clem Pease and Bob Feinberg, Larry Freedman and Jack Howard. Up from last year's freshman squad are Joel Efrein, Ed Seller and Phil Schreiber who will be called upon to round out the present team.

Last season's Tennis team proved to be erratic in its playing after winning only one dual match against Clarkson while losing the remaining matches. Despite the losses the Netmen went on to win the Yankee Conference title in a round robin tournament. Besides playing the conference teams, Vermont will play Union, Middlebury, St. Lawrence and R.P.I., the latter being Vermont's toughest non-conference match.

The problem confronting Coach Marston is securing the proper tennis facilities where the team would be able to practice. There seems to be only 6 clay courts and 4 cement courts that will be used when practice moves outdoors. Presently the team is confined to light workouts in the gym.



With the first match less than a month away, Coach Marston feels that the team lacks the needed experience and balance necessary to retain the title. The experience gained in the early non-conference matches will be needed when the team travels to the University of Rhode Island on May 8 and 9, to play for the Y.C. Championship.

'Mural Mirror

by JONNY KAPLAN

On Thursday, February 26, the intra-mural volleyball league got under way. Delta Psi defeated Theta Chi, AEPi whipped the Owls, TEP belted SAE, Sig Nu defeated Sig Ep, and Sig Phi beat Phi Delt. On Friday, ATO whipped Acacia, Phi Sig trounced Phi Delt, TEP defeated Delt Psi, AEPi licked SAE, and Kappa Sig came out on top against Lambda Iota.

This season the boys look fast and sharp. In league A, the favorites are Kappa Sig and TEP. In league B, the team to beat is again Phi Sig, last year's champs.

Lane Series To Present Robert Shaw Chorale

Wednesday, March 9, the Lane Series will present the Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra performing Mass in B Minor by Johann Sebastian Bach. This is the first time that the work has been presented on tour, and during the tour Mr. Shaw and his musical group will be seen in 36 cities, including 25 colleges and universities.

The program is divided into four different compositions: Missa, Symbolum Nicenum, Sanctus, and Osanna, Benedictus, Agnus Dei et Dona Nobis. These were each written by Bach at separate times and later composed in one composition.

The greatest problem in presenting this piece is the size of the chorus and orchestra. In this respect the Chorale includes thirty-five singers, five soloists, and twenty-five musicians. All of these have been chosen carefully by Robert Shaw, at the auditions in New York, whenever it is necessary to find a replacement. But, his search for talent does not end there. During the twelve years of his tours, Shaw always finds time to listen to local talent.

These road trips, spread over a length of twelve years, have carried The Chorale to forty-six states and twenty foreign countries as goodwill ambassadors. In 1956, Shaw represented American musical standards on a trip through the Middle East and Europe.

But the popularity of this group is not limited to personal appearances. The Chorale has had a startling success on recordings put out by major companies, such as RCA Victor. Christmas carols by the Robert Shaw Chorale have become familiar to many as have their albums of old favorites and folk songs.

When this program is performed next Wednesday the audience will be able to see how a musical composition, which was unthought of as a road show has become a success in so many cities from Michigan to Tennessee, because of the talent of a select group of musicians under the direction of Robert Shaw.

Beckett's Play A Huge Success

"I'm going"
"I'm not"
"Let's"
"We're waiting for Godot."

And so they return. Day to day, to wait for the coming-true of meaningful Godot. Their existence forms a fight pattern which has been woven with the threads of human loneliness in a web of uncertainty.

That Beckett meant [illegible] a symbol for mankind. The [illegible] of a universal [illegible] each [illegible] Godot's [illegible] to [illegible] personal philosophy of life toward the final [illegible] letters G-O-D a long white beard---nothing. To others it may depict the [illegible] life [illegible] all our shortcomings. But [illegible] the meaningless portrayal of man presented in the drama.

Action [illegible] man's life, from the eating of food to the processes of thought, is ridiculed. Man is seen as a prisoner of his own frailties, blinded and [illegible] by his [illegible] inertia. There seems to be no purpose to his actions nor any realization of these actions.

The general theme of the play, that of seeking the meaningful, is presented within the first ten minutes. It is repeated and drummed into the minds of the audience throughout the drama. Outwardly, the play, through its hilarious mockery and symbolic playfulness, aroused a general response of laughter, but beneath this fun was a tragic picture of man---of you. Beckett provides no answer, he leaves his audience with a disturbed sense of "why".

The form of the play was far from the usual. The development of a strong plot as well as the element of climax was disregarded. The only recognizable medium was that of repetition. The language was not flowery but, like the characters, had an element of crudeness to it.

In regard to the production of the play, I do not think that the Arena Theater has ever held a finer performance. The set, a single tree, designed by Mr. Lesninger, was [illegible] The lighting was [illegible] and the timing superb.

Mr. [illegible]'s portrayal of Vladimir was by far the most outstanding high-light of the evening. I do not believe I have ever seen an amateur actor [illegible] as well. The facial and vocal expressions of this actor [illegible] and [illegible] of this whole made his performance a wonderful experience to watch.

Mr. Lesninger's acting also added a great deal to the evening. The hero role is often the most difficult to portray for the temptation to overact is very great. There were no signs of this present in Harry's acting. His excellent interpretation of the character made the audience laugh hysterically and wonder madly. In all, Mr. Lesninger [illegible] surpassed all of his previous acting performances on this campus.

I am a bit less decided on the acting of Mr. Gottlieb. There was not the naturalness we observed in the acting of the other characters. At times I felt he was forcing his actions. His performance was, however, much smoother in the second act.

Scott Astle did a wonderful job in his portrayal of the "Pig". Whether dancing or crawling one never lost sight of the pathetic qualities of this character.

To Reverend Leidberg goes a special tribute. I am sure the performance owes a great deal of its success to the ingenuity of his direction.

Mr. Beckett, like so many of our modern playwrights, is transforming the theater into a place where the bitter realizations, rather than the enjoyable escapes, of life are brought to a conscious level. It is no wonder that audiences do not flock to see this type of dramatization. It is not an easy task to stand ridicule and so, many condemn the essence of "Waiting for Godot". A play of this type will never be a box office sellout. It attracts the intellectual and the curious and this type of person is rare.

Board Of Trustees Elects Three

Three University of Vermont Alumni have been elected to six-year terms of the University's Board of Trustees, it was announced by UVM President John T. Fey.

Named to the Board were Robert M. Tracy of Barre, George H. Cook, Jr., of Leominster Mass., and Lawrence H. Averill of Detroit, Mich.

The new trustees succeed Donald A. Gannon of Wellesley, Mass., Albert L. Gutterson of Springfield, and Robert T. Holden of Bennington, whose terms on the Board expire in March.

Tracy, a graduate of the University in 1930, is treasurer and controller of the National Life Insurance Company of Montpelier. A Certified Public Accountant, he joined the Montpelier firm in 1940.

A native of Rutland, Tracy was a member of Phi Mu Delta fraternity as an undergraduate at the University, and has since been active in UVM Alumni affairs. He is a member of the executive committee of the Associated Industries of Vermont, is a secretary and director of the Barre City Hospital and the Aldrich Public Library, and is a member of the Masons and the Sons of the American Revolution.

Cook, who was graduated in the Class of 1935, heads four firms, including Tilton and Cook Company and Ayer Plastics Sales Corporation of Leominster. Active in community and civic affairs, he is president of the Board of Trustees of the Leominster Hospital, director of the Massachusetts Medical Service, (Blue Shield), a Trustee and member of the executive committee of Cushing Academy, and a director of the Leominster Recreation Center, the Leominster Community Chest, and the Leominster Savings Bank.

As an undergraduate at the University, Cook captained the 1934 UVM football team, and was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He has been active in the special gifts phase of the University's gymnasium fund drive, currently under way, and was nominated by UVM for the "Sports Illustrated" Silver Anniversary Award last fall.

Averill was graduated from UVM in 1937 and became affiliated with the Chevrolet Division of General Motors Corp. shortly thereafter. He is currently an assistant general sales manager of the Chevrolet Division, assigned to the Detroit office.

A native of Malone, N.Y., Averill was a Dean's List student and a member of Sigma Nu fraternity as an undergraduate at the University. He served as president of the UVM Alumni Club of Washington, D.C., from 1957-58, and is currently vice-president of the University of Vermont Alumni Council.

Vera Denty To Speak at UVM

On March 3 and 4, Vera D. Denty, the noted Psychologist, will speak in the Student Lounge in Waterman. Her topics will be "Psychology and Religion", Free Will, Determinism and Modern Dynamic Psychology", and "Specific Problems of Modern Marriage." The lectures will be held at 4:15 p.m. and 7:15 p.m. on March 3 and at 7:15 p.m. on March 4.

Miss Denty is a member of the Medical Section British Psychological Society, the National Association for Mental Health, the American Catholic Psychological Association and the Academy of Religion and Mental Health. She has worked at the London child guidance clinic, trained nurses, and conducted Psychology Courses for Parishioners, with the pastor presiding, in one of London's leading parishes.

She is outstanding for her stimulating presentation and unique ability to evoke rewarding group responses. Her academic insight and scholarship is delightfully merged with a typical British sense of humor.

Don't Call After 11PM!

The University switchboard closes at 11 p.m. This dismissal hour means that the operator, following the termination of all calls, must "set the lines" for the night. This operation involves plugging the individual circuits with by-passes so that emergency calls for students can be received in the dormitories on the head residents' telephone conversations cease promptly at a given time. This process takes about 15 minutes. If telephone conversations persist beyond 11 o'clock the process may not be completed until 11:30 or 11:45. Formerly, to avoid this, the operators have been instructed to begin to close the board at 10:45.

In order to give students use of the University exchange up to 11:00 p.m., the following agreement has been reached between the Student Association, the switchboard supervisor and the Dean of Administration. To make the system work each student must be willing to terminate a call when requested to do so.

Beginning March 7, the switchboard operators will plug into the lines between 10:50 and 10:55 p.m. and give warnings to those using the telephones that the board will close at 11:00. Students using the lines will limit their conversation and hang up within the 11 o'clock deadline. The operator will start to plug the lines at 11:00 and any calls inadvertently still in progress must terminate at once. The boards can then be set for the night with minimum delay. This operation is dependent on students cooperating with the request of the operator.

This notice is to be distributed to all University dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses. We believe everyone will wish to comply so that telephone service for all on the exchange can be kept open up to the hour of 11 p.m.

Religious Music

On Tuesday, March 8, at 4 p.m. in the Waterman Student Lounge a discussion and demonstration of Church and Synagogue Music will be presented by the Rev'd. Edward Foster, musical director of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Burlington, and Cantor Jacob Hohenemser of the Temple Emanu-el in Providence, Rhode Island. The Rev'd. Donald Boyer will be moderator for the program sponsored by the Religious Activities Committee.

Auchter's music store has loaned special hi-fi equipment which will be set up for use from 3-4 p.m. before the discussion begins. During this time coffee will be served.

Cantor Hohenemser has planned to show the development of liturgical music as the basis of all music, beginning with the early Hebrew melodies. He will sing illustrations of them, accompanied by a UVM student. Gregorian chants and polyphonic music by Palestrina, Byrd, and d'Lasso through more modern song by Florpeeters will be discussed by Father Foster, using records to illustrate the selections.

The public is cordially invited to attend this music program.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

The next meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club will be on Tuesday, March 8, at 7:30 P.M. in the Student Lounge of Waterman Building. At this meeting there will be a film (in color) about the problems of refugee students in South East Asia, which will be followed by an informal discussion. Details of the fund raising program, which the Cosmopolitan Club is sponsoring on behalf of the University of Vermont, will be discussed. Phi Mu Delta fraternity has approved their support for this program and the Club would like other fraternities and organizations to pledge their support. All students and faculty members are welcome to attend the meeting.

New Screen Set Up At Southwick

The Student Association Social Committee announces the purchase of a new screen, permanently set up at Southwick, which is capable of cinemascope films. The screen was first used last week for the movie "Three Coins in a Fountain". The next film to be shown on the screen will be on Friday, March 4, and is entitled "The King and I". This film was obtained through the Audio-Visual Department. Other films to be presented in the future are: "Carmen Jones"; "Brothers Karamozof", "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter", "The Man That Never Was", and other spectaculars. All films begin at 8 P.M. and free. Watch your bulletin board for Dates.

Psych. Club Meets Thurs.

The Psychology Club of UVM is pleased to announce that its next program, "The Significance of Recent Advances in Social Psychiatry", will be given on Thursday, March 3, 1960.

We are proud to have with us as our guest speaker, Dr. George Brooks, Research Director of the Vermont State Hospital in Waterbury. The lecture will be held in the Waterman Student Lounge at 7:30 P.M.

Everyone is welcome to attend.

The Melting Pot

By ROGER ZIMMERMAN

Ambassador Satch has come and gone. Louie Armstrong and a collection of old and new jazz greats put on a concert last week that was second to none. Satchmo walked onto the stage, exhibited his famous teeth, and spilled out his spontaneous personality to the highly receptive, but somewhat "formal" audience. A certain tone of casualness and coolness characterized Armstrong and his group from beginning to end. New Orleans blues and swing jazz was heard at its very best. It is this same type of music that Satchmo played before European and African audiences on his world wide tours. As a matter of fact, Armstrong is rated by many as being America's number one goodwill ambassador. While in Germany, Satchmo asked a newspaper columnist what the foreign ministers were doing in Europe at that time. The columnist replied that they were trying to unify Germany by improving cultural contacts between the Eastern and Western sectors. Armstrong let out a big grin, rolled his two huge glittering eyes, and exclaimed: "Unify Germany, why man, we've already unified it. We came through Germany playing this ol' happy music, and if them Germans wasn't unified, then this ain't ol' Satchmo talking to you".

The concert itself was really in orbit. Danny Barcelona, forceful technician of the drums, set a blistering pace on some of the standards, and provided a well coordinated background on the heavy blues numbers. Bassist Mort Herbert matched Barcelona, rhythm-wise, and did some fine solo work on his own. His interpretation of the classic, "How High the Moon" showed many just how versatile the bass can be. Velma Middleton, one of the last of the "red hot mamas" (in every sense), added her talents, buxom and otherwise, to a concert that bubbled over with musical spirit.

HERE AND THERE

Student Association, the so-called backbone of student government, has been making, of late, a sincere effort to stir up some interest in the form of faculty-S.A. smokers. The idea of creating a party system has been suggested. The exact nature of what the parties would represent has not been decided upon as yet. Suppose, however, that one party would represent fraternities and sororities, and another party would represent the independents. The voting, at least at first, would probably be decided upon by virtue of sheer numerical strength. It is possible, though, that perhaps an independent S.A. president would have a predominantly fraternity man executive committee. As I said before, the idea is presently just at the formulating stage. The primary importance of this plan seems to lay in the realm of interest that could conceivably be generated from the general acceptance of a party system.

Summer Work

This summer, as in summers past, volunteers chosen from young adults of America will participate in summer work programs; a good portion of these people will be picked from the American College student population.

The kind of volunteer work involved will include social work in institutions such as mental hospitals, schools for the retarded, and correctional institutions; other types of jobs will consist of participation in work-camp programs, "internes in industry", and general community service work.

These programs will draw participants from all parts of the continental United States and from such foreign countries as Mexico and France. The purpose of this type of a program is to help young adults to understand and live with one another and to break down the stagnating force of unreasoning prejudice which is the basis for many of our present social problems. In many of the jobs, the volunteer will also attain an invaluable insight into how to work with and serve his fellow man. In sum, the purpose of this program is to help young adults to gain education towards the goal of being a good citizen.

The work is completely voluntary in basis and monetary remuneration is at a minimum. There are some cases, however, where scholarships are given. The program, however, is set up in such a way so that the participant will draw great personal benefits from what he does, which more than makes up for lack of salary.

The person in charge of informing the UVM student body of various programs of this sort is Mr. Smalakis who is also in charge of COSA. Anyone interested in obtaining or learning more about this type of job, and has not already done so, should contact him for further information.

Highlights

By EDSON DARER

Good afternoon. Time is really starting to fly by now. Soon spring will be upon us and then that solemn day of graduation that so many of us are eagerly awaiting. Until then, there still remain the usual barriers of hour exams, term papers, quizzes, and the like that loom in front of us. The first round of hour exams is almost here and it surely can be seen when you try and find a seat in our fabulous library.

One night last week I went to the library and couldn't even find a place to park my car. So I went back home, left my car there, and walked back to the library. When I got there, I searched and searched and could not even find a place to sit down. The facilities are terrible, and the sooner the ground-breaking starts on the new library, the better-off the students will be. This library leaves much to be desired. Old Billings has served its purpose long enough and is not able to serve it any longer. There's just one thing I would like to say about the new library. Even if it costs a few thousand dollars more, don't get the same people who built Lafayette Hall to build the library. If you have ever been in Lafayette Hall during the spring or summer, you'll know what I mean.

FREEDOM FOR ALL

All I see are smiling faces. The big weekend that has so hastily passed on, was not marred by any unforseen repercussions. It seems that the grapevine must have been quite ineffective. Or perhaps the "secret service" took the weekend off. I can't understand it. I heard that everyone was good, but I really didn't believe it. Could it have been true??? I guess so.

INCREDIBLE RUMORS!!!

All week long I have been hearing some stories that seem to me to be incredible, but I haven't had the chance to investigate. I would like to relate them to you and maybe someone could find out if there is any truth in them.

1) Tuition for out-of-staters will be reduced to $835 again.
2) Out-of state enrollment will be increased to be more than 75 per cent of total enrollment.
3) Women's curfews will be abolished on weekends. Only weekday curfews will hold.
4) Freshmen men will be able to break meal contracts at Waterman.
5) And last, but not least, the State of Vermont is going to allow college students to drink at the age of 18.

The Vermont Cynic

Editorial:

CYNIC Objectives

As the new CYNIC Senior Staff takes over and begin Volume 78 of The Vermont CYNIC, we feel that it will be useful to restate the objectives of this newspaper.

The first objective is to present to the students factual and unbiased reports of campus news. Complete coverage of news is the basic reason for a newspapers existence. It is the obligation of any newspaper to present the facts completely and clearly to its readers. Failing to do this, there is no reason for any newspapers existence.

The second objective of The CYNIC is its obligation to present an editorial viewpoint of campus issues to the student body. Newspapers as well as people should take sides whenever an issue is raised. We of The CYNIC will present its opinions on issues of interest, but only after a thorough investigation of the facts.

Editorial viewpoint is necessarily limited to the editor. However, the CYNIC carries a Letters to the Editor column. Anyone with a view or an opinion to express is invited to write a letter. Agreement or disagreement with CYNIC policy will play no part in our selection of the letters to be printed. These letters will be selected for their timeliness and their content. We do invite you, our readers, to present your views in letters to the editor whenever you feel that such a letter will increase the understanding of our readers on some issue.

The CYNIC welcomes criticism. If a reader thinks something should be changed we are always glad to listen to his suggestions. We should, however, like to make a distinction between honest criticism and mere detraction. There are many people who, judging from their comments, are far more capable of running the CYNIC than we who are running it. Elsewhere in this issue there is a notice inviting students to join The CYNIC staff. We invite our detractors to become part of the CYNIC and to put their talents to use.

We of the new staff would like to thank our predecessors for their help in preparing us for the positions that we now hold, and for their continuing help in "breaking us in" to our new positions. To the previous staff we say "congratulations for a job well done." And for the future, "Good luck" to the new staff.

Letters To The Editor:

To The Editor:

I am writing this letter in behalf of the Committee of Academic Dishonesty and the Student Court of the University, to inform the entire student body of a situation that has arisen and of our response toward a partial rectification of that situation. We realize that in any institution that a certain amount of what's commonly called academic dishonesty can not be helped, but only a certain amount can be tolerated. When I speak of academic dishonesty on this campus, I am concerned with two broad areas, plagiarism and cheating, on any and all levels. We realize that in any policy or subsequent action that we take may alleviate only part of the problem but we feel that the real core of the problem can be resolved through the attitude and maturity of the student body. The problem of cheating and plagiarism is not new on our campus, but only the Student Court's approach is relatively new. We feel that this academic dishonesty is not only a poor reflection of the people concerned, but gives a misleading indication of the University. This type of dishonesty hurts and seriously hinders every honest hard-working person in this University for it's an unfair and unreasonable burden to ask these honest people to suffer because of the attitude of the few. It's unfairness to these people, to the school, and to the maturity and awareness of the entire University that I am presenting as a new, but a more rigid policy on the issues of academic dishonesty - therefore, people were treated more leniently on the first offense was only a warning, but that subsequent offenses would be dealt with more severely. That policy as of this date will no longer be followed. We of the Academic Dishonesty Committee and the Student Court have dealt with the previously mentioned problem at great length separately and jointly, and have come to realize that a new policy must now be brought into the area. For any offense in the area of plagiarism or cheating, whether it be first offense or subsequent offense we will consider a grave breaching of the University standards and a direct violation of the rules. There will be no exceptions due to ignorance or a feeling of unawareness. We will consider suspension and possible expulsion due to these offenses if we feel that this is unbecoming conduct of a college man or woman. If there are any questions regarding this policy please feel free to call upon myself or any member of the Student Court.

Sincerely,
Stan Messinger,
Chief Justice Student Court

To the Editor:

It seems that everyone constantly complains about the lack of intellectual activity on this campus, but when something valuable to the intellect is presented, many of these people do not attend. Spending a Saturday morning in the coffee shop, all you hear is how dull life is and how little there is to do in Burlington. There are things to do here, but no one, or rather very few take advantage of them.

This past weekend, an excellent performance of Samuel Beckett's "Waiting for Godet" was presented at the Arena Theatre, yet how many people actually attended? The answer is that very few actually did see it.

The theme of this play is the continued waiting that our lives revolve around. But you cannot wait, or life tends to get dull. To make your school career and your life worthwhile you have to seek what you want to find.

The students and faculty members who devoted their services to put on this production deserve to have the support and interest of the rest of the student body, but they didn't. Their classmates went to the movies, which they constantly say are so dull.

Even if you find fault with the play, it may provoke some thought - or is that against the rules on a Saturday night?

It may even prove to be fun to support the cultural aspects of your school. The people in the audience of "Waiting for Godet" seemed to be enjoying it, even though they had to use their minds to some degree. The next time something is presented, try to support it. Remember it might even prove to be enjoyable.

To the spirit of UVM at games

I have just come back from the UVM-New Hampshire basketball game, and I'm disgusted. Just what do you call spirit? Is it yelling at the opposing team every time it makes a basket? Is it booing the "ref's" decisions? Is it annoying the "ref" to the point that he stares over his shoulder in your direction? You don't seem to realize that the other team deserves a fair chance. All you want are points and decisions for UVM.

Let's grow up. We are adults and must act accordingly. Tonight we acted like children, though children would never use the language heard at the game. I am ashamed that a part of UVM acted in this manner. Aren't you?

A spectator.

Editor's note:

We thoroughly agree with the sentiments expressed. However, in the future we request that all "Letters to the Editors" be signed.

Across the Campus

WHS 'N THAT

Hello everyone! Welcome to our new society column. Yes, Miss Flick and her flashes are gone, but we will try to bring you more flashes (and more) throughout this coming CYNIC year.

Kakewalk is completely over so we have all recuperated from the big week-end. Now we are ready to settle down to our first round of hour exams of this new semester. Some are complaining that their social life is beginning to seem dull; others that their attitude toward studies is extremely apathetic. One thing is sure - many are complaining. We think that perhaps one way to perk up and be a little happier is to put to use some of one's abilities in an extra-curricular activity here on campus. It can be a very rewarding experience. S.A. elections are coming soon. The CYNIC is looking for new writers and re-writers. Religious organizations are always open for new members. Look around and we're sure you'll find the activity for you.

Here's a little thought for the day or maybe a thought for the week

Nothing is ours to keep for ourselves.
Money, talent, whatever it may be that we possess, is only ours to use.
This is the great law written everywhere.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

With the end of a most exciting Kake Walk, the AO's have finally settled down to the ordinary routine of UVM life; though we must not forget to mention how happy we all were to welcome our three visiting alums: Marsha Eisen, Lois Frisch and Terry Siegal.

Congratulations are in order for Sandy Schindlinger who was recently elected Assistant Editor of the CYNIC.

On Monday evening, Feb. 23rd, the Pledge class elected their officers. Marsha Sneiderman was elected President; Betty Bergman, Vice-President; and Wendy David, Secretary. It was also at this time that the pledge class of 1960 was officially welcomed into AEPhi by the receiving of their pledge pins.

Also congratulations to Marge Coleman, our new Panhel Jr. Rep.; Paula Willig, our Song Leader; and Roz Feinberg, our Assistant Stewardess.

Thanks again to Theta and Pi Phi. Campaigning wouldn't have been half as much fun without you.

THREE WHO PASSED IN THE NIGHT

Last year, as everyone knows, 1,210,614 undergraduates dropped out of college. 256,080 flunked; 309,656 got married; 375,621 ran out of money; and 309,254 found jobs. As you have, of course, observed, this accounts for only 1,210,611 out of 1,210,614. What happened to the other three?

Well sir, to find the answer, I recently completed a tour of American campuses where I interviewed 40 million students and sold several subscriptions to The Open Road for Boys, and it pleases me to report that I can now account for those three elusive undergraduates.

The first was an LSU junior named Fred Gaugin. He was extremely popular, always ready with a smile, fond of folk dancing and pralines, and last semester his Chi Psi brothers unanimously elected him treasurer of the fraternity. This proved an error. Gaugin, alas, promptly absconded with the money and went to Tahiti to paint. The fraternity is bending every effort to extradite Gaugin, but Tahiti, alas, is currently observing the feast of Dipthong, the Sun-God, a five-year ceremony during which all the islanders wear masks, so nobody, alas, can say for certain which one is Gaugin.

Nobody can say for certain which one is Gaugin.

The second missing undergraduate is William Cullen Sigafoos, Oregon State freshman, who went one day last fall to a disreputable vendor named A. M. Sashweight to buy a pack of Marlboros. Mr. Sashweight did not have any Marlboros because Marlboros are only sold by reputable vendors. However, he told Sigafoos that he had another brand which was just as good, and Sigafoos, being but an innocent freshman, believed him.

Well sir, you and I know there is no other brand as good as Marlboros. That fine filter, that flavorful flavor, that pleasure, that joy, that fulfillment—are Marlboro's and Marlboro's alone. All of this was quickly apparent to young Sigafoos and he flew into a terrible rage. "As good as Marlboros indeed!" he shrieked, kicking his roommate furiously. "I am going right back to that mendacious Mr. Sashweight and give him a thrashing he won't soon forget!" With that he seized his lacrosse hat and rushed out.

Mr. Sashweight heard him coming and started running. Now Mr. Sashweight, before he became a disreputable vendor, had taken numerous prizes as a cross-country runner, and he thought he would soon outdistance young Sigafoos. But he reckoned without Sigafoos's stick-to-itiveness. At last report the two of them had passed Cleveland. When they reach the Atlantic Seaboard, bad Mr. Sashweight will get his lumps from Sigafoos, you may be sure, and I, for one, am glad.

The third missing undergraduate, also named Sigafoos, is a Bennington sophomore named Celeste Sigafoos and, ironically, she never intended to leave college at all. She was merely going home for Christmas on the Natchez, Mobile, and Boise Railroad and during the night, alas, her upper berth slammed shut on her. Being a Bennington girl, she naturally did not wish to make an unseemly outcry, so she just kept silent. The next morning, alas, the railroad went bankrupt, and Miss Sigafoos today is lying forgotten on a siding near Valparaiso, Indiana. Fortunately she has plenty of Marlboros with her.

And how about the rest of you? Do you have plenty of Marlboros? Or if you like mildness but you don't like filters, plenty of Philip Morrises? Hmm? Do you?

The plans received support from many of the class members interested in serving on the various class committees. The class activities committee will be added in a few weeks to plan these activities.

The class executive committee now consists of the class officers, the class SA representatives and the four newly elected members who are Caroline Josephs of Worcester Massachusetts, Elaine Stauter of Great Neck, New York, Paul Nassi of Bellows Falls, Vermont, and Jeff Bennett of Chateauroux, France.

IN BUSINESS

A new centralized placement agency and purchasing office located in the Waterman Building at UVM is now the business agent for the purchasing needs of most university departments and is the employment center for non-teaching personnel. Among its duties is the regular purchase of government surplus equipment and materials which range from screw drivers to micro-films machines, available to educational institutions at substantial savings from their original cost.

In this day and age I guess anything can happen. Not being a gullible person, I am beginning to wonder if these rumors might ever happen. Who knows???

With the first round of hour exams just around the corner and some of my books still uncracked, I must bid you adieu for the time being. So long for now.

Fred "Tiger" Kolstrom is in the midst of a strenuous training program to shape up the Phi's volleyball squad to face the grueling interfraternity competition. FIGHT, YOU SILVER KNIGHTS!!

PHI MU DELTA

There has been quite a lot of activity at Phi Mu Delta recently. During Kake Walk, Frank White became pinned to Patti Cloe who is a student at Keene Teachers College. Also, the brothers of Nu Gamma had a very important meeting with the chapter alumni during the weekend. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss our critical housing problem. An offer has been extended for a house which we feel will suit our needs and requirements perfectly.

Nu Gamma has begun participating in the IFC volleyball games. We defeated Acacia in a well played game but lost our second game to the Owls. Phi Mu Delta will shortly receive the IFC Scholarship Trophy for the year 1958-1959 for having taken top scholastic honors during the year. Frank White, Max Beuno and Bill Bradley made the Dean's List for the fall semester. Max Beuno has been accepted to the University of Vermont College of Medicine in the class of 1964.

PHI SIGMA DELTA

The Phi Sigs are greatly indebted to Fred Mandell who walked for the house Saturday night, and did a magnificent job with less than five hours notice. We are also extremely proud of Mike Kaplan and Dick Falk who also did a very fine job of walking.

Pledge Class elections were held last week and the following have been chosen for their respective offices: Les [illegible] President: Dave Farber, Vice President: Joel Bauer, Secretary: Richie Ader, Treasurer: Carl Sherter, Social Chairman: Frank Staro, Housemanager and Larry Sternberg, Historian.

Satchmo Swings At Memorial

By Judy Sylvia

Memorial Auditorium was the setting for the great Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong when he appeared in Burlington last Friday night under the auspices of the St. Michael's Glee Club.

Along with "Satchmo", came his band consisting of Mort Herbert - base; "Peanuts" Hucko - clarinet; Danny Barcelona - drums; Billy Kyle - piano; Trummy Young - trombone; Velma Middleton - vocalist.

To start the jazz concert, Louie sang his theme - "Sleepy Time Down South". From this, he went on to sing ten or twelve of his standards, including "St. Louis Blues", "Mac the Knife", and "Baby, It's Cold Outside."

Velma Middleton kept the audience laughing by her dancing and other antics.

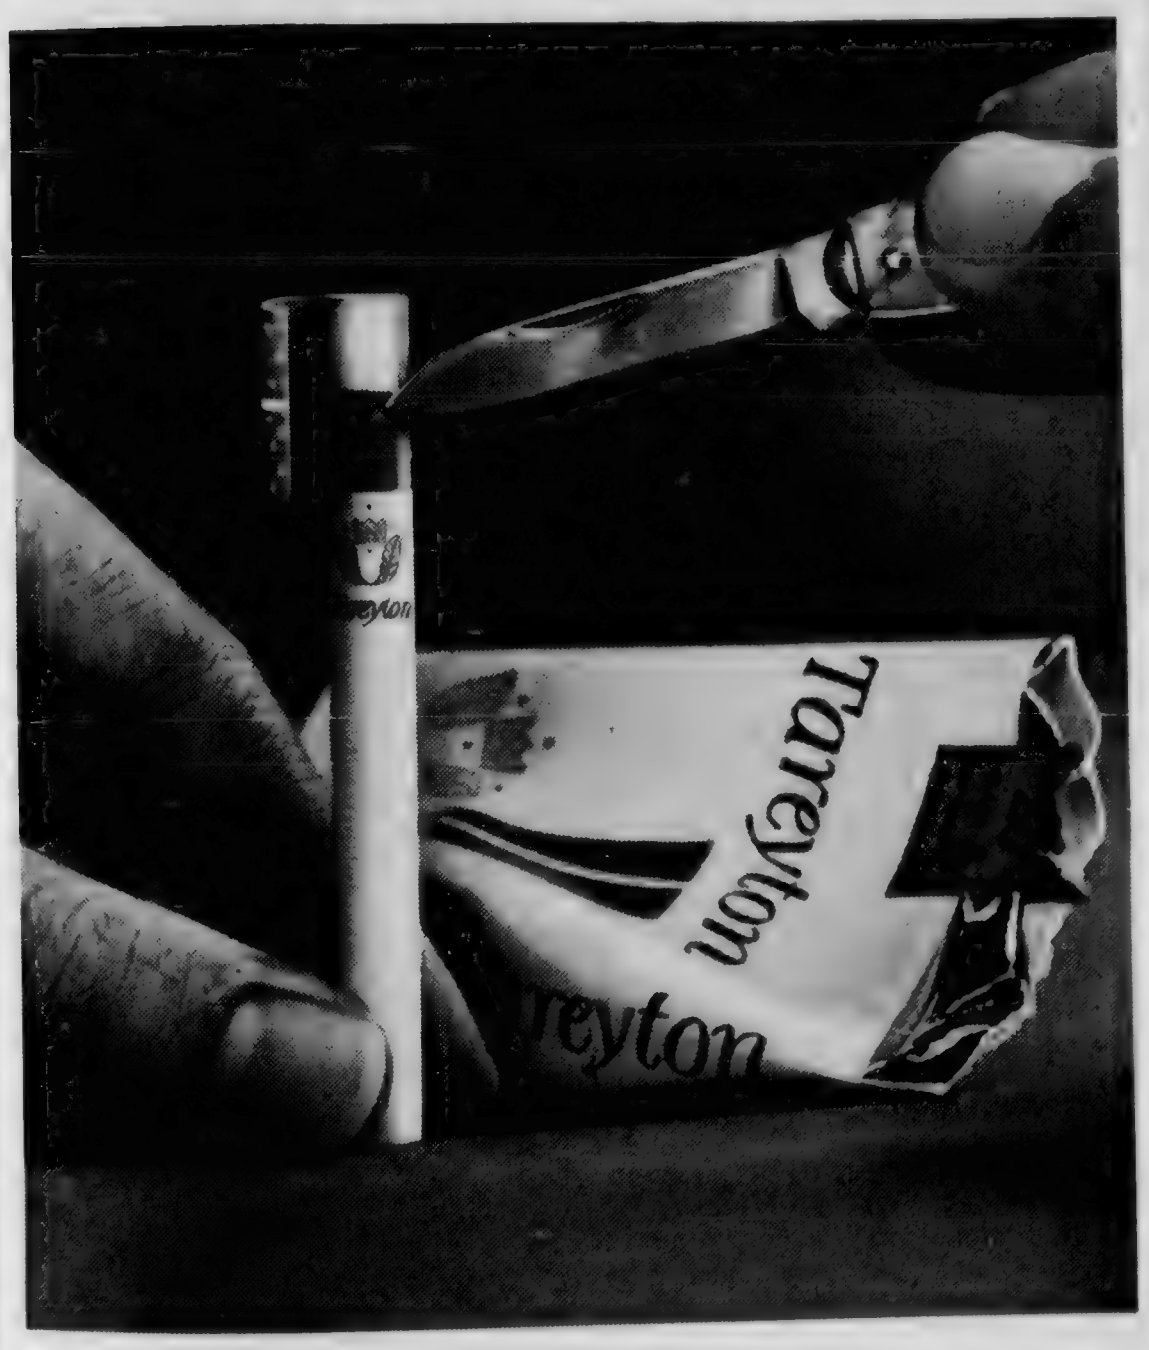
Included in the program were solos by each member of the band. The most impressive seemed to be a bass fiddle solo of 2 complete songs with reactions.

The concert ended with the "Hometown Chorus" and their version of "When the Saints Go Marching In". Louie joined the Glee Club in the final chorus.

As an added attraction, a St. Michael's freshman came up to Louie Armstrong and said "To Mr. A for his A performance." And with that he handed Louis Armstrong a fresh beanie.

The audience reaction was extremely good, and almost everyone got into the rhythm by clapping hands, etc. Nobody can watch and listen to Louis Armstrong with complete apathy. With his personality, "Satchmo" compels his audience to join in the mood of his songs.

Louis Armstrong was born in a back-of-town part of New Orleans on July 4, 1900. When he was about eleven, he and some other boys formed a quartet and strolled the streets of the Storyville section of New Orleans singing new jazz songs and passing the hat for pennies. Louis' only instrument was a four-string guitar made of a cigar box, copper wire, and a piece of flat wood for the neck. He learned to play by ear from his hero, Bunk Jones.



In 1913, Louie was sent to the Waifs' Home for a year's discipline and there he learned to play the bugle. When released, he knew what he wanted to do.

At fourteen, Louis sold papers, worked in a dairy, and whenever he could, he picked up an odd job playing.

At seventeen he took trumpet lessons from "King" Oliver, and soon played so well that he was off on his own.

After a long hard trip, he finally hit the top in the entertainment and movie fields. He has made personal appearances in many foreign countries, and is as big a hit there as he is at home in the United States.

Pershing Rifles Star

At seven thirty A.M. on February [illegible] nine drilled brothers of Pershing Rifles came to attention as their commanding officer gave the order to fall in. They were practicing at this hour in order for a drill demonstration that they were to perform at each company drill. The purpose of the demonstration was to show basic ROTC cadets one of the many advantages that the military society has to offer and also to announce a Pershing Rifle Smoker that evening. The willingness of the nine brothers to practice so early in the morning is typical of the spirit of the brothers and pledges in Pershing Rifles.

The demonstration put on by Company L-12 was a success. Many freshman and sophomore cadets of the five companies were impressed with the fine dress, cover and unity of movement. Captain Detherow complimented the brothers on a job well done.

Captain R.C. Eaton, commanding officer of P.R. explained that many cadets had been wishing to join Company L-12 ever since the company stood guard at the Redstone campus one cold night in December. The smoker took place in the student lounge at seven thirty Friday evening. Captain Detherow, advisor to P.R. told the new candidates that it had been remarked that in the future the men of Pershing Rifles will be leading the brigade of cadets on the campus. The fact that a Pershing Rifleman was cadet of the week for each company last semester backed up the statement.

The candidates learned of the other advantages P.R. has to offer. The company executive officer 1st Lt. George Natch told the cadets at the smoker that the purpose of Pershing Rifles is to foster a spirit of friendship and cooperation among the men in the military. It does this by seeking perfection in drill, holding rifle matches, firearms and social functions. Everyone was glad to hear that the new brothers were planning a party for the near future.

After the films of World War II were shown it was announced that cadets Jeffery Falk, a member of the rifle team, and Frank Holden, President of the Men's Residence Council, received the honor of being selected as the outstanding pledges of the last semester. For being selected to this honor each man received his brothers fees and a promotion to PFC P.R. The competition was so close among the ranks that the only choice that could be reached was to call a tie. It was also announced to Captain Detherow that the next two drills are open to any basic ROTC cadet.

Besides cadets Holden and Falk to receive their truth-and were Loren Dingue, [illegible] Barber, David Nelson, Fletcher Pratt, "Bud" Carley, Rodney Fish, Michael Adess, and Walter Gutzmann. Both Adess and Gutzmann are members of the class of '62, the rest all being freshman. These brothers were what was left of thirty-three candidates which were initiated at the beginning of the first semester.

The members of Pershing Rifles are planning bigger and better things for the next semester and invite any basic ROTC cadets to attend the open drills.

S.A. Initiates Informal Coffee Hour

On Sunday night, Feb. 28, the S.A. held the first in what is hoped to be a series of informal coffee hours attended by faculty, student, and administration representatives. Although there was no specific agenda set up, lively discussion on a number of various campus problems was discussed. Among these were THE CYNIC, communications, student-faculty relations, Student Association elections, student apathy and student interests.

Among the various problems put forth, were such things as how to help improve the school paper, and what generally constitutes a good student newspaper. Regarding Student Association elections, it was suggested by some of those present that such things as "political parties" might be a good idea. This might also increase student awareness and interest in Student Association.

It was also felt that a panel discussions on timely topics of campus-wide issues might be of some benefit. It was suggested that "cheating" might elicit sufficient interest for such a discussion.

It is hoped that at future meetings such as these many topics can be discussed and that the various people who take part will be able to bring about changes which will be advantageous to the entire University.

SOLO FLIGHTS

Alfred G. Peterson, '60, the son of George T. Peterson of Springfield, Vt., and Richard T. Miller, '60, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller of Nashua, N.H., are two of five UVM Army ROTC students who will make solo flights within the next few weeks under the Flight Training Program of this branch of the service. Robert W. Drury, '60, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Max W. Drury of Essex Junction, has already soloed successfully.

The wearing of the Air rce blue is on its way out the University of Vermont. UW's Board of Trustees day (Feb. 20) authorized e University's voluntary scontinuance of the Air rce ROTC program which UVM augurated in 1952.

President John T. Fey said e University's action was aken to cooperate with the irit of an Air Force desire "gain economies in one ase of its officer recruitent."

He said the Air Force had ecently expressed the hope hat institutions with Air OTC programs which do not nnually provide large numers of regular Air Force fficers would consider voluntarily discontinuing their rograms to gain economies in his phase of officer recruitent.

The UVM President said lans were being worked out permit Vermont students already in the advance Air rogram to complete that rogram. Students in the asic-first two years-of the rogram will also have an pportunity to go on to the dvanced Army ROTC program nder a plan still to be orked out in detail.

Congratulations. to John Aines

2nd Lt. John A. Aines. On February 5, 1960, 2nd Lt. John A. Aines received a commission as a reserve officer in the Air Force. Lt. Aines, a native of Brandon, Vermont, commanded the AFROTC-UVM drill team last year. At the Area "A" competition, he led the team to a first place in the armed division. Lt. Aines received a degree last semester from the college of Commerce and Economics.

Lt. Aines has received orders to report for pilot training 23 March 1960. He will remain on TDY at Lackland AFB, Texas, until April and will report for primary training at Bainbridge Air Base, Georgia, on 24 April 1960.

The detachment extends it's "congratulations" and "best wishes" to 2nd Lt. Aines in his forthcoming Air Force career.

Dr. Fey acknowledged the "service and education partnership" enjoyed by the University and the Air Force since 1952 and said it "seemed appropriate to the friendship engendered by that partnership that UVM should take the initiative in meeting the spirit of the Air Force request."

More Defense Loans May Become Available

Additional National Defense Student Loan Funds may become available for use between now and July 1 if a bill before congress is passed. The University of Vermont would automatically receive loan funds of $18,575 under this appropriation and an additional amount if substantiated by a new application.

Students are reminded that all applications for National Defense Education Loan Funds are made through the offices of the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men. The criteria on which these are considered as established by the National Defense Act are as follows:

WHO IS ELIGIBLE TO APPLY?

Student borrowers must be citizens of the United States or persons having permanent residence.

They must be full-time college students, under-graduate or graduate, or persons who have been accepted as full-time students.

They must be in good academic standing and capable of maintaining good standing.

They must show evidence of need.

Special consideration shall be given to: "Students with a superior academic background who express a desire to teach in elementary or secondary school.

"Students whose background indicate a superior capacity or preparation in science, mathematics, engineering or a modern foreign language."

When the needs of the superior applicants are met, all other qualified applicants are considered equally regardless of field of study.

GIRLS' STATE SCHOLARSHIP

Approval of a $200 Green Mountain Girls' State Scholarship and approval of a loan fund to be established by the Vermont State Dental Society were among the accomplishments of the UVM Board of Trustees at the February meeting. The scholarship will be awarded annually to a woman member of the freshman class at UVM.

Women's Ski Team Competes

A cloud of blankets, olympic-type helmets, wax and other paraphanalia marked the departure Wednesday of Pat Freel, Emma Lou Gale, Roxanne Chamberlin, Jackie Humphrey, and Miss Peterson to a UVM women's ski meet at Stowe.

The girls competed in slalom and downhill races at Spruce Peak and North Slope areas, respectively. Their competitors were from Colby Junior College, Colby College, McGill University, Middlebury College, Skidmore College, and University of New Hampshire. The strongest competition is expected from Nancy Sise, Sue Goodwin, and Elena Bookstrom of Middlebury, Judy Butler of Colby, Marian MacDougall and Gael Eakin of McGill, and Betsey Sise of Skidmore.

Dan Ferguson, ski instructor at Stowe and UVM student Chief of the Course, set the route the girls will follow. Louise Gallagher, Chief of the Race, organized the entire meet and procured the necessary Student Association station wagon for the trip.

On March eleventh through thirteenth, Pat Freel, Emma-Lou Gale, Jackie Humphrey, and Roxanne Chamberlin will participate in the American Internationals.

Report On New Gym Drive

University of Vermont alumni have contributed more than $200,000 toward their special gift goal of $400,000 in UVM's current three-year drive for a new gymnasium.

A total of $204,000 in special gift contributions has come from 616 alumni, representing an average gift of $330.

In addition to the special gift phase, there was Gymnasium Fund activity on a number of other fronts this week.

The general campaign, in which more than 14,000 UVM alumni will seek to raise $1 million, has already begun in several out-of-state areas, including Hartford, Conn., Buffalo, Rochester and Albany, N.Y., Worcester, Mass., and Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Washington, D.C. More than $5000 in scattered pledges has been received to date.

In Vermont, the general campaign has begun in Addison County and will get under way in Chittenden County and throughout the remainder of the state during the month of March.

The Addison County drive is headed by John F. Galascione, a graduate of UVM in 1957. Galascione is a faculty member and coach at Middlebury Union High School.

The non-Alumni phase of the gymnasium drive will formally open in April. This phase of the fund-raising effort will include the solicitation of business firms and individuals in the Greater Burlington area, as well as other friends of the University. More than $9200 in scattered pledges has been received in this phase of the gym campaign.

An effort will be made to complete the solicitation for the campaign by this June 30. Pledges are being asked over a three-year period. Each year's giving will count as annual alumni giving, according to UVM spokesmen.

Robinson and righty Larry Fulsone, a newcomer, will add more mound strength to the team.

Sophomores up from the frosh team which have the potential of breaking into regular varsity play are: Maynard Ducatte of Cadyville, N.Y., Levi Brown of Stamford, N.Y., Jim Evans of Burlington, Vt., Mike Pearo of Burlington, Vt., Gord Miller and Wally Schilo of Cheshire, Conn., and Dick De Nicola of Hamden, Conn. Ducatte and Brown, both strong men with a bat are very possible starters in the Catamount infield. Brown is a strong third baseman, while Ducatte can ably fill the second base slot vacated by a classy Baron Zysk, or handle a job behind the plate. Pearo and Evans both local men show infield possibilities, Pearo behind the plate and Evans on third or short stop. Miller, Schilo, and De Nicola show ability on the mound and have excellent chances of breaking into the Cat's pitching staff.

Once the team has been chosen Coach Lapointe will be preparing his University of Vermont Baseball squad for the Annual Southern Trip and a twenty-nine game schedule, including the southern excursion. Coach Lapointe feels that the '60 squad has definite potential of being one of the best Cat teams in many years, and an improvement over last year's fourteen and eleven record.

According to Gerry Cassidy, the team is better offensively and defensively than the previous squad, but the loss of last year's mound strength in Ross Artus and Bob Koones could leave a deep gash in this year's strength. The team has more speed and more potential than any team Gerry has seen in his four years at UVM.

Campus hopes are high for a tremendous Catamount year on the diamond and best of luck is extended to Coach Lapointe for a very successful season.

Cats Triumph In Last Games Of Season

BeatMiddlebury,Union,Clarkson,UNH,Mass; EvansGets200th

by Ray Stanton

The University of Vermont Catamounts topped the Middlebury Panthers 57-53 at Middlebury on the eve of the Kake Walk Ball. It was Coach "Fuzzy" Evans' 199th win. At half time we led by 6, 32-26. With 5 minutes left in the second half, the Panthers came within one point of tying up the game, but we led 53-52. Captain Charlie Isles played expert ball, ending up 24 points, while Frank Giordano made good for 14, and both Ray Kelsey and Ray Wiener hit the boards for 12.

Two days later, on February 18, Vermont broke one game closer to the Yankees, by defeating plucky Tufts at Medford, 82-71. Vermont had the lead over their taller opponents from beginning to end. Capt. Isles hit for 25 points in the first half, putting us ahead at halftime 47-34. Both Harry Zingg and Pete Beck played well, with Beck controlling the boards. Frank Giordano and Fred Robinson played well also. It was Robinson's first starting assignment, and he proved himself by scoring 12 points. Harry Zingg was good for 14, while Capt. Isles again led the pack with 25.

In Saturday's Kake Walk game, a large crowd saw the Catamounts roll over Clarkson 88-61. It was Coach Evans' 200th win, and after the game he gave credit to the team by saying, "These kids have been great playing one of the toughest schedules in the country." It was a romp all the way for UVM, as they led 17-6 after 5 minutes of play. After the first 10 minutes were up, the Catamounts led 45-25. During the 2nd half, we led by as much as 30 points. Frank Giordano scored 27 points, and Charlie Isles hit for 24. Isles again played expert ball.

The Catamounts posted an upset victory over the University of New Hampshire for their first Yankee Conference win, 77-67, on February 26. Harry Zingg sparked the team, racking up 14 of his 24 points in the second half. Ray Wiener and Frank Giordano added spark to the team also, by making good for 11 and 10, respectively. Captain Charlie Isles was out a large part of the 2nd half with 4 fouls, but while he was in action he played good defensive and offensive ball, scoring 21 points. It was "Fuzzy" Evans' 4th straight win, for his 201st.

In an inspired contest last Monday evening, "Fuzzy" Evans' Catamounts won their ninth game of the season by defeating strong favorite Massachusetts. This was the second Yankee Conference win for UVM, their first one being against UNH last week.

The game was a brilliant victory in more ways than one. First off, it was an excellent finale for three graduating seniors playing their last game. Captain Charlie Isles posted 17 points, Frank Giordano, Vermont's leading scorer for much of the season, scored 23, and Ray Wiener got 16. Secondly, it knocked the U.Mass Redmen completely out of contention for the Beanpot crown. Lastly, it gave Coach Evans' team a 9-11 final record - a bit better than pre-season reports would have indicated.

The contest was one of the roughest staged at Memorial Auditorium in quite a while. Nearly all of Vermont's starting lineup fouled out on what appeared to be poor calls on the part of the referees. The rest of the scoring was accounted for by Harry Zingg with 12, Pete Beck with 9 and Ray Kelsey with 8.

Toward the end of the contest, Charlie Isles fouled out and was given an ovation lasting nearly five minutes. Charlie, whose absence was quite evident early in the season when he was out with a broken finger, paced the Cats in their late-season surge and personally accounted for a good deal of their success.

Baseball Team Begins Practicing

by Doug Erskine

With the big winter weekend gone by and the basketball season drawing to a close, it is getting time to look forward to spring and the sports attractions on the UVM campus preceeded by the clicking of spikes, the solid smack of a baseball hitting the leather of a catcher's mitt, and the whir of the pitching machine in the cage as Coach Ralph Lapointe and his diamond men began drilling for the spring baseball campaign.

Coach Lapointe has been holding open tryouts since Monday, looking for candidates for the Catamount team. The cage was humming with activity as each candidate went through the paces.

The returning lettermen from last year's squad will be lead by centerfielder Gerry Cassidy, a senior from Hopkinton, Mass. Gerry, the top batsman from the previous season with a .375 batting average, is one of the squad's best all around ball players, and will co-captain the team. Along with Gerry we will find the other co-captain senior Charlie Isles from Jamacia, N.Y., dominating the shortstop position. Both Gerry and Charlie were regular starters with the '59 Lapointemen.

Other lettermen who saw limited action last year are: Joe Silvera from New Bedford, Mass., Bob Davis of Gloversville, N.Y., Reggie Godin of Sheldon, Vt., and Spike Jarrett from Burlington, Vermont. Silvera, a first baseman and utility outfielder, is the most likely candidate for the first base position, filling the gap left by hard-hitting Bill Simonds. Davis, last year's second string catcher behind Captain Don "Ace" Santa Croce, will be a candidate for that position. A man who was second in the hitting column and saw quite a bit of action as both infielder and outfielder is Reggie Godin, a good bet for a berth on the starting nine. Spike Jarrett, a strong pinch hitter, will also be in contention for the outfield.

Another man to watch will be Bill Federici of Port Chester, N.Y., a transfer student. Bill is both a strong defensive man as well as a good man with a bat.

The returning men will very likely be lead by a man from Cranford, N.J., Bob Hobbie, a left-handed pitcher from last year's squad with the lowest earned run average. Assisting Bob with the mound chores will be right handed Harry Zingg from Burlington, Vt., lefty Steve Cooper of Manchester, Conn., righty Dave Reissig from Proctor, Vt. Lefty Fred

Well, another basketball season has been written into the record books. As far as the Yankee Conference goes, it looks as though UConn will take home the beanpot and, one-time contender Massachusetts, the beans after their loss to underdog Vermont last Monday evening. Vermont ended the season with a 9-11 slate after upsetting the powerful Redmen 84-72.

The season was one of Coach Evans' poorest record-wise, but it was a season that brought home more victories than anyone expected earlier this year. Vermont took the floor an underdog in almost everyone of their encounters. At the beginning of the season, hardly anyone would have picked the Cats to win seven games, thereby giving Coach Evans his 200th win, but we were all mistaken as the Cats did it on the Saturday afternoon of Kake Walk, when they romped over an inept Clarkson team who gained a surprise upset over favored Vermont a year ago. Coach Evans should be commended on the fine job he did this year. Fuzzy certainly warrants the "Coach of the Year" award when all-state selections are made.

The season's record might have been a winning one had Capt. Charlie Isles been suited up for all games this year. Charlie missed the first three games with a broken finger. When Charlie returned to the lineup, he certainly gave the Cats the boost they needed, and as the season progressed, Charlie's play was just great. On Monday night, Isles received the biggest standing ovation heard in many years. He certainly deserved it and will be remembered as one of Vermont's greatest basketball players. Isles finished the season averaging over fifteen points per game, led the team in foul shooting and rebounding, aside from being Vermont's finest defensive player and best playmaker. What more can be expected of any player? It will be a terrible oversight if Charlie doesn't make All Yankee Conference and All-State, for he's as good if not better than any ballplayer we've seen all year.

With the baseball season just around the corner, Coach Lapointe has his boys working out in the cage. This year's team will be led by Co-Captains Gerry Cassidy and Charlie Isles. Isles is the slick-fielding shortstop with good speed and appears to be a fine major league prospect. Cassidy is Vermont's highly-touted centerfielder and another major league candidate. Gerry hit a fantastic .375 last season to lead the Cats and figures he can do even better this season.

BASKETBALL - - - - - - - -

A lot of credit should be given to the UVM Kittens, who recently ended a successful basketball season with an 8-4 record. Their wins were over Champlain College (65-42), Norwich (80-57; 77-65), Ethan Allen Air Force Base (77-56;96-39), Plattsburgh Air Force Base (74-60), and two against Middlebury. The Frosh were defeated by St. Mike's (80-79;99-59), and also twice by the Dartmouth frosh.

The big men for the Kittens have been Richie Ader and Benny Becton. Fred Willis, John Stahler, Jack Shabel, Paul Slayton, Micky Mait and Charlie Whitten are not to be forgotten for their fine performances either.

BASEBALL - - - - - - - -

With the close of the basketball season, all eyes are now focused on the big spring sport---baseball. "Fuzzy" Evans, who did a fine job of coaching the Varsity Basketball team, is the mentor of the frosh nine.

Due to a lack of facilities, the Varsity Baseball team, Track team, and frosh baseball team, and the men out for spring football are all supposed to practice in the cage. The only time available to the Kittens is between 6:30 and 8 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

Two names to watch are Ader and Cassani, both of whom are pitchers. Cassani was a 4-letter baseball man in high school, and Ader is the same man who was high scorer for the basketball team. Coach Evans expects from 40 to 50 men out for the team, but he will have to split them up due to the lack of space.

Two games are already scheduled with Randolph Agricultural Institute, two with Dartmouth, the same number with Norwich, and 2 more with St. Lawrence. At present, "Fuzzy" is trying to schedule two more games with teachers' colleges, but since they only play ten games in each league, things are a little crowded. Our first contest is expected to start on or about April 29.

Best of luck to a fine coach and to what I'm sure will turn out to be a good team!

UVM Receives Loan For New Dorms

By Barbara Dutton

The University of Vermont has received a $2,255,000 loan from the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. The sum will be used to erect new men's and women's dormitories. They are slated to be ready for occupation by the first semester of the 1961-62 school year for the women, and by the second semester of that year for the men.

Construction will begin at the end of April or the beginning of May, 1960. Freeman, French, and Freeman of Burlington are the architects. The style will be similar to, but not identical to that of Mason, Hamilton, and Simpson Halls, as it is not University policy to maintain a single architectural style on campus.

The men's dormitory will be erected at the corner of Williston Road and Spear Street, opposite the University farm. It will accommodate 419 students, and have dining facilities for 350. Upperclassmen, not freshmen, will probably receive preference for placement there. There will be three residence floors in one wing, and two floors on each of the other two wings. Thirty-five single rooms will be included.

The new women's dormitory will house 136 students, and will be built facing Mason, Hamilton, and Simpson Halls. There will be six single rooms. Both men's and women's dormitories will contain an elevator of a different type from those of the newer women's dormitories, but which will be used only for freight. Saunders and Claggett Houses will be closed when the new unit is opened.

In the (distant) future it is hoped that two more units for women students will be constructed, so that with the 1961 unit, there would be another unit similar to the 1957 Mason, Hamilton, and Simpson one. It is also hoped that nine more units for male students can be erected; that is three units, each equal to Mason, Hamilton, and Simpson.

At the present time, there is dormitory housing for 506 male students and 780 women; 343 men live in fraternity houses, and 161 women in sororities. There are 100 men and 132 women living at home. In addition, there are 837 male students and 22 women living in apartments and rented rooms. These students are expected to be partially in the new living units.

IFC Selects New Slate Of Officers

Last Tuesday, the Interfraternity Council announced the election of a full slate of officers for the coming year. Elected as President was Bob Goldman. Bob, a junior, hails from Port Chester, N.Y., and is a Pre-Medical student representing Phi Sigma Delta fraternity. The spot of Vice-President was filled by David Pallin. Dave is from Chelsea, Mass., and is an economics major representing Tau Epsilon Phi. The position of Secretary was filled by Grant Allen. Grant, a native of Walden, Mass., is an economics major and a member of Sigma Phi fraternity. Rounding out the slate is Stan Williams. Stan, the only Vermonter elected to office, is a native of Charlotte, is majoring in Political Science and is representing Sigma Nu fraternity.

The major purpose of the Interfraternity Council, according to Pres. Bob Goldman, is to encourage cooperation among the fraternities which enables them to function as an effective unit rather than fifteen separate parts. This past semester has seen a major step in that direction. The I.F.C. sponsored a Greek Week Program. The week which included various discussion groups as well as social functions, served as an opportunity for a closer interaction between the fraternities than had previously been prevalent. As in past years, the I.F.C. sponsored local drives as well as the regulating of intra-mural sports, fraternity rushing rules and the various social functions that dotted the UVM social calendar. The coming semester, I.F.C. in addition to the holding of social events, will be busy running the inter-fraternity track meet as well as the I.F.C. Sing.

Cosmopolitan Club Discusses Refugees

It has been determined that at least fifteen million persons in the world today are refugees of one sort or another, victims of war, persecution, or natural disaster. Of greatest concern are more than two and one half million "stateless" refugees, among whom are thousands of students. These students have had their studies interrupted and their courage rapidly shading into despaid.

The Cosmopolitan Club of UVM showed a film, "A Light Along The Way" at their last meeting. The film illustrated the cultures, traditions, and the history of Asian peoples. Above all, it emphasized the health, lodging, and living problems of refugees, who are students, living in India, Korea, and Hong Kong. Not only in South East Asia, but also in other parts of the world. These refugee students need help to continue their studies in order to become useful citizens in a free world.

Great credit must be given to the agencies working with refugees throughout the world. One of these agencies is the World University Service, whose clearly defined educational program has increased in importance in recent years. Most remarkable of its functions are the World University Service's funds, derived primarily from University communities, which it contributes each year toward school supplies and educational expenses of the refugee students.

This year has been designated by the United Nations for intensive emphasis on refugees everywhere. The fight against the overwhelming problems faced by the refugee students is the task of the World University Service in the international community of students and professors. For the rest of the semester, the Cosmopolitan Club is sponsoring a fund raising campaign, on behalf of the University of Vermont. Phi Mu Delta fraternity is supporting this program and the Cosmopolitan Club would like the support of other organizations on campus.

Summer Program Offered

A unique summer experience for college students, 18 to 23, is offered by the 15th annual Encampment for Citizenship -- a six week "workshop in democracy" held on both the East and West Coasts.

The encampment program is a combination of seminar, summer camp and adventure in summer relations. On the campuses of the University of California in Berkeley and the Fieldston School in New York City, students have the chance to live, study and play with alert young people from around the world, as well as from all sections of the United States -- representing diverse racial, religious, ethnic and economic backgrounds. Here faculty members from colleges and universities, living in the dormitories, provide the fullest opportunity for a free exchange of information, ideas and viewpoints, and the opportunity to learn to think independently.

Major areas of study include civil rights and civil liberties, international affairs, economics and practical techniques for civic and community action. Four major research studies of the Encampment program done by the Bureau of Applied Social Research at Columbia University indicate that the Encampment is "a rare and successful experiment in democratic education."

THIS 'N THAT

One of the problems of being here on the CYNIC is that we are often confronted with the problems of others. For instance, several days ago we received the following letters from troubled readers. Naturally we took pity and have tried to help by giving them some advice.

Dear Aunt Agatha

I am an extremely good-looking guy with loads of personality. I'm easy to get along with and fun to be with. Not only am I real sharp dresser, but I have a new Corvet. But, I just can't seem to get a date. Can you help me?

Aunt Agatha

Dear Aunt Agatha

My father died ten years ago when I was 14 years old. At that time, my mother said that I would have to be the man in the family then, and I started to work shining shoes. When I got a little older I decided that this was no job for a 17-year old, so I switched to delivering groceries. Well, now I'm 24 and I want to travel to New York and get a job, but ma still says that I'm the man of the family and that I should stay with her. Do you think that this is fair? After all, I'm a 24 year old woman with my own life to lead.

Dear Frustrated

I'd say you had a right to be. Your obligations as the man of the family stopped when you were born.

The Alpha Delts and their guests all enjoyed the music of the Theta Chi Quartet last Sunday at a desert hour.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

The Tri-Delts have welcomed back Marcia Bernhoff, '61, and Mary Prespare, '61, who were recently repledged.

On Monday, Feb. 29, the mother-daughter ceremony took place and each of the new pledges was given an upper classman to act as her sorority "mother" throughout the pledgeship.

engineers

and what they do at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft...

The field has never been broader
The challenge has never been greater

Engineers at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft today are concerned with the development of all forms of flight propulsion systems—air breathing, rocket, nuclear and other advanced types for propulsion in space. Many of these systems are so entirely new in concept that their design and development, and allied research programs, require technical personnel not previously associated with the development of aircraft engines. Where the company was once primarily interested in graduates with degrees in mechanical and aeronautical engineering, it now also requires men with degrees in electrical, chemical, and nuclear engineering, and in physics, chemistry, and metallurgy.

Included in a wide range of engineering activities open to technically trained graduates at all levels are these four basic fields:

ANALYTICAL ENGINEERING. Men engaged in this activity are concerned with fundamental investigations in the fields of science or engineering related to the conception of new products. They carry out detailed analyses of advanced flight and space systems and interpret results in terms of practical design applications. They provide basic information which is essential in determining the types of systems that have development potential.

DESIGN ENGINEERING. The prime requisite here is an active interest in the application of aerodynamics, thermodynamics, stress analysis, and principles of machine design to the creation of new flight propulsion systems. Men engaged in this activity at P&WA establish the specific performance and structural requirements of the new product and design it as a complete working mechanism.

EXPERIMENTAL ENGINEERING. Here men supervise and coordinate fabrication, assembly and laboratory testing of experimental apparatus, system components, and development engines. They devise test rigs and laboratory setups, specify instrumentation and direct execution of the actual test programs. Responsibility in this phase of the development program also includes analysis of test data, reporting of results and recommendations for future effort.

MATERIALS ENGINEERING. Men active in this field at P&WA investigate metals, alloys and other materials under various environmental conditions to determine their usefulness as applied to advanced flight propulsion systems. They devise material testing methods and design special test equipment. They are also responsible for the determination of new fabrication techniques and causes of failures or manufacturing difficulties.

Frequent informal discussions among analytical engineers assure continuous exchange of ideas on related research projects.

Paint and Pledges was the order of the week at the Marble Palace, as the newly-initiated members took to the dining room in old clothes. With a little scraping here and there, adding a thin coat of paint over all, the pledges really brightened up the most popular room in the house! Pledge Si Green also received money and an "OK" from the brothers to install a high fidelity system that will bring many pleasing sounds to the party rooms in the basement, the newly redecorated dining area, and the living room. The pledges are really doing a great job of "shaping up" Phi Delt!

Alpha Chi Omega and Pi Beta Phi pledges held their teas on February 27th and March 6th, respectively. The Kappa Alpha Theta and the Gamma Phi Beta pledges have planned theirs for Mrach 13th. Alpha Delta Pi will hold their tea on March 20th. Delta, Delta, Delta and Alpha Epsilon Phi have, as of now, not set a definite date for theirs.

One needn't be a sorority girl to attend these functions. Everyone is invited and urged to come.

Editorial:

DISCRIMINATION

Discrimination is a problem which has plagued the pursuit of true freedom and democracy throughout history. It is similar to a disease in many ways. Both discrimination and disease attack without reason or rationality. They flourish when no preventative measures are taken and continue to flourish when no treatment is administered. Discrimination is a critical malignancy which attacks the vital organs of freedom.

In order for us to rid ourselves of this disease, we must strive to prevent it and we must try to overcome it when it arises. However, before discrimination can be treated, it must be diagnosed.

Diagnosis - Is There Discrimination?

It is generally believed that the episodes of discrimination, which are made known, to the public, are isolated incidents caused by "crackpots". These "incidents", however, are actually manifestations of the bigotries and prejudices which really exist, but which our complacent minds refuse to acknowledge.

Discrimination is an every day occurrence at UVM, as it is elsewhere, but it requires an incident of major importance to make us aware of this fact. Thus, when Tau Epsilon Phi, a fraternity on our campus, received a violent, anti-semitic letter in the mail, the immediate reaction was that of anger and indignation. Nevertheless, a few weeks of almost complete silence on the part of the administration and the student body about this subject, seems to have been sufficient to revert us to our customary indifferent attitude. (See Highlights, page five)

How We Can Fight Discrimination

The complacent and apathetic atmosphere which prevails in America today will not destroy discrimination and prejudice; a vigorous war must be fought. It must be waged from the pages of the CYNIC to the pages of The Congressional Record; from our elected representatives and from our educators; but, most important, it must be waged by the INDIVIDUAL!

How often do we hear slanderous remarks directed at minority groups? Do we question the validity of these statements? Then, do we censure the slanderer? There are very few of us who do speak against the bigots, who spread their doctrines based upon falsehoods, prejudices, and above all, ignorance. We, as individuals, can do something about discrimination. It is the duty of every American citizen to fight an open and active campaign against discrimination to preserve the inalienable rights given to all men in our constitution.

The fight against discrimination is not as difficult as it may seem. The majority of the people are concerned with truth, equity, and most important, the preservation of human rights. It only remains for these people to make themselves heard above the cries of the bigots and the protective adjectives of those who do not recognize this threat to society.

Letters To The Editor:

Disease

Letter to the Editor:

Editing a school newspaper is a laborious task that requires the coordination of a large group of interested personnel. The main objective of this group should be presenting an accurate account of campus events and activities, presenting a means of communication between the administration and students. If a newspaper can do this, it can be used as a tool for creating competition and increasing school spirit. If competition is the basis of improvement, a school can greatly benefit from a paper that performs these functions. In order to obtain these objectives, the reporter of the newspaper must cover all the important events on campus and make sure that the news is written properly.

Since I have been at UVM, the CYNIC has not managed to achieve any of the goals mentioned above. Some of the important news of the University, such as the dedication of the Medical Alumni building (There was a picture of President Fey speaking at the dedication, but no story), has failed to reach the pages of our school newspaper. Often news that has been covered has been improperly written. Many important details have been left out of some stories. For example, the story covering Kake Walk, the winners of the Walk the second night, and the winners of the sorority snow sculpture were not mentioned. There have been many grammatical errors, misspellings and even a few misquotes. The layout of The CYNIC has not been too good; the sports page is inadequate and there are too many advertisements. Our paper does not serve as a means of communication between the administration and students.

In many cases, stories of little importance have been put on the front page while more important ones have been buried somewhere within the covers. In the March 3 edition, the column "Highlights" by Edson Darer was written on page three and continued on page six. I had a difficult time locating the continuation because it had no heading. In the same edition the story of the presentation of a recent play was found on page two while the pictures that accompanied the story were found on pages seven and eight.

The articles on sports have been glorifying our opponents more than our own teams. In a few cases, CYNIC reporters have been unjustly critical of our heroes. Our athletes do the best they can to maintain their grades and to bring glory to their school. It is only proper that our newspaper give them good clippings for their scrapbooks, as a reward for their gallant efforts. Certain important activities receive absolutely too little publicity. Do you know anything about the debate team or the rifle team?

This year's CYNIC has been a poor credit to UVM. When people of the world see that a school publishes a poor newspaper, imagine what they think of that school?

I sincerely hope that you and your new staff will do your best to present us students with an accurate account of campus events and begin to serve as a means of communication between the administration and the student.

Good Luck.

Cure

To the Editor,

There is only one way to cure an illness and that is to get competent "doctors" who will diagnose the case and prescribe the right treatment. The CYNIC has been criticized as being an organization which does not live up to its purpose. It has been criticized by students and faculty members for its poor grammar and lack of newsworthy material. In a word the CYNIC has been diagnosed as ill.

Last week it was stated in the CYNIC that I was a journalism major. How could I possibly be a journalism major when the University offers only one course in journalism? We on the CYNIC need a "doctor" with a prescription to cure out ills. In short we need more journalism courses and journalists to teach these courses.

We ask the students and faculty to recognize our illness and to help us cure it. Only when we have more courses in journalism will the CYNIC be a better paper.

The school is growing in every way. We are building new dorms and a new gym and in the years to come more students will study here.

The demand for good journalists is increasing and so is the interest in the field. We on the paper have a responsibility, but so have you.

Give us journalism courses and journalists and we will give you a NEWSPAPER.

Sincerely,
Sandy Schindlinger
Assistant Editor

UVM Economist Named Consultant

A University of Vermont economist has been named as a consultant for a special Operations Research Project sponsored by the American University in Washington, D.C., and under contract with the U.S. Army. The overall purpose of the project is to explore means of developing effective communications between different cultures and nations.

Dr. A.M. Huq, assistant professor of economics at UVM, was named to the project as a consultant on operations in Pakistan and in neighboring countries.

Dr. Huq was born in East Pakistan and educated at the Presidency College in Calcutta, at Dacca University in East Pakistan, where he received a B.A. degree with honors first class, and at Harvard, where he received an A.M. and a Ph.D. degree. Dr. Huq taught at Rajshahi University, Pakistan, in 1954-55, during this time he represented the institution at the Pakistan Economic Conference. He served as Economics Affairs Officer on a U.N. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East in 1955-56, after which he joined the UVM faculty. Dr. Huq is the author of a number of articles resulting from his U.N. work.

By ROGER ZIMMERMAN

On February 25, 1960, at 4:30 P.M., a man was led from his sixth floor cell of San Quentin's Death Row to a ground floor cell called the "ready room". That man was author, legal wit, and convict, Caryl Chessman. Chessman was a doomed man-at least he thought he was. His execution was to take place at 10:00 A.M. the next day. A dramatic reprieve, granted by California governor, Edmund G. Brown, saved Chessman from San Quentin's green colored gas chamber. Caryl Chessman was given sixty more days of precious life.

The use of capital punishment has been a hotly-debated issue for many years in the past. The Chessman case has put a new spark into the situation. A wave of international concern over Chessman's fate was touched off last week. Political implications abound everywhere. Chessman stands in the center of a tumult which involves important issues of democratic justice.

Much of the world views Chessman as a man who has spent eleven years of his life enduring inhuman punishment. He has faced death eight times; he has cheated the gas chamber on all eight occasions. His recent reprieve, however, has put many of the nation's top lawmakers in a precarious position. Newsweek Magazine ably summed up the situation in these words: "Was it now accepted policy to make the punishment fit the times?" What prompted Newsweek to say that was simply this: a "message" was issued from the U.S. State Department; shortly afterwards came Governor Brown's moving decision to give Chessman a life-giving reprieve. Federal intervention had been employed. The State Department's so-called message was a warning telegram informing Governor Brown that Chessman's execution could possibly set off anti-American demonstrations during President Eisenhower's Latin American tour.

Shortly after Governor Brown's decision was made known, the Senatorial chambers rang with denounciations on the part of Democratic Senator J. William Fulbright. The London Times had this to say: "Such external considerations are highly damaging to the repute of the law."

Apart from international considerations and the right or wrong of federal intervention, the question of Chessman's fate looms as the main of the issue. Since his 1948 conviction for kidnapping (a capital offense in crimes of sexual perversion) Chessman has mastered several law courses and has written a successful novel. Partly because of faulty court proceedings in his trial (the court stenographer was reported to have been drunk during one session), Chessman's guilt has been doubted by many from the beginning. Be that as it may, Chessman has more than paid his debt to society. In 1948, Chessman was little more than a punk with a distorted mind. Although he is not the same man today he was twelve years ago, by his own admission he doesn't know whether he has completely changed. However, his record of accomplishments while in prison is nothing short than phenomenal. His novel was a best seller; many of his short articles have been regarded as brilliant moral documents arguing for the abolishment of capital punishment. His talent for interpreting the law is unsurpassed by few lawyers. Is this the type of man that should be executed? Why should "an eye for an eye justice" be applied to the Chessman case, or any other case? What possible good could be extracted from Caryl Chessman's execution?

Chessman is scheduled to make his ninth trip to the gas chamber on May 2nd. He fears it will be his last.

Last year, an attempt to unify school spirit was made by having a "Bermuda Shorts" day. Perhaps this also would be wasted effort, but if you are indignant about the results of the Chessman case, why not write a letter expressing your indignation to Governor Brown. Better still, talk it over with friends; then, if a common opinion is reached, write a collective letter. Public opinion could definitely be a deciding factor in saving Chessman from the gas chamber.

AS I SEE IT DEPT.

Speaking of writing letters, I was told earlier in the week to expect a letter informing me of what's wrong with the CYNIC. I'm still waiting. You know, these people who are always writing letters remind me of the village idiot who builds his castles in the sky.

Why just the other day, a fellow student told me that he had made quite an evaluative study of CYNIC policies, etc. Of course he's not on the CYNIC, and didn't know what he was talking about, but he damn sure felt he knew exactly what was wrong with the CYNIC. For instance, he told me how inefficient the CYNIC photography staff was. To be very frank, I probably would have been inclined to agree with him; there's only one trouble, The CYNIC has no photography staff.

I call your attention to last week's CYNIC. A young lady wrote a letter to the editor expressing her opinion about a certain matter. That letter said something, and she had the gumption and self-respect to sign it.

I'm inviting criticism. I'd really like to see what all these "I'm always going to write a letter" kids can do! I'm interested in hearing ideas to improve the CYNIC. As a matter of fact, I think the Senior Staff and myself would be interested in any letter that was sent to the editor.

Highlights

By EDSON DARER

Good afternoon. About two months ago, all throughout the world there were instances that led one to believe a new wave of anti-semitism was imminent. Even at a small New England state university there were signs of this danger. At UVM, our own beloved university, a swastika was painted on the statue of Ira Allen, and one of the fraternities on campus received a deplorable and humiliating letter, that defiled the Jewish race. The reason I never wrote about this before is because this sort of material is real newspaper bait. It gets big plays in all newspapers. Recently, I've heard of things that were occuring as a result and I feel that I should tell about them.

FBI CALLED IN

The letter was turned over to the advisor of the fraternity and he in turn, showed it to the proper University authorities. The incident became publicized when the newspapers and radio stations were given information about the letter. The FBI was called in to investigate. Their investigation turned up nothing and when the people who wrote the letter heard that the FBI was on the case, they panicked, and confessed. The FBI said that no law had been violated, so they could take no action. It has always been my belief that it is illegal to send threatening notes through the U.S. Mail. I guess I'm wrong though.

ACTION TAKEN

The University had three courses of action to pursue. One, immediate expulsion. Two, suspension. Three, University probation. Before it was determined that University students had any part in the incident, President Fey came out with a statement. "It is the typical crackpot letter you'd expect a mentally unbalanced person to write." He also said that he was sure it had not been written by a UVM student. Dean Clifford also said that it was not an internal matter. This just goes to show how wrong someone can be. When the STUDENTS finally confessed, the administration went into high gear to hush up the incident. The students were put on University probation and that was that. It was felt that ridding the school of these miserable creatures would accomplish nothing. Their parents were consulted and it was agreed that the boys would be put under the observation of a psychiatrist. I think that this is too good for them.

ACTION TAKEN, RIDICULOUS!!!

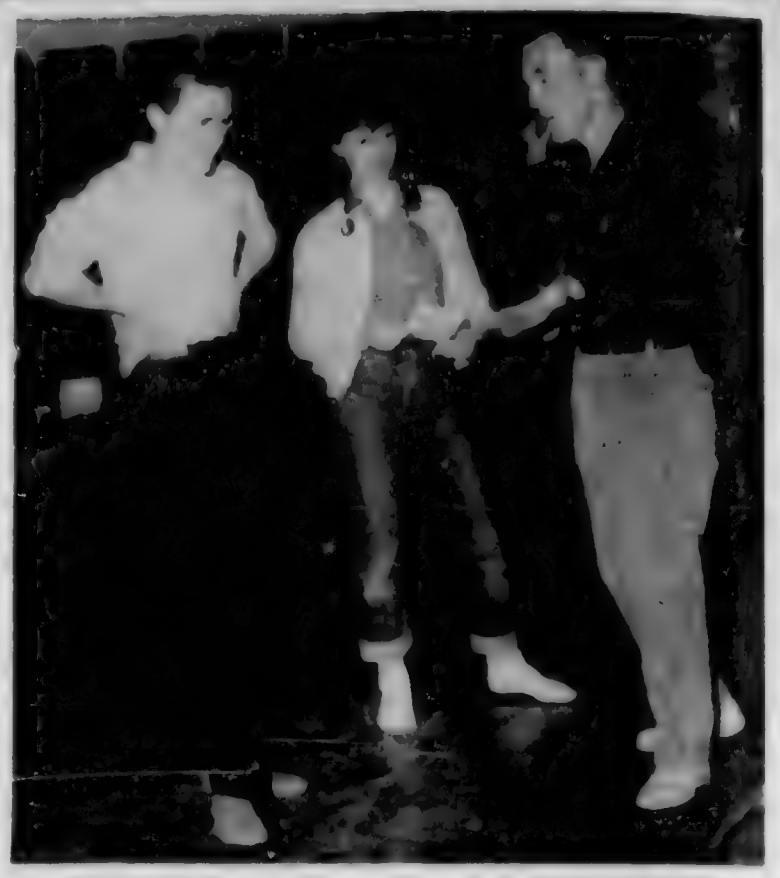
I can't see why the whole matter was hushed up so. It seems to me that the only way the University could have solved this problem was to throw these boys out once and for all. Every year, an example has to be made of someone who gets caught drinking, or for stealing light bulbs from the Christmas tree. These might be reasons for putting someone on University probation. A freshman gets put on probation for renting a car or for playing penny ante poker in the dorms. These seem silly enough. But, when something like this happens and the culprits are only put on probation, maybe some other people around here need some psychiatric attention.

ALUMNI TAKE ACTION

Since this incident, some of our alumni have become quite perturbed and rightly so. They had written letters to the administration and letters to the newspapers in town and none of these got any attention. It seems that the University put the pressure on these newspapers and told them that they wanted none of this in the papers. It might tend to spoil the name of the school. Yes sir, like payola, I like the freedom of the press. Our alumni have withdrawn large sums of money they had pledged because of this. Why should we suffer because of the stupid antics of three, now two, "mentally unbalanced" people. One, we are rid of. He went the way of all poor students. (flunked out) It is my humble opinion that we should rid ourselves of the other two also.

Why should the students who had nothing to do with this have to wait longer for a new gym or a new library because vital funds are being withdrawn? Why should students have to watch one of these boys getting reprimanded for marching the "goose step" in ROTC drill? They won't make it through school anyway, because many teachers have refused to allow them to enroll in their respective classes. Congratulations to these teachers. I hope their colleagues take an example from them. We should not even be forced to look at these scourges of the world. THROW THEM OUT!!!

University Players Will Present "Carmen"



The grand opera "Carmen" is being presented at the Arena Theatre by the University Players on March 18, 19, 24 and 26th. The dates are split so the singers will not have to put too much strain on their vocal cords by having to sing every night. Note that the second show is on the 24th and 26th.

The opera itself, written by Bizet, is based on a 19th century novel by Prosper Mariree. A broad sketch of the plot is as follows: Carmen, a gypsy "femme fatale", meets an inexperienced soldier named Don Jose. She has a fight in a cigarette factory where she works and Don Jose has to cart her off to jail. In her wily way, she convinces him to let her escape, and for this he is thrown in the brig. When he is released he goes A.W.O.L. and Carmen convinces him to join her with a band of smugglers. Carmen is very fickle and when she meets Escamillo, a toreador, she tells Don Jose to be gone. Don Jose is ashamed of himself and finally kills the gypsy Carmen.

The production being put on here is an English translation which was copyrighted in 1958. Mr. Falls, who is directing, stated that he hoped to entice the students to attend this production, so as to show that not all operas are archaic, dry and uninterpretable.

The costumes are rented from Philadelphia at a cost of $700 and the setting is elaborate. Variety has listed the top ten shows in Paris and Carmen was at the top.

Prof. Wives To Meet Students

Faculty wives, especially the ones who migrated to UVM from smaller colleges, now and then confess that it's not easy to meet the students. On March 14 at Continental Holiday, Home Arts fashion show, which will start at 8 P.M., they not only will be surrounded by them, but apparently are looking forward to it.

To help create the Spanish atmosphere, Dance Workshop students Andy Bailey, Sue Ralston and Carol Shapiro will give a preview of the dance from Carmen. The three campus queens and a sophomore faculty daughter will be models. Fourteen student hostesses have volunteered to help welcome and serve the 250 guests and backstage workers, and others are going to lend a hand with music, lighting, and properties. At the end of the evening eight R.O.T.C. cadets, will raise borrowed swords to climax the fashion show with a military wedding abroad.

Tickets may be ordered from Mrs. Thomas Dowe, UN 2-1801, and unclaimed reservations will also be available fifteen minutes before the start of the show.

EAT, DRINK AND BE MARRIED

On a recent tour of seventy million American colleges, I was struck by two outstanding facts: first, the great number of students who smoke Marlboro, and second, the great number of students who are married.

The first phenomenon—the vast multitude of Marlboro smokers—comes as no surprise to us, as everyone knows, the college student is an enormously intelligent organism, and what could be more intelligent than to smoke Marlboro? After all, pleasure is what you smoke for and pleasure is what Marlboro delivers—pleasure in every puff of that good golden tobacco. If you think flavor went out when filters came in—try a Marlboro. Light up and see for yourself. Or, if you like, don't light up. Just take a Marlboro, unlighted, and puff a couple of times. Get that wonderful flavor? You bet you do! Even without lighting you can taste Marlboro's excellent filter blend. Also you can make your package last practically forever.

No, I say, it was not the great number of Marlboro smokers that astounded me—it was the great number of married students. You may find this hard to believe but latest statistics show that at some coeducational colleges the proportion of married undergraduates runs as high as thirty percent! And, what is even more startling, fully one-quarter of these marriages have been blessed with issue!

Here now is a figure to give you pause! Not that we don't all love babies. Of course we do! Babies are pink and fetching rascals given to winsome noises and droll expressions, and we all like nothing better than to rain kisses on their soft little skulls. But just the same, to the young campus couple who are parents for the first time the baby is likely to be a source of considerable worry. Therefore, let me devote today's column to a few helpful hints on the care of babies.

First of all, we will take up the matter of diet. In the past, babies were raised largely on table scraps. This, however, was outlawed by the Smoot-Hawley Act, and today babies are fed a scientific formula consisting of dextrose, maltose, distilled water, evaporated milk and a twist of lemon peel.

After eating, the baby tends to grow sleepy. A lullaby is very useful to help it fall asleep. In case you don't know any lullabies, make one up. This is not at all difficult. In a lullaby the words are unimportant since the baby doesn't understand them anyhow. The important thing is the sound. All you have to do is string together a bunch of nonsense syllables, taking care that they make an agreeable sound. For example:

Go to sleep, my little infant,
Googoo woo-woo poo-poo hoo-hoo.

Having fed and serenaded the baby, arrange it in the position for sleeping. A baby sleeps best on its stomach, so place it that way in its crib. Then to make sure it will not turn itself over during the night lay a soft but fairly heavy object on its back—another baby, for instance.

And when baby is fast asleep—the little angel!—why don't you relax and give yourself a treat? With Marlboro—or if you like mildness but you don't like filters—with Philip Morris, made in long size and regular by the sponsors of this column.

The lack of a good jumping area has kept UVM from sponsoring its own ski meets, such as Dartmouth's, Middlebury's, St. Lawrence's, and Norwich's.

The object of the search is the Teardrop area on the west side of Mt. Masnfield. The development of this area would provide UVM with a good training area close enough to its campus to permit afternoon training. Buckley suggested that a U.S. Olympic skier be hired as a team adviser, and predicted the benefits might help a lot in building up interest in Vermont. Pointing out that many state universities receive state subsidies for athletics, Coach Miller opinioned: "Such an approach might have a great deal of merit for a recreation state like Vermont."

Enough said. Let's see what's going to be done about it now!

The overall team average for matches was 1388.2, showing considerable improvement over the past few seasons.

Also the record of three wins and four losses is a jump over those of recent years. The team broke the 1400 mark three times during the course of the season which represents a major accomplishment. The second place finish in the NRA sectional and the win over Maine were the high points for the team. Much credit is due to coach M/Sgt Joel Surrell whose time and energy did much to bring this team so far.

Summer Program

industry and community organizations located in New York and San Francisco supplement the lectures, workshops and discussion groups. There is also a varied recreation program which makes use of the rich cultural and recreational resources of these cities --- as well as daily on-campus activities that include all summer sports, dances, community sings, etc.

Each Encampment unit houses 100 students. The sessions will run from June 26 to August 6, 1960. The fee for tuition, room and board is $350. Some financial assistance is available to students unable to meet the costs.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is honorary chairman of the Encampment for Citizenship. Saul D. Lesser is executive director, Algernon D. Black, education director. Information and applications may be obtained by writing to the national office, ENCAMPMENT FOR CITIZENSHIP, 2 West 64th Street, New York City 23.

Prospects For Postmen Look Bright

by Dave Erskine

After previewing the prospects and outlooks for the 1956 baseball team, perhaps it is time to turn into our other spring sports attraction — the University of Vermont's track squad.

This year, as in many previous years, the squad will be piloted by Coach Archie Post. Mr. Post and his track and cross-country teams have in previous years turned out some of the finest records in the Vermont sports record books. A well-known figure in the coaching realms throughout New England, Coach Post will be putting his 1956 track squad through their paces and giving his cindermen sage advice in the forthcoming weeks.

The squad will be captained by a junior, Joe Barry. Joe, who is competing in his last year of eligibility, is the first and man in the pole vault and also competes in the high hurdles and high jump. His versatility has helped the squad tremendously, and can be illustrated by his placing in the low hurdles at last year's State meet, an event in which he had never competed in.

Other returning lettermen will be: sprinters — John Hester and Ray Green; distance runners — Norm Picard, number one two-miler, Fred Knudsen, number one miler, Dan Mosman, Jack Sweeney, Dave Burroughs, and Frank Harrington; Middle distance — Howie Cutts (quarter and half mile), John Fiddler (half mile), and Bob Duryea (quarter mile); hurdles — Art Levinson (low), Ron Bouchard (high), and Charlie Tetreault (high and high jump); hammer-throw — Jack Wrigley, Dave Shultz, and Gordon Spring; shot and discus throw — Jim Willard and Fred Van Hunnik; javelin — Dave Bowers.

Sophomores up from the freshman team, that show promise are: Tom Apps, pole vault; Bill Beaudiels, javelin and discus; Royce Pollard, shot, discus and hammer throw; Reed Humphreys, low hurdles; Gary Green, high hurdles, high jump and javelin; Walt Kilg, broad jump and sprints; Al McLean, hurdles; Hugh Spafford, distance; Wendle Carr, Mile; and John Mills, javelin.

Newcomers, who were not out for the squad last year and show some promise for this year are: Frank Brown, javelin and discus; Carl Eck, hammer throw; and Bill Perkins, mile and two mile run.

With the opening meet with Bowdoin on April 23, Coach Post is avidly working his men into shape. Coach Post feels that lack of balance and depth in any one position is going to be a big disadvantage this year. Should any one of the key men be hurt, the squad could be in bad shape. The big loss for Coach Post was Ron Bouchard, high jumper, broad jumper, and hurdleman. However, this year's squad is a veteran one and if a normal course of events is followed an improvement is expected over last year's team.

Ski Team Places At Winter Carnivals

by Ray Stanton

On February 20, Captain Danny Mosman of the Catamount Ski Team placed first in the cross-country division of the St. Lawrence Carnival, for our first major 1st place of the year. One week later, on the 27th, the UVM Skiers placed 4th at the Middlebury Winter Carnival. Although we didn't take any places in the jumping division, the skiers made a good showing against the best ski schools in the east. Middlebury came in first, followed closely by Dartmouth. The University of New Hampshire came in third, just edging out UVM by a few points.

At the Norwich Winter Carnival Friday and Saturday, the Middlebury Panthers edged out Dartmouth by .3 of a point, in what is believed to be the closest decision in skiing history, 581.5 to 581.2. Williams placed third, with Vermont coming in 4th, ahead of Norwich, Maine, Harvard, New Hampshire, and RPI.

This is the third year that the Ski Team is under the able tutelage of Sam Miller. Miller said that, "The lack of a good jumping area has kept the University from sponsoring its own ski meets. Needless to say, be added, the University of New Hampshire and the state universities of other states don't have such limitations on their programs." Although agreeing with former State Senator Buckley that a winning Vermont ski team would be of publicity value to the state, Miller warned that favorable publicity must remain strictly a "side benefit" of any intercollegiate program. "The primary purpose of the University's ski program is to provide healthy, amateur competition, and thoughts of increased tourist dollars mustn't tempt us into losing sight of this," he said.

Good UVM Ski Team Would Be Good Publicity For Vermont

University of Vermont ski coach Sam Miller has endorsed suggestions made by former State Senator T. Garry Buckley, who said Tuesday that a crack UVM ski team would be good publicity for Vermont.

Miller, who is also Executive Secretary of the Vermont Democratic Party, agreed with Republican Buckley that the UVM ski team could stand a boost of some sort, and called the University's greatest ski needs "money and a 40 meter jumping hill."

"The lack of a good jumping area has kept the University from sponsoring its own ski meets," Miller said. "Needless to say, the University of New Hampshire and the state universities of other skiing states don't have such limitations on their programs."

The UVM coach called the suggested development of the Teardrop area on the west side of Mt. Mansfield "a great idea," and said that such a development would provide UVM with a good training area close enough to its campus to permit afternoon training.

Buckley, speaking Tuesday before the St. Albans Rotary Club, suggested that the state subsidize the University in shaping up a crack ski team to help advertise Vermont's winter attractions.

He went on to suggest that a U. S. Olympic skier be hired as a team adviser, and predicted that the benefits from such a small state investment in this area might help a lot in building up interest in Vermont's recreational attractions.

Although agreeing with Buckley that a winning Vermont ski team would be of publicity value to the state, Miller warned that favorable publicity must remain strictly a "side benefit" of any intercollegiate program.

"The primary purpose of the University's ski program is to provide healthy, amateur competition, and thoughts of increased tourist dollars mustn't tempt us into losing sight of this," he said.

Commenting on Buckley's suggestion that the state assist UVM in hiring an Olympic adviser, Miller said "there is no doubt that such an adviser would help the team tremendously. My nomination would go to Vermont's own Larry Damon, who has represented the U.S. in the last two Winter Olympics."

Pointing out that many state universities receive state subsidies for athletics, Miller opinioned: "Such an approach might have a great deal of merit for a recreation state like Vermont."

Chad's Chatter

by J. D. Chadwick

The subject matter of this week's column will deal with spirit at athletic events. The idea for this topic came to my attention in a letter to the Cynic last week. Unfortunately, the letter itself has very little value, for the person who wrote it failed to sign his name to it. It reads as follows: "To the spirit of UVM at games, I have just come back from the UVM-New Hampshire basketball game, and I'm disgusted. Just what do you call spirit? Is it yelling at the opposing team every time it makes a basket? Is it booing the "ref's" decisions? Is it annoying the "ref" to the point that he stares over his shoulder in your direction? You don't seem to realize that the other team deserves a fair chance. All you want are points and decisions for UVM.

Let's grow up. We are adults and must act accordingly. Tonight we acted like children, though children would never use the language heard at the game. I am ashamed that a part of UVM acted in this manner. Aren't you?"

— A spectator.

No, I am not. Spirit is certainly something that is lacking on this campus. I might go as far as to say that UVM might be one of the most spiritless institutions in the country. The students who attend home games regularly should be commended, for a large crowd gives the home team a big boost.

Booing refs' decisions and yelling at players of opposing teams is commonplace among American spectator sports. If you are a loyal fan of a team, you will undoubtedly get keyed up over your team and do nearly anything within reason to aid its cause. Concerning the statement that the visiting team having a fair chance, the letter writer failed to note the fact that when a game starts, both teams start off even. As the game progresses, certain physical and psychological happenings take place. The home team should always have the psychological advantage because of favorable crowds, and this is something Vermont seldom has. As far as physical handicaps are concerned, UVM is usually at a disadvantage due to lack of height. If you happen to have read any downtown papers during the basketball season, you'll undoubtedly recall that Vermont took the floor the underdog in nearly all of their tilts this season. Why shouldn't a spectator do as he pleases? How do you think the crowds act when Vermont is the visitor? The shoe is on the other foot and I doubt that the fans remain quiet with their hands folded.

I hope that the spectator who wrote the above letter did not attend the UVM-UMass game because I imagine that he would have been shocked. The reasonably small crowd that attended this last game of the season provided more noise than at any other game in the year. The auditorium was filled with "boos" and "yeas" and just about everything else you can imagine, all of which undoubtedly added a great psychological lift to the Cat cause. Apparently out of the contest at halftime, the Cats roared back to win going away.

If you've been keeping your eyes on the opposing coaches, you've certainly seen some wild ones. To mention just a few, New Hampshire's and Massachusetts' certainly were quite outspoken. It can be easily noticed that Coach "Fuzzy" Evans does less complaining than any of the coaches we've seen this year. In the Mass game, the mild mannered Fuzzy could take no more and was forced to confer with the refs over a couple of pretty poor calls. The crowd let him know that they were behind him which in turn instilled the victory spirit in the Cats.

Anyone who can muster up spirit should be commended, and it was good to see this spirit reach its peak in the Mass game. Keep it up! I'm sure Coach Lapointe will welcome any help the fans can give him from the bleachers.

Rifle Team Has Good Season

The University of Vermont Varsity Rifle Team completed one of the most successful seasons in recent years last weekend by finishing second in the NECRL Northern Group Shoot. The season opened on a rather unhappy note as New Hampshire dropped the Cat shooters by a score of 1414 to 1381. UVM started the year with only three men back from last year's varsity. The other seven positions were filled by sophomores and transfer students and it was feared that the lack of experience would hurt the team. However the men worked hard in practice and were awarded with a victory over Maine's Yankee Conference Champions, the match being decided by a 6 point standing advantage for UVM after a 1397 to 1397 tie.

The team hit its high point peak the following week as it lost a tight road match to MIT 1408 to 1405. Following this heartbreaker Bowdoin was crushed by a 1401 to 1383 count. Norwich's NECRL champions then invaded the Vermont range and handed the home team a 1411 to 1391 defeat. At the Yankee Conference match UVM placed fourth with a poor 1377 score as Maine successfully defended its title. A 1390 to 1372 loss to Dartmouth was followed by a 1372 to 1363 victory over a weak St. Michael's team.

Vermont pulled a big upset by placing second in the National Rifle Association Intercollegiate Match held at Norwich. This finish broke up a Norwich monopoly on the NRA match and was the highlight of the season. Inspired by this effort the UVM shooters journeyed to UNH for the NECRL shoot and placed second with a 1400, closing out the season.

Team captain Ron Brand finished the season with the high average 282.4, followed by

"Arsenic And Old Lace" To Be Presented

The University players are well on their way again. Yes, "Arsenic and Old Lace," will be performed in the Arena Theater in the Round, April ... and tentatively on another date. The play will be under the able direction of David Watson, a senior, who hails from Burlington, Vermont. Dave is a Speech major and a English minor with plans of going into the Navy in the near future.

The play is a hilarious comedy which takes place in that "never never land," of Brooklyn. Two spinsters, Abby and Martha, live an eccentric life together and succeed in ... off thirteen men which they conveniently pile up in the basement. Mortimer, a theater critic and Elaine, his fiancee become suspicious and eventually become entangled in the sordid mess. Jonathan, a long lost brother who has had the unusual experience of having had his face altered, adds much mysteriousness and excitement to the play. Along the same line, Teddy, a fanatic who believes himself to be a Teddy Roosevelt, provides a great deal of comedy when he blasts away at every used word, "Charge."

All in all, the characters are unique in personality and provide much laughter to a very good play.

The cast includes:

Teddy	Jules Older
Jonathan	Fred LaBelle
Dr. Einstein	Bryant Reynolds
Abby	Judy Mandell
Martha	Debbie Godwin
Dr. Harper	Bruce Beck

Simmons Lectures On Pasternak

"Boris Pasternak and the crisis in Soviet Literature" was the topic of an excellent lecture by Dr. Earnest J. Simmons of Columbia University in Waterman Lounge Tuesday evening. Dr. Simmons was sponsored by the Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa's visiting scholar plan.

Professor Bogorad of the English department introduced Dr. Simmons to an audience of about 150. Dr. Simmons first stated that Pasternak was the tragic result of the Soviet literature crisis, and then gave a detailed picture of Soviet literature during the postwar period. He stressed atherence to party regulation imposed on literature during that period. He gave amusing translations from several noted Russian authors, using books that had won the Stalin prize for literature: Bright Shore, Golden Prague, and others. Deification of Stalin, emphasis on production quotas to the point of ridiculousness, and the reduction of conflict or plot were discussed.

Dr. Simmons then spoke on Pasternak himself, whom he had met personally; what type of man he is, and his place in Soviet literature before the publication of Doctor Zhivago. He stressed that Pasternak was offered the Nobel Prize for literature for earlier works. Doctor Zhivago is the first novel of a man who is primarily a poet, and Dr. Simmons contends that it is, in places, "sloppy", "deficient in the reality of its characters", and uses "excessive coincidence."

Congratulations !

The CYNIC staff would like to extend its congratulations on behalf of the entire student body to Dean Clifford on the occasion on the birth of his daughter.

Blood Drive

Once again, Key and Serpent, the Senior men's honorary society, is sponsoring the annual blood drive. Jerry Edelstein, chairman of the drive, announced that the date is set for March 28, between 10:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. The place will be Waterman Lounge.

The blood that is collected will be contributed to the Vermont-New Hampshire Blood Center. Although it will be available to everyone in the Burlington area, UVM students will be able to obtain it free of charge.

All prospective donors must sign a preliminary card. If they are over 21 years of age the cards merely require a signature. Those under 21, however, must have their parents' permission. In any case, the cards may be picked up at any sorority or fraternity, or in the COSA office.

This drive was originally established in 1950. Last year the quota was 150 pints. 193 were finally donated. This year, the quota again stands at 150. Jerry expressed his hope that the students will maintain, and, if possible, better this total.

Ed. And Nursing Dean's List

Eighty-five UVM students have been named to Dean's List honors for the fall semester in the College of Education and Nursing.

Top honors went to Dorothy Isham, '60, with an average of above 95%.

Taking second honors with an average of 92.5%-94.9% were: Nancy Nason, '61, and Arlene D. Shutts, '63.

In the Class of 1961 as follows: *Nancy L. Arnold, *Linda F. Artus, James L. Battersby, Joanne R. Burnham, *Esther M. Colburn, *Wealtha M. Col-

Ammendment For S.A. Constitution Proposed

A proposed amendment to the S.A. constitution will be came up for a vote Wednesday, March 16. This amendment concerns that part of the constitution which dictates the procedure for the election of President and Vice-President.

Under present circumstances, only one election is held for these two positions, with the recipient of the greatest number of votes becoming President and the runner-up, Vice-President. The amendment's purpose is to establish a separate election for each post: Thus, one can run for Vice-President without competing with the presidential candidates. The perpetrators of this amendment feel that under present conditions it is very possible to have dissension among the two major offices. If the amendment goes into effect, the Vice-President will be chosen by a true majority of the student body and not by those people who didn't vote for the winning presidential candidate.

In order to bring into being, an amendment to the S.A. constitution, it is necessary to present the S.A. President with a petition, signed by at least 150 students, asking for an open S.A. meeting. At this meeting the minimum of one-half the total number of students who voted in the last presidential election had to be in attendance. It takes a majority vote of this group to get the amendment accepted.

At the time of the writing of this article, the petition had already been presented to the S.A. President and a meeting took place yesterday at Ira Allen Chapel. About 600 students had to be present.

This amendment will directly affect the coming S.A. elections which will take place March 25.

Annual Vermont Conference Planned

The CYNIC takes pleasure in announcing the seventh annual Vermont Conference, March 30, 31, and April 1st.

The conference committee, under the chairmanship of Fred Sharff, has been planning this series since early last May, with the aid of their three faculty advisors, Mr. Hillberg, Mr. Daniels, and Mr. Sadler. Funds have been allotted by the Student Association.

The purpose of these conferences is to broaden our viewpoint and give us a greater insight in to the many facets of the world about us. In keeping with this idea, the topic of this years conference is, "This Pendent World". We will be most fortunate to have with us Nicholas Christofilos, a nucleur physicist; Nirmal Chaudhuri, a U.N. correspondent from the Straits Times of Malaya; and Lawrence Perlinghetti, a poet.

The speakers are scheduled to begin at 8:00 P.M. in the Ira Allen Chapel. After each lecture there will be an informal group discussion in the student lounge of Waterman, at which time coffee will be served.

Guides and hostesses have been designated to show these gentlemen around the university campus. They expect to be here for three days, during which time they will speak with students in various classes and groups.

Kappa Phi Kappa Initiates Ten

On Tuesday evening, March 8, 1960, in the Fleming Museum, Kappa Phi Kappa, the national men's educational fraternity, initiated ten new brothers. The new brothers are: Adams, William, '62; Barry, Maurice, '61; Bushey, John, '61; Eck, Carlton, '62; Eck, Thomas, '62; Hunt, James, '62; Manning, Forrest, '62; Marmillo, John, '61; Ross, Roderick, '62; and Sawyer, Paul, '62.

Following the initiation ceremony, Bennett C. Douglass, Dean (Emeritus) of the College of Education and Nursing, also an original founder of the local chapter of Kappa Phi Kappa, spoke to all the brothers of the aim, goals and advantages of the fraternity. Refreshments of coffee, lemonade, sandwiches and cake were served.

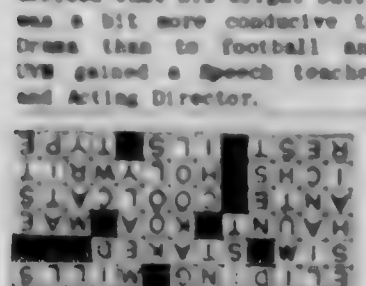
University Players

An example of one of the fine productions presented by University Players is "Carmen".



This is the first in a series of articles about the student organizations on campus. J.T.

Many people on our campus have experienced the thrill of seeing a University Players' production. They have come away from performances in an absolute state of joy and amazement. The roster of talent on this campus is really something to see. However, what percentage of the students really know the Players, how they started, what they stand for, and the time, energy and hard work that they expend for your enjoyment? Let us go back in time to the years prior to 1920. Yes, even then talent was not lacking on the UVM campus. At this time, there were two theatrical groups--one for the males and one for females. They worked under the very impressive names of "Mask and Sandal" and "Wig and Rushlin." As the years progressed, however, the clubs united and formed the UVM Dramatics Club. Also present at this time, was a chapter of the National Collegiate Players which was an honorary society. From 1946 to 1951, a man by the name of Ronald Humphreys aided the students with their talented portrayals. And then in 1951, the name of the club was changed to the University Players. And the constitution stated that tryouts for plays were open to the entire campus. All who work diligently on two productions may send in their name to the Players. They are then voted on and initiated. And in the fall of 1952, the Players received one of their most talented additions -- a new director in the form of Prof. Greg Falls. Mr. Falls, during his Sophomore year of high school became interested in both Dramatics and Football. In 1948, he did graduate work in theater and held a position as football coach. As the years went by, Mr. Falls decided that his slight build was a bit more conducive to Drama than to football and UVM gained a Speech teacher and Acting Director.

The Players were now beginning to pick up and productions were staged frequently during the years. However, there was no Arena theater and plays were produced to the clanging of pipes in Southwick and against a background of basketball nets in the Men's Gym. With the construction of the Arena, the plays increased in atmosphere and audience enthusiasm reached a new high. Among the many plays produced were: "Brigadoon", "Snow White and Rose Red", "The Three Sisters", "The Balcony", "The Miser", Vermont Varieties and many, many others.

From the ranks of the Players, many young students went out on their own. John Cypher played in "The Disenchanted" and made his TV debut as Prince Charming. Steve Solomon is acting in and co-producer of "Courtyard" now showing off-Broadway. Nancy Beals, Sylvia French, Susan Pooley and Dave Montague are all teaching some form of Speech or Dramatics. And Mike Selby beat out over one hundred students in competition and was accepted at the London School of Drama.

Right now the Players are busy with various and sundry tasks. They include rehearsals for "Pirate Ship" (Playtimers), "Arsenic and Old Lace" (directed by Dave Watson), "Witch's Lullaby" (at the Day School, directed by Marjorie Seldon and Jean Cutler). Carole Demas is working in Creative Dramatics with primary school children and Geoffrey Moss and Bruce Cleveland plan to direct two plays by Tennessee Williams. Last, but not least, are the rehearsals for "Carmen".

Couple's Party

The last regular meeting of the Couples Club was held early in February of this year. At this meeting twenty couples enjoyed an evening of bowling. This Saturday, March 18, at the request of many, we are going to attend a Maple Sugar on snow party. The party will be held at 2 P.M. at the Elm Hill Farm in Colchester, on Route 7 about five or six miles north of Winooski. Those couples who wish to have more information on transportation may call either Joan Adams, UN 2-6384, or Joe Sweeney, UN 3-9362. All couples are welcome to come and see how the famous Vermont maple sugar and syrup are made. Donuts and pickles will be served with the sugar on snow. Bring yourselves and your children. Cost a dollar each for adults.

Mr. Cochran Is CYNIC Prof Of The Week

If one were to walk into Room 322 in the Old Mill they would probably be greeted by Mr. Robert Cochran, associate professor in the English Department. Mr. Cochran, looking like a college student himself, has taught at UVM for six years and for the past two years has been instructing the only journalism course at the University: Periodical writing, previously taught by Dr. Swan.

Although born in Pennsylvania, his slight Midwestern accent hints that Mr. Cochran has spent most of his life in Indiana where he attended Indiana University. He earned his M.A. and Ph.D. at the University of Michigan. During college Mr. Cochran was quite active in basketball and softball. At present these too take up some of his spare time, as he is on both faculty teams.

In addition to his interest in sports, Mr. Cochran finds time to be advisor to Kappa Sigma fraternity, as well as being the newly chosen advisor to the I.F.C. This interest in fraternities stems from his being a member of Sigma Chi in college. Mr. Cochran feels that fraternities have much to offer students both academically and socially.

In discussing fraternities, he stated that more responsibility should be assumed by each individual fraternity for events which require chaperones. As it stands now, faculty members who accept invitations to be present at parties are thought of as watchdogs and not as guests, which they really are. Along this same vein, Mr. Cochran feels that a university like UVM takes too much responsibility in all aspects for its students. Parents expect such a state institution to watch over their children and the "paternalistic system" has not given students the chance to think for themselves and distinguish those things which are proper from those which are not.

In discussing the enthusiasm of the student body Mr. Cochran noted that there is too much passiveness in classes and activities. He stresses curiosity as a quality which is needed to improve the attitude and spirit of UVM. More participation in classes would promote genuine interest in courses, thus bringing the entire student body closer as a single group.

If anyone decides to take a journalism course next semester they'll find a professor who has varied interests and the ideas to motivate a course in periodical writing. That is why the CYNIC has chosen Mr. Cochran as the Professor of the Week.

Student Court To Hold Elections

On April 1, election will be held for positions on the Student Court. All those wishing to run, please place a letter listing your qualifications and your academic average in the COSA office before March 24. Positions will be open for two seniors and five sophomores. Address your envelopes to "Student Court, Att: Bob Meshel".

He feels that poetry is definitely Pasternak's strong point, though before the publication of Doctor Zhivago, Pasternak was not well known. The value of the novel is historical, rather than literary. He stated that for ten years prior to the publication of Doctor Zhivago, Pasternak had not done any creative writing, but had concerned himself with translations of Shakespeare, Goethe, and others. A question period followed the lecture.

Dr. Simmons is a well known critic and biographer of Russian writers, and has written studies of Tolstoy, Dostoyevsky, and Pushkin. He is currently doing research on Chekov. He is on the board of editors fo British "Slavonic and East European Review", general editor of the Columbia series of Slanovic studies, and author of Through the Glass of Soviet Literature, Continuity and Change in Russian and Soviet Thought, Russian Fiction and Soviet Ideology, and other works. Henry V To Be Shown

The Cultural Activities Committee of the UVM Student Association will present Sir Lawrence Olivier movie of Shakespeare's Henry V on Sunday, April 3. There will be two showings, one at 7:00 p.m., the other at 7:15 p.m. The film, which runs for 137 minutes, will be shown in Southwick Gymnasium.

A further attraction and extension of this program will be a talk by Professor Harry Levin, of the Fine Arts Department of Harvard University. He will speak at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 5, on a subject relating to the Elizabethan production of Henry V. A discussion period will follow his talk.

The Committee extends a cordial invitation to attend these programs to all students, faculty members, and other interested persons.

Corse Fellowship To Be Awarded

The Corse Fellowship of $1200 was established through the bequest of Frederick M. Corse, of the Class of 1888, to be awarded annually to a graduate of The University of Vermont holding the Bachelor of Arts degree. The fellowship may be awarded to a graduating senior or to a recent graduate with the proper qualifications.

In the words of the donor, "The candidates for this fellowship shall be a young man or woman who has displayed exceptional ability during his or her college course and gives promise of being able to acquire a liberal education. He or she should have shown during the college course ability to do independent, honest thinking, and have displayed through strength and independence of character qualities of leadership."

To be eligible for this fellowship the applicant must have completed an undergraduate major in English, or a Classical language, or two of the European languages, and must be preparing for a career in college or university teaching in one of these disciplines (in the case of an English major, the profession of journalism is acceptable as a career goal).

Applicants must present to the awarding committee an acceptable program for the use of the fellowship. Normally, it is expected that such a program will consist of advanced study at an institution other than The University of Vermont, but alternative uses may be considered.

The holder of the fellowship is eligible to apply for reappointment, but the fellowship will not be granted to the same person for more than three years.

Further information concerning the interpretation of eligibility may be secured from the chairmen of the language departments concerned or from Dean John H. Kent. Application blanks may be secured from Dean John H. Kent, 107 Waterman Building, The University of Vermont, and must be submitted to him not later than April 15. Announcement of the award will be made on May 1.

The Melting Pot

By ROGER ZIMMERMAN

Student Association elections will take place within the next few weeks. Competent and reliable officers must be elected. Many have referred to the Student Association as a "sick man". Its functions seem to include little more than making appropriations to the various campus organizations. This is not true, but a cloud of uncertainty still continues to hang over S.A.

A powerful student government obviously needs an equally powerful central administrative organization. The present S.A. has been making some valiant efforts in the realms of reorganization, the improvement of student faculty relations, etc. Their road to success has been hampered by a heavy fog of student apathy. All the blame cannot be placed on the general student populace, however, as it is the sole responsibility of the S.A. officers to initiate the interest of the students. If these student leaders fail to gather what interest there is, then who shall accept the responsibility for this important function.

Last year was one of the few times when candidates for the respective offices were forced to state their platforms in a general election forum. However, voting was still hampered by a political measure known as "block voting". This system of block voting is based on a mutual help principle. Generally speaking, certain fraternities and sororities will take full advantage of this type of system. For instance, one house has a member who is seeking the office of S.A. president. Certain members of that house approach the officers of another house. They ask for what may be very loosely termed cooperation. In other words, the house whose member is seeking office asks for an unwritten agreement between their organization and this other house with respect to a pledging of votes. Granted, this is honest politics. But is it not possible that, because of sheer lack of numerical strength, the school might be cheated of a better officer. If this system is employed in the next S.A. election, this very possibility exists. Elimination of this political measure is strictly voluntary. It would seem apparent that if the student body truly desires efficient student government, voting will be made on the basis of individual choice. It's up to you.

AS I SEE IT DEPT.

It was mentioned in last week's CYNIC that there is a need for journalism courses at UVM. I might go a step farther; why not a school for journalism? UVM seems to have a fair number of English majors. Some of these students most probably have a sincere interest in the field of journalism. But their interest is unfortunately hampered by the lack of formal journalistic training here. If, however, more journalism courses were offered, or if there were a specialized school for this field, opportunities for these students would know no bounds.

Shaw Chorale Receives Mixed Reactions

by DON E. KERR

Johann Sebastian Bach, the master creator of the St. Thomas Church in Leipzig stands as a colussus among those great masters whose privilege it was to contribute treasures to the vast storehouse of Western music. The B Minor Mass occupies the highest place among Bach's many compositions, challenged only perhaps by The Art of Fugue. No artistic genius has ventured further than this into those unknown regions of close contact with his Creator.

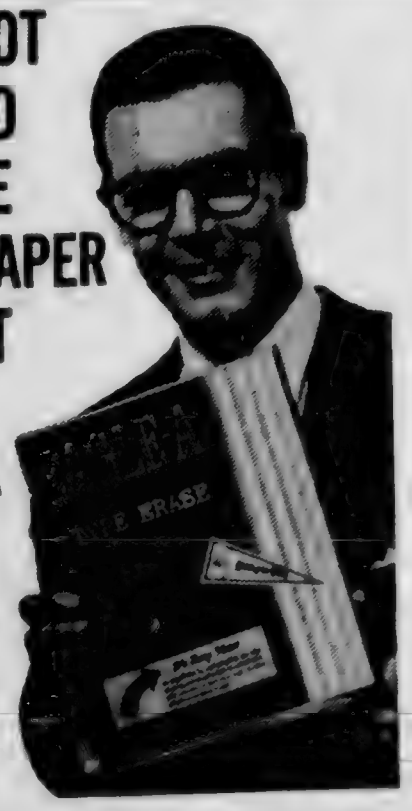
The recent performance of this work by the Robert Shaw Chorale was impressive, although undoubtedly second-rate. To master a work of this magnitude is not an easy task, and the Shaw Chorale was unfortunately not equal to the challenge. Shaw's historical approach to the work was maintained fairly well throughout, and voices and orchestra were well enough balanced to give the necessary clarity to polyphonic line. Diction and tone production were acceptable, and the general interpretation was good, except for the agitato manner employed in the ornamented sections such as the Laudamus Te and the Qui Sedes, which spoiled the effect of the smoothly-running lines. The soloists were proficient enough; however, none of them had particularly outstanding tone-quality.

It was in sustaining the various levels of emotional intensity, however, that the performance was a failure. The five main sections were not felt as an organic whole. Sections such as the first Kyrie and the Sanctus fell apart because Shaw failed to keep tension throughout, and the Cum Sancto Spiritu nd Et Resurrexit lacked fire and abandon. The whole performance, in short, lacked something called virility. The concert was quite well received, and the audience behaved less like cattle than usual.

Uninspired though it may have been the performance was in many respects good, and the writer wishes to make clear his feeling that a poorly done "live" performance is worth a thousand recorded ones. he has the highest respect for Robert Shaw for taking the work on tour. Music like this has been too long kept from American audiences already. Blessings indeed upon Mr. Shaw for his most worthy crusade!

IFC Sing Cancelled

The Interfraternity Council announced the cancellation of the annual Barbershop Quartet Sing which was scheduled to be held March 12 last. Fraternity and Sorority enthusiasm was only partial and the number of entries was not sufficient to require scheduling the event. There was also confusion about the date of the Sing and many groups found themselves unprepared to participate. Last year's Barbershop Sing was also small in entries and attendance.



UVM Graduate In Shaw Chorale

A UVM graduate of 1955 who carried a minor in music and a major in English at the University showed, with the Robert Shaw Chorale in Burlington, that his interest in French horn has become his career. Brooks Tillotson, whose father, Dr. Byron C. Tillotson, was born in East Montpelier, Vt., is currently on tour with the Shaw Chorale and Orchestra. The group performed the Bach B Minor Mass in Burlington last week as a presentation of the UVM George Bishop Lane Artists Series. Tillotson's interest in a career of music was stimulated when, as a UVM student, he played with the Vermont State Symphony Orchestra. His father who graduated from the UVM College of Medicine in 1921 is a physician at Fort Edward, N.Y.

Library Problems.

There is a problem connected with our library which will not be corrected either by a new library building or the watchful eye of any gateway guard. This is the problem that is posed by the regulations that anyone connected with the University has to remove a book from the library for any period of time up to an entire semester.

The semester loan system, now in effect at the Billings Library, seems to be both unnecessary and cumbersome, if not positively injurious to the majority of library users. The stock of books available at Billings, already depleted by theft, is now further reduced by long-term borrowing.

It seems to us that the semester system is unnecessary. The average college student should be able to read almost any book in two weeks' time. If, for some reason, he had not read the book at the end of this time, he could renew the loan by simply paying a visit to the library and informing those in charge of his wishes. In this way, the student had, in effect, unlimited use of the book; but at the same time the library had the book in its stock when it was not being used.

The semester system is cumbersome for both the library and the borrower. If the borrower is subject to human nature, once he has borrowed the book he tends to keep it until he must return it. This will usually be at the of a semester. In the rushing of preparing for finals the student will generally neglect to return the book until several warnings have been sent by the library. Thus the library has the added load of preparing and sending out many cards, checking a semester's loan of books back in, and administering to several thousand students who are all feverishly trying to rectify a long standing lack of study at the last moment.

And what happens to the student who finds he needs a particular book? He goes to the library sometime during the semester, only to discover that the book is already out on semester loan. He then asks the library to recall the book. This they willingly do, and, if our student is very lucky, the book is in, in three days. He then has the use of the book. This, to say the least, is slightly complicated both for the would-be borrower, for the present borrower, and for the library.

But often a person will come into the library seeking information on specific topic, rather than a particular book. In such a case the person has little idea whether the information he is seeking is in the book which is out on semester loan or not. If he recalls the book he risks inconveniencing several people for nothing. If he does not recall the book he risks the loss of vital information which might be contained in the book. The person who has been assigned a term paper is especially hurt by such an arrangement. In many courses the student has his choice of topics on which to write his paper. Often he wants to do some basic research before even deciding on the final subject of the paper. When he compares books in the card file with books left on the library shelf, he has no way of knowing which books are out on semester loan and which have been stolen. This often makes choice of subject for such a paper difficult, since the student cannot easily determine the amount of information available on any given subject.

The semester loan system currently in effect at our library is unnecessary, cumbersome, and even harmful. It can be a deterrent not only to organized study such as reading for courses, but to individual study on which true intellectual achievement is so dependent. It does not appear that the semester loan system has any advantages over the old two weeks with renewal privileges formerly in effect. Therefore there is no reason to continue the semester loan system.

Round Table To Hold Meeting

The first meeting of the Round Table for 1960 will be held Thursday March 17 at 8 P M in the Fleming Museum lounge. Mr Daniel Fuhrens, of the Anthropology Department will be the key note speaker.

The Round Table is a discussion group which includes both students and faculty. One of the primary aims of Round Table is to foster individual development by offering an opportunity to people on campus to openly discuss various questions brought up during the course of the evening. The Round Table discussions are always a good opportunity to meet and talk with faculty members of one's own and different colleges and departments.

Any member of the student body and the faculty are cordially invited to attend any and all of these meetings.

Letters To The Editor:

Comments, Mr. Darer

To the Editor

For the past few months a wide topic of concern has been the anti-semetic outbursts that were appearing throughout the world. As was to be expected when any such writings would appear, there were those who gave way to hysterical fears and there were those who responded with complacent cliches and refused to acknowledge the seriousness of the matter.

It is indeed unfortunate that when such an incident would appear on a small New England campus the reactions would almost identically mirror those felt throughout the world.

The reaction of the administration when Tau Epsilon Phi received a virulently anti-semetic letter was to immediately hush up the matter lest the fair name of our alma mater be marred by such an incident. One wonders if in their haste to quiet this incident, the administration ever stopped to think that this was not a matter to be hushed up but rather something that should be exposed and freely discussed by the entire university, faculty and students alike. The various original statements made by the Administration implying that it couldn't have been a university student merely reflect how unprepared and unwilling the administration was to cope with such an incident.

I do not believe that the solution would be to expell the students as was demanded in Edson Darer's column in last weeks CYNIC. I feel that the University, as the supposed intellectual center of the community, has the obligation and the means to at least attempt by means of education and psychiatric care to in some way make responsible citizens out of what now can only be termed vicious bigots. I'm afraid that if we followed the purely punitive measures that Mr. Darer called for the results would be that these students would now be sending letters to synagogues instead of fraternities. The result would be that the community would now be the victim of their actions rather than the University.

Dear Editor:

After reading the editorial and highlights section of the March 10 edition of the [illegible] CYNIC, I wondered how this college ever succeeded without this paper and some of its writers.

The article concerning discrimination will do just the opposite of what the author intended it to do. One doesn't fight prejudice with prejudice and expect people to be on his side. But, if your purpose, Mr. Darer, was to incite a riot you'll probably succeed. Specific inferences were made about what miserable, stupid creatures these people were that wrote this anti-semitic letter. They probably were. I'm not debating this question, but I do, Mr. Darer, detect a bit of Hitlerism in you by your cry, "THROW THEM OUT". Judgement has been passed on these fellows, and whether it was just or unjust is not for either you or me to decide.

Religious beliefs are a touchy subject and the administration knows this. The incident involved on this campus is bad enough and publication or continued discussing of it would not curtail it, but make it worse. They know this. I think your intentions are good, but your approach was based more on emotional feeling than on true intelligence. Only through proper education will people learn to live with one another. By kicking these people out of school, these prejudices will double, and their children will be of the same character. I don't think any one party, or more specifically Christianity or Judaism is to blame, but a combination of the two. I think the members of the Christian faith on this campus are apologetic for the actions of this minute group.

Sincerely yours,
John Barrett '62

(Editor's Note: The CYNIC does not feel that merely ignoring the situation (which has appeared to be the goal of the people directly involved) is any solution. Education, unfortunately, does not eradicate bigotry.)

Suggestions

To the Editor:

Over the past weeks some of your columnists have mentioned their interest in constructive suggestions and criticism via the letters-to-editor department. At the same time they have tended to disparage writers and potential writers of such letters.

It's possible [illegible] needs to improve on [illegible] unnewspaper-like [illegible] As a suggestion in [illegible] direction I would like to quote from an article by a famous engineer from a town south of us. It discusses letters-to-editor writing and was taken from the town's weekly newspaper last year.

"Let me add finally that successful controversial letters are never penned in anger. They do not aim to break a butterfly upon a wheel. They are not the instruments of cowards willing to wound and yet afraid to strike. They constitute superior weapons in debate, as against statements to the press, interviews, speeches, radio, television, panel or other appearances. Letters have the advantage of speech or of deliberation, whichever is called for. There is no formula or family recipe for their use. A strong letter is effective only if it is immediately apparent to bystanders that it is a stout shillelagh in a good cause.

"Weapons of this sort are chosen because of the profound belief of the writer in the democratic process, that is, in the wisdom and ultimate fairness of the public, given an opportunity to read what an honest man engaged in controversial matters can put into simple and, if possible, picturesque English. Humor, sarcasm, irony are to be used sparingly. Always the facts - fearlessly, tersely, and marching in order."

Sincerely yours,
Joseph Bornstein

Highlights

By EDSON DARER

Good afternoon. This has certainly been a hectic week. It seems that my column of March 10th has stirred quite a bit of interest into the student body. You might ask how I know this? Well, I'll tell you. All week long, I have been receiving anonymous telephone calls in which I have been called every name in the book and a few I have never even heard before. Last Saturday, I received a letter signed "Kozoapaqua". This letter stated, "All year long you have, in your column in the CYNIC, presented nothing but criticism of this university, its faculty, staff, and student body." It goes on to say that anything not done to benefit myself or "those campus misfits who are numbered among his friends is treason, or . . ."

WHY HIDE???

It is true that I might criticize things that are done here. It has been my belief, all my life that HEAVEN forbid, ANTI-SEMETIC man is endowed with many inalienable rights. One of these rights, as far as I am concerned, is the right to criticize what you feel is not right. If anyone has opinions that vary from mine, why do they have to hide behind a telephone wire and use profanity in expressing their beliefs? Why do they have to write mysterious letters and not sign them with their proper names?? Surely, you don't think you are scaring me. I have no campassion at all for anyone who has to hide and not show himself when he is expressing views he truly believes. These people surely know that they are wrong, or else, they would stand up and show themselves.

WHY ARE WE HERE?

Why do we come to a university? Of course, we come to a university for an education. This education is meant to broaden our minds and to teach us the ideals of living in a truly democratic society. We come here to learn history, which shows us that in days gone by men had narrow minds and they couldn't adopt themselves to the basic ideals of life. Our ancestors and the founders of this country only saw good and they prepared a document called the "Constitution of the United States." This is our birthright. We are entitled to its protection and it is our duty to uphold it. When you stand against it, this is treason.

NEW FACTS

In reference to the letter writing incident, a few facts have been brought to light. At a faculty meeting, some members wished to learn why the matter was hushed up so. Some members of the administration explained in double talk and said the matter was closed. Certain faculty members were still quite perturbed. A vote of no confidence was called for by the administration if the faculty did not agree with the way the situation was being handled. One member stormed out of the room. The others felt that they had no call to stick out their necks if the students didn't wish to protest.

This, I cannot understand. These men and women are individuals and they hold a lot more power than we as students do. It seems to me that if they were really annoyed by the situation and the way it was being handled, they could have refused to bend to the whims of certain administrative heads. More power to the one who held to his convictions and walked out.

It has recently been learned that students who took part in the letter writing incident are under guidance. They were supposed to have been under the guidance of a psychiatrist. This, I do not believe is so. I wonder who is the guiding light???

Bigotry and racial prejudice have no place in our society. They must be stamped out if we are to live in peace. Every time an incident happens, such as the Mack Parker lynching etc., the Russian wheels of propaganda start spinning. They build these stories to immense proportion and poison the minds of hundreds of thousands of unwary people. Is this what we as Americans want????

Newspaperman To Fill UVM Post

A Vermont newspaperman was named assistant editor for the Vermont Extension Service and Experiment Station at the University of Vermont Thursday.

Thomas J. McCormick, associate editor of the Vermont Catholic Tribune, was named to the UVM post effective March 16. He succeeds Fred E. Achcraft, who resigned in February.

McCormick, a native of Boston, Mass., is a graduate of Wesleyan University. From 1949-51, he served as a reporter with the Burlington Publishing Company, publishers of the Burlington Daily News, with whom he was again associated from 1954-57 as a reporter and later as managing editor.

From 1951-54, he worked in the New York City bureau of the United Press, where he did re-write, radio writing and editing, and for the past three years he has served as associate editor of the Vermont Catholic Tribune, which is published weekly by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Vermont.

McCormick is married, has five sons, and makes his home at 27 Pine Street in Winooski.

If we were to judge by the few seemingly reassuring remarks that the Administration has released to the press it would seem that the students were getting the psychiatric care that I am in favor of. However, this is not so. For the past month the students have not been under psychiatric care, but have been counselled by none other than the Dean of Men. I am by no means casting any aspersions on the qualifications of Mr. Clifford, but, by treating this as a purely disciplinary problem the administration is once again not meeting the problem head on but is using half way measures to deal with an undoubtedly serious matter.

There is no need for hysterical fears of a wave of anti-semitism sweeping this campus, but there is a need for a mature and courageous attitude towards a problem that is not concerned with one particular religion but strikes at the very foundations of what a society such as ours is founded upon.

Dear Editor,

Our world is one that is comprised of machines. Through high school physics, I learned that machines have valves which are made to let out steam. When the pressure becomes too great, the valve opens. However, sometimes the valve doesn't open and then the machine explodes.

In many ways, the human being is comparable to a machine. Rather then letting out real steam, the human being lets out "intellectual steam."

April 23, The University Players is scheduled to produce "Arsenic and Old Lace". The cast which is under the direction of Dave Watson, is working its head off and only naturally wishes a full house.

To my dismay, a very unfortunate thing occurred recently. It was discovered that a "record hop", is to be scheduled the same night. My plea is not to extinguish the "record hop". Most certainly not. By all means have it. I love to dance. But, what really irratates my feelings is the fact that all around me, we hear nothing but fervent complaints. To show explicitly what I mean, I would like to quote someone. "Why don't we ever have real intellectual things on campus."

Does everyone remember the "Godot," situation? Yes, the tragicomedy that unfortunately ended up a tragedy. A tragedy because it was forced to play to a ¾'s full house. By the way, the Arena Theater seats 200 excluding standing room. Yes, "Waiting for Godot," which had a fantastic write up is still the core of discusasion among those who had the opportunity to see it.

But then again, as I said before. I can only write. There is nothing a sophomore student at UVM can do about it. It's our problem UVM. We have to live with it.

Go ahead UVM schedule your "Rock and Roll Record Hop". Schedule other events too. Have many more of them. I hope you have loads and loads of fun.

Debbie Godwin, '62

Dear Sir,

I wish to say that while attending the interesting lecture of Dr. Simsons in the student lounge this evening I was struck by the disturbance that came crashing through the walls from the coffee shop. In the quiet atmosphere of the student lounge could be heard the voice of Dr. Simsons, and several melodious records among them "Summer Place," which not content with making itself heard once, insisted on repeat performances. I suggest that in the future, when lectures are held in the student lounge, the noise from the coffee shop be cut down by regulation.

Sincerely yours,

To the Editor:

Having been subjected to some extreme instances of poor sportsmanship at a majority of basketball games this year, I most whole-heartedly agree with the letter recently published in the Cynic, written by "a spectator." Furthermore, it is beyond my conception how a so-called "sports" columnist can advocate and applaud such poor sportsmanship as expressed this week in "Chad's Chatter."

The crowd spirit at the basketball games this year was mainly aroused by either referees' decisions or by an opposing player's action rather than good competitive spirit. A basketball game or any other sport was not created to be an outright battle nor should it be participated in by such. It seems to me that the spirit we are trying to evoke at UVM is being misdirected should we follow this columnist's advice. Poor spirit is revolting and disgusting. There is a wrong and right way to act in any situation; either direct what spirited energy which is present in the correct channels or don't direct it at all.

Sincerely,

Linda Jacobsen

To establish a new school would involve not only extensive funds, but also a terrific amount of organization, statistics, and administrative work. But a few journalism courses, as a start, would be a step in the right direction. The present building program involves an expansion of physical facilities. Academic expansion, however, is proceeding at a somewhat slower pace for one reason or another. Plans could be made right now for the introduction of these well-needed journalism courses. One of the products, if plans were made and carried through, would be a better student newspaper, and a better newspaper would be indicative of a school that is growing in all directions.

THIS 'N THAT

It's a great day today for the Irish. Shamrocks are for real, when again Ed Patrick's day has arrived and all the world is green as well as the hearts. Our engineering, farming, and Spanish have dyed their greens. It's unfortunate that here at Vermont we don't celebrate the occasion with a little more spirits wherein spirit. But of course, we can always still ramble around for beer stamps. This typewriter is going green - tear up.

As a result of last week's column, we received in our mail another letter from some poor confused person.

Dear Aunt Agatha

I'm confused. Is a Shamrock anything like a Mock Turtle? If so, who do I sue for violation of the copyright laws?

Yours truly,
Lewis Carroll

My dear Mr. Carroll:

Although a Shamrock is green, I must admit that there is some resemblance between the two. I would suggest contacting the Senate Investigating Committee who seem to know everything that's being violated.

CLOUD NINE

Cupid must be on some kind of a vacation this month (suppose everyone gets tired). But with or without the aid of his arrows, one Delta Phi found the way to one co-ed's heart. Congratulations to Dave Lisrie, '62, and Mary Ann Sargent, AOPi, '62, who became pinned on March 4. Also congratulations are in order for Eric Birmingham, Sig Ep, '61, who recently became engaged to Joan Lord, Tri Delta, '60.

ALPHA DELTA PI & PHI DELTA THETA

The pledges of Alpha Delta Pi, and the pledges from Phi Delta Theta fraternity will jointly sponsor a tea on Sunday, March 20 from 2 to 4 P.M. at Alpha Delta Pi sorority, 383 South Willard Street. It will be open to all pledges of other sororities and fraternities.

ALPHA DELTA PI

The Alpha Delta Pi's are happy to announce five new pledges. They are, Bonnie Mackay, Marjorie Edwards, Anita Enright, Rolaine Worck, and Betty Lou Sherry. Pledge of the week was Rolaine Worck.

Alpha Delta Pi received three new sisters into the chapter on March 6. The new sisters are, Linda Kinsman, Jean Humphreys, and Rosalie Rafferty. Rosalie was named outstanding pledge. Linda Kinsman received the scholarship award and Jean Humphreys was given an award for her essay.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

Alpha Epsilon Phi is happy to welcome Beth Spencimer of Forest Hills, New York, who recently accepted an open bid.

On Friday evening the AE's entertained the Cheles family of Burlington. Mr. Cheles was responsible for many of the photographs used during our Rake Walk campaign. We are greatly indebted to him for the time and effort he devoted to this task.

On Thursday evening we all took part in the Panhellenic exchange dinner program. The dinners were fun as well as delicious. I am sure we are not the only ones looking forward to more dinners of this type.

Congratulations to Linda Mann on her acceptance to Columbia University where she will pursue her studies in occupational therapy.

The sisters of A.O. have heard rumors about a Hearting tuesday party to be held on March 28. Sounds as if our Cupids have something really terrific in store for everyone.

GAMMA PHI BETA

Our pledge class, in their pink carnations, put on a very successful pledge tea this past Sunday. Good job, pledges.

The newly elected Social Standards committee consists of Georgene Walter, Anne Parker, Lorraine Snow, and Joan Hosie.

The new Recording Secretary is Nancy Gilman.

KAPPA SIGMA

Wednesday, March 9, Kappa Sigma held a coffee hour for unpledged freshman men.

The Kappa Sigs are really showing their skill and athletic ability in the intra-fraternity volley-ball tourney having thus far defeated SAE, TKE, Sigma Nu, and Sig Ep.

The District Conclave of Kappa Sigma is being held this weekend at Bowdoin College and will be attended from this chapter by about twenty brothers.

Preparations for the I.F.C. Sing have begun and the Kappa Sigs are looking forward to doing their best this year.

Red coats are a comin'. More Kappa Sig jackets may be seen around campus now that the pledges have received theirs.

The goal expected to be reached by the Kappa Sigs in their drive for renovating the Gray house is $20,000.

PHI DELTA THETA

Scholarship was the big word around the Phi Delt house this past week, as a full fledged campaign was launched to pull the Phi's up the ladder of scholastic standing. Each Brother was assigned a pledge and through weekly individual meetings, it is hoped that marks will skyrocket from the words of wisdom of the older veterans. The aim is a 78 over-all house average. Mrs. Noyes, our housemother, and Phi Delta Theta adviser, Truman Webster, gave pertinent talks to the pledges concerning this matter.

Last Saturday evening an informal gathering was held at Phi Delt, with our amiable Mrs. Noyes as chaperone. A great time was had by all.

The Phi volleyball team slapped down the first place Phi Sig's in interfraternity competition. Capt. "Tiger" Kolstrom has great expectations for the Silver Knights to go down the homestretch undefeated . . . 'Nuts of Ruck'"

THETA CHI

Elections were held at 170 Spruce and the following men were chosen to lead the TC's for the next year.

President	Joseph Bailey
Vice-President	Tom Sherman
Secretary	Bill Simmons
Treasurer	Cederic Farrow
Marshall	Mike Jones

There are several new pledges at Theta Chi. They are:

Dave Carr, Jericho, Vt.
Sewell Benjamin, Franklin, Vt.
Tom Lyons, Montpelier, Vt.

Theta Chi stands 5 and 1 in its league in intramural volleyball. The one loss was to Sigma Phi. TC is currently tied with Sigma Phi for the league lead.

SIGMA NU

Last Monday night the election of house officers was held and Stan Williams was elected Provost Commander. Other officers are: Ron Pine, Lt. Commander; Jim Rogers, Recorder; John Waynes, Treasurer; John Tomasi, Chaplain; Paul Lent, Reporter; John Emery, Alumni Contact; Walt Trainor, Assistant Treasurer; Brooly Doane, Marshall; Bill Morton, Sentinel; Steve Schaub, Historian; Stan Williams, Sr. I.F.C.; Pete Seidel, Jr. I.F.C.; John Stanton, Steward; and John Martel, House Manager.

Congratulations to Dick Diesing, '63, who was recently admitted to the pledgehood.

by SANDY CAMERON

On Saturday, March 5, the brothers defeated the pledges 61-50 in an exciting and close basketball game held at Southwick. The day was topped off with a party that evening, the pledges treating the brothers.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

National Headquarters Secretary, Truman L. Sanderson, spent a few days visiting the house recently.

The Sig Ep bowling team rolled their way to victory by winning the Inter-fraternity Council bowling championship.

The Sig Ep Alumni Board purchased a baby grand piano for the house.

The new assistant stewards, John Whelan and Dave Hoyt, are doing a good job handling kitchen duties.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

At the last S.A.E. pledge meeting, the pledge officers were elected. They are: Jon Tonseth, President, and Tom Whoelke, Secretary.

Last weekend, the S.A.E. province convention was held at Dartmouth College. Brothers Lou Hronek, Terry Martin, Paul Murphy, and Carl Hassler represented Vermont Beta Chapter at this convention. The election of province officers was held here and Dr. Rolf Hauger, Vermont Beta Alumni Representative, was elected Province Deputy Archon.

For if you dig a modern filter cigarette
It figures that it's what's up front that is the most Like pure Flavorsville, orbit stuff, and all that jazz;
And only Winston swings with FILTER-BLEND up front,
A real gone combo of golden, rich tobaccos
Selected and processed like for filter smoking;
That's why, dear cats or even squares, it's understood

Winston tastes good like a cigarette should!

"AN EMBARRASSMENT OF RICHES"

Twinkly, lovable old Dr. Wagstaff Sigafoos, head of chemistry at the Upper Rhode Island College of Science and Palmistry, cares nought for glory and wealth. All he cares about is to work in his laboratory, to play Mozart quartets with a few cronies, to smoke a good Marlboro, and to throw sticks for his faithful dog Trey to fetch.

So when, after years of patient research, Dr. Sigafoos discovered Reverso, a shaving cream which causes whiskers to grow inward instead of outward, thus enabling a man to bite off his beard instead of shaving it, it never even crossed his mind that he had come upon a key to fame and riches; he simply assigned all his royalties from Reverso to the college and went on with his quiet life of working in the laboratory, playing Mozart quartets, smoking good Marlboros and throwing sticks for his faithful dog Trey. (Trey, incidentally, had died some years earlier but habit is a strong thing and Dr. Sigafoos to this day continues to throw sticks.)

As everyone knows, Reverso turned out to be a madly successful shaving cream. Royalties in the first month amounted to $290,000, which came in mighty handy, believe you me, because the college had long been postponing some urgently needed repairs—a lightning rod for the men's dormitory, new hoops for the basketball court, leather patches for the chess team's elbows and a penwiper for the Director of Admissions.

In the second month royalties amounted to an even million dollars and the college bought Marlboro cigarettes for all students and faculty members. It is interesting that the college chose Marlboro cigarettes though they could well have afforded more expensive brands. The reason is simply this: you can pay more for a cigarette but you can't get a better flavor, a better smoke. If you think flavor went out when filters came in, try a Marlboro. The filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. You, too, can smoke like a millionaire at a cost which does no violence to the slimmest of budgets. Marlboros come in soft pack or flip-top box and can be found at any tobacco counter. Millionaires can be found on yachts.

But I digress. We were speaking of the royalties from Reverso which continue to accrue at an astonishing rate—now in excess of one million dollars per week. The college is doing all it can to spend the money; the student-faculty ratio which used to be thirty students to one teacher is now thirty teachers to one student; the Gulf Stream has been purchased for the Department of Marine Biology; the Dean of Women has been gold-plated.

But money does not buy happiness, especially in the college world. Poverty and ivy—that is the academic life—not power and pelf. The Upper Rhode Island College of Science and Palmistry is frankly embarrassed by all this wealth, but I am pleased to report that the trustees are not taking their calamity lying down. Last week they earmarked all royalties for a crash research program headed by Dr. Wagstaff Sigafoos to develop a whisker which is resistant to Reverso. Let us all join in wishing the old gentleman success.

The sponsors of this column can't offer you money but they can offer you fine smoking flavor—with or without filter. If you favor filters try a Marlboro. If non-filters are your pleasure pick a Philip Morris.

Baseball -

Cassani! That's THE name to watch this spring. With the Kitten baseball season still over a month away, Dick Cassani appears ready. This is the pitcher I mentioned two weeks ago. After watching him pitch awhile, I know where the word FASTball comes from. He's got it. He not only has a devastating fast ball, but a good curve and change-up as well. Dick had a chance to play pro ball for the Boston Red Sox after his graduation from high school, but turned it down in favor of a college education. If Vermont can hold on to him, Dick Cassani may turn out to be one of the finest pitchers ever to graduate from the Green and Gold.

Dick's battery mate, Charlie French is another good ballplayer. I think we'll be hearing more from Charlie too. Keep your eye on him this spring, when he goes tearing around the bases. Also, not to be forgotten, is Ted Jones, another of the able frosh 9 battery. Between Cassani and Jones on the mound this year, the Kittens should have a very successful

My congratulations to Dick on a good decision. I only hope that UVM will help him realize it to their fullest extent

Meal Scholarships -

This year, another fraternity has decided to join three others in giving out meal scholarships to deserving athletes. Congratulations to Sig Nu, the newest in this group. TEP, Phi Sig, and SAE are the three that already give out scholarships. TEP's, Phi Sig's, and Sig Nu's meal scholarships go to freshmen while SAE's is currently being given to a senior.

These scholarships, coupled with the new gym, might help to bring some more good ball players to UVM. While a fifth fraternity is currently debating this issue, I know of three others that are financially stable enough to award these scholarships to deserving ballplayers, but don't. They know who they are; there's no need of my mentioning their names.

A lot of credit should be given to TEP, Phi Sig, SAE, and Sig Nu. These four fraternities are helping UVM to help itself!

Sugar Party On Sunday

The 27th Annual Dean Hills' Sugar Party will be held on Sunday afternoon, March 20, in the rear of the Hills Botany building from 2-4 P.M. Sponsored by Alpha Zeta, the agricultural honorary fraternity, proceeds go to the Joseph Lawrence Hills Loan Fund for Agricultural students.

The old Vermont treat of Sugar-on-Snow plus coffee, doughnuts, coffee and pickles will be served by the girls of the Home Economics Club.

Maple sugar will be awarded to the winners of a sawing contests.

This party was started in 1933 in tribute to Dean Emeritis Joseph Hills of the Agricultural College.

Robert Wood and Galen Hutchison, chairmen of the event announced that all are invited to this afternoon of fun.

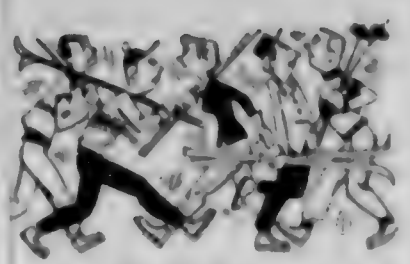
Smith called the Sigma Nu scholarship "an enthusiastic endorsement of the University's athletic rebuilding program," and expressed the hope that other UVM fraternities would follow suite.

The Catamount Booster Organization has set its sights on from six to eight work-for-board opportunities by the fall of 1961.

Professor Blau To Speak at UVM

Individualism in a Corporate Society: an Exploration of a Deweyan Theme, will be the subject of the lecture to be delivered by Joseph L. Blau, on Wednesday, March 23. It will be presented at 8:00 P.M., in the student lounge in Waterman building. This will be the last in the Centennial Lecture Series presented by the John Dewey Club, in honor of Dewey's hundreth anniversary. Mr. Blau is an associate professor at Columbia University, where he received his Ph.D. in philosophy.



McArthur to Interpret Camus

Professor Herbert McArthur, of the English Department, will interpert Albert Camus' novel The Fall on Sunday, March 20. This presentation will take place at The Barn. The Barn is newly located at 43 South Prospect Street next to the Waterman Building.

The program for the meeting will begin at 8:00 P.M. with refreshments and music, followed by the discussion. All are invited.

Phi Mu Delta has bought this house on South Willard Street. Purchase will be completed on May 1. The house was formerly a dormitory for Trinity College.

Cat Battery Shaping Up

by Greg Stebbins

This year according to all reports, the weight of a successful season for the Catamount baseball team rests upon the shoulders of an unknown pitching staff. It is an unknown staff because the potential is there, but no opportunity to show the potential will be had until the season gets underway. In Coach LaPointe's opinion, the team is a better defensive team with more consistent hitting than the team of last season, but the pitching will have to be good if the team is to live up to expectations.

At present, there are nine men competing for a place on the mound. Jim Hubbie, Steve Cooper, Dave Miller, and Dick Johnson will be the veterans that Lefty is looking for the starting nod, while Harry Zingg, Dave Hinds, Gary Noble, and Bert Hoyt represent the right-handed pitchers. Coach LaPointe has also been experimenting with right-hander Mike Jarret as a possible second man. From this group of nine pitchers all will be picked as the pitchers for the team.

Because of such a fast, stiff schedule this season, it will be necessary for Coach LaPointe to depend on four starting pitchers, so the outlook is as bright as Bert Hoyle, Harry Zingg, and Steve Cooper will wrap up three of these four starting positions. The fourth spot will be a battle between Dave Hinds, Wally Johnson, and Dick Johnson. Hinds has been a very good prospect for that position, but a sore arm has been giving him lots of trouble.

There is but much in the way of experience in these hurlers as there are only three men back from last year's squad. Cooper and Hinds are the only seniors on the squad, so an experienced staff is being built for the future. Johnson, Noble, and Miller are the sophomores up from the freshman team and the rest of the men are juniors.

One tremendous gash in the pitching staff is the loss of the two big pound-men on the team last year, Russ Artus and Bob Knudsen. However, the three returning men have admirable records, as do the sophomores.

An important part of a pitcher's success depends upon his batterymate, or the catcher behind the plate. It has often been said the catcher is the most important man on the ball field and Coach LaPointe has two able men for the post in Mike Pearo and Bob Davis, and an outside possibility in Bill Federici. Davis saw some action last year on the varsity squad, batting .267 while sporting .885 fielding average. Pearo, up from the frosh team, batted .214 and had a .975 fielding average. Federici, a man with a very quick pair of hands and a powerful bat, has been doing some work behind the plate and shows promise in that position.

All of these men will be out on the baseball diamond doing their best for the Catamount team. They feel that this is one of the best baseball teams to appear at UVM in many years, but they cannot have a successful season without our support. See you in the bleachers this spring.

Report On 1960 Netmen

by Jon Kaplan

With spring just around the corner, the UVM netmen are readying for another season. Despite the inclement weather and lack of adequate indoor space on which to practice, coach Fred Marston expects to do "fairly well" and hopes to improve upon last year's record.

The prospect of a winning season looks relatively bright with the return of seven lettermen.

The first four positions will most likely be filled by: Pete Snow, back after a year's absence from the team; Ray Kelsey; Ed Rutner, up from the freshman squad; and captain Frank Diller. Added strength will be forthcoming in the forms of Phil Schreiber, Al Fischer, and Bernie Lamm. Balancing out the squad and helping out in the doubles will be [illegible] Howard and Buddy Yett.

The tennis team faces a very difficult schedule this year and hopes to be prepared for their first match against the University of New Hampshire on May 23. Until the weather warms up the team is forced to practice at night on the single court on the floor, the only present facility. Mr. Marston is eagerly anticipating the completion of the new gymnasium where more adequate accommodations will be available. Despite this present handicap however, the team would like to repeat their performance of two years ago when they brought home the Yankee Conference championship.

Below the varsity, the freshman team is looking exceptionally sharp and also hopes to complete a successful season.

In the IFC Track Relay Races, so far only three houses have entered teams. The meet is to be held on April 1 and 2, with the Semi-finals on the 4th, and the Finals on April 6. It is interesting to note that last year only 1 house entered a team in the relays, and they won the trophy by default.

In the Intra-mural Handball Tournament, the Independents and Fraternities start the first round this week. All those who are interested in a Badminton Tournament can sign up in the gym starting this week.

Fraternity Scholarships

The University of Vermont Chapter of Sigma Nu fraternity, in response to a request made by the Catamount Booster Organization, has voted to make available a four-year board scholarship to a student-athlete in next fall's entering class.

The scholarship, to be awarded by the UVM department of athletics, includes a work-for-board arrangement as required by the N.C.A.A. code.

Created to help improve the University's intercollegiate program in basketball, the Sigma Nu action was taken "to broaden the opportunities for self-help open to UVM student-athletes, "according to fraternity president Orland Smith.

Sigma Nu is the fourth UVM fraternity to extend a work-for-board scholarship to athletes in need. Tau Epsilon Phi, Tau Sigma Delta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities are presently offering similar opportunities to student-athletes.

In terms of present University meal contract rates, the board arrangement is worth $1,64[illegible] over the course of eight semesters.

Modern Jazz Quartet Appears In Lane Series

Modern Jazz Quartet

"Long-Haired" Jazz Order Of The Night

Tomorrow night Memorial Auditorium will be the scene of jazz at its best when the Lane Series presents the Modern Jazz Quartet. As a feature on the Red Series, the four musicians will present what has been called by Professor Trevithick "long-haired jazz".

The Modern Jazz Quartet is one of the first pure concert-ensembles of jazz being able to come up to the conditions of the "classical" concert hall. In addition to its musical style, it is unique in its versatality and contributions to jazz performance, entertainment, composition, and teaching.

The MJQ was organized in 1951 by four soloists of the former Dizzy Gillespie Orchestra. Its musical director is John Lewis who also plays the piano. Nearly all the compositions played by the MJQ have been created or arranged by him. Lewis is the executive director of the School of Jazz in Lenox, Massachusetts.

Milt Jackson plays the vibraharp and has been called the most creative vibraharpist of our time. In recent years he has been the winner of every poll as the best interpreter of this instrument.

Another major contribution is made by Percy Heath who plays the bass and also acts as soloist.

Connie Kay joined the MJQ in 1955 when Kenny Clarke, the original percussionist retired. He is one of the most important representatives of a new conception of playing his instrument.

The MJQ has appeared in concert halls at Town Hall, Philadelphia and New York, London's Festival Hall, the Mozarteum . . . in jazz festivals such as Newport, the Music Barn, Monterey and Cannes . . . in contemporary music and art festivals such as the Decade of American Contemporary Music, Brussels, 1957, and this past summer, it had the distinction of being the first jazz group ever to appear at the Maggio Musicale Festival in Florence, Italy. The quartet has also appeared on college and university campuses throughout the United States and Europe, including Cornell, Oberlin, Vassar and the Universities of Connecticut, Colorado, Indiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Rhode Island and Wisconsin.

The MJQ has won many polls including the International Critic's Poll by Downbeat, Metronome All Star Poll and International Readers Poll. In 1957, John Lewis was named the Composer of the Year by Metronome and in the same year their version of "Django" was named the Record of the Year by many critics.

"The unique combination of compositional skill, instrumental technique, a musical direction, and firm roots in the jazz tradition has made the Modern Jazz Quartet the pace setting combo for contemporary jazz and has won them the reputation as the world's most outstanding jazz group, worthy of their number and placement on all jazz popularity and critics polls during the past several years."

Student Court Hosts Judiciary Conference

The Student Court of the University of Vermont is sponsoring a Joint Judiciary Conference on this coming Friday and Saturday, March 25th and 26th. This Conference is a new project and, from the enthusiasm shown by those colleges which will participate, it looks as if it will be a success.

The Conference has been arranged so the attending delegates from such colleges as: Clarkson, University of Delaware, University of Connecticut, Mt. Holyoke, University of Rhode Island, Syracuse University, etc., will participate in discussions that will suggest valuable ideas on Court operation and organization.

On Friday, the 25th, the Student Court representatives from the visiting colleges and universities will meet in the Memorial Lounge of Waterman at 5:00 o'clock P.M. Dinner will follow the initial meeting, and President Fey will be the guest speaker.

After dinner, the delegates will separate into various discussion groups where they will compare ideas on such topics as:

1. Organization of the Student Court
2. How to gain respect from the campus
3. Student Court sub-committees
4. Faculty-Student Court relationships
5. Student Court overlap with other judicial bodies

At 10:00 P.M., the discussion groups will remeet and give reports on their findings and conclusions concerning the topics.

On Saturday, the 26th, a Coffee Hour at 10:30 A.M. will start the day rolling, followed by a tour of the UVM campus.

The guest speaker, Federal Judge Ernest W. Gibson, of the 1st Circuit Court, will speak at 2:00 P.M. on some aspect of college level student court systems. The campus is invited to attend Judge Gibson's speech in the Student Lounge of Waterman.

Following Judge Gibson's speech, a panel, comprised of the visiting Chief Justices, will consider several mock cases concerning student violations and will, through debate, provide insight into the various techniques of arriving at punitive measures. The panel discussion is the last planned event of the Conference.

The Student Court Chief Justice, Stan Memminger, is responsible for initiating

"This Pendent World" Is Theme Of 1960 Vermont Conference

On March 30, 31, and April 1, the Vermont Conference Committee of the University of Vermont will hold its seventh annual event at the Ira Allen Chapel. Each presentation will begin at 8 P.M. The theme of the 1960 Conference is "This Pendent World." The speakers have been drawn from three fields. One is a physicist, the second is a correspondent from Asia, and the third is a modern poet.

On Wednesday, March 30, Nicholas Christofilos, a physicist from the Lawrence Radiation Laboratories at the University of California in Livermore, will speak on "Science and Civilization." He will be introduced by President John T. Fey.

It is only recently that the name of this self-taught physicist has been seen in the daily and weekly periodicals of the nation. The publicity has been stimulated by his work at Livermore and for his suggestion, offered in November, 1957, that it would be possible to inject fast particles into the earth's magnetic field at high altitude with the help of a nuclear explosion. Mr. Christofilos worked out the consequences of such an experiment. It was successfully carried out under the code name of ARGUS.

But Mr. Christofilos' other work in the field of nuclear physics is not less spectacular. At the end of 1952, he conceived the idea of developing a machine for the purpose of controlled release of thermoculear energy which is known by the name of ASTRON. He disclosed this concept to the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington for the first time in February, 1953. After about three years of theoretical work, the proposal for an experimental program was accepted by the Commission.

On June 2, 1953, Mr. Christofilos joined the Brookhaven National Laboratory, Long Island where he remained until the end of November, 1956. There he developed a theory to calculate the drift tubes of proton linear accelerator. The 50 Mev Brookhaven linear accelerator has subsequently been designed according to this theory.

Mr. Christofilos joined the University of California Radiation Laboratory in Livermore on December 2, 1956. His main work at Livermore is connected with the ASTRON. This machine is now in its early experimental stages. It is planned to consist of a circulating layer of highly accelerated electrons situated

Campus Primadonnas To Grace "Hairy Leg Ballet"

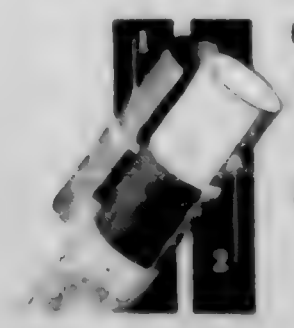
It's Leap year! The women have finally proposed to the men. The proposal is in the form of a dare. The women have dared the men to participate in the "Hairy Leg Ballet". This challenge will be accepted by the fraternities on campus Saturday, March 26, 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Auditorium.

The program will consist of 8 minute dance presentations in which there will be no speaking by the male participants, the owners of the hairy legs. The presentations will be judged on originality, theme, theme presentation and choreography. There will be a first and second place trophy for the top two presentations.

This ballet promises to be one of the most humorous events of the year. The Gym Fund Committee, the sponsor of this program, is working very hard to make this, it's first attempt, a complete success. The goal of the Gym Fund Committee which is composed of Representatives of IFC, Pan Hel., WSGA, S.A. class presidents and other students is to organize a campaign to raise money for the new gymnasium. The "Hairy Leg Ballet", the kick-off of this program, constitutes the first effort of the UVM student body to raise funds for these new athletic facilities. It is hoped that this committee will gain the cooperation of the student body in an all out effort to help build what promises to be the most beautiful sports center in the northeast.



The 1 out of 20 that didn't get smoked

There's a lot of satisfaction in pointing out something good to a friend. That's why it often happens that one cigarette out of a pack of Dual Filter Tareytons never does get smoked.

People break it open to demonstrate its unique Dual Filter containing Activated Charcoal. They may not know why it works so well, but they do know this: It delivers far more than high filtration . . . it brings out the best taste of the best tobaccos—as no single filter can!

Try a pack of Tareytons. We believe the extra pleasure they bring will soon have you passing the good word to your friends.

HERE'S HOW THE DUAL FILTER DOES IT:

1. It combines a unique inner filter of ACTIVATED CHARCOAL . . . definitely proved to make the smoke of a cigarette mild and smooth . . .
2. with an efficient pure white outer filter. Together they bring you the real thing in mildness and fine tobacco taste!

CYNIC Views The CENTAUR

By Deborah Godwin

Come Springtime, a "young man's fancy turns to thoughts of" And it's usually a woman's perogative or fancy to spring clean her abode. In a literal way, one might compare the CYNIC to this woman, because it is now the CYNIC's turn to spring clean and it is my task to air out the Centaur to the public.

Before we introduce you to this capable staff, we would like to explain the work of the Centaur and give its derivation.

According to a previous issue of the Centaur, Geoffrey Moss depicted the magazine in a literary nut shell. "The Centaur is a dualistic creature; man and horse, covertness at its head, its driving hoofs contradicting that rationality."

Now, we would like to introduce the staff to you.

First, we would like you to meet the Editor, Geoffrey Moss, who hails from White Plains, New York, and is an English Major. One of his many activities includes teaching at the Overlake School, a private school which develops the creative and artistic activities of children.

The staff includes:

Associate Editor - S.J. Alenick

Fiction Editors - Carl Sundstrom, Jr., who graduated first semester and replaced by Rick Demme, who shares the position with David Watson.

Poetry Editor - David R. Colburn

Art Editor - Ann Sommers

Business Manager - Peter Lorman

Circulation Manager - Theodore Brandwein

Advisors - Professor Leonidas M. Jones, Professor Herbert C. McArthur.

In completing the second series of this type of article, we would like to conclude by clearing up a misapprehension. Many students assume that the Centaur is a closed magazine. Most definitely not! If there is anything the Centaur wants, it is to receive as many contributions as possible. The Centaur is our literary magazine here at UVM. It is a representation of our feelings, emotions, and desires. Let's be possessive, UVM, and make the Centaur one of our most valuable possession.

CARMEN SELLS OUT BEFORE FIRST PERFORMANCE

The Arena Theatre has taken on a new three-sided look this week, as the University Players present an English-language version of the Bizet opera, "Carmen."

The Arena Theatre, which was constructed in the Fleming Museum in 1958, is designed so that one whole side of audience seating can be removed for special set requirements.

The "Carmen" production will feature the most extensive sets yet attempted in the UVM theatre, and will make use of one end of the arena usually occupied by the audience. The modified seating arrangement leaves 206 seats for each night's performance of the opera, compared to a maximum normal seating capacity of 290.

Annual Sugar Party Held

The tradition of sugar on snow was upheld again this year at the annual Dean Hill's Sugar Party. Students and townsfolk alike attended the party held in the Hill's Hall parking lot from 2-4 P.M.

For 75 cents the many people attending the party were entitled to the Vermont favorite, fresh maple sugar on snow. There were also pickles, coffee, and doughnuts served. An additional quarter entitled the participants to seconds.

Wood sawing contests were open to persons willing to try their skill. Tiny tots, girls, boys, students, and couples used either single or double saws to beat their their competitors and win prizes of maple sugar candy.

The Dean Hill's Sugar Party originated when Mr. Hill was Dean of the College of Agriculture. It is sponsored each year by the Agricultural honor society.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

Dick Petzold discusses time charges for a customer's telephone installation with an administrative assistant

How to avoid a "dead end" career: read Dick Petzold's story

While a senior at the University of Maryland, accounting major Richard G. Petzold made some definite decisions about his future. "I wanted to work for an established company," he says, "but I didn't want to get lost in a 'dead end' job."

Dick joined the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company in Washington, D. C., right after graduating in June, 1956. Following three months of orientation, he became a supervisor in Revenue Accounting, where he continued training in a productive capacity, with 15 people reporting to him. Here, he suggested a number of methods improvements which were adopted.

Far from a "dead end" career, Dick's took him into many operating areas:

• to General Accounting, where he handled market research projects, including a Customer Opinion Survey for four Bell System companies . . .

• to Disbursements Accounting, for IBM-equipment training and, later on, the supervision of Payroll Deduction procedures . . .

• to Personnel Relations, where he coordinated a special, four-company "absentee" study and presented findings to an important, top-level conference . . .

• to Disbursements Accounting again, where he is now Supervisor, Labor and Material, with an administrative assistant and 10 clerks under his guidance.

"The telephone company brings out the best in you," says Dick. "I've developed new skills, acquired self-reliance, and learned how to supervise and work with people. What's the opposite of a 'dead end' career? Well, I've got it!"

Dick Petzold earned a B.S. degree in Accounting while in college. He's one of many young men with varied college backgrounds who are finding rewarding careers with the Bell Telephone Companies. Disclaimer Affidavit

Recently, the UVM chapter of the American Association of University Professors and the University Senate have announced opposition to the controversial Disclaimer Affidavit. We believe that a thorough understanding of what is involved is necessary before any students either condemn or praise their action.

Under the National Defense Education Act of 1958, federal money is available for student loans on very generous terms. Before a student can receive money under this program, however, he must take an oath of loyalty to the United States Government, and he must also execute an affidavit disclaiming belief in the overthrow of the United States' Government, and disclaiming membership in any organization which so believes. The objections that have been raised have been against this second requirement.

STAND OF AAUP AND SENATE

The AAUP and the University Senate object to the affidavit on several grounds. They say that it is futile and hareful because a person with subversive intentions would not hesitate to execute the affidavit, while it is the person who will not sign the affidavit on principal who may later suffer from a misrepresentation of his refusal. The affidavit, they claim, is superfluous in any case because the affiicant must, in any case, take the loyalty oath, which eliminates the possibility of subversion.

TRUSTEES "NO OBJECTION"

Meanwhile the Trustees of the University have said that they "see no objection to the affidavit." It is quite important that this stand is not misinterpreted as active support for the affidavit. What this really means is that as far as the University itself is concerned, there is no attempt at pressure from the government. The question of whether or not to sign the affidavit is entirely between the student and the government. If the student does not feel that he can execute the Disclaimer Affidavit, there is money available from other University sources. He need not even apply for the NDEA funds. According to the University Trustees, the University has no grounds for objections to the oath. The Trustees do not support the affidavit: they simply refuse to condemn it.

Our sympathies are with the AAUP and the Senate. We fully support the condemnation of the Disclaimer Affidavit. The affidavit is harmful, futile, and superfluous. Although there has been little student action here at UVM for repeal of the Disclaimer Affidavit, we feel that the action taken will spur the interest of the students in this all-important issue. Then, too, a body such as the AAUP or the University Senate has far more influence than the relatively unorganized student body.

There is a bill before Congress now which will remove the Disclaimer Affidavit. With the influence of the groups concerned, and only with their influence, will this bill be passed. We thank the AAUP and the Senate for the pressure they have brought to bear for the repeal of the affidavit.

Letters To The Editor:

Library Speaks

To the Editor of the Cynic:

Your "Editorial, Library Problems" demands that issue be taken on two scores.

There is no rule that a book must be kept for an entire semester when borrowed from Billings. Many students keep books for a short period, a few days to a week or two, many for longer periods. It is because so many students return books as soon as their need is satisfied that we took a second look at our arbitrarily imposed two-week loan period and liberalized it. Loan periods of a month or a semester are not uncommon in academic libraries today.

Let this comment, however, not minimize the excellence of your presentation of the difficulty faced the borrower in obtaining books. I wish all our students and faculty recognized this problem and thus began their research as early as possible for it is a service limitation present in every library. Books that are off the shelf must be recalled whether the loan period is short or long. This is a time consuming process.

The student's responsibility to return borrowed University property is entirely overlooked in your "Editorial". The student tacitly agrees, when borrowing a book, to return it - as soon as he has finished with it! Any loan system is dependent on this principle. Under a two-week loan system many books are renewed, many fall overdue ultimately to be returned or paid for after extensive follow-up by the library. The number of delinquent borrowers seems to be no greater under the shorter or the longer loan period. Maybe the SA Library Committee should consider these "problems" at its next meeting?

To the Editor:

On the weekend of March 17-19, the Lawrence Debate Club was ably represented by Marilyn Van Graber and Charlie Tierney at the New England Regional Tournament --- a filtering out tournament to determine the five best teams from each district to be sent to the Nationals at West Point in April. Marilyn and Charlie tied for first along with Dartmouth and Harvard, and will be among the five best teams from New England at the Nationals. It is the belief of the coaches that they stand as good a chance to win as the team that brought home the cake in 1950. They'll be meeting rough competition at West Point, matching their forensic ability against the best in the country. Let's give them moral support! Let's at least show the Nation that Vermont Spirit has not totally expired! If we can't beat the "Ivy Leagues" at anything else -- we can at debate. Let's do it!!

Likes Shaw

Dear Editor:

It amazed me that you should print as indifferent, and in fact as bad a review of the Robert Shaw chorale's Mass in B Minor as you did. I am not merely trying to say that you were the only local paper that did give it a bad review, but I wish to point out that it is the most striking and one of the most artistically perfect productions of anything that I have ever seen. I was completely overwhelmed by the magnificent performance. Being rather familiar with many of Bach's works, including this one, I might say that it matches any version I have ever heard, including the Von Karajan and the Scherchen. The only faults I was able to find with it were that the Cum Sancto Spiritu and Osannas were sung a little too lightly and liltingly, rather than powerfully, somewhat like the Von Karajan version -- and that the big horn in the latter parts of the performance failed on several occasions. The coordination of the chorus and between the chorus and the orchestra, which I thought was also very good, was magnificent. The soloists impressed me, particularly the bass, who had one of the most beautiful voices I've ever heard, although the soprano wasn't quite clear enough. Several parts of the performance, particularly the final chorus Dona Nobis Pacem, were powerfully and touchingly done. Shaw is by far the most vigorous and spirited conductor I have ever seen with the exception of Leonard Bernstein, and possibly Charles Munch.

I might add that two friends of mine in the dorm, neither one of whom had ever particularly liked Bach or any baroque music, were seemingly as overwhelmed by the performance as I was. One of the two had heard parts of my recording of the mass beforehand (with Scherchen) and didn't even want to go. We almost had to drag him down; he was glad we did.

I think that any panning or negative comment about a performance such as the Robert Shaw chorale presented should at least be accompanied by a good deal more of backing up with clear reasons and analysis, rather than just dismissing the performance with a wave of the hand as "second-rate."

Sincerely yours,
Dick Rosichan

SCA Drive

We have all been aware of the recent and widespread student demonstrations against the end of discrimination at lunch-counter policies in stores and public buildings. In a larger sense, this is a symbolic demonstration against discrimination of any sort.

As a result, many students who are sacrificing what little freedom they have by being arrested and expelled from their colleges and universities.

As fellow students we are also concerned for the enforcement of the ACADEMIC FREEDOM, and all inalienable rights. The Student Christian Association is starting a fund drive to support these students in their struggle for freedom and equality.

The fund will be named for JIM LAWSON who has been active in NSCF and several on the campus have come to know well. He was recently arrested and expelled from Vanderbilt University Divinity School. The money collected will be used for the defense of Jim and all the other "Jim Lawsons" and for scholarships to help students expelled from their seminaries and universities as a result of the demonstrations.

You are urged on this basis to discover what is your obedinece under God's purpose in the place where you stand today, regardless of YOUR race or religion.

Make checks payable to the National Student Christian Federation, and mail or take them to Janet Carpenter at 43 South Prospect St. or Slade Hall. Be sure to designate it for the "Jim Lawson Fund."

The Melting Pot

By ROGER ZIMMERMAN

Not too long ago, someone had asked me if the CYNIC had ever been censored. I was honestly able to answer "no". Since I've been with the paper I have yet to see a case of censorship. This seems to me to be an important point, perhaps more important than any other aspect of the newspaper. Just the other day I was reading through another collegiate newspaper, and directly on top of the masthead there was a statement which, in effect, said that the paper was practically engineered by the administration. The opposite situation exists in the case of the CYNIC. Neither myself, Eddie Darer, or the Editor-in-Chief have ever been told what to write, or what not to write. Thus the administration goes out on a limb in never knowing what is in the paper until the actual day of publication. Naturally, this places much more responsibility in the hands of the Senior Staff. But it also makes for a newspaper that is thoroughly bred in the tradition of "the press".

The CYNIC's "Letters to the Editor" column is one more example of the newspaper's willingness to express student thought, within accepted limits of morality. It was really quite a surprise to see in last week's CYNIC more than the usual number of letters. And what's more important, all of them said something worth saying. If the trend in increasing the size of that column continues, the newspaper, by necessity, will benefit in the direction of diversified commentary.

HERE AND THERE

As reported by the picturesque New York Daily News, things down on the San Francisco City College campus seem to have been somewhat disturbed by the natural endowments of a pretty coed. The coed, who rings with that quality of "joi de vivre", has created a sensation. Her wardrobe of snug fitting, to say the least, sweaters and skirts, and the way that the wardrobe hangs on her 41-24-36 "Grecian" figure, have launched a bit of protest from administrative heads. Meanwhile, back at the coffee shop, seems as though the male populacehas experienced a certain amount of difficulty in keeping their eyeballs within their heads. The Dean of Women, however, brought the matter to a close when she told the coed to limit her excursions about campus to a minimum. The coed, protesting violently, cited the Magna Carta, Bill of Rights, etc. in an effort to bring in the moral aspect of the issue. But the Dean only objected more vehemently than before, and told our affable coed to take a good long look in a full-length mirror.

Henry V To Be Presented

"O for a Muse of fire, that would ascend
The brightest heaven of invention:
A kingdom for a stage,
princes to act,
And monarchs to behold the swelling scene."
Henry V: act 1 scene 1

The presenting of tennis balls by French ambassadors to England's youthful Henry V, the famous battle of Agincourt, and the wooing of France's Kate, are some of the highlights in the film version of Henry V, which is to be presented on April 3, 1960, at 2:30 P.M. and at 7:15 P.M. by the University of Vermont Cultural Activities Committee. The movie will be shown at Southwick.

William Shakespeare's Henry V, first presented in 1599, is by no means a play entirely about clouds of flying arrows, charging steeds and hand to hand combat between the leaders of armies. It is a drama where self-expression and self-realization play leading roles. Shakespeare presented the characters of young Henry, Kate, Pistol and others so colorfully in his day, that their speeches, feelings and ideas still retain the romance, warmth and humour today as it did when it was written nearly three and a half centuries ago.

Young Hal (later Henry V) in the play Henry IV, spent his early years in the local taverns where the sack flowed freely and humorous pranks involving Falstaff and Pistol were not uncommon. While the sack flowed freely and the pranks continued, the heir apparent paid little attention to the nation's problems. As the time passes the young Hal replaces the sack mug with a sword and leads his father's forces to a stunning victory over the rebel forces in the North. Following the defeat of the rebels and the death of his father, he becomes so dedicated to the role of monarch that there is no time for parties. The transition is so complete that when the elderly Falstaff calls to his old tavern friend who is in a parade, Henry stops, looks at him and says, "I know you not, old man." With this condemnation of his frivolous past, Henry V comes to an end.

As the curtains are drawn aside for Henry V we see a young monarch extremely dedicated to the problems of the island nation particularly to the age old rival across the English Channel. It is the same Hal who leads a handful of English bowmen to Agincourt to face the large forces of the French. On the eve of battle Hal goes from camp fire to camp fire bolstering the courage of his men. The next day results in a tremendous victory for the small English army.

Highlights

By EDSON DARER

Good afternoon. This Saturday night something new is being innovated. The Gymnasium Fund Committee, under the auspices of the Interfraternity Council, is holding a "Hairy Leg Ballet". The purpose of the "Ballet" is to raise money for the new gymnasium. This is the first unified effort that the students of this University have attempted while trying to raise funds for the new gym. The whole thing started with a dare from the women students to the men, that the men would not have enough nerve to put on a ballet. Many here have said that this so-called ballet will only show the low intellectual level of the UVM male student. The idea was suggested by Professor John Teal last year. He picked it up while attending school at Harvard. Thirteen fraternities have entered and it should prove to be interesting as well as entertaining.

WHERE TO STUDY

Sunday at UVM is usually a day of rest. Some people like to study on their day of rest and prepare for Monday classes. Trying to find a place to study on Sunday morning is like trying to find a needle in the haystack. The library is closed until two o'clock and all the rooms in Waterman are closed for the day. The only place that is open is the reading room in Waterman. By ten o'clock, this is almost packed to capacity. When the library opens, the crowd starts filtering in. By three-thirty, the library is full, and remains so until closing.

Once before, I wrote about the need of confining the Billings library to UVMers. This still holds true. It is hard to find a seat in that building when only UVM students use it. When students from other schools use the library to study in, it is impossible to find a seat and the only way out, is to go to the movies. Since the movies change here very infrequently, it is hard to maintain a schedule. It is my firm belief that Billings library should be used only by students from UVM. Perhaps, when the new library is built, this situation can be alleviated. Until then, there is nothing else that can be done.

WINTER OVER???

Spring is finally here, on the calendar that is. Is winter really gone??.On last Monday we had some snow. Who knows when winter actually ends here? There used to be an old saying that Vermont only had two seasons, "winter and the Fourth of July." But, only time will tell when the beach parties start and when, the tops of convertibles come down and the drive-ins open and the rest of activity that can only take place in the spring will actually start. My guess is right after spring vacation. Hmmm, could I be right? So long for now.

The first prize is a 1960 Zenith Hi-Fi-Stereo Console Record Player. The second prize is a 24-cup West Bend automatic percolator. They will be awarded to the housing units collecting the highest and second highest numbers of Marlboro, Philip Morris, Parliment, and Alpine boxes and packages.

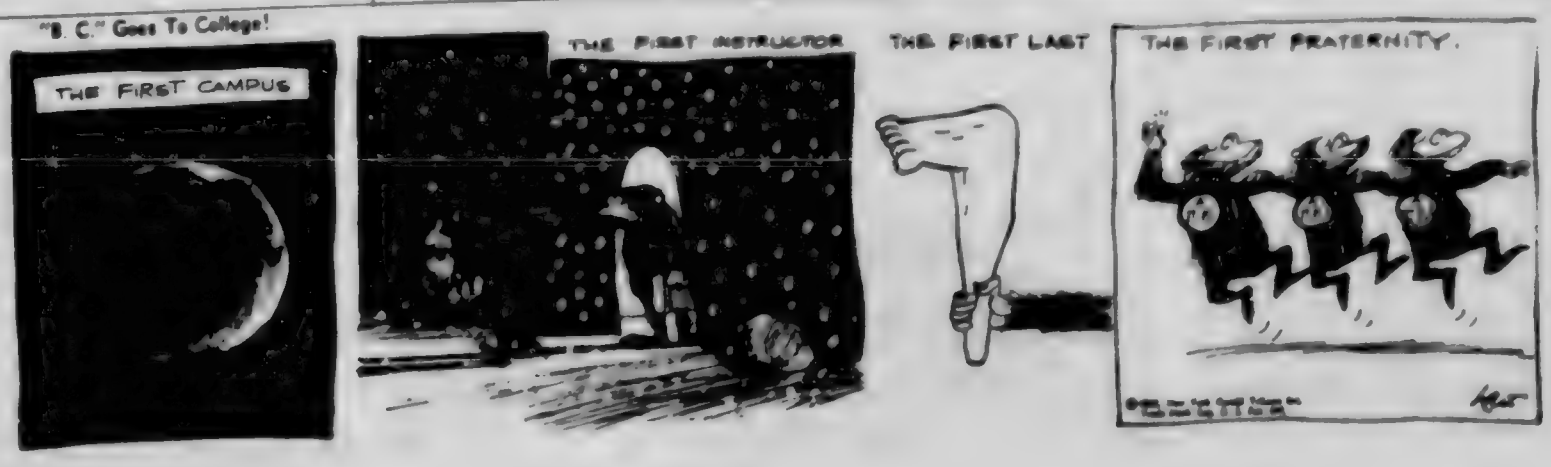
2. Only empty whole boxes and packages of Marlboros, Philip Morris, Parliment, and Alpine of a current package or reasonable facsimile thereof are eligible.

3. All boxes and packages must be in lots of 25 with the name of the housing unit plainly marked on each lot.



4. Boxes and packs are to be turned in between 1 and 2 P.M., April 29 at the Student Association Council Room, 48 Waterman.

5. In case of a tie, a drawing will be held.

Dental Hygiene Dean's List

Four students enrolled in the University of Vermont School of Dental Hygiene have been named to dean's list for the fall semester. Named to top honors, with an average of 91.9, was Mary P. Ploof of Burlington. Students achieving averages of 85-90 were: Merle E. Tucker of Barre, E. Jean Young of West Springfield, Mass., and Susan Dahl of Burlington.

Across the Campus

by SANDY CAMERON

This 'n That

At last Spring is here! That "Lucky Us" feeling is getting warmer and warmer and the days are getting longer and longer. We can look forward to many things such as: spring formals, beach parties, baseball games, term papers due, (and not too far off) final exams. (How quick!) admit, kids, it's better than the average.)

The melodious voices of Vermont's fraternities and sororities can already be heard doing scales and "do-re-mis" in preparation for the I.F.C. Sing. From reports, we're sure that all are working their hardest and best. Keep up the good work.

By the way, don't forget the Harry Lago Ballet to be presented by the men!!! on campus Saturday, March 26, at the Memorial Auditorium.

CLOSED SIGS

Congratulations to Rhoda Heald, AlPi, '62, and Jim Osei of Burlington, who were married on Saturday, March 19. Also congratulations are in order for Joan Rosie, Gamma Phi, '60, and Fred Norton, Sigma Phi Epsilon, '60, who were recently pinned.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

We all would like to congratulate Ellen Lissner, who was recently elected President of S.A.G.A., Caroline Thomas, who was elected President of Pan Hellenic, and Susan Richterman, who was elected Assistant Social Chairman of S.A.G.A.

Recently we had an exchange dinner with Alpha Tau Omega which was enjoyed by all.

ALPHA DELTA PI

The Alpha Delts would like to thank the Acacian Pledges who helped to demolish our snow sculpture. Patty Freel is back from the International Ski Races in Stowe with a minimum of bruises and lots of memories. Gimmy Lee was elected Violet Girl of the month.

The pledge tea with the Phi Delts was a great success and a good time for all. Marion Force was chosen pledge of the week.

GAMMA PHI BETA

This past week "the" social event was the party the sisters of Gamma Phi put on for our pledges, also inviting the pledges of Alpha Chi, Delta Psi, SAE, and Sig Ep. To make all the pledges feel at home the walls of 381 Main were decorated with huge replicas of all the pledge pins on campus. Besides dancing and refreshments, there was entertainment provided by the sisters, which included a masterful rendition of "Show Me the Way to Go Home," by Anne Porter, Rachel Rice, and Bart Rifkin. Result? Another real good party at the house.

All the Gamma Phi's enjoyed the traditional pinning serenade supplied by the Sig Ep brothers for Joan Rosie, recently pinned to Fred Norton.

Congratulations to Lois Beadle, '61, who was elected secretary of Pan Hellenic and Barbara Rifkin, '62, the new S.A.G.A. treasurer.

This Saturday night, the 26th, is Gamma Phi's annual Undersea Party - newly christened "Nightmare Shuffle". There will be dancing to the music of the Big Sig Jazz band and refreshments. The party is open to everyone - who breaks the ice? Wear a seaworthy, seafaring costume and you're ready to sail up the gang plank.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Winter and Ice may still be in the heat of the contest, but A.T.O.'s politicians campaign away their slivers and blood pressures for another year. As of this month, a new slate of officers will lead ATO Tau. Succeeding Jack Lancaster as house president will be last year's treasurer, Ike Morse. Ike will receive capable assistance from his new vice-president, Joe Forgai. The new Coin-Hoarder at 21 Williams is the tight-fisted, penny-pincher from Barre, Gene "Scrooge" Galfetti. From now on, all transcriptions of the brothers' meetings will have a Brooklyn accent, inasmuch, as the new secretary is Ian Thompson.

Rounding out the commanding crew at the house, we are happy to report that G.G. Gutterman did not get an office. He's a ghost.)

However, those who did were Bill Morrison, Usher, "Chief" Bechard, Steward, Harry Janssen, House Manager, Jerry Lynch, Senior I.F.C., Dave Leggon, Junior I.F.C., Bob Gutman, Historian.

Man, like the boys at A.T.O. are a swingin' group. On March twelve 26, the team is planning a Beatnik party. Some real frantic maneuvers are planned for this orgiastic pad on that night. Be cool, man.?

PHI DELTA THETA

Peace and quiet reigned over the Phi Delt homestead this past week as most of the members were catching up on the sleep they're losing in an effort to maintain the much-strived-for 78 house average. The serenity was shattered once an evening, however, when a little nervous tension was released in the form of I.F.C. Sing rehearsal led by "Smoothie" Brigham and "Traveler" Andrews.

Saint Paddy's Day celebration was shared with the Theta's in the form of an Exchange Dinner will all the festive trimmings including green milk. Saturday evening the Phi house was the scene of another successful informal gathering with Mrs. Nevers again acting as the amiable hostess. These informal get-togethers seem to be finding their way into the weekly events of the Marble Palace and we personally hope they will continue.

Seems like the armor of the Silver Knights needs a little oil as the volleyball team dropped one to a great ATO combo and then started the comeback trail in knocking off Delt Psi. "Tiger" Kolstrom is now conducting evening lectures in the TV room on the "Art of Volleyball as a Character Builder."

Who took the pie? Who borrowed part of the washing machine? How long now, Vic?.. only the Shadow knows...

SIGMA NU

Last Saturday night, the Sig Nus had a novel "out-of-season" Halloween Party. A prize was awarded to the couple voted the most "Gruesome Twosome". The costumes were based on various themes

Craft Exhibit At Fleming

A new crafts exhibit is now at the Fleming Museum. Called "Wood Design", it deals with craftsmanship and design in wood in furniture, table ware, and a variety of useful and decorative things in the home. Various techniques of working in wood are illustrated in large, free standing photographic displays and in original objects by contemporary craftsmen. Shown are methods, both new and old, of carving, turning, laminating, and joining. The emphasis is on modern work, but older objects -- from as far back as ancient Egypt, are illustrated to point up the unchanging values of good craftsmanship and design. Among the craftsmen and designers whose work appears are: Joyce and Edgar Anderson, David R. Campbell, Marton Esherick, George Nakashima, Hans Wegner, and Tapio Wirkkala. Sponsored by the American Craftsmen's Council, the exhibit comes here from the Museum of Contemporary Crafts in New York City.

The exhibit will be the occasion for a Wood Workshop at the Museum, Saturday, March 26, sponsored by the Vermont Arts and Crafts Service. Guest speakers are Walker Weed and Donald McKinley, who is represented in the show. They will also participate in a panel discussion on wood crafts with Reverend Mr. Lynwood Smith, Director of the Shelburne Crafts School, as moderator.

The exhibit will be on through April 3.

SIGMA PHI

The pledges have been painting part of the "play room" and in the process have painted most of the cellar -- here and there. If the spots could be accumulated on one wall, lower Waterman would be all done.

Nine brothers attended the annual March Tunk held in New York City, March 4th. Chester B. Eaton, UVM Trustee, was the main speaker. As a point of interest, 6th Ave. is one way ... the other way.

Last weekend the pledges, after removing excess paint, opened the Sig house for the annual pledge party. The theme was: come as you are in costume. A Parker house roll won the first place and the judges prefer to remain anonymous.

THETA CHI

Despite the end-of-Winter doldrums, the Theta Chi's remain active in the various I.F.C. activities. The volleyball team is doing well, a team was entered in the Ski Meet, and preparations are under way both for the field and track events and for the not too distant softball league. Dick Aldinger, Athletic Chairman of the TC's, is working the boys hard to get them in shape.

Congratulations to Phi Mu Delta on their purchase of a house near us. Best of luck to a new neighbor.

PHI SIGMA DELTA

The Phi Sigs held the rest of their elections last Monday night. The following have been elected to office: Joel Selden, Alumni Secretary; Howard Brown, Historian; Mark M. Platt, Corresponding Secretary, Dan Landeau, Steve Albert, and Stan Messinger, Senior Rep. to Exec. Committee, Steve Kuperstein, Junior Rep. to Exec Committee, and Jerry Jacobson, Sophomore Rep. to Exec. Committee.

The house sends its heartiest congratulations to Frater Don Colson on his pinning to Yvonne Beaudoin of Boston U. and to Frater Ira Raff on his pinning to Vivian Sourifman, '62.

Following the battle Henry removes his armor and goes to the French Court where he sees the lovely Kate. Henry proceeds to woo Kate inspite of the language barrier. By the quality of love the barrier is broken and the two are married.

Such plays as Henry V appealed to all classes of English society from members of the royal court right on down to the rural peasant. Such plays by Shakespeare and other Elizabethan dramatists drew large crowds to such theatres as the Globe and Swan. Inspite of the Puritan feeling against the theatre the stage grew in popularity.

To explain more about the Elizabethan stage, its writers and plays, there will be a lecture given by Dr. Harry Levin of Harvard University on April 5, 1960, at 7:30 P.M. The title of Dr. Levin's lecture will be Henry V in Shakespeare's Time. The speaker presently heads the Department of Modern Languages and has written such books as The Broken Column, The Overreacher, James Joyce: A Critical Introduction, as well as several other books. He has been decorated with the Chevalier Legion of Honor and received a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1943. Dr. Levin will speak in the Student Lounge.

Players' Carousel On LP

Disc-jockeys on the University of Vermont campus are plugging a brand new record these days, but there's no payola involved in their enthusiasm.

The record is a long-play disc of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel", recorded by members of the student cast which played to sell-out UVM audiences last fall.

Technical know-how for the recording came from the staff of WRUV, campus radio station, which tape-recorded the show at special sessions in the UVM Arena Theatre.

The record won't set any sales records though. According to a University Players spokesman, only 100 copies of the album were pressed. "Just enough for members of the cast and a limited number of fans," the student spokesman said.

AFROTC Drill Team Ranks High In Competition

The UVM AFROTC Drill Team, commanded by Cadet 2nd Lt. Stanley E. Van Horn, Jr., and coached by Captain Robert E. Roseen and S/Sgt. John M. Maxwell, set out for Westover A.F.B. early Saturday morning March 12, in defense of its "armed drill" championship. Upon arrival, the team members were assigned to quarters and were then on a guided tour of the flight line. The team spent several hours Saturday evening in preparation for the competition which took place Sunday morning and afternoon.

Drill competition is broken down into armed and unarmed categories. Each of the seven teams in the armed division executed five minutes of standard drill and ten minutes of silent trick routine. Judging the teams involved an evaluation of attitude, appearance, difficulty of the trick routine and various other elements which comprise the make-up of military bearing.

The UVM Cadets took first place in the preliminary competition with a score of 77, the next highest was a score of 71 claimed by Tufts University.

The final competition Sunday afternoon saw UVM, Tufts, and the University of Mass. battling for first place. Each member of the UVM team put his heart and soul into that final competition and came up with an excellent performance, but to no avail. The race between UVM and U. Mass. was very close. The UVM Cadets bowed out and gave first place to U. Mass. by .8 of a point.

The victory was quite significant in view of the fact that the team had only five veterans of last year's prize-winning squad including Stanley E. Van Horn, Jr., of Middlebury who commanded this year's group for the first time.

Other members back from last year were: O. Reed Humphreys of Burlington, Charles O. Marsh of Springfield, Mass., William B. Widlund of Brandon, and Ronald R. Wilson of Essex Junction.

THE SEARCH FOR BRIDEY SIGAFOOS

It was a dullish evening at the Pretty House. The pledges were down in the catacombs, the actives were sacked out upstairs, and living proof of anything Mary Ellen Krumbund was sticking pins in an effigy of the housemother. Beverly Zoomaster was weaving a mattress cover to her charm bracelet. Algebra McKeesport was writing a letter to Fatima to boast. Like I say, it was a dullish evening.

Suddenly Isadora Vladimir stood up and stamped her foot. "I hate," she said to her sisters, "this to-do you're making. Let's do something gay and mad and gasp-making. Anybody got an idea?"

"No," said the sisters, shaking their little sausage curls.

"Think, crate, think!" said Isadora and passed Marlboro cigarettes to everybody, for if there ever was a smoke to start you thinking, it is mild and flavorful Marlboro. Things come clear when you puff that good clean smoke through that fine filter. Knots untie, dilemmas dissolve, problems evaporate, cobwebs vanish, fog disperses, and the benevolent sun pours radiance on a new and dewy world. Oh, happy world! Oh, Marlboro! Oh, soft pack! Oh, flip-top box! Oh, get some already!

"I have brown eyes and I weigh 3200 pounds."

Now Geraldine Quadruno, her drooping brain cells revivified by a good Marlboro, leapt up and cried, "Oh, I have a perfect gasser of an idea! Let's hypnotize somebody!"

"Oh, capital!" cried the sisters. "Oh, tingle-making!"

At this point in walked a young pledge named Alice Bluegum. "Excuse me, mistresses," said she, tugging her forelock, "I have finished making your beds, doing your homework, and ironing your pleats. Will there be anything else?"

"Yes," snapped Isadora Vladimir. "When I count to three, you will be hypnotized."

"Yes excellency," said Alice, bobbing a curtsey.

"One, two, three," said Isadora.

Alice promptly went into a trance.

"Go back," said Isadora, "back into your childhood. Go back to your fifth birthday, back to your birth, to before your birth, to your last incarnation. Now, who are you?"

"My name is Bridey Sigafoos," said Alice. "The year is 1818, and I am in County Cork."

"Cool," said the sisters.

"How old are you?" asked Isadora.

"I am seven," said Alice.

"Where is your mother?" asked Isadora.

"I don't know," said Alice. "She got sold at the fair last year."

"Cool," said the sisters.

"Tell us about yourself," said Isadora.

"I am five feet tall," said Alice. "I have brown eyes, and I weigh 3200 pounds."

"Cool," said the sisters.

"Isn't that rather heavy for a girl?" said Isadora.

"What's a girl?" said Alice. "I'm a black and white guernsey."

"Cool," said the sisters.

"Moo," said Bridey Sigafoos.

We, the makers of Marlboro, have our doubts about this story. About cigarettes, however, we hold these truths to be self-evident: Marlboro for filter smokers, Philip Morris for non-filter smokers. Try some.

The most difficult puzzle in the world

Do you have a solution?

In high school, you may have thought you had the solution, only to have it vanish. In college, it may seem well within your grasp, only to vanish again. But this is not unusual. It's a very difficult puzzle.

The puzzle? How to find your life's work. The solution? It comes only with searching. It may be right under your nose or it may still be far away in the future.

But the solution will come. You will very probably find it in the work you undertake after college.

This has proved true many times at IBM. For instance, young engineers and scientists—after learning the scope of IBM activities in research, development and manufacturing—have found their interests leading them into such vital growth fields as microwaves, circuit design, solid state physics, magnetics and manufacturing research. Depending on individual talents and inclinations, a college graduate may acquire skills at IBM that lead to a variety of careers.

When a person is able to move into areas where his true interests lie, and when he has many areas to choose from, it will certainly be easier for him to find his life's work.

After all, it's easier to find the solution to The Most Difficult Puzzle in the World when you have access to all the clues.

IBM.

You are invited to investigate opportunities in Research, Development, Manufacturing, Programming, and other fields. Your Placement Director can tell you when our representatives will next visit your campus. Or you may write to: Manager of Technical Employment, Dept. 873, IBM Corporation, 590 Madison Avenue, New York 22, N. Y.

Born in Calcutta, Mr. Chaudhuri graduated from the University of Calcutta and did graduate work at the University of Edinburgh, taking first place in the Honors Group in International Law. His further graduate work was done at the University of London in the fields of economics and political science. During World War II he worked in Great Britain as an administrative officer in a munitions plant and after the war, did broadcasting on international affairs on the Overseas Program of the British Broadcasting Corporation. After each speaker's talk in their respective evening, a discussion at the Waterman Student Lounge will follow where coffee will be served. Admission is free.

Chairmen Elected For Senior Week

Seniors Karen Johnson and Michael Rosenthal have been elected by their classmates as Co-Chairmen of the 1960 Senior Week, gala CVM pre-graduation fun-packed holiday, to be held this year from June 8th through 12th.

Karen hails from Hackettstown, N.J., and is an Elementary Education major in the College of Education and Nursing. A member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, Karen currently holds the post of W.S.G.A. Look At The Cat Fielders

by Doug Erskine

Last week Do [illegible] covered a story on the backbone of the University of Vermont's baseball team - the pitching staff. This week we turn to the infield and outfield and see what will be backing those pitchers up on the defense and the offense.

Although with the annual Southern trip just around the corner a definite infield or outfield has not been established. Coach Hoop Lapointe has relatively few worries as to the structural weakness of his team. The coach has been quoted in saying, "These ten contain the best baseball material I have seen in my ten years of coaching at UVM." The coach also indicates a hard decision in making the sixteen or seventeen players to represent the Cat squad on the trip south.

This year the team will be co-captained by seniors Gerry Cassidy and Charlie Isles. This will be their third year in varsity competition, Isles as the nimble footed, quick handed short stop, and Cassidy as the powerful, hard hitting center-fielder. Both these men know their baseball and have the potential of becoming professionals in the sport. Isles has played in the Nova Scotia League, a summer time, amateur league for college ball players, and Cassidy has received several offers to join the professional ranks.

Looking at the infield members of the team, we will see left-handed Reg Godin, returning veteran, holding down the first base position and if necessary playing other infield positions as well as the outfield. At the second base position we will more than likely be seeing Bill Federici a very good, flashy fielder. Bill is a newcomer to the squad, being a transfer student, but displays a tremendous talent as a fielder and a hitter, and promises to lend a big hand to the team. The other possibility for that position is the left-handed batter Maynard Ducatte. "Duke" is also a strong ball player both hitting and fielding, having a summer of amateur ball behind him in the Nova Scotia League along with Isles. The short stop slot will be filled by Isles with Nick Carmoli. Carmoli, a sophomore, is another right-handed batter and an excellent defensive man, displaying a good fielding ability. Levi Brown, Jim Evans, and Ducatte are the three men working to tie down the third sack position. All three played starting roles with the freshman team last year and gave the team a great boost.

In the outfield, the centerfield is the only position which is not open. Gerry Cassidy will fill the center slot while Jim Evans, Levi Brown, Bill Morrison, Spike Jarret, and Dan Prescott try to sew up the other two positions.

As for the offense, the team looks as though it is power-packed. The main concern of Coach Lapointe at the moment is the lack of right handed power hitting. The right handed hitters the team will have to depend on are: Bill Federici, Bill Morrison, Jim Evans, and Spike Jarret. Cassidy, a lefty, led the team in hitting last year with a sizzling .375 batting average. Charlie Isles contributed consistent hitting as did Reg Godin, who was second in the hitting department last year. Two other left handers, Maynard Ducatte and Levi Brown, show good college baseball material. Brown, who has good power, has been hitting very well in the cage and should he continue to do so outdoors, will find himself in a starting position.

With this solid, well-rounded group of ball players, Coach Lapointe feels the team will have an excellent season. He also knows it will be an even better season if the team receives our support. So let's see you out at Centennial Field this spring cheering the Catamounts to a very successful season.

IFC SKI RESULTS

Last Saturday, March 19, the annual IFC Ski Meet was run on the Little Spruce slope at Stowe. The event was a slalom, with first place out of eight competing fraternities going to Delta Psi. Following were Sigma Phi, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Theta Chi, Acacia, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Alpha Tau Omega in that order.

Individual honors in the meet went to Pete Coyle who posted a first place time of 22.2 seconds for the course. Following Coyle were Steve Berry and Brant Duffy tied for second with a time of 22.3 secs. On down the list were Steve Dyke, Dave Limskic, T. Clark, Lou Hronek, Mike Bartenstein and Ray Tuggey.

Don't forget that next Monday and Wednesday, March 28 and 30, the IFC Relays will be run in the gym. Consult Gym bulletin board for further information regarding this.

Chad's Chatter

by J. D. Chadwick

Looking around the campus, it seems doubtful that the baseball team will see green grass until they take the field against Columbia in New York City less than three short weeks away.

From observations in the cage, it looks as though Coach Lapointe is faced with the tough problem of selecting a starting nine. He must choose between many versatile ball players. Reg Godin can play either outfield or infield, but it looks as though he has the inside track at first base. Young Jim Evans is getting an extensive workout in both the infield and the outfield and is almost sure to see action in some capacity this year. Nick Carmoli is another experienced rookie with a fast pair of hands who is being given a good look for possible infield duties.

Up from last year's frosh team is Levi Brown who can play third base as well as the outfield but presently is being given an opportunity behind the plate. The Cats can definitely use Brownie's power, but it's going to be tough to move veteran Bob Davis or candidate Mike Pearo from behind the plate. Bill Morrison looks like a good prospect to fill one of the outfield positions. The only sure starters at present are Co-Captains Charlie Isles and Gerry Cassidy along with infielders Bill Federici and Maynard Ducatte. So it looks as though Coach Lapointe will have to act as another Casey Stengal in his attempts to round up the best starting nine. There's enough versatility so that all of the above will see quite a bit of action. Let's just hope that the pitching staff, headed by "Harry the Horse" Zingg can carry their share of the load.

Congratulations to Charlie Isles on making 2nd Team All Yankee Conference. From this point of view, Charlie is as good as anyone on the Y.C. first team. Look for Charlie to capture the All Conference slot at shortstop this spring. Also look for Gerry Cassidy to haul down to position of center field on the same team if his batting eye continues to be as sharp as it was last year. Reports now have it that Cassidy is hitting the ball even harder than his big .375 batting average of last season indicated.

I haven't forgotten the matter of spirit that I dealt with two weeks ago. As a matter of fact, I've had a lot of people come up and see me about the subject. Most seem to agree with my point of view. I feel that Miss Jacobsen knows how dead the spirit is from her attempts to arouse it as a cheer leader. I'm sure, however, that she'll agree that booing refs is common practice as well as a general agitation of opposing players. If you don't think that this helps, why don't you ask some of the players?

Vermont Hoopsters Honored

FORT WAYNE, Indiana, March 22 (Special) -- For their outstanding play during the past season, Captain Charlie Isles and Frank Giordano of the University of Vermont have been named to "WHO'S WHO IN SMALL COLLEGE BASKETBALL for 1959-60" The group worked with sports publicity directors, coaches, and athletic directors of NCAA (college division) and NAIA schools in selecting this year's honor role of "best in small college ball"

Other choices from around the country include Tom Chappelle (University of Maine), Bill Soffa (Carnegie [illegible]), Ed Samilwood (Evansville), and Gene Denman (Abilene [illegible] tian).

Vermont statistics show Giordano as the club's top scorer, with 17.8 points per game for the twenty game season. Captain Isles averaged 15.5 per game for seventeen games, missing the remaining games due to a broken finger.

Isles led UVM in rebounding with 11.5 grabs per game and is acknowledged as the greatest defensive player to wear the Green and Gold in many years.

Sloppy Slalom

All skiers in the University family are invited or dared, to enter the third annual "Sloppy Slalom" ski race to be held at the Jeffersonville Ski Area on Sunday, April 3rd. The race is sponsored by the UVM Outing Club is specifically for amateur skiers and is open to anyone who owns or can buy, rent, borrow, or steal a pair of skis to use in the race. Skiers can enter individually or in four man (women, or mixed) teams. For each team the best three times will count for team score. A large rotating silver bowl is awarded to the winning team and permanent individual trophies will be awarded to the first three skiers.

The first two annual events saw skiers from fraternities, the faculty, the medical school, the outing club, and other interested individuals with Phi Delta Theta taking the honors in 1958 and the Delta Psi "B" team in 1959.

To keep the level of competition down to the novice to intermediate level, all skiers who have ever won freshman numerals or a varsity letter in skiing alpine events, or any skier who represented the University in an alpine event this year, are barred from entering the race.

Entires may be left in the Outing Club box in the Coop office any time before April first. Starting positions will be drawn by the Race Committee on Friday, April first. Late entries will be accepted but they will have to run last. Any questions concerning the race should be directed to Steve Berry Race Chairman.

Trackmen Place In Relays

by Reed Humphreys

A month away from competition is in store for the trackmen of the University of Vermont after winding up indoor competition at the Connecticut Relays on Saturday.

Vermont's next scheduled meet comes on April 23 when the Catamounts host the track forces of Bowdoin College in a dual meet.

At the Connecticut Relays Joe Barry of Bellows Falls and Freddy Kolstrom of Springfield each managed to gain a second in their respective events, the pole vault and the mile-run.

Barry, Vermont's leading pole vaulter, high hurdler and high jumper, finished second in the pole vault at a height of 12 feet.

Vermont's pace-setting distance runner, Freddy Kolstrom, finished second in the mile-run won by Brown's College's Ricardo in the time of 4:29.3. Kolstrom's time was 4:31.2.

The 1960 track season will witness more track meets than the Kittens have had in several years. This is the first year in a long time that Norwich Academy has tried to set up a meet with Coach Archie Post's Cindermen. The first meet be will against St. Johnsbury Academy, on April 23rd, here in Burlington. The contests that follow will be held against Lyndon Institute, Rice High School, Brattleboro, Rutland, and Burlington High Schools.

This year there seems to be a greater interest in track than in the past few years. Mentor Post might be on his way to another championship track team. Good luck!

TO ALL THE POTENTIAL KITTEN BASEBALL PLAYERS: There will be a meeting on Thursday, March 24th in the old MS I classroom, in the Army Department of the gym. The meeting is scheduled for 4:30 P.M.

There is some speculation of a few good infielders coming out for the team, but not much is being said as of yet. The batteries are going "full speed", and are getting a lot of helpful hints from the Varsity.

The Kitten's first meet is on April 29th, against Vt. A-T Institute at Centennial Field. Next comes a doubleheader with Dartmouth; a contest at Norwich with Williams; another doubleheader, this time here, with St. Lawrence; another Norwich contest, and May 19th ends the season with another game against Vt. A-T Institute.

In last week's issue of The CYNIC, I stated that there were four fraternities that would be giving out Meal Scholarships next September. I stand corrected. There will be five. In addition to TEP, Phi Sig, Sig Nu, and SAE, Phi Delta Theta will also be giving out a Meal Scholarship to an athlete this September.

Dorm Rents Increase $60

...increase in Univer... residence hall rates ... into effect in the ... of 1960. This statement ... announced by Dean of ...istration, Lymar S. Row... who told the CYNIC that the increase is necessary to ... UVM's dormitory program ... a "pay as you go basis."

The increase will bring the per person cost of a double room from $230 to $290. Single room charge will also be increased from $275 to $335. The increase will be for men's and women's dormitories.

Dean Rowell said that University residence halls are financed on a self-amortizing basis whereby the University borrows money to make the living units possible, then uses student room payments to pay off the loan and cover operation and maintenance.

Other dormitories financed this way include Coolidge, Mason, Simpson, Hamilton, Buckham, Chittenden, and Wills. The three new men's and one new women's residence halls to be constructed this spring will be financed in the same manner.

The last previous increase in residence hall rates came in 1958: double room rates increased from $210 to $230, and single room rates increased from $225 to $275.

UVM Students Picket To Protest Segregation

by JULES OLDER

On Saturday, March 25, students from more than one hundred colleges throughout the United States picketed the Woolworth chain of stores. They were protesting the chain's segregated lunch policy in the South and were acting in sympathy with colored students trying to win the rights to eat in public places.

The picketing is part of a non violent, legal attempt on the part of the Southern negro to get many of the rights of first class citizenship so long denied him. In spite of the efforts of protesting groups to maintain order, violence has erupted in many places.

But there was no violence in Burlington when twenty or more students and a faculty member marched in front of the local Woolworth store last Saturday. This was largely due to the cooperation of the police force with the protest. The policemen present kept traffic moving and protected the rights of both picketers and customers.

The protestants stationed themselves in front of the store at one o'clock in the afternoon, carrying placards urging citizens not to patronize it. Forming a long oval in front of the entrance, the students and faculty member marched quietly up and down the sidewalk.

Passers-by stopped to see what the issue was and to talk to the picketers. Some laughed, some sneered, some entered the store, and more than three hundred signed the boycott petition that members of the group held. Those signing agreed not to patronize Woolworth's until their restrictive policy changed. The protests were to be mailed into the main office of the Woolworth chain in New York.

Reactions to the students' action were mixed. They ranged from the comment of the Burlington Woolworth's manager that the picketing was "south omeric" to the wholehearted approval given to the action by the mayor of Burlington. Opinions at the university similarly ranged from one extreme to the other.

The feelings of the protesting group were well summed up by one of them.

"When I went to picket, I did so with the intention of trying to help the Negro people in the South and to uphold the rights of minorities under the Constitution. But after standing in that picket line and hearing some of the comments that people were making, I wonder if the real problem isn't a lot closer to home."

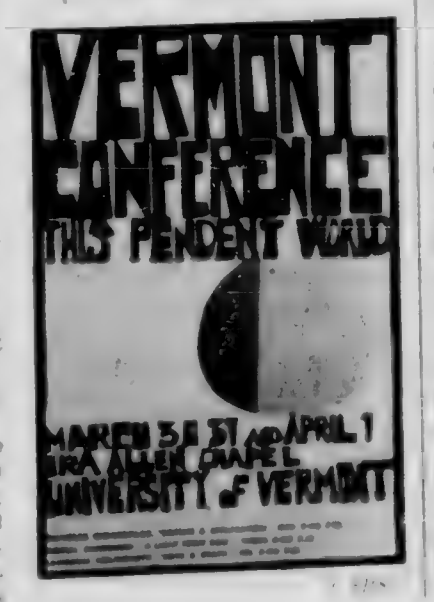
Future World Discussed At Conference



The main purpose of this year's Vermont Conference, entitled "The Pendent World", is to give the public an insight into what the world's future may hold. In order to achieve this goal, a trio of learned and interested men have been assembled to lecture on an aspect of the theme of the Vermont Conference. Each man will attempt to delve into the problem in question by presenting his own special interest area; in doing so, the three lecturers will provide the audience with a complete and inclusive understanding of the main topic.

The Conference will get underway the night of Wednesday, March 30, at 8:00 P.M. Dr. Nicholas Christofilos' topic is "Science and Civilization". Mr. Christofilos' lecture will approach the question of what the future may be like, from a scientific point of view. This man is well qualified to lecture on this topic as he has been referred to in scientific circles as, "the greatest applied physicist in the world". Nicholas Christofilos is the first member of his professional group to participate in the Vermont Conference.

Thursday evening, the future of Asia will be looked at from another point of view. Dr. Asian born and educated Nirmal Chaudhuri will present a lecture entitled "A Light From Asia". The purpose of this lecture is to acquaint the listener with the affect the Asian people will have in the Earth's future. The Asian people are becoming a larger percentage of the world's population. At present Asia contains the majority of the people of the world.

The third and final talk, to take place Friday evening, will be concerned with a less tangible and more meta-physical insight into the topic. Speaking will be Lawrence Ferlinghetti. Mr. Ferlinghetti, who has been proclaimed by Life Magazine and by a prominent member of the UVM

SA Opposes Discrimination

Fifteen students especially interested in discussing the proposal on justice concerning human relations, attended the Student Association meeting on March 24. Both the students and the council realize that that action has been delayed, however a start was made. Former articles in local and campus papers relate actions by other colleges in Vermont and throughout the country concerning discrimatory acts.

On March 23, a discussion was held at 43 South Prospect Street in an attempt to seek a suitable answer to the problem. The group felt that any demonstration made at this time would be meaningless and planned to attend the S.A. meeting on March 24, to propagate positive action.

The S.A. passed a resolution whereby qualified students who have been expelled from their universities and colleges in the South, because of their participation in the non-violent demonstrations against discrimination, should be invited by President Fey and the administration to attend the University of Vermont with a possible reduction in tuition. This resolution will be sent to President Fey and the Board of Trustees.

The Council further stated that it does condemn any acts of discrimination on this campus. It realizes that beginning next fall all

WHO WENT TO THE PROM—AND WHY

"Hello," said the voice on the telephone. "This is Werther Sigafoos. I just want to say a few words. I'm kind of dumpy and I always wear a striped shirt."

"I'm afraid I don't remember you," said Anna Livia Plurabelle.

"Yes, you must, because you've been borrowing for two years," said Werther.

"Oh, yes!" said Anna Livia. "What do you wish, Walter?"

"Well," said Werther. "What I wish is to take you to the Junior Prom next April."

"But this is November 27," protested Anna Livia.

"I know," said Werther. "Yes, I know, but you are so round and beautiful that I was afraid you might have a date already."

"As a matter of fact I do, Wingate," said Anna Livia.

"Drats," said Werther. "Oh, drat!"

Now Anna Livia did really have a date, but she was expecting to be asked by Stewart Stewart, athlete and BMOC, handsome as Adonis, suave as every wearer of faultless tweeds, smoker of Marlboro cigarettes which, even without his other achievements, would charm him as a man with know-how with a pressure-sensitive pocket. If you think flavor went out when filters came in, try a Marlboro. Plus one learns with zest and enjoys the good, solid taste so dear to those who smoke for the pure pleasure of it. Get yourself a pack of Marlboros and listen to your taste buds say, "Thank by George, guys a smoker who knows where it's at!"

But I digress. Anna Livia waited and waited for Stewart Stewart to ask her, but two days before the Prom, to everybody's amazement, he asked Rosecoe Sharon Schwartz, a nondescript girl with pavement-colored hair and a briefcase.

Anna Livia immediately phoned Werther Sigafoos. "My Prom date has come down with a dread virus," she said, "and I have decided to accept your invitation. Wanna go?"

"Rather," said Werther. "Oh, goody gumdrops!"

The next day Anna Livia received a phone call from Stewart Stewart. "My Prom date has come down with a dread virus," he said. "Will you go with me?"

"Certainly," she said and promptly phoned Werther and said, "I have come down with a dread virus and cannot go to the Prom with you. Wingate."

"Drats," said Werther. "Oh, more and more."

So Anna Livia went to the Prom with Stewart and who do you think they ran into? Rosecoe Sharon, with Werther, that's who!

Stewart had felt obliged to ask Rosecoe Sharon because she was in the housework. But she had wrenched out because she really wanted to go with Werther with whom she felt a great rapport because they were both so dumpy. He fell wildly in love with her at the Prom and today they are married and run a very successful long-separate auto wash in New Bern, N. C.

Anna Livia and Stewart are happy, too. They are still juniors and have not chosen a group to extract vows [illegible]

Carmen Lacks Spirit Says Critic

Opera Was Difficult Project

By Elaine Margolin

Bizet's grand opera, Carmen, was by far one of the most difficult undertakings of the University Players. It is impossible to judge this enormous task without taking into consideration the multitude of problems which faced this student cast. With only three weeks rehearsal time, and the enormous strain upon the voices of these non-professionals, they did a comparatively good job. There were, though, many downfalls which cannot be overlooked.

The spontaneous quality of Bizet's colorful masterpiece is undisputed. Carmen is by far one of the most delightful operas ever composed. Behind each rhythmic melody one hears the spirited gaiety of the Spanish culture. One cannot help humming the beautiful Habenera and Toreador songs. These tunes have become immortalized and will carry the musical fame of Bizet right thru "1984".

The story lacks the symbolic confusion which our modern generation is so conditioned. It is merely a simple tale of excitement and romance underlined by a growing state of tension. It is this simplicity combined with the powerful music and flowing lyric which made Carmen the masterpiece that it is.

I cannot help to lament on the use of the English translation rather than the wonderful French lyrics. The English language lacks the smooth quality of a romantic dialect. It seemed almost lifeless and dull in comparison to the musical vitality of the work. It is no wonder that the song "A Letter From Mother" had no force behind it.

The most important element of the operatic medium is, of course, vocal quality. The rich mezzo soprano voice of Miss Cloutier was the outstanding highlight of the evening. Her entire performance can be summed up in one word, magnificant. Looking perfectly lovely, she floated thru the acts with grace and charm enriching the production with her delightful personality. The spirit of the flighty Carmen came alive under talented portrayal.

Bob Frenier and Jeanine Cloutier in Act II of Carmen. VSPS

Playing opposite her, that old hand, Bob Frenier, also did a fine job. As he sang, "You are mine, I'll never let you go," the strength of his tenor voice filled the theater. He did have some difficulty on the higher notes. His duet with Carmen at the finale was so full of feeling and beauty that one could not help being moved.

Miss Demas, singing the role of Micaela, a country girl, was a bit stiff in her movements, but the sweet quality of her voice was as per usual excellent. Alice Zalon, a gypsy girl, added life to every scene she played. Her voice, like her acting personality, bubbles with gay charm. Miss Tyler, the other gypsy girl, lacked the expert vocal talents of her fellow workers. She was much better in lower key songs and her acting was good. I could not help noticing her delightful smile which radiated as did her motions.

Mr. Kelly's performance was a great disappointment. The wonderful voice which we heard in Carousel didn't come through. The ease and smoothness of which he is capable of adding to a portrayal was occasionally substituted for by a tense and stiff portrayal. The fight scene was one of the high spots of his performance.

One of the best jobs was done by Ralph Bode. As the notorious smuggler he both sang and acted well. He was most amusing and delightful to watch. Mr. Wexler picked up in his part during the second act. I was beginning to wonder if he would ever come alive, but when he finally did it was well worth waiting for. Dave Hall was only fair, for his voice was rather monotonous. Bob Murphy, the other smuggler, did a fairly good job. His acting far surpassed his vocal talents.

The dancing was an added highlight. After a rather slow moving first act, the opened Act Two with spirited movement. The choreography, done by Miss Byers, was quite good. I was unable to take my eyes off Sue Ralston. She has the fineness of Dr. Thomas B. Tomasi, appointed acting chairman of the UVM division of experimental medicine, was awarded a $53,350 research grant by the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation. This grant is designated for experimental work in the sciences related to arthritis.

Each year the foundation gives 3 grants to American senior investigators. Dr. Tomasi, will investigate the etiology of rheumatoid arthritis. Specifically, he will study the chemical and physical properties of the rheumatoid factors, certain unique proteins which are present in the blood.

Dr. Tomasi will continue his research at the Rockefeller Institute, where he is presently a research associate. It is hoped that this investigation will enable medical researchers to gain more information about the causes of the disease.

"CHRIST CLIMBED DOWN"

By Lawrence Ferlinghetti

Christ climbed down
from His bare Tree
this year
and ran away to where there were no rootless Christmas trees hung with candycanes and breakable stars

Christ climbed down
from His bare Tree
this year
and ran away to where there were no gilded Christmas trees and no tinsel Christmas trees and no tinfoil Christmas trees and no pink plastic Christmas trees and no gold Christmas trees and no black Christmas trees and no powderblue Christmas trees hung with electric candles and encircled by tin electric trains and clever cornball relatives

Christ climbed down
from His bare Tree
this year
and ran away to where no intrepid Bible salesmen covered the territory in two-tone cadillacs and where no Sears Roebuck creches complete with plastic babe in manger arrived by parcel post the babe by special delivery and where no televised Wise Men praised the Lord Calvert Whiskey

Christ climed down
from His bare Tree
this year
and ran away to where no fat handshaking stranger in a red flannel suit and a fake white beard went around passing himself off as some sort of North Pole saint crossing the desert to Bethlehem Pennsylvania in a Volkswagen sled drawn by rollicking Adirondack reindeer with German names and bearing sacks of Humble Gifts from Saks Fifth Avenue for everybody's imagined Christ child

Christ climbed down
from His bare Tree
this year
and ran away to where no Bing Crosby carollers groaned of a tight Christman and where no Radio City angels iceskated wingless thrú a winter wonderland into a jinglebell heaven daily at 8:30
with Midnight Mass matinees

Christ climbed down
from His bare Tree
this year
and softly stole away into some anonymous Mary's womb again where in the darkest night of everybody's anonymous soul
He awaits again an unimaginable and impossibly Immaculate Reconception
the very craziest of Second Coming.

His poetry is a kind of "moral message" on the "Coney Island of the Mind". His ideas and feelings are expressed with a "satiric bite" and are found in such poems as "I am Waiting", "Christ Climbed Down" and "Autobiography".

After his lecture, Ferlinghetti will conduct a discussion at the Waterman Student Lounge where coffee will be served. Admission is free.

Ferlinghetti is expected to be on campus during the three days of the Conference. At this time he will meet with student groups and classes.

The original intention of the CYNIC was to review Mr. Ferlinghetti's book, "A Coney Island of the Mind". However, after reading the book we decided to reprint one of his poems and let his poetry "speak for itself".

the English department, the foremost of "beatnik" poets, will attempt in his talk, entitled "Love and Death", to explain our future in terms of the very current "beatnik" philosophy.

As it has been shown, "the Vermont Conference" of 1960 will approach a controversial topic from varied aspects. It is hoped that by presenting such different point of views (i.e. scientific, cultural and philosophical), the Conference will appeal to a wide range of people and again be the success it was in the past.

Compulsory ROTC: Pro And Con

By Jerry Jacobson

An issue which has been sweeping the majority of the nation's state universities, finally has come to Vermont.

The debate concerns the desirability of Land Grant colleges, as Vermont, to continue Compulsory ROTC training, for all male students. Many State Universities recently under student pressure, have chosen to exert their privilege of of transforming the Compulsory Basic program into an elective program. The elective program would permit the student to subjectively ascertain the value of military training in college, and then give him the freedom to accept or reject the course. The Student Association of the University, on April 1st, will hold a referendum on this issue, in hope that the results will influence the administration choice of program.

Two conflicting policies have been expressed by the defense department, as to their position concerning the ROTC program. Charles C. Finucone, assistant Secretary of Defense for manpower, personnel and reserve, has formulated a doctrine of "freedom of choice". Freedom of choice encourages University Administrations to choose freely between the Elective or Cumpulsory ROTC program. The Secretary feels that the Army will be more than able to fill their Reserve Officers requirements without compelling male students to attend Basic ROTC training.

"The Department of Defense's policy is to leave the decision entirely up to the educational authorities concerned. The department will support the decision of the institutional authorities by furnishing the necessary instructors and equipment. It might be said that the Department of Defense favors freedom of choice on this question." However, the Department of the Army adheres to a different policy. Secretary Brucker feels emphatically that the universities should continue a compulsory basic program. The program, he feels, has an educational and a citizenship value and is necessary if the Army is to obtain the required number of officers. The Secretary, also, feels that a lot of students who would never take advanced ROTC, become interested in the program during the required basic course. Students should analyze this important issue, and express their opinion, during the coming S.A. referendum.

A Modified Cumpulsory ROTC program will go into effect next semester at UVM. Col. White has had prepared the following statement, which clearly outlines the changes to be instituted.

"The Department of the Army released the new revised ROTC training program in early March. The major features, as they apply to UVM, are described below.

Advanced Cadets must substitute 3 credit hours in the fields of communication, general psychology, science comprehension, political development, and political institution for 45 class room hours of ROTC each year. This means that there will be 3 class meetings and 1 leadership lab meeting per week instead of 4 class meeting and 1 leadership lab. The area from which substitution can be made is so broad that it is expected that students can offer courses, which they will normally take to meet degree requirements, thus no extra courses. One of the aims of

Students Protest

Last Saturday some twenty to twenty-five UVM students picketed the Woolworths store in Burlington. In Barre 50 Vermont and Goddard College students picketed the Woolworths there. And in other places in New England and the entire North, hundreds of other college students did the same thing.

WHY PICKET HERE?

Perhaps the most revealing thing about these demonstrations is the fact that despite the publicity given the protests, a surprisingly large number of people cannot understand why the Woolworths stores in the North are being picketed. The reasons are this. Woolworths is a national chain store with branches in both the North and the South. In the North, to be sure, there are no segregation policies. But in the South the stores in the Woolworth chain comply to local segregation policies with no signs of disapproval. The Northern students who are doing the picketing are those students who feel that the rights and privileges guaranteed by the Constitution apply to all men, regardless of the color of his skin.

Woolworths has a main office in New York which can change local store policies. The demonstrating students hope to bring pressure to bear on the main office through this action at Northern branches. It is hoped that the combination of moral and economic pressures will eventually result in policy changes in the South --thus lowering yet another barrier in the "Color Line".

CYNIC SUPPORTS PICKETS

The CYNIC supports the actions taken by last Saturday's pickets. It feels that segregation is morally wrong, and that pressure such as that applied here in Burlington can result in change in the South. Despite the negative attitudes taken by such "well informed" persons as Governor Stafford and ex-President Truman, we urge each and every CYNIC reader to fill out the blank form on the front page and mail it to Woolworths, or leave it in the CYNIC office and we will send it. This is a chance for every student to show his belief in this country. "One country, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Compulsory ROTC

Incorporated in the S.A. election tomorrow will be a student opinion questionnaire. This will ask if the students are in favor of a compulsory ROTC program. We feel that the compulsory clause should be abolished and urge you to vote in this manner.

The ROTC program is designed solely for the purpose of recruiting officers for the armed forces. This is an admirable idea and is very beneficial to the armed forces and to the students who desire such placement and the financial and occupational benefits derived from it. However, when the program is compulsory, it is forcing many students into a program which they neither desire, need, nor can qualify for.

There are hundreds of students now enrolled in the program who have absolutely no intention whatever of "going advanced". However, they are compelled to waste three hours per week in ROTC class and drill which could be valuably spent in other courses. If the material covered in class was useful or beneficial to the students, then ROTC could say that it had accomplished something. This is not the case, however, and even a ROTC instructor conceded that the course is geared to "a high school level."

This gross waste of the government's money and, even more important, the student's academic time is an injustice which we cannot understand. One can only wonder how an institution of higher learning can reconcile such a ROTC program.

It is not only the students who are not interested in the ROTC program who suffer from the compulsory clause. Upon entering "the corps", all freshmen are given a physical examination which excludes a few from the program. One student who passed this "extensive" physical was color blind. With medical excuse in hand, he asked to be excused from the course since he could not possibly qualify for the advanced program. His request was denied on the grounds that the department requires all those who are acceptable to the regular army to take the course. This is a typical example of a student who must waste two years in a course which he could never complete due to some physical disability.

The ROTC program is both a service to the students and our country. [illegible] ROTC is both a waste of the taxpayer's money and the valuable time of many college students.

SA Presidents Open Letter

At this time of the year it is customary for the outgoing Student Association President to write a report on what the S.A. has done for the past year and his recommendations for the future.

To start we can see that the basic problem that we have been trying to handle this past year has been one of the reorganization of the student government as a whole. This is not something which can be done with a great deal of ease. One must look at all aspects of the problem and come up with a solution which seems fair to everyone. The Committee which has been working with me on this problem has considered many different ideas and finally have an organizational chart which seems to suit the purposes. The problem now will be to get the various organizations affected to review the proposal and give their suggestions.

In other areas, we can see that the Council has also been fairly active. Thanks to the work of the Facilities Committee, it is expected that the Student Lounge will soon have a much needed redecoration. The Council has taken initiative in the area of fund raising, with the establishment of the Gym Fund Committee which hopes to raise a substantial amount of money for the gym fund. The Social Committee has established an enlarged movie program and brought about the purchase of cinemascope lens and screen. The Council has concerned itself with the problem of academic elegibility, that is, whether or not a person should have a certain average before he could hold some of the major offices on campus. This is a question that is still not solved and will require consideration for some time to come.

Finally, it is time to consider the future. The Student Association Council can become the central governing body on this campus. This is contingent upon three things. One, the students must show more of an interest in the S.A. than they have in the past. It is not enough merely to go out and vote. Interested students should participate in the workings of the S.A. Committees so that they become more effective and have a wider variety of ideas.

Secondly, we must be assured that in the next few years only the most qualified people are elected to the offices of Student Association. If the officers are not of the highest quality, then we can hardly expect the S.A. to be. The next few years are to be the crucial years for the S.A. and should see many changes.

Thirdly, the administration of the University must be willing to delegate to the S.A. Council more duties than it has at the present time. I realize that we all hear the statement that we must demonstrate our ability to accept responsibility and then we will get it. However, I personally cannot understand how one can demonstrate his ability to accept responsibility when he has none to begin with. The administration must realize that college students are not children and that they are not our parents away from home.

In closing, may I remind everyone that tomorrow is election day and that a big turnout will assure continued progress in Student Association.

Letter to the Editor

To the University Family:

A Smash-Hit "Carmen"

Last Saturday evening, I had the pleasure of attending the University Players' production of "Carmen". My reaction to this performance can best be summarized in the opinion that it was one which was outstanding in its excellence. This may sound excessive, but I left after the performance with the feeling that the personnel of "Carmen" could have presented "Aida", "I'Pagliacci", or "Cavalleria Rusticana" with equal success.

"Carmen" is an opera in which there is never a dull moment. It abounds in dramatic action and moves [illegible] to its ultimately tragic conclusion. It is the most lyrically [illegible] and, at the same [illegible] violently emotional [illegible] orchestral music is [illegible] in its score. None [illegible] elements was lacking [illegible] evening.

The writer of this [illegible] had the unique opportunity [illegible] seeing "Carmen" in rehearsal and can well appreciate the effort that went into the production. It was [illegible] enthusiasm and complete co-operation of all involved not to mention one of [illegible] attention to minute [illegible] needed to ensure the [illegible] success which happily [illegible] fruition last week.

As a senior, I shall take some very fond memories of "Carmen" to cherish [illegible] after I have left UVM. I shall long remember Alec Falls' superb direction which kept the opera moving at its sure-fired pace.

...sday, at approximately 1:15 P.M., a group ...ents, and one faculty member, met in front ...Burlington branch of Woolworth's. The process ..."picketing" began at 1:30 P.M. I was one of ...ents.

To Mr. Falls and Mr. Bennett must go special tribute. They undertook a task which many doubted would ever work out. Faced with the problem of a non-professional student cast, they put on one of the theater's most difficult presentation forms. The challenge of presenting an opera was well conquered by these two talented gentlemen.

A lack of spirit and life was the main failure of the production. Whether this was due to use of English lyrics or to the difficulty of the task, is hard to say. In all, I think the opera was a worthwhile experience for all

...skilled and dramatically powerful singing and acting ...of the primary and secondary leads and supporting roles under the astute coaching of Messrs. Falls, Bennett, and Heinrich, the fine backing of both children's and adult choruses under Mrs. Papoutsakis and Mr. Bennett, and of the orchestra and dancers under the very capable direction of Mr. Papoutsakis and Miss Corinne Byers. Due credit must also be given Ed Feldner, his stage crew, wardrobe and make-up attendants, the backbone of the production, which helped to give it added depth in scenery and authenticity in costume. All combined to make "Carmen" the most ambitious performance and spiritedly triumphant venture that I have yet seen here.

The turn to the original opera-comique version, that of including spoken dialogue normally sung in grand opera scores, was quite appropriate to the performance. The opera is extremely taxing to the singing voice. The spoken dialogue gives the singer needed opportunity to rebuild energy essential to meet the stringent demands of the musical score. It also lends clarity of plot and variety to the production as a whole.

The players' version contained none of the amateur theatrics usually associated with university dramatic groups. If there were any errors, they were skillfully covered. All in all, it was a performance as richly rewarding entertainment-wise and as poignantly beautiful as it was hoped would be.

In the final analysis, it can be ascertained that our talented entertainers can more than hold its own with any college dramatic group in the country, of which this University can be justifiably proud. If there is an answer to the opinion "ad nauseam" of some skeptics that such a performance was a vain and fool-hearted attempt, this production is a most fitting one. I am certain that I am speaking for many in expressing sincere thanks to the members of "Carmen" for giving us a most memorable evening.

Barn, Part III

Dear Boss,

Well wha'do ya' know? In spite of the efforts of the University Family to rid itself of the slightly out-of-round cog that is the Barn, that young institution is again functioning. You remember in my last letter I mentioned that the group's meeting place was being used to store ROTC uniforms. Now it struck me that other places could be found to store ROTC uniforms, and there was more to this than met the eye. I guess the crowned and uncrowned heads of the Family expected the discussion group to fold into

"D C" Goes To College!

Highlights

By EDSON DARER

Good afternoon. Tomorrow, from 8:30 A.M. to 4 P.M. elections for our new student government officers will be held. This is a very important election, as are all elections. Candidates for every office, including S.A. President and Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer and all class offices, are running.

NEW INNOVATION

Something new will be added to this year's election. It seems that students are being drawn to the party system. There are two major parties in the election, and of course there are still some independent candidates. I feel that this party system is a very worthwhile thing. Not only will it make for a more efficient student voter to be tomorrow's good citizen voter. As is true in all elections where there are political parties, one party will probably have more appeal to individuals than the other. But, it is necessary for the informed voter to read and find out the platforms of both parties before going to the polls. Study these platforms very carefully before casting your vote because the people you are going to elect are those who will be governing your Student Association for next year. BE AN INFORMED VOTER.

Something else new, will be the party column ballot. Each party, the Student Action Party and the United Party, will have their candidates listed in column form on the ballots. It is up to you the students, to keep this party system alive. So, VOTE the PARTY of YOUR CHOICE.

LOOKING BACK

Over the years, at least since I have been here, election time has continually become more and more important. This year the importance is greater than ever. I sincerely hope the students will continue to take such extensive interest in their student government and make sure that the affairs of the student will never fall into the hands of any incapable individuals or into the hands of the administration. MAKE SURE YOU VOTE.

HERE N' THERE

Hope you didn't miss the M.J.Q. They were really great. This weekend is the Vermont Conference and I'm sure it will be as enlightening as ever. As always, there are some very fine lecturers and speakers. So long for now.

GOOD OFFICER MATERIAL

ROTC needs more men with ideals such as those of Don Perry. Obviously Perry is good officer material and should go far in his military career, leading us further down the road to glory.

It is satisfying to know that there are still people around to refute the propaganda of some anti-military groups such as the obvious nonsense out out by such organizations as the FTA. The FTA is an outlawed organization composed of so called "intellectuals" who don't fully appreciate the Army. One of their mottos is:

"The Army's my shepherd,
I shall not think;
It alloweth me to lie down on essential jobs;
It leadeth me blindly;
it destroyeth initiative;
It taketh me into the paths of a parsite for my country's sake - -"

Of course anyone can see the fallacy in this kind of thinking for those "eggheads" who think they have the right to think anything they want, but we can depend on men like Perry to straighten them out.

1) ROTC majors should know that, particularly in the Army, everyone has an equal chance for advancement regardless of education or ability. This is because the Army encourages the common man who will follow orders and accomplish his mission, and discourages the "egg head" who is always thinking and is opposed to the tried and true "Army Way."

2) As an offiver, everyone will know just what you are, and enlisted men will salute you.

3) As an officer you will learn responsibility and and how to give orders which will be followed. This is great for self-confidence.

4) The Army teaches officers to never make mistakes -- every enlisted man knows that whatever an officer says is right.

In closing I should like to say that I am sorry I didn't go "advanced." Unfortunately I was an enlisted man in the infantry. Of course I enjoyed charging up

On Saturday evening, March 26, the gym fund grew in amount and the females gained a look at some gorgeous, shapely legs. The men of the campus stunned their audience with graceful pirouettes, flying leaps, scintilating turns and picturesque arabesques as the "Hairy Legs Ballet" made its first appearance. With the exception of a few yawns toward the end, the evening was a most enjoyable one for a crowd of approximately three hundred.

Capturing first place was Sigma Nu's "Clod Lake". The curtain opened on a stage void of anything, but a lovely white swan. Later a group of attractive dancers pirouetted on stage in little skirts of beautiful pastel colors. "Prince Charming", in the form of Ed Abrahamson, was a devastating picture of poise and charm. His facial expressions, as well as his dancing feet, showed an overwhelming emotion of love for the white swan. When he is finally granted the wand, and as his Princess appears, we realize the truth of the old addage, "opposites attract." Ed Thorn, the Princess executed some delightful leaps, while all the audience held their breath for fear that Prince Charming would ultimately get crushes. However, the Princess admirably solves the problem by picking up our hero and gracefully carrying him off stage.

Second place went to Tau Epsilon Phi's rendition of "Carmen." Richard Spodik, as Carmen a lovely coed working in the coffee shop, falls in love with Don Jose, a real hip fraternity man. With the aid of whirling leaps and graceful turns executed with broom in hand (which by the way made a better partner than Don Jose), Carmen finally wins his attention. All is in vain, however, for our coed soon falls in love with Smilin' Jack, played by Paul Kaplan. The whole affair ends with the death of all three, and with graceful turns and pirouettes the crowd of coffee shoppers dance off in sorrow.

SA Party Platforms

United Party

The Student Association has always been plagued by dissention within itself. No real constructive program to improve your Student Government was ever possible. If Student Association is to be a cohesive, efficient, organization which will give the student body as a whole real benefits, UNITY must be achieved. Therefore the UNITED PARTY presents to you a slate of candidates decicated to a new Student Government which can benefit everyone.

The UNITED PARTY presents to you John W. Cruickshank for S.A. President; Mike Wetterer for S.A. Vice-President; Beverly Cawley for S.A. Treasurer, Peggy Link for S.A. Secretary.

The UNITED PARTY will be able to give you a student government which is responsible to the student body.

We propose a system of representation by living units so that the government will be truly responsible to the students. Our new system would also maintain continuity and class representation on the council. With the present system it is impossible for any representative to know the needs and desires of a whole class; they could know what would be the greatest benefit to their unit. This plan would promote responsible government.

We will be able to reorganize the finance committee in the best interest of the students.

With our new system once budgets have been approved by council all funds could be handled by the Finance Committee. This would leave the council free from the continuous worry of appropriations. It would leave more time for council to devote to the whole student body.

There will be an S.A. Council from which the whole student body will gain far greater benefits.

With a larger and better organized council unified in its purpose and leased from the burden of continuous appropriations, an expanded social and cultural program for the general benefit of the whole student body will be possible. With a responsible government we will be able to govern ourselves with less Administrative interference from the University.

We will be able to build a unified organization of checks and balances made up of executive, legislative, and judicial branches.

An executive office of President would be set up to act as a coordinator of activities with other organizations. The Vice-President would act as chairman of the council. The Secretary would be the President's emissary to council. The President would be able to override decisions of council who could in turn override his decisions by a 2/3 majority. This would establish responsible leadership which could lead the council in a positive program so that the voice of the students will come alive as a potent force at the University.

Student Action Party

The Student Action Party was formed under the general theme that the students at UVM should be offered a united slate of candidates who have shown an interest in student government and have demonstrated their ability and experience in this area. In keeping with this idea, we feel that all our candidates have exhibited those qualities.

Our platform, simply stated spells the word ACTION. It stands as follows:

Ability. Ability and quality are the keynotes in our programs ability of our candidates and quality in our platform.

Communication. Communication throughout the University community. We desire to make the student government responsible and responsive.

a) Responsible in the sense that it acts in a nature fashioned to the University community.
b) Responsive to the student's needs.

Training. Training future leaders. We advocate a leader-training program that would acquaint potential leaders with student government. This would be designed to provide continuity of leadership.

Initiative. Initiative to work with the University on their self-study plans for re-organization of the committee structures, particularly student committees.

Organization. Organization to attain cooperation instead of competition. We will intelligently seek both proper and an appropriate share for the students in the policy making area of the University.

Nucleus. The S.A. Council should be the strong nucleus of student governing organizations.

We feel that this platform presents to the students of UVM a general outline of what we feel should be accomplished. Only through concerted action of student leaders who have proven the ability, can this be done.

Phi Mu Acquires New House

Phi Mu Delta have announced the acquisition of a chapter-house. A contract of purchase has been executed by the alumni of Nu Gamma for the former Abernethy house at 265 S. Willard Street. The final purchasing date is set for May 1.

The former Abernethy house is a spacious, nineteen room, 6 bath structure with a full basement and is accompanied by approximately one acre of land in the rear. The three story building is capable of housing between 35 and 40 men. The fraternity feels that its future chapter house is perfectly suited to its needs and requirements.

The chapter will move into its new home in September. From May until fall, the house will be prepared for occupancy.

The acquisition of the new chapterhouse is the highlight of several years of hard work on the part of the alumni and the actives.

Ag. Dean's List

An additional UVM student has been named to Dean's List honors in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics for the fall semester, it was announced this week by Dean Paul A. Miller.

Named to honors with an 85 per cent average was Miss Gayle A. McQuilkin of Montreal, Canada, a member of the Class of 1961.

M.J.Q Proclaimed Excellent

by ROGER S. ZIMMERMAN

As the stage curtains separated at Memorial Auditorium, a brilliantly lighted background of white folded panels was revealed. The four members of the Modern Jazz Quartet appeared a moment later. The scene was set. In the following two hours, the M.J.Q. presented to the audience a program of modern jazz that was highlighted throughout by three elements, dynamic improvization, blended artistry, and subtle sounds revolving around the abstract.

The opening set, "Django", was named Record of the Year in 1957 by several jazz critics. Marked by a strong, yet not harsh drum background, "Django" displayed a remarkable coordination between bassist Percy Heath and pianist-composer John Lewis. The vibes of Milt Jackson closed the set on a tone of meditative serenity.

"D and E", set two, emphasized vibes from start to finish. Something quite new to jazz drumming however, contributed greatly to the overall composition of the piece. Intervals of short, staccato-like drum rolls were introduced at about the middle of the set. This novel approach on the part of Connie Kay, percussionist, is indicative of an entirely new attitude towards the drum and its use in jazz.

"How High the Moon", a classic as far as jazz standards go, revealed the virtuosity of Percy Heath. The effective use of bass and bow along with somber notes from the vibes, added up to a highly-polished piece. The fine "cymbal-play" of Connie Kay changed the tempo of the piece towards the middle point of the set. A return to slower tempo, with bassist Heath once again employing the pensive qualities of bass and bow, rounded out a unique version of this classical jazz standard.

Five more pieces, somewhat less dramatic than the first three, brought to a close the first part of the concert.

The second half of the program although disappointingly short, displayed the same fine qualities as were present in the first half. "Pyramid" appears to have been the most notable set. Combining the talents of a highly integrated group of musicians, the piece had a distinct blues pattern.

"Jazz is a collective improvization which swings". John Lewis, M.J.Q's pianist-composer, made that statement which seems to appropriately sum up the music of this group. Unique application of instrumental technique to sets of varying complexity, along with superb compositional skill, has given the Modern Jazz Quartet a distinct jazz favor all its own. Their performance last week has apparently answered the plagueing question of whether or not jazz deserves a place in the concert hall. It does.

Freshman Exec. Council Adopts Activities Comm.

by ROB HAESELER

By recent vote of the Executive Council of the Freshman class, a new amendment has been adopted which will provide for an Activities Committee composed of a Social Committee and a CYNIC Committee. The primary objective of the Activities Committee is to plan and promote any class functions, such as the organization of class meetings or the selection of guest orators chosen to speak at class events.

Lloyd Hoffman has been selected as chairman of the new Activities Committee and will be supported by a group composed of Bob Pasco, Virginia Clark, Sandy Timmermann, and Barbara Driver. The Social Committee, under the immediate direction of the Activities Committee, has as its purpose, the planning of all class social functions with special emphasis on dances, parties, and picnics. Under the chairmenship of Sally Tatro and with the aid of a committee composed of Janis Evans, Phyllis Levine, and Harriette Silverberg, an all-day class picnic is being planned for late May.

By means of the CYNIC Committee, led by Rob Haeseler, important class news items will be selected, edited, and published in an effort to keep Freshman students in close contact with the affairs of their class. Pat Conway, Bonny Bixby, and George Deming have been selected to aid in the functioning of the CYNIC Committee.

Since several openings are available on each committee, any Freshman interested in securing a post should immediately contact the chairman of the committee in which he is interested. Because many class projects and functions are now being planned, it is necessary to enlarge the size of these respective committees in order to ease the burden on these small groups.

The purpose of this column, donated kindly by the CYNIC, to the Class of '63, is to acquaint the Freshman with the news, functionings, and legislation of his class. Academic, social, athletic, fraternity, and sorority news will be compiled to present an overall picture of the character and personality of the Class as a whole. An attempt to give credit where credit is due is also an aim of the CYNIC Committee.

Because it is difficult to promote an idea by an avalanche of leaflets which fill student mailboxes, and because many of these leaflets are discarded before read, the CYNIC Committee recommends that students feel free to submit to the committee, editorials which are pertinent to class affairs. In this way, intensive light may be shed upon a relevant subject.

Dr. Tomasi Succeeds Dr. Raab

Dr. Thomas E. Tomasi, Jr., a 1954 graduate, with honors, of the UVM College of Medicine, will return to the campus July 1 as acting chairman of the division of experimental medicine, succeeding Dr. Wilhelm Raab who retires from this position next June. Dr. Tomasi, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Tomasi of Burlington, has been since 1958 a research associate at the Rockefeller Institute. He is working there toward his Ph.D. degree in biochemistry and has conducted research on the etiology of rheumatoid arthritis. He comes to UVM as an assistant professor.

Univerisity Band Presents Concert

On Saturday, April 2, the University Band, under the direction of Professor Herbert L. Schultz, will present their first concert of the season. The concert will be held in the Ira Allen Chapel at 8:00 p.m.

Featured on the program will be James (Jimmy) Burke, world famous cornetist. Mr Burke has played with the Band of America and is the regular soloist with the Goldman Band during the summer. In addition to being a talented performer, Mr Burke is also a composer. We will have an opportunity to hear him play several of his own compositions including "The Magic Trumpet", "Amourette", "Jolene", and "Danza Allegra" Other selections which Mr. Burke will play are the well known "Carnival of Venice", and Walter Rodger's "Columbian Fantasy". He will be accompanied by the Band, and also, by his pianist, Jolene Mitchell, to whom he dedicated one of his solos.

The Band will play several marches and novelties including the "U.S. Army March" "Block M March", "Concert Rhumba", Raymond Scott's "Powerhouse", and George Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band". The classical music on the program will be represented by "The Universal Judgement", a symphonic poem for Band, and by Offenbach's "Gaite Parisienne".

Tickets for the concert are available from all Band members, the University Store, and at the door. Proceeds from the concert will be used to establish a Band Scholarship Program which will be awarded to a needy student, who shows an acute interest in the Band, and who displays a high level of musical ability. Judging from the Band's appearance at Kake Walk, the concert promises an enjoyable evening of Band music.

GAMMA PHI BETA

Last Sunday night the Gamma Phi Burlington Alumnae Chapter gave a box supper for our pledge class. It was an excellent opportunity for all the pledges to get to know our very active Alums.

Congratulations to Lorraine Snow, who was selected to membership in Omicron Nu, the Home Economics Honorary Society, and to Anne Parker, who was just made a member of the UVM Judiciary Council.

We're also proud of Phyllis Spring, who was elected co-chairman of the Publicity Committee of next year's Freshman Orientation program.

This week the Gamma Phi's were fortunate to be able to have Mr. William Preston of Preston Jeweler's, Burlington, come up to the house and give a very interesting and enjoyable talk on "Gems and Silver," accompanied by a very attractive display.

We all enjoyed seeing the University Players' presentation of Carmen - congratulations to Debby Hill and Barb Rifkin for their good job of singing.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Congratulations to Pat Bishop, elected to the position of second vice president of W.S.G.A. and to Toni Franceschi, town representative.

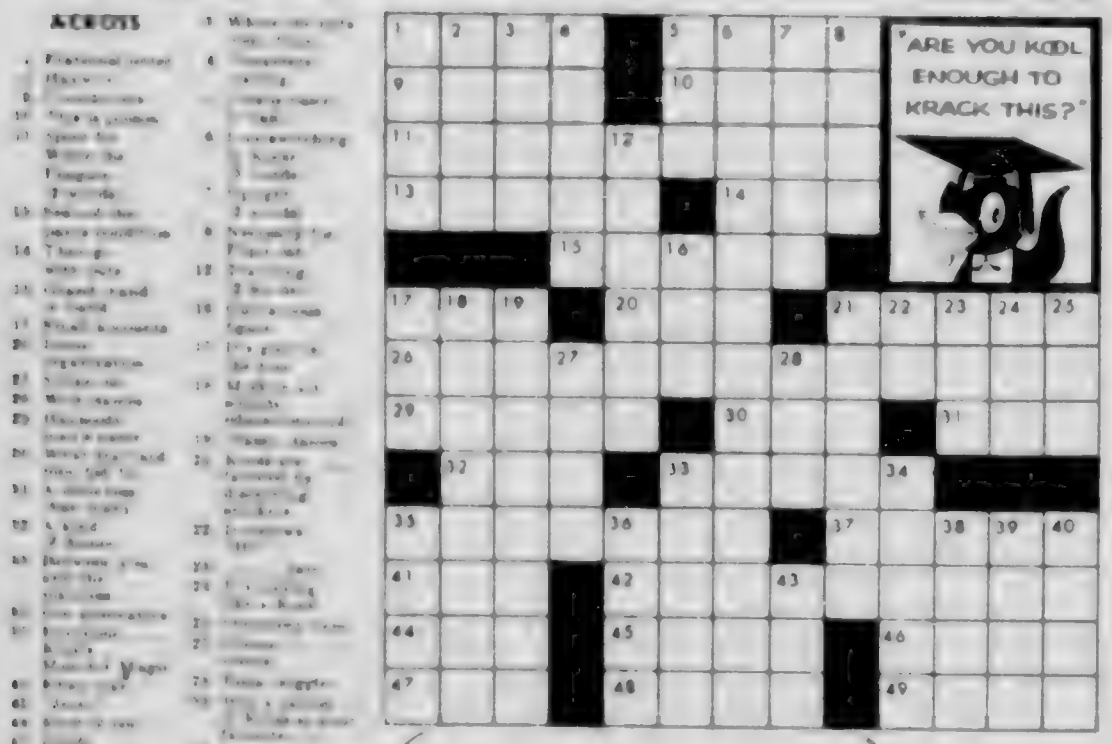
LAMBDA IOTA

The brothers of Lambda Iota welcome Bob Poulios as the newest pledge in the fold. Saturday, the nineteenth of March saw the Owl House playing host to the refugees from the ski slopes as the Pledge class presented their Snow-Bunny Hop, the annual pledge party. Among the more interesting features of this fest was a covering of the downstairs floor with eight inches of popcorn as a surprisingly realistic representation of corn snow. Tahnks to the pledges for another "crackpot" Owl Party.



On Sunday the Owl House was headquarters for political adventures as the candidates for S.A. Offices aired their views on the elections at a coffee hour and open house at 440 Pearl. The discussions were lively, and the candidates were well received by all.

the revision is to lessen the work load of advanced ROTC Cadets. Content of the basic 2-year course will be more appealing and appropriate to on-campus instruction.

The major changes concerning the first year - reduces the individual weapons and marksmanship course from 25 to 15 hours and increases the American Military History from 30 to 40 hours. The revised second year MS II course eliminates entirely the 30 hour block of crew served weapons instruction. A new course, which will lend itself more appropriately to on-campus classes, "Introduction to Operations and Basic Tactics" will be substituted."

The changes to be instituted in the ROTC course, although seemingly more appealing to the student, still does not directly eliminate the issue of whether Compulsory or Elective ROTC Basic Training should be presented by the University.

the usual UVM sea of apathy but they didn't reckon with the alive quality that the Barn has imparted to its members.

Last two weeks after the eviction, the Sunday night meetings were being held again. In that short time the Barn was relocated in the new Student Christian Association building, next to the Waterman parking lot. The move has forced new respectability on the meetings, for the whirring gas furnace has been replaced with central heating, the tattered pew cushions with contemporary furniture, and the candles with modern fixtures. Some of the atmosphere is gone, but it's been replaced with a lot of comfort.

The lectures and conversation topics have been up to their usual high quality also. Dylan Thomas has spoken on record, and Professor Hall has spoken in person. The production of Waiting for Godot has caused some extra lively debate. In fact the group seems at least temporarily divided between the proBecket faction and the militant anti-Becket. All of which simply serves to raise the already high interest level at the Barn one notch higher.

You asked me why the Barn doesn't publicize itself -- well, here's your answer. Why should it? It's not an organization that needs a large number of members to survive! Some of the finest programs have been held with five or ten people present. No-one really cares whether there are more attending this week than there were last. That is not one of the goals.

Maybe you should take me off this beat, Boss -- I must be getting mellow. Since I've been covering the Barn I haven't written one scathing word. Maybe I'll do an article on the University Family -- just to keep in shape.

Your faithful reporter,
Jules

Opposes Pickets

Dear Editor

I think that the UVM students' action of picketing Woolworth's store here in Burlington is a disgrace to UVM. Not only was this action a disgrace, but it is embarrassing for the students who did not participate and who did not want to participate. Do we have to do everything that other colleges in the East are doing? Why not be more constructive if we have to show our sympathy with demonstrations against segregation?

I truly feel that this picketing did not represent even one-third of the student body at UVM. In taking a poll of one of my classes one student out of fifteen said that they definitely approved of the demonstration. I think that you will discover that this is true throughout the campus.

Not only did the picketing represent a minority of the UVM students, but it turned those who were apathetic to the other side. These people have now spoken up against the demonstration. Perhaps the students who participated in the picketing wanted to arouse the apathetic. Well, they have succeeded. I will go along with all those who say that the demonstration was clumsily organized and executed, and was an immature and premature act.

What good is picketing Woolworth's in Burlington going to do? Burlington's Woolworth has not practiced or supported segregation. It would have been much more effective to settle the matter sanely and intelligently if we are going to help at all.

I highly commend the suggestions of the S.A. Council and those of the students who met last week to draw up recommendations of scholarships for Southern students who have been expelled from universities because of their demonstrations against actual segregation.

Also, if the purpose of the demonstration on Saturday was to get other students involved in the issue, perhaps a series of public debates and discussions would have been a more intelligent procedure. Certainly you can learn more through well organized debates and discussions where all of various points of the issue can be represented.

I am truly sorry that some of the UVM students did picket Woolworth's because now we who did not picket will have to make excuses for such immature and useless action which proved nothing.

Yours truly,
Sheila Whitney

(We disagree that the picketing is disgraceful, useless, or embarrassing. It is the action of a group of individuals who feel that action here in the North could have the effect of reducing segregation in the South. The action of the S.A. is commendable--but we predict that it will never be anything more than an ineffectual resolution.

Third place went to Lambda Iota's rendition of that fateful day in Mudville when mighty Casey struck out. However, I am sure Casey (Stan Van Horn) has never done it more gracefully. The addition of Casey's heel clicks and facial expressions made the ballet what it was, in more ways than one.

Other ballets were put on by SAE, ATO, Phi Sigma Delta, Phi Delta Theta, Delta Sigma, Acacia, AEPi and Theta Chi. Special mention must be made of Sigma Phi's "The Littlest Angel." The theme was certainly a welcome change. It cleared the atmosphere very admirably.

Judges for the event were Asst. Prof. Cochran, Asst. Prof. Steele, and Mr. Trom. MC for the evening was Carol Koningsberg.

Cosmopolitan Club Sponsors International Cafe

By Pete Colcord

The Cosmopolitan Club of the University of Vermont will sponsor an International Cafe evening on Saturday, April 2, from 8 to 12 in the Student Lounge of Waterman Building. There will be dancing, refreshments and entertainment featuring The Joshers, an auction, etc.---A La Continental Style. The admission price is only $.50 per person, with the proceeds being given to World University Service, which aids refugee students everywhere. All students and faculty, as well as the people of Burlington are invited.

Until April 9, boxes for the collection of clothes and books will be at the Student Christian Association office--43 North Prospect St.; the Newman Club--corner of S. William St. and Main St.; and COSA office in Lower Waterman Building.

The Cosmopolitan Club's program to aid refugee students all over the world is a bright light on the horizon, which is deserving of every encouragement and support from the students and faculty of the University of Vermont.

This year has been designated by the United Nations for intensive emphasis on refugees everywhere.

There are more than two million human beings throughout the world living a shadowy half-existence, possessing neither home nor country, owning only a suitcase or two, a shred of self-respect and sometimes a dossier of papers that makes the rounds while they wait. Among them are thousands of students, their studies interrupted, and their courage shading rapidly into despair.

To Hong Kong come students from the mainland of China seeking freedom. Instead of freedom, they find hopeless congestion, a population quadrupled by refugees living in shacks of mud or scraps of wood and tin, many without a fixed home. They wait in line for jobs at slave labor. If they are lucky they eat.

In Tunisia and Morocco the student refugees from Algeria try to continue their studies on one meal a day, sleeping on stone floors and existing in miserable, unsanitary conditions.

In Seoul, refugees from North Korea continue to study in unheated classrooms and dormitories in severe winter weather.

The World University Service has become the agency to which the International student community can turn in this critical situation. The World University Service supplies refugee students with clothing, food, medicines and educational assistance, so that they can continue their studies and become useful citizens in a free world.

To these homeless students American students offer welcome to freedom and opportunity. The inscription on the Statue of Liberty reads: 'Give me your tired, your poor...yearning to be free...Send these...to me...I lift my lamp beside the golden door." With help from the students of the University of Vermont, World University Service can open the "golden door" for students in this World Refugee Year.

discrimatory clauses will be removed from the constitutions of all fraternities and sororities here at U.V.M., and it feels this will be another step toward the goal.

As a supplement, campus organizations are urged to offer their support. The Student Christian Association has made an intitial move by proposing another resolution of similar content to the Board of Trustees.

The stress was and still remains that any action must be sensible and constructive.

The 1 out of 20 that didn't get smoked

There's a lot of satisfaction in pointing out something good to a friend. That's why it often happens that one cigarette out of a pack of Dual Filter Tareytons never does get smoked.

People break it open to demonstrate its unique Dual Filter containing Activated Charcoal. They may not know why it works so well, but they do know this: It delivers far more than high filtration . . . it brings out the best taste of the best tobaccos—as no single filter can!

Try a pack of Tareytons. We believe the extra pleasure they bring will soon have you passing the good word to your friends.

HERE'S HOW THE DUAL FILTER DOES IT:

1. It combines a unique inner filter of ACTIVATED CHARCOAL . . . definitely proved to make the smoke of a cigarette mild and smooth . . .
2. with an efficient pure white outer filter. Together they bring you the real thing in mildness and fine tobacco taste!

Vermont Draws Blood

By Steve Berry

University of Vermont students and faculty easily made their quota of 150 pints at this week's blood drawing sponsored by Key and Serpent, the junior men's honor society. The final tally showed that through the donors generosity, 188 pints of blood were donated to the Vermont-New Hampshire Red Cross blood program. Through this program 34,000 pints of blood are supplied yearly to patients in 62 Vermont and New Hampshire hospitals, while 2000 pints are shipped outside this region for residents hospitalized elsewhere.

Key and Serpent president, Jerry Edelstein, indicated that he was more than satisfied by this year's turn out. He also pointed out that there is a lot of work done behind the scenes for a blood drawing. Volunteer cards and permission slips had to be delivered to each University dorm, fraternity, and sorority. A week before the drawing these cards were collected and compared to the volunteer's schedule in the information office. Members of the society aided by members of Gold Key, sophomore men's honor society, then filled out post cards to inform each donor of the best time for his appointment. On the day of the drawing a member of Key and Serpent or Gold Key was on hand at all times to assist in registering the donors, and a member of Staff and Sandal, the junior women's honor society was on hand to type out forms. Another chore done by the men's honor society was to load and unload the Red Cross truck and to carry the equipment to and from the Student Lounge.

Both Jerry and Red Cross officials expressed their appreciation for the work done and the blood donated by the student body.

Organization Of Student Court

by JOHN SULTON

Up until three years ago the Student Court was organized in the fashion of a real court. This included lawyers which were usually pre-law students enrolled in the University. This system was disbanded because it was too "glorified". There are various other opinions as to why this system was replaced by the present one.

Under the new system the Court is organized in a fashion as to include nine Justices, an Assistant Chief Justice, and a Chief Justice. This was done to provide a more "informal" atmosphere. The Court is divided into three groups, that is, the Court as a whole which deals in referral cases, the Academic Dishonesty Commission which deals in matters of cheating and plagerism (this committee consists of the Dean of the College in which the offense was committed, the Dean of Men or Women depending on the sex of the individual, the faculty member who brings the charge, and three members of the Student Court), third of the committees in the Committee on Jurisdiction.

The Court revised its constitution last May to increase its membership from 9 to 12 in order to provide better organization. The second reason for this change was to put elections on an all University basis. It should be explained that becoming a member of the court is not a mere matter of petitioning. Any prospective Justice, before being allowed to run must first have an interview with the Deans of the entire University and receive a favorable recommendation from this council. The rest is up to students.

The only original jurisdiction of the Court rests in cases involving laws or rules passed by S.A. or any of its branches on the constitutionality of these laws. The court also handles any case in which a Fraternity or Sorority breaches what the University deems "proper conduct". All other cases are those of referral which are handed to the court from the Dean of Men, the Dean of Women and the Men's Hall Residence Council. These range from drinking to playing tiddly winks on Sunday.

On cases occurring in the men's dorms the procedure is well established. Stan Messinger, Chief Justice of the Court, gave the system as receiving the case from the Dean, obtaining student's background from his Counsellor meeting the student in Court. The guilt of any person brought before the Court is fairly well established, therefore, the Court's main purpose is to clarify many points in the case which have not been answered in dealing with the case.

The primary power of the Court is in the awarding of punishments. In this respect the Court is omnipotent except in cases involving suspension or expulsion. Action of the Court is final and can be reviewed only through an appeal. Reviews are through the University Council which is composed of all Deans and the President of the Colleges. Action of the Court has been final within the last three years. All court meetings are closed.

UVM Debaters Tie For First

UVM, Harvard, and Dartmouth tied for first place in the annual New England Regional Debate Tournament held on March 17-19 in Providence, Rhode Island. Thirty-two teams competed for the honor of representing the Northeast District at the National tournament to be held in April at West Point.

This new feather, added to the Vermont cap by the debaters, is a continuation of an excellent record in national debate competition. UVM has represented the Northeast District in 10 out of the 13 national tournaments held at West Point by earning a first place among the nation's debate teams once, placing third three times and taking fifth place five times.

The victorious Vermont team was composed of two veteran debaters, Charles R. Tierney and Marilyn J. Graber, both residents of Burlington. It is this team that will journey to West Point to compete in the national finals.

Charles, who displays an outstanding record of victories for his first two years of competition, is a junior at the University, majoring in Political Science. Last spring in the National Tau Kappa Alpha Forsenic Festival he went undefeated.

Marilyn, a sophomore, is a Political Science and Speech major and a three-year veteran of debating at Burlington High School. In her first year of college debating, she won 12 of her first 13 debates and was named to the Frank Lonneborn award as the outstanding freshman debater at UVM.

Mr. Robert Huber, chairman of the Vermont's Speech Department and director of debate at the University, accompanies the debaters on their trips, as coach.

We, of the CYNIC staff, wish these hard-working debaters the best of luck in the Nationals, we know they can win it and we're behind them all the way.

Jeanine Enjoyed Her Role As Carmen

Jeanine Cloutier and Bob Frenier in Carmen. (SPS)

by CAY SANDERSON

"What woman wouldn't enjoy playing the role of Carmen?" This was the challenge put before me by Jeanine Cloutier, the leading lady in Bizet's opera. Miss Cloutier, a music education major in the college of Education and Nursing, comes from Barton, Vermont. While in high school, she played the violin in the orchestra, sang in the glee club, and acted in class plays. She participated in the Vermont Music Festival and won the Vermont Festival scholarship in voice. Her activities around UVM campus include being Secretary of the Student Education Association and a member of Newman Club and the Chorus, as well as the University Players. Jean has a rare quality in her voice somewhat like opera star Marian Anderson. She sings contralto and has a wide range which few women possess. Many people have urged her to continue in the musical and dramatic fields and she has already received job offerings.

Jeanine first recognized her talent for singing and acting when she played the role of Aunt Nettie in the production of "Carousel". The role of Carmen represents a complete character transformation from the matronly Aunt Nettie, and the modest Jeannie known around campus. Nevertheless, she has enjoyed the four weeks of rehearsals with the cast, under the direction of Gregg Falls, more than any of her other dramatic experiences. She "never had so much fun putting on makeup" and gloried in her exciting part. It is interesting to note that Jeanine was personally asked to play the lead role by the retiring Music Department head, Mr. Bennet, who also chose the opera. UVM has served as the laboratory for Jeannie's development, through her experience in the University productions, as well as one semester of voice training. She has acquired a wider scale range and is improving her vocal and dance ability.

Of course, small hardships usually accompany great things, and in Jeannie's case, some weight loss, a few wicked bruises, much pull on hair roots and physical exhaustion in general, were the consequences. However, she upholds the truth that the gains far outweighed the required effort, and her yet undecided future could depend upon these productions.

Southern Trip Two Weeks Away

by Steve Stebbins

[illegible] Sunday, of April 10 at noon [illegible] the meeting, freshmen baseball numerals, manager Steve Mucci, and Coach Ralph Lapointe will be embarking on the annual baseball southern trip. Traveling via Vermont Transit Lines the Catamount baseball squad will [illegible] a total of two days, with travel as far south as Fredericksburg, Va., and return to Burlington overnight[illegible] a light eight game schedule.

The first stop on the agenda will be New York City where the team will host a practice session Monday afternoon at Baker Field and then play Fordham University Monday afternoon. The team will retire in New York Sunday and Monday nights, and then travel to Rutgers University in New Jersey Tuesday morning for a game that afternoon. Shortly after the game the squad will pack up their belongings and head for the capitol of the nation. The Cats stay in Washington will last three days playing games with Georgetown University, George Washington University and Howard University. After the "Big C visit" the Lapointemen will start their return to the northlands. Friday night, April 15, the team will arrive in Long Island, N.Y. for a game Saturday afternoon with Long Island University. Sunday, as it was intended, will be a day of rest for the squad in Greenwich Cats. The team will pack up shortly at noon and then journey northward, traveling to New Jersey again for a game with Villanova on Monday. Tuesday the Cats will end up their eight game schedule playing Upsala at East Orange, N.J. In round out the trip, the team members will be the dinner guests of Mr. Harry Jones W. Tuesday night, whereupon they will return to Burlington for the resumption of classes bright and early Wednesday morning.

It will be a hard, grueling trip for the baseball men of UVM, with many tough opponents, but we are confident a winning season will be indicated by a very successful Southern Trip.

Outing Club Slalom

This year's Sloppy Slalom, to be held on Sunday, April third, shows indications of being the biggest and most exciting race since its founding as an annual event in 1948. Reports from the Outing Club race committee show that by last Sunday night nine teams had already entered and several more teams were in the tentative stage. These teams represent a variety of campus organizations, being from fraternities, the mechanical engineering society, the medical school, a sorority, and a team of independent girls.

Anyone in the University family may enter the race, faculty as well as students. The only skiers not eligible are those who have ever won freshmen numerals or a varsity letter in skiing, or anyone who has skied for the University this year. Skiers may enter individually, or in teams of four by leaving their names in the CDSA office in care of the Outing Club. Best starting positions will be given those teams whose entries are in before Friday noon, but late entries will be accepted by the race chairman, Steve Berry, up until 12:30 Sunday.

The race will be held at Jeffersonville ski area starting at 1:30 in the afternoon. The course will be within walking distance from the parking lot so non-skiing, as well as skiing, spectators are invited. Non-skiing spectators should wear boots, since the snow may not be hard packed beside the race course.

Riflemen Awarded Letters

The University of Vermont Athletic Council today announced the awarding of fifteen varsity letters and freshman numerals to the members of the 1959-60 rifle teams.

At the same time the Council announced the election of Carl Braun of Burlington to captain the 1960-61 varsity rifle team.

Other varsity men receiving awards include Ronald Brand, Salem and Bruce Hodgman of Burlington, Edward Haight of Glens Falls, N.Y., Peter Carr of Wallingford, Jack Utton of Orleans and Sherrill Nott of White River Junction.

Cat Catching Strength

With less than two weeks remaining before their 49th annual Southern Trip gets under way, Coach Ralph Lapointe's University of Vermont baseball team continues drilling in the UVM cage.

Lapointe has three men competing for the starting berth behind the plate, and stated Monday afternoon that "the job is up for grabs right now. I have three good men--Davis, Brown and Pearo all after it."

Pearo, a 19 year old from Burlington, is 5-10, weighs 188, bats right and throws right.

Barry Paces 60 Cindermen

by Reed Humphreys

A four event man who was top point-getter on last year's Vermont Cinder-squad is once again leading the Catamounts as they prep for their opener on April 23 against Bowdoin College at Centennial Field.

Captain Joe Barry of Bellows Falls, who accumulated 84½ points in last year's cinder season was undefeated in pole vault competition. This year Barry will compete in the high hurdles, low hurdles and high jump along with the pole vault.

In two pre-season indoor meets the 22-year-old Army veteran managed to gain two seconds against top flight competition. In the Union College Indoor Track Meet and Relays Barry took his second at 12 feet 3 inches and at the University of Connecticut Relays against New England's top competitors he took his second at twelve feet [illegible].

In last year's state meet Barry won the pole vault and high hurdles, tied for first in high jump and finished second in the low hurdles.

The state meet at Middlebury was Barry's first attempt at the 220 yard low hurdles.

A height of 12 feet 4 inches attained in last year's Norwich meet is Barry's high mark in the pole vault. His aim for the coming season is to top the 13 foot mark and to go on up to 13 feet.

Barry is a social studies major in the College of Education with a minor in physical education. After graduation he plans to enter the field of education as a teacher-coach.

Lane Series Presents Lamoureux Orchestra

On Wednesday, April 6, the Bishop Lane Blue Series will present the Lamoureux Orchestra of Paris, under the direction of the well known Russian conductor, Igor Markevitch. The orchestra, touring America for the first time, will appear in 27 cities during the relatively short period of 35 days.

The Lamoureux Orchestra is unique in that it is completely self sufficient; it is run and supported by the musicians themselves. While it is in its native home -- Paris--it performs only on Sundays. The players are not full time musicians; they support themselves by other means. They play only for love of music, and the money that each member makes in a year from the orchestra itself amounts to barely $100.00.

This orchestra has constantly crusaded for modern music. In 1887, with the memory of the Franco-Prussian War still lingering in the audience's mind, the Lamoureux presented the French premier of Wanger's Lohengrin; The conductor, before picking up his baton, prudently laid a revolver on the podium. Since then the Lamoureux has introduced the works of Dukas, Debussy, Ravel, and Honeger to French audiences.

Igor Markevitch was carefully nurtured as a child prodigy in the field of music by the age of 16 he had written a piano concerto which was successful premiered in Paris. He was conscientious in his studies and respectful of the old masters. When a kindly aunt offered to give him a bicycle, he refused it exclaiming, "Did Beethoven have a bicycle?"

Markevitch has an amazing ear and sensitivity for tone. He has said that he 'sees with his ears; once, it is claimed, he counted three bees on a nearby tree while blindfolded.

Markevitch started conducting when he was twenty years old and had made his career in this field by the start of World War II. He now conducts the Lamoureux and the Montreal Symphony, as well as appearing as guest conductor with orchestras around the world.

Paradise Lost

S A T A N . . . revolting from God, and drawing to his side many Legions of Angels, was by the command of God driven out of Heaven with all his Crew into the great Deep... Satan...in a place of utter darkness, fitliest call'd Chaos...with his Angels lying on the burning Lake, thunder-struck and astonisht, after a certain space recovers, as from confusion, calls up him who next in Order and Dignity lay by him; they confer of thir miserable fall...

The Consultation began, SATAN debatee whether another Battel to be hazarded for the recovery of Heaven: some advise it, others dissuade: A third proposal is preferred, mentioned before by SATAN, to search the truth of that Prophesie or Tradition in Heaven concerning another world, and another kind of creature equal or not much inferiour to themselves, about this time to be created: Thir doubt who shall be sent on this difficult search: SATAN thir chief undertakes alone the voyage, is honoured and applauded..He passes on his Journey to Hell Gates, ... passes through, directed by CHAOS, the Power of that place, to the sight of this new World which he sought.

...long is the way
And hard, that out of Hell leads up to Light.
But now at last the sacred influence
Of light appears, and from the walls of heav'n
Shoots farr into the bosom of dim Night
A glimmering dawn;
...and...
SATAN...
Weighs his spred wings, at leasure to behold...
This pendent World, in bigness as a Starr
Of smallest Magnitude [illegible] by the Moon.

STUDENT ACTION SWEEPS SA ELECTIONS

By Howard Maltz

The Student Action Party completed a clean sweep of last Friday's S.A. elections, attaining control of the four major positions. Jerry Edelstein is the new president, Ted Edgecomb - vice-president, Alan Grout - treasurer and Judy Morse, secretary.

President Edelstein's main goal for his coming term is to change the current S.A. constitution. His purpose in wanting to do this is to give the Student Association more power. Specifically, the change will consist of an evaluation of the powers and duties of the S.A., and an alteration in the present representative system. According to plans the scheduled reforms should be in effect by November of this year.

Mr. Edelstein implied that he was very pleased with the way the "party system" worked out in this year's elections. The fact that the Student Action Party now controls every major office in the S.A. ensures the student of having unified officers, who are striving for a common goal, representing him. Under the previous "individual candidate" system, this would happen very infrequently. Mr. Edelstein added that at election time next year, the Student Action Party would again participate by presenting a united block of candidates of their ticket.

SCA Sponsors Silent March

On April 24th there will be a silent march by UVM students to communicate to the public their feelings concerning the injustice of racial discrimination. This mass action can be a forceful way to stir up interest and to help formulate public opinion. We, as northerners, cannot take part in the actual demonstrations in the south but there are still things we can do. Through our demonstration of concern we can move others to think and act on this nation wide problem. Further information on this march will be put out by the Religious Activities Committee of S.A. after Spring Vacation.

To Be Called Chamber Arts Series

By Mary Pleof

The CYNIC has received news from the Lane Series Committee that a third series is planned for next year. The official title will be the Lane Chamber Art Series, and it will be held from February to April.

The Advisory Committee, made up of townspeople, staff members, and students suggested a need for this new attraction and the Working Committee very readily agreed. It was discussed, voted on, and approved by the Trustees at their February meeting.

This series will in no way compete with the Red and Blue Series, but will be a supplement to them. Most of the performances will be given in the Chapel and perhaps one in Southwick. The attractions presented will be widely different in scope and type. There will be four general groups: 1. chamber ensembles including trios, quartets, octets and wood or wind groups; 2. unusual solo instrumentalists and vocalists (such as viola, cello, lute, etc.); 3. modern dance recitals (among those being considered are Charles Weidman, Merce Cunningham and Jose Limon); and 4. dramatic readings. These will be given in the Chapel because they are different in scope and a more intimate atmosphere is needed. And the Chapel, holding only seven hundred, will be conducive to this atmosphere.

The 1961 Lane Chamber Art Series will be, for the most part, experimental. A budget has been set up and it is being subsidized by the Lane Fund. The Advisory Committee suggested it because "the Lane patrons have requested this kind of series and because the two regular series were over-subscribed this year." However, it will only be repeated if successful in 1961. If the Series nets an audience of five hundred to six hundred patrons, it will be continued.

Due to either chance or brilliant planning, this Series will not conflict date-wise with the other two. Series tickets will sell for approximately four to five dollars and single tickets will sell for approximately $1.50. Remember this is an experimental Series and only you can bring about its continuation.

Vermont Conference An Intellectual Challenge

By Jo Ann Bregstein

Eight P.M., March 30, 1960, brought with it the opening of the seventh annual Vermont Conference. President Fey, in his introductory speech, stressed the importance of the conference for the need of developing patterns of thought and a mature mind. The title of the conference, This Pendent World, be explained as referring to the undetermined future of the world in which we live. Mr. Christofilos, one of the nation's leading physicists, opened the Conference with his thoughts on "Science and Civilization".

Mr. Christofilos pointed out the marvelous technological revolution that has occurred in the last two generations, in emphasizing the fact that nuclear weapons bring with them the threat of destruction. The threat of war exists now more than ever before. He stated, though, that the scientist must continue developing greater nuclear weapons in order to keep ahead of the other nations. But, "It is up to the political leaders to decide what to do to keep peace, not the scientists". The only hope is that maturity will bring with it the balance in civilization that is needed to maintain peace.

He went on to say that the possibility of an atomic war was very small, but possible. Man does not hesitate to buy life or fire insurance, but when it comes to nuclear war we don't want to buy insurance. "The human race cannot become extinct, but our nation can if we continue to do nothing about it." Fallout shelters throughout the country could save the life of more than 100 million Americans and would only cost 1% of the national income over a period of years.

In advocating an increase of college educated scientists and engineers, Christofilos urged a program of federal subsidies, similar to the G.I. Bill. The cost of such a program would be about 1% or 2% of the national income a year, and would help maintain our leadership and help guide us through our "pendent world". He said that advances in science have gone far ahead of those in the hu-munities and that these must become equal if we are to have intellectual maturity along with scientific maturity and achieve "peace and prosperity".

Following Mr. Christofilos to the Vermont Conference platform on Thursday evening, March 31, was Mr. Nirmal Chaudhuri a UN correspondent. He told his audience that the next decade would be dominated by Chinese interest not by that of the Soviet Union. He tried to impress upon us the importance of understanding our Asian neighbors.

They are a people who have suffered much devastation and are not willing to surrender their rights so readily. China has stated that all of the Asian countries must combine their military power to drive out the U.S. 'imperialists'. It is just a question of time before China catches up with the Western powers. - she is determined to do this. There is no lack of brain power in China and no lack of Soviet technical assistance". He said also that China's leaders are extremely ruthless and that she is "the only country in the world where there is literally no fear of an all out war." Mr. Chaudhuri mentioned that China is the only nation which considers increasing population an asset. In fifteen years their population should reach one billion; this means more laborers and thus greater industrial output. His key-note was that of understanding. He said that you can't preach social justice to people who have nothing to eat." Our only hope is that inherent factors in China will lead to the final destruction of the country itself, such as a "population explosion".

We must become aware of all this if we are to UNDERSTAND the Asian peoples. As Mr. Thomas Tabbut, of Goddard College commented, after Mr. Chaudhuri's speech: "This light from Asia seems to make our darkness more visible."

"This situation thousands of miles away can and will affect us."

Friday evening, April 1, brought to the Ira Allen chapel, a "standing room only crowd," along with Mr. Lawrence Ferlinghetti, a New Modern American poet with a Ph.D. from the University of Paris.

He is not a "beatnik" nor does he ever refer to himself as such. "Beatnik", as Mr. Ferlinghetti says, "is a phony term created by journalists". Contrary to much popular thought, he is not a man shouting irrationally at everything and everybody in the world. This poet is a man who is trying to get the American people to wake up and face reality. As the Reverend Mr. Holbrook said, "For Mr. Ferlinghetti the world is hanging". He wants us to see this "Light from Asia" that Mr. Chaudhuri spoke of, to beat standardized people and question the values of our country. Mr. Ferlinghetti speaks through his poetry and attempts to reveal what it means to live in America under the shadows of a "pendent world". Very few people realize this message that he is trying to convey and the majority of laughter Friday night to his poetry readings only chanced to twist the knife of truth in deeper. We must be made aware of the world about us, a world in which a bomb may go off at any moment.

When Mr. Ferlinghetti was asked, at a press conference, of his opinions of the other two speakers, he said the following: "Mr. Christofilos's view is a militaristic, murderer's point of view. I talk from the pacifist side, and cannot agree with him". He agrees with Mr. Chaudhuri who said that the "light from Asia is what would save the world". He felt however, that the UN correspondent wouldn't go as far as he would in the pacifist view. Ferlinghetti said that Christofilos accused the liberal arts of lagging behind, but he things that the "cultural lag is in the scientists who are lagging in the study of the culture of political science". When asked to give his solution to the world problem, the poet said: "The only thing that will save the world is a spiritual revolution, outside of the church, a revolution of the mind."

For those of us who were fortunate enough to attend the 1960 Vermont Conference, we have seen the world through the eyes of a physicist, a correspondent and a poet. Each one expressed his ideas in his own media. One conclusion may be reached - Our dynamic "pendent world" is far outweighed by its precariousness, rather than its preciousness.

Financial Aid

Students now in residence who wish to apply for financial aid for the college year 1960-61 should file their applications with the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women by May 15.

Loans, whether from University loan funds or under the National Defense Education Act, are not normally granted to students whose average for the last preceding semester is less than 72. To qualify for scholarship grants students are expected to have an average of 75 or higher for the last preceding semester.

All applicants for financial assistance, whether scholarship or loan, must file Parents' Confidential Statement. This form, as well as the application, may be obtained in the Office of the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women.

Silent March

There are other avenues of action open to you at the present. First of all you are urged to write to southern newspapers. By the end of the week there will be a list of the names and addresses of major southern newspapers and a list of suggestions on how you should proceed in your letters. These sheets may be picked up in the COSA office and elsewhere.

If you would like to get information from or show your support to the participating students in the south, write a letter. A list of the names of several of the southern students leading attacks against discrimination will be available in the COSA office.

A letter is now being prepared to seek information about how to help students expelled from their colleges and jailed because of their participation in peaceful demonstrations. Andwers are expected after vacation from the N.A.A.C.P., the Urban League and Civil Liberties.

Let's not be out usual complacent selves--let's get out and get something worthwhile done!

Prof. Receives Research Grant

Dr. Julius H. Jacobson II an associate professor of surgery in the College of Medicine, recently received a one year $6020 research grant from the Tobacco Industry Research Committee. This grant will subsidize his research in the field of lung transplantation.

In the past three months Dr. Jacobson has been working with lung transplantations in animals. These lungs have functioned for up to eighteen days.

In the future Dr. Jacobson will try to alter the tissue graft rejection phenomenon, a resistance to the transplanted organ which causes death. He hopes to do this by using chemicals which will reduce the rejection rate sufficiently to allow recovery.

His earlier research was subsidized by Mary Fletcher Associates and the Vermont Heart Association. Dr. Jacobson is Director of Surgical Research at the UVM Medical School, and is also a surgeon at the Mary Fletcher and the DeGoesbriand Memorial Hospitals.

Tau Beta Pi To Initiate Four

Tau Beta Pi, the national engineering society, will initiate John C. Romano, Wayne L. Foster, John H. Martel and Robert M. Murphy into membership this Friday, April 8th. A banquet will be held in their honor that evening, 7:30 at the Lincoln Inn. Mr. William French, General Manager of the Vermont New England Telegraph and Telephone Co., will be the guest speaker.

John C. Romano graduated from the Univ. of Vermont in 1958 with a B.S. in electrical engineering. On leave from the Central Vermont Power Co., where he was employed, he is now a teaching fellow in the Electrical Engineering Department studying for his Masters' Degree. While an undergraduate he was a member of Nu Beta Pi before that organization was admitted to the national Tau Beta Pi organization.

The undergraduates are juniors who rank in the upper fifth of their class. Wayne L. Foster from Montpelier and John H. Martel from Rutland are electrical engineers and Robert M. Murphy, Jr., from Wells River is a civil engineer.

Bud Freeman To Play For Senior Day

Co-Chairmen Betty [illegible] Messinger to-[illegible] that Bud Free-[illegible] this year's [illegible] for Senior Day. [illegible] 29th. And now, [illegible] little info to ac-[illegible] with Mr. F.

[illegible] chat with genial [illegible] or play a round [illegible] with him, and unless [illegible] knew, you'd never [illegible] that this dapper, [illegible] fellow is one of [illegible] tenor saxophonists [illegible] appear on the jazz [illegible]

[illegible] time he became a [illegible] the famous Asutin [illegible] Gang, a Chicago [illegible] Dixieland Jazz [illegible] had already acquired [illegible] tone. Among his [illegible] buddies those days [illegible] Eddie Condon, Pee Wee [illegible] Gene Krupa, Muggsy [illegible], Bix Beiderbecke, [illegible] Dorsey, Red Nichols, [illegible] Wettling, Dave Tough, [illegible] host of other "greats" [illegible] dominated the music scene [illegible] the twenties and thirties. A veritable Hall of Fame.

By 1928 Freeman was playing [illegible] Dave Tough's combo. By 1930 he had already made hundreds of recordings with such bands as Art Kassell, Roger Wolf Kahn, Ben Pollack, Red Nichols, Benny Goodman, and Eddie Condon, followed by recordings under his own name titled 'Bud Freeman and His Windy City Five, Bud Freeman and His Orchestra, and finally as Bud Freeman and the Summa Cum Laude Orchestra on Dot Records numbered DLP 3166.

Bud Freeman is a master of improvisation and an outstanding soloist. His musical imagination is always very interesting and provokes the utmost admiration of his listeners. The fluid style and wonderful tone have for years commanded the respect of fellow musicians and have brought to Bud fans by the thousands. It is generally conceded that he was the first tenor saxophonist to be accepted in Dixieland jazz, and his buddy since they were teenagers, Eddie Condon, was instrumental in bringing about that recognition.

One of the highlights in Bud's long and illustrious career was his signal honor in being selected to open the 1959 Newport Jazz Festival with such stars in the group as Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Ray Bryant, Vic Dickenson, Milt Hinton, and Mickey Sheen. The performance by this group was one of the outstanding features of the Festival.

Senior Week Publicity Heads

Directing the publicity for the 1960 Senior Week will be Ruth Fundin from Portland, Maine, and Paul Stanton from Richmond Hill, N.Y.

Ruth is a Nursing major in the College of Education and Nursing, and is Historian of her sorority, Pi Beta Phi. A past member of sophomore aids, she is a member of the Student Nurses Association. Ruth plans a nursing career after graduation in June.

Paul, an Economics major in the College of Arts and Sciences, has served as Sports Editor of The CYNIC, and currently holds the position of Sports Assistant in the UVM Public Relations office. A brother of Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity, he plans to enter the Radio-Television field after graduation.

Ruth and Paul face the difficult task of not only informing the seniors of the events scheduled for Senior Week, but of keeping the entire student body as well as the alumni aware of the goings-on.

Newman Club Sponsors Father Drinan

Father Drinan

On Thursday, April 28, at 7:15 p.m., Reverend Robert Drinan, S.J., Dean of the Boston College Law School, will give a lecture on "Religion In Government," in the Ira Allen Memorial Chapel.

Father Drinan, who holds the L.L.B. and L.L.M. degrees from Georgetown University Law Center, is a member of the Bars of the District of Columbia, Massachusetts and the United States Supreme Court.

Father Drinan completed his studies at Fordham University, Weston College and Jesuit Seminary in Florence, Italy. He has contributed a number of articles to a score of periodicals which include the Georgetown Law Journal, Commonwealth and Social Order. He writes regularly for America, the National Catholic Weekly, of which he is a Corresponding Editor.

Father Drinan writes on Church State relations, Family Law and Jurisprudence, subjects of which he is an Associate Professor at the Boston College Law School.

It is evident from this long list of impressive qualifications that Father Drinan is truly an expert in the legal field, and his keen interest in politics has made him an expert in that field also. Because of the present day attention focused on "A Catholic For President", his topic for this lecture is of great interest to us all.

The talk, which will be sponsored by the UVM Newman Club, will be open to all the University Family and the general public.

International Cafe

The Cosmopolitan Club sponsored an International Cafe evening last Saturday in the Student Lounge of Waterman Building. There was dancing, refreshments and entertainment, with the proceeds being given to World University Service, which aids refugee students in the world. The latest estimate is that the proceeds of the evening amounted to $35, which will increase.

The entertainment featured The Joshers (Terry Rubin and Philip Eldred), an auction, two foreign students from St. Michael's College and the Phi Mu Delta fraternity Trio (Donald Welch, Barrett Smith and and Charlie McCuin) who sang some typical American songs like "Home On The Range", "When The Saints Go Marching In" and "Battle Hymn Of The Republic".

The officers of the Cosmopolitan Club would like to thank those who attended and the other organizations which helped with the publicity as the Coordinator of Student Activities--Mr. Smalakis, the Director of Public Relations-- Mr. Van Benthuysen, the Student Christian Association, the Newman Club, Phi Mu Delta fraternity and the CYNIC.

The next meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club is scheduled during the last week of April. At this meeting, there will be elections of officers and a panel of foreign and American students who will discuss their opinions of the United States, etc. The definite date will be announced in the next issue of the CYNIC.

Political Parties

This year, for the first time, a party system was used for SA elections. If we are to judge from the voting results, the party system seems to have had some effect on the voting of the student body. The Student Action party, as we all know, swept the elections, capturing all four of the offices at stake.

REASONS FOR PARTIES

There are several reasons for having a party system. In the first place the elected officers, if they are all from the same party, as is the case here, have had some experience in co-operating with each other even before they are thrown together by the will of the students. The officers have the decided advantage of working together for common goals--as indicated by their platforms--set over and above four sets of individual goals. The platforms themselves are of major importance. Platforms in themselves are nothing new. But now the officers are more obliged than ever before to put the provisions of their platforms into effect. The current group of SA officers are, because of the party system, more responsible to the student body as a whole than any recent body of officers has ever been. With the party system, the officers may rest assured that, unless they satisfy the requirements of the student body, their party will not be in office after the next election.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

The party system is something that will be effective only if everyone co-operates to make it a success. The SA officers, unified as they now are, must go on to do the things they have promised and to do their utmost to give the student body the good government it requires. The students, on their part, must play close attention to the activities of the current SA officers and not hesitate to voice complaints if they become lax in their duty. And before next year's elections each and every student should take stock of the accomplishments of the Student Action party as a part of his decision concerning the election of next year's SA officers.

PARTIES SHOULD EXPAND

We suggest that the political parties formed on campus for the SA elections be organized not as temporary groups to operate at election time only. They should become permanent parts of campus life, thus providing a permanent interest in campus politics. We suggest tentatively that consideration be given to expanding the party system to include class officer elections. This, we feel, could result in more direct responsibilities of the officers to their classes.

Student Court Objects

To the Editor:

This letter is in reference to the feature article on the Student Court published in your last issue of the CYNIC. In your attempt to give your readers an idea of the operations and workings of the Court you skillfully distorted the picture with clever, but trite references. One of your more talented feature writers, or editors, informed our organization that your paper is not a media for publicity for any organization. We question this attitude on the basis that a school paper's objective is to give readers some news of organizations on this campus which may be pertinent to them. The news of the court, of any organization, should be presented to the campus when it happens, how it happens, and not in a distorted manner to suit the whims and fancies of a feature writer who neither knows nor writes with any knowledge of his subject. We attempted to give you an objective account of our Court operation; not for publicity, but for informative purposes. This information was given in answer to various questions, and the interest shown by numerous people toward the area and subject of our work. Due to the types of cases we do handle the Court is closed, but we feel that people could possibly gain some insight into the nature of our work by reading about the Court.

This superbly written article produced a roar of hysteria from some of your staff who felt the article was extremely funny, but we didn't feel the play on words was at all comical. You said, with your keen sense of knowledge, that our cases vary from drinking to playing tiddly-winks on Sunday nights. We would congratulate your esteemed correspondent on his creativity and humor, but we feel that people can be amused through other medias besides the CYNIC. In any future attempt to write feature articles, try to get at the true facts and workings of the organization, for all you show by your humor is sheer ignorance.

The students of this university have said that they have no authority, but yet when an organization has authority you try to subordinate any of its real value. We do not expect you to praise the Court or any organization to the limits, but you can be objective for if a newspaper is not, it is not presenting a true picture, but only a misconception. You created a story of misinterpretations in your article, which are of little informative value.

Student Court.

Concerning

Segregation

Dear Editor:

Like the majority of the students at the University of Vermont, I have been following rather closely the current protests against segregation, particularly those occurring at our own University. Believing that insufficient rationalization has been done on this issue by the students, I would like to bring forth a few points, give the opinions of some chain store managers whom I have interviewed concerning picketing and other questions, and to offer some suggestions that I hope may be considered. Two faculty members, the assistant managers of Woolworth's, Kresge's, and Sears Roebuck, the managers of Kresge's, Fishman's, and Grant's department stores, and the President of the Burlington Chamber of Commerce have been interviewed.

First of all, I would like to ask those who signed the letter printed on the front page of the March 31, 1960 issue of the CYNIC if you thought about what you were signing. Do you intend to boycott only Woolworth's, or do you intend to boycott all stores that practice the same policy concerning segregation? The letter stated "a store" and I believe that this means any store; and, by implication, you are saying that you will not do business with any agency or organization that practices Woolworth's policy. I point out from personal experience that as of February 1959 some bus terminals in the South had segregated wash and waiting rooms. There were segregated drinking fountains in the Miami, Florida, Court House, and segregation in one form or another affected almost every establishment in Miami. I doubt that this will effect your actions concerning the boycotting of Woolworth's, you are as unjust as the policy against which you are fighting. I know that such a boycott would undoubtedly be effective, and, like you, I am strongly against unjust actions, or actions based on emotion and lack of thought. Is it fair to boycott Woolworth's and, by so doing, increase the profits of another store that has the same policy? I agree with Mr. Wright, President of the Burlington Chamber of Commerce, that it is unfair to picket or boycott one store and not others if they have

A DESCRIPTION OF THE REQUIEM HELD ON FRIDAY EVENING LAST

It was just spring dirty when we buried him.
From somewhere he had come,
from somewhere
he was still sleeping, in his field green suit that followed like a box about him.
The streets were dirty
when he came; the gutters were gurgling their muck, and the skies were trickling the rain that was not, after all, so very strange.
But we did it anyway.
We buried him.
Standing of course.
Because he wouldn't fall down.
Was it the long side-burns that propped him up?
Was it the voice: No. lambs have bleated out their slaughter in greater frenzy.
Maybe it was the books.
I remember him leaning on them.
He was with us for three days, before we buried him, in his field green suit, that followed like a box about him.
Three days
we listened
Three days
we plotted.
The services began at eight.
The corpse was still ALIVE.
He piped the death of love between the pews, upon the people who were not,
after all,
so strange.
The bell was tolling,
but he could not hear it.
He could not hear it,
hear it above
the rain that was strange if it did not rain, hear it below, the thunder booming beneath the dying day, hear it
tolling, tolling, tolling.
Then he stopped.
And we started.
"Why do you impede the plans which have been carefully thought out and drawn up?"
And all the while the bell was tolling
the gutters were gurgling the rain was trickling the suit was following green in the fields of his falling.
Then it was that we did it.
We buried him.
With our redwhiteandblue collars we did it.
With the bell tolling and the gutters gurgling and the rain trickling
We did it.
While buttoning down our collars and thinking we heard Christ slurping among our coffee cups and listening to the rain and finding it,
strange,
The services ended at ten.
The agony was over.
He walked away
but we buried him anyway, in the box like a suit that followed him,
field green.

the same policy concerning segregation. Have any of you who are in favor of boycotting or picketing Woolworth's, bothered to investigate the policies of the other chain stores in Burlington? As has been pointed out to me by several people, you are practicing segregation yourselves when you isolate one store from a group. But I violently disagree with Sheila Whitney (see page 9, March 31 issue of CYNIC) on some points. Picketing is not disgraceful in itself. It can do a great deal of good if it is followed by letters to Senators and Congressmen, and of course, by a boycott. But let us make sure that we do not segregate one store. Let us work for integration using fairness and rationality as weapons instead of injustice and emotion.

All of the chain store people interviewed were extremely cooperative. They seemed sincerely interested in the problem of segregation and took time from their work to discuss various aspects of the problem for as long a time as was necessary. No one evaded any question asked, and all gave as much information as they could with the knowledge they had and the position they were in. Many wanted to know how different groups of students at the University felt about picketing, etc. They seem to be as much in favor of integration as any group I have yet met. A few, as might be expected, thought that picketing Woolworth's was an unfortunate incident. Yet it was surprising to find so many who did not criticize picketing, even when it was pointed out that their store might have been the one picketed. All admit that a boycott is very effective, and all agree that the problem cannot be understood by those in the North. They feel that, since Vermont is so far removed from areas of admitted segregation, the people of this area will remain apathetic concerning the situation. These managers and assistant managers, I believe, are close to being unanimous in the idea that students at UVM can help to fight segregation. All they ask is that the students use reason and that they act fairly. Although it is obvious that these men do not wish to antagonize University of Vermont students at this time, I believe that they are sincere, and would be willing to cooperate with students in any way they could. I note that the petition to bring expelled students to this University was shown to all those interviewed. I hope to discuss the petition fully after an interview with President Fey concerning it.

It would appear that, for the most part, we are not acting rationally or justly in our fight for integration. We are signing papers without thinking of their full implications, for instance, and in so doing, are quite likely to hurt our cause. If letter writing is an answer--then write letters. If boycotting is an answer--then boycott--but do these things after studying the whole situation. Is there any reason why some student organization cannot get a qualified representative of the N.A.A.C.P. to come here to speak? And, if any are willing, why not an individual qualified to speak for a segregation group? If they were willing to speak the same night, we might have an interesting debate. Actually, anything that would give us a better idea of what

By EDSON DARER

Good afternoon. Starting today, many of us will be leaving the fair City of Burlington for our homes. Others willleave tomorrow and still others on Saturday. The roads will be crowded because many other colleges are starting their vacations at this time also. Caution must be exercised while driving. Even though the roads are clear many people tend to press down on the gas peddle a little harder than they normally would. DON'T. We would like to see everybody back for the final stretch.

PARTY SYSTEM

For the first time UVM, political parties were used in an election. There were two major parties and the campaign, although a bit marred by some misunderstanding of the election rules, was a good one. The results proved that a party system can survive here. The Student Action Party succeeded in getting all its candidates into office. These consisted of the S.A. President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and two councilmen from the classes of 1961 and 1962. I had the pleasure of helping count the ballots and noticed along with other members of the Elections Committee, that the party slate was quite unified. There were not many split tickets considering the number of people that voted. This was not as great a number as turned out to the polls last year, but it was representative of the interest that students take in their student government.

Approximately one thousand students voted. This constitutes less than one-third of the student body. I realize that part of this was due to the fact that polls were not set up at Simpson Cafeteria during lunch hour. This was no fault of the Election Committee. Permission could not be obtained from the Dean of Women's office. Why??? I can not understand.

I was very happy to see that the male population turned out in such great force to vote on the compulsory ROTC referendum. It was a landslide vote to discontinue compulsory ROTC.

AFTER VACATION, WHAT???

After vacation, make sure you all bring back your formals. Sorority formals are the first weekend we get back. Fraternity formals are the following two weekends. The weather should be nice and the usual run-of-the-mill events will occur as they have for the last few years that I have been here. I don't believe that I have to reiterate.

Have a swell vacation and drive carefully. So long for now.

Deans Attend Conference

Dean Clifford and Dean Mosher have left today to attend a meeting of the National Association of Student personal Administration, at Ohio State University. The conference will run for three days, from April 7-9.

Dean Clifford is a member of Commission of the organization, which is entitled Relations With Behavioral Sciences. This year he will also be participating on the program during a discussion of "Policies on Students Use of Automobiles". It will be a comparative discussion of policies on other campuses.

Carmen Jones Shown Tonight

While the University Players' production of Carmen is still fresh in the minds of those who saw it, the film version of Bizet's opera, Carmen Jones, will be shown Tonight at 8:00 in Southwick Auditorium. This cinemascope color spectacular is being sponsored by the Social Committee of S.A.

The film production of Oscar-Hammerstein's celebrated Broadway stage edition of "Carmen" brings the wordly temptress out of her toreodor past into the contemporary setting of an Air Force base in a nearby defense plant. Bizet's original music is set to lyrics in a jazz idiom.

A 20th century Fox production, the movie stars: Harry Belafonte, Pearl Bailey, and Dorothy Dandridge.

we are fighting for besides "moral rights" would be very helpful. If we are going to help to defeat segregation, we are going to have to have more facts, and most important, we are going to have to stop and rationalize our ideas before acting.

Opposes Poet

To the Editor of the CYNIC

I find it difficult to be an articulate as one expects of a college student writing to his school newspaper. But I feel so strongly about the coming and going of Dr. Lawrence Ferlinghetti and the Vermont Conference that I, nevertheless, must abandon the idea of appealing to the more worldly students as they will inevitably sympathize with what I have to say and seem to those students who have alienated themselves so obviously from the former group to subjecting UVM to another of its appalling disgraces.

UVM resorted to what it thought would be "beatnikism" when it invited Lawrence Ferlinghetti as a substitute for the more hoped for Allen Ginsburg. But people were surprised to find a clean-shaven, tie-clinging neatly-collected poet. What was more surprising, though, was that Dr. Ferlinghetti spoke English and had learned to use the language by studying at several universities. Undaunted, however, was the crowd of gaping, carnivorous UVM students which flocked into the Waterman Coliseum to devour its favorite repast - a man for whom America invented a new term, Beatnik. Despite his immediate denial of the existence of such a creature, the chanting, ravenous crowd pinned man to the wall so that his mind was tied. But his heart kept beating and few had the ears to hear.

Rarely does UVM have the chance to show its hurried efforts to emerge from the wilderness. Yet, somehow, it always manages to exhibit the stumbling awkwardness to which it has succumbed in the past and will continue to display in the future, unless. . .

If only for the appeasement of those people who cry out for a positive answer, may I suggest that UVM continue the Vermont Conference and other such programs on an even greater scale than before. There is always the possibility that UVM can rectify at least a partial list of its felonies. At this time, it would be most difficult to commit a crime more serious than this last savage attack.

Sincerely,
Lowell S. Harris

"NO PARKING"

As everyone knows, the most serious problem facing American college today is the shortage of parking space for students' cars.

Many remedies have been offered to solve this vexing dilemma. For instance, it has been suggested that all students be required to drive small foreign sports cars which can be carried in the purse or pocket. This would, of course, solve the parking problem but it would make double dating impossible - unless, that is, the boys make the girls run along behind the car. But that is no solution either because by the time they get to the prom the girls will be panting so hard that they will wilt their corsages.

Another suggested cure for our parking woes is that all students smoke Marlboro cigarettes. At first glance this seems an excellent solution because we all know Marlboro is the cigarette which proved that flavor did not go out when filters came in - and when we sit around and smoke good Marlboros we are so possessed by sweet contentment that none of us wishes ever to leave, which means no gadding about which means no driving, which means no parking problem.

But the argument in favor of Marlboros overlooks one important fact: when you run out of Marlboros you must go get some more, which means driving, which means parking, which means you're right back where you started.

Probably the most practical suggestion to alleviate the campus parking situation is to tear down every school of dentistry in the country and turn it into a parking lot. This is not to say that dentistry is unimportant. Gracious, no! Dentistry is important and vital and a shining part of our American heritage. But the fact is there is no real need for separate schools of dentistry. Dentistry could easily be moved to the school of mining engineering. Surely anyone who can drill a thousand feet for oil can fill a simple little cavity.

Take the case of dental student Fred C. Signfoos...

This experiment—combining dentistry with mining engineering—has already been tried at several colleges—and with some very interesting results. Take, for instance, the case of a dental student named Fred C. Signfoos. One day recently Fred was out practicing with his drilling rig on a vacant lot just off campus. He sank a shaft two hundred feet deep and, to his surprise and delight, he struck a detergent mine. For a while Fred thought his fortune was made but he soon learned that he had drilled into the storage tank of the Eagle Laundry. Walter P. Eagle, president of the laundry, was mad as all get-out and things looked mighty black for Fred. But it all ended well. When Mr. Eagle called Fred into his office to chew him out, it so happened that Mr. Eagle's beautiful daughter, Patent Growida, was present. For years Patent Growida had been patiently waiting for the right man. "That's him!" she cried upon spying Fred—and today Fred is a full partner in the Eagle Laundry in charge of pleats and ruffles.

Speaking of laundries reminds us of cleanliness which in turn reminds us of filtered Marlboros and unfiltered Philip Morris—both clean and fresh to the taste—both available in soft pack and flip-top box.

This 'n That

Two more days and vacation is here at last! Some of us will be whiling away the time in sunny Florida or perhaps over in Bermuda or Puerto Rico. And then there are those of us who have three term papers to write and will probably return with faces pale from days in library stacks (lovely thought?). But whatever your plans. Bon voyage, au revoir, and have a wonderful vacation.

ACACIA

Spring time was welcomed in last weekend with an informal beach party (the first of the early season). The highlight of the party was ice cold drinks (directly from the lake) followed by communal shivering.

Last Thursday evening we welcomed the girls from Alpha Delta Pi to our humble abode for an exchange dinner.

ALPHA DELTA PI

Alpha Delta Pi wishes to congratulate Nancy Holden on the receipt of Dean Wing's Purple Heart award.

ADPi held its annual Frontier Party last Saturday. Even those that resided in the "jail" seemed to have fun.

The pledges' box supper was also very successful proving again that good things come in small packages, or boxes as the case may be.

Last week Marion Force was elected pledge of the week.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

The brothers of Alpha Epsilon Pi would like to congratulate the following pledge officers:

George Adler, President; Bill Klugman, Vice-President; Ed Swartz, Secretary; Lee Rosenfeld, Treasurer.

We'd also like to report that our pledge party was a great success. The award for the best costume went to Jack Stern and his date Carol Billhardt.

The brothers and pledges of Alpha Epsilon Pi have been rehearsing this week for the I.F.C. Sing. Under the capable hands of our pianist and director Jon Tenzer, we hope to cope first place.

Best of luck to Phi Mu Delta on the purchsinga of their new house next door to us.

Congratulations to Jon Tenzer, '62, on being elected treasurer of his class.

We would like to welcome Dick Gilman, Steve Zeleznik, Larry Yarkin, and Mike Zelterman as our newest pledges.

GAMMA PHI BETA

We are all happy to have two new sisters, Beverly Cawley and Barbara Wirth, who were initiated Sunday, April 3rd.

Congratulations to Lois Lorand, whose design won the Festival of Fine Arts Poster contest.

Last week 381 Main took on party air along the nautical theme for the "Ship Board Shuffle". In seafaring costume a good-sized crowd walked up the gang-plank to an enjoyable evening of dancing to the Sig Ep Jazz Band. The evening was highlighted by the election of "The Girl You'd Most Like to Walk the Gang-Plank With"--she turned out to be Anne Parker, who was then awarded the plank!

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

We are pleased to announce that Sue Dane has been elected to the Judiciary of W.S.G.A. to serve as one of the junior members. We are very proud of her.

Best wishes to Nancy Arnold who recently became engaged to Midshipman Merle W. Gorman, a first-classman at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. Nancy and Merle both hail from Gettysburg, Pa. Wedding plans are being made for this summer. We're wondering how she can study with those stars in her eyes!

KAPPA SIGMA

Five new pledges were received into the Kappa Sig house last Tuesday night. They are Lance Garth, Dan Prescott, Mal Macciary, Pete Woytek, and Charlie French. Congratulations!

G. Max Lauder has developed a most effective study program for the house.

Buzz Sylvester, John Chadwick, and Chuck Peck represented the Alpha Lambda Chapter at the District Conclave held at Bowdoin College, March 19-20.

The Kappa Sigs are again well represented in varsity sports this spring. There are nine on the baseball team and three on the track team.

Cha-Cha Parlota is the head of the Kappa Sigma Choir for the IFC Sing. The boys have showed considerable interest in the sing this year and plan to do a "bang-up" job.

Congratulations to Tom Eldridge who became a brother April 4.

PHI DELTA THETA

Last week, the Brothers of Phi Delt were very honored in welcoming new members into the Bond. In ceremonies held under the leadership of President Robert Plance at the Phi house last Sunday, Jon Graff, Reid Lawson, Bill Perkins, Tom Prestwich, and Jon Wilkinson were initiated into the Brotherhood of Phi Delta Theta at Vermont Alpha.

Congratulations are especially appropriate for Brother Jon Wilkinson on his recent marriage to the former Miss Karen Baxter of New Cannan, Conn. After the honeymoon, Jon and Karen will take up housekeeping at 151 Loomis Street for the duration of the semester. Best of Luck from each and every Phi!

The Phi Silver Knights were really up for the IFC track meet with "Spider" Noble, the Ron Delaney of Phi Delt, and "Camshaft" Perran, our dash specialist, displaying top form. However, the Phi's didn't have the horses to overpower the masses from the Summit Street and Williams Street Boys' Clubs and other campus organizations, and thus suffered bitter defeat. A tip of the lance also goes to Phi Sig's volleyball combo who copped top honors in the intramural league.

by SANDY CAMERON

The Phi Delt swamp claimed its first victim this season in the form of Jim "King Kong" Willard, who shrugged his shoulders and said, "---and--- ---!" The Brothers decided to install a telephone in Jim's car along with some snow treads for his rear wheels (not Jim's, his car's . . .).

PHI MU DELTA

With the receipt of the news that we finally have our new house, we boys at Mu Gamma have commenced a heavy schedule of sports, social activities and rushing smokers.

We have finished participating in volleyball-ending up somewhere in the depths of third or fourth place. Barrett Smith and Frank White are currently competing in handball. Plans are afoot for our participation in the I.F.C. softball league. Let's hope we do better than last year.

As for social activities, our schedule is pretty full. On March 26, we had our annual Farmer's Party in the Student Lounge. There were both round and square dancing plus a little waltzing, cha-cha and some polkas. Music was furnished via Max Bueno's hi-fi set and Tom Siccama's tape recorder. Everyone brought a gift which reminded him of a farm. We had everything from hay to cows - toy cows of course. During the course of the evening, the Brickhouse Trio plus One furnished some entertainment as did Rod Stone, Bill Brawley, Harold Stuart and Neshia Kenz.

Now that we are able to open rush, we are having rushing smokers. For the last two Monday nights, we have had a smoker. In the very near future we plan to have a tour of our new house. Monday evening, we also had a coffee hour with a member of the faculty, Dr. Moody, as our speaker. His topic dealt with Evolution. The idea behind the coffee hour is that we wish to become better acquainted with the university faculty and we want to have the faculty become better acquainted with us. This coffee hour also gives us the opportunity to learn about a topic which we might not cover in a class. There are more coffee hours planned for April and May.

PHI SIGMA DELTA

The Phi Sigs send their heartiest congratulations to Jerry Edelstein on his election as S.A. President, to Jerry Gersten on his election as Vice-President of the Class of '61; to Joe Levin on his election to Student Court; and to Marty Singer on his election to S.A. Council.

The house extends a warm welcome to Jim Hurwitz, a freshman from New Bedford, Mass., who became a pledge of Phi Sigma Delta.

Meyer Kaplan, '62, was accepted at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine. Lots of luck!

With the coming IFC Softball Tournament, the men of Fern Hill are hoping to win another trophy.

The Vagabond Pledge Party last Saturday night was a tremendous success. The pledges put on a really good skit and the party was enjoyed by all.

SIGMA NU

Well, Spring has arrived and so has spring cleaning. The brothers and pledges spent all last Saturday afternoon making the house "spic and span". The chief overseer of the project was John "whip in hand" Martel, the house manager.

The reason for such an early spring cleaning is so that the house will be in order for the New England Sigma Nu chapters convention. This convention is to be held on the weekend of April 22.

"Tippy Toes" Thorn, after his magnificent performance as the Dean Princess, has been offered all sorts of "contracts" for his talents. However, Ed, putting his education first and believing that fame and stardom were not for him, refused all offers. At this time, Ed would like to thank all his secret admirers who sent him two water lillies before he went on stage.

Saturday starts spring vacation and as usual most everyone can't wait for it to start Saturday. There will be a mass migration to N.Y.C. Many of the brothers plan to stop in and say "hello" to brother Bruce who is now working there. However, most are going farther south. Jeff Kincaid is leveling towards Ft. Lauderdale, Florida. Jeff is the piano player for the UVM Catamounts which was chosen as one of the N.E. College Jazz Bands to go to Ft. Lauderdale to appear in the National College Jazz Festival. Phil Judd will spend his vacation in North Carolina visiting a couple of "Southern Belles" he met last summer. But most of us just plan to relax, study, write term papers and read back assignments to get ready for that mad dash between the time we get back from vacation and finals.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

The brothers have elected their new executive board and they are: President, Jack Danyow; Vice-President, Rudd Hendee; Treasurer, Al Johnson; Secretary, George Emery; Historian, Dave Hungerford.

Last weekend behind the "Red Door" the pledges threw a party for the brothers. The theme of the party was "Beat" and in an atmosphere of incense and cutlets a swinging time was had by all.

Tony Smart, who at present is enjoying a semester vacation, paid UVM a weekend visit. Both Tony and the Sig Eps enjoyed the brief homecoming. We know he will enjoy Europe and so are looking forward to seeing him again in the fall.

Last Wednesday night the Sig Eps were host to Dean Clifford. After dinner the Dean gave an enlightening and enjoyable talk pertaining to scholarship. He suggested many helpful individual study habits and also ways to improve the scholarship standing of the house as a whole. The talk was followed by an instructive question and answer period.

THETA CHI

Theta Chi is happy to announce that two more freshmen have been pledged. They are Jon Steele, South Burlington, Vt., and John King, Slingerlands, New York.

Contrary to last week's report, it is John Russell who is leading the TCs in the Interfraternity Sing. Practice is underway at 170 Spruce, and the boys are at last getting into the swing of things.

Plans for Spring vacation range from long journeys into the hinterlands to those poor souls who must stay somewhere near a library--ever hear of a term paper?

The Voice of The Campus

By Mary Ploof

Shortly after the war, in 1946, the females on campus were assembled at a W.S.G.A. meeting. All heads were turned respectfully toward the speaker for the evening. With a sudden outburst, the doors flew open and in marched the men of the campus. The war was over, the G.I.'s had returned and they wanted to establish a Student Government and take over the campus. They were what one might refer to as pseudo-adults. They had won the war and they were men in many ways. Fraternities seemed a little too youthful for them and so they instituted the Independents. Now they wanted to be a part of the governing branch. It was their turn to make the rules and regulations. And they did! Shortly thereafter, they drew up a constitution and instituted the Student Government. W.S.G.A. was not abolished! It still remains working in friendly cooperation with the Men's governing body, now referred to as Student Association.

Men like Scott Mahoney and the members of the original council such as: Larry Killick, John Corliss, Houghton Pearl and Wayne Dudley worked hard to make S.A. a strong and powerful organization. They have long since graduated from UVM, but they still remember S.A.'s humble beginnings and look with pride on the present governing body. Some of the rules and regulations they made in those days were: 1. They decided to have all the clocks on the campus synchronized and, 2. to take measures to keep people from walking on the lawn. They also furnished the Waterman Student Lounge and at that time it was for campus organization meetings only.

S.A. has carried on this tradition and is contributing many other things to our college campus. For instance, it started Lane Series, it is fostering the Movie Program, Vermont Conference, Athletic Scholarships and the Cultural Committee is working very hard on the Lecture Series. David Curtis, the [illegible] worked on S.A. [illegible] years prior to his [illegible] Because of a definite interest in Law and Government, has worked hard to [illegible] a really worthwhile [illegible] zation.

On April 1, the [illegible] will be held and a new [illegible] will move into the S.A. office. But whoever the [illegible] we are sure that they will carry on the tradition that a group of G.I.'s started approximately [illegible] years ago. They will continue to be the voice of the campus and fulfill the purpose of the original constitution: "In order to bring about a systematic administration of student affairs on the campus, to codify existing customs and traditions of the University of Vermont and to provide for an organized student control of campus activities..."

Court Convention Held At UVM

The first annual Student Court Convention was held at the University of Vermont, March 25 and 26. The Convention began with registration on Friday at 5 p.m. The delegates attended a dinner in the Faculty Dining Room Friday evening where they heard the keynote speech which was given by President Fey. After the dinner the delegates participated in discussion groups in the Student Lounge. On Saturday the delegates met for a coffee hour held in the Student Lounge. They were given a tour of the University campus and points of interest in the Burlington area. Federal Judge Ernest W. Gibson addressed the Convention Saturday afternoon. He pointed out four levels of Judical authority - Federal, State, Municipal, and University. He described the function and the duties of various levels of courts. He said that University courts should try to maintain a simple dignity and that they should try to help those student who have difficulty in adjusting to the rules and regulations deceded upon by the University.

Judge Gibson answered questions addressed to him by various members of the Convention. The final event of the Convention was a panel composed of the Chief Justices of the University of Deleware, the University of Connecticut, the University of New Hampshire, the University of Massachusetts, Syracuse University and Clarkson College. The Justices discussed several types of cases common to most University Student Courts and the Methods used to handle these cases. The Convention was adjourned at 4:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Reasons For Rent Increase

Announcement of a $60 increase in UVM room rents effective in the fall of 1960 points up some of the problems colleges and universities face in providing the "bricks and mortar" of a college education.

American higher education has many different kinds of institutions -- private, state-supported, municipally-supported, church-supported -- all of them have one thing in common: all have to rely on many different sources for their operating funds and for the capital funds with which they build their buildings.

UVM is one of a special number of institutions which, by state action, has always had to rely on substantial help from private philanthropy.

UVM's first building was financed by voluntary giving from the people of the then frontier town of Burlington. When that first building was destroyed by fire, the present old Mill was again made possible by gifts of Burlington and area friends.

Since that time, the list has grown. Billings Library, Williams Science Hall, Converse, Ira Allen Chapel, Fleming Museum, Southwick Memorial, Waterman Building - all these were made possible by gifts from alumni and friends.

UVM's dormitories, like those at most institutions, have been paid for largely by the students who use them. Because few colleges today receive enough outside help to meet all their building needs, the trend has been to borrow money to make possible new dormitories when they are needed, and to charge sufficient student room rates to pay off the loan and to operate and maintain the dormitories.

The Vermont Legislature guaranteed bond issues for Coolidge, Mason, Simpson, Hamilton, and Buckham, Chittenden and Wills, making it possible for UVM to gain a favorable rate of interest on its loans for the living units. The four new dorms to be begun this spring are made possible by a federal loan.

While most colleges thus look to students to meet the cost of housing units, they likewise look to government, and to Alumni and friends for other needed buildings.

On UVM's campus, the first building provided by state funds was Morrill Hall in 1907. In the early 1940's, the state appropriated funds for construction of Hills Science Hall, the Dairy Building and the Home Economics Building.

UVM's alumni have been counted in recent years for construction of Lafayette Hall and renovation of Old Mill, and for the Medical Alumni Building. The latter was constructed from funds given by Alumni and a matching federal grant.

Alumni are currently being solicited for the new Gymnasium, and UVM will also seek "outside" help from friends in making this new facility possible. Students have just kicked off their own phase of the gym drive.

The new library, for which ground is to be broken this spring, will be a joint enterprise. Students, through a $30 annual library fee, will share the cost with the people of Vermont. A bond issue for the cost of the library was approved by the 1959 Legislature. The student fee will repay part of this to the state, with the state assuming the remainder, over a 20-year period.

Why the need for new buildings?

The answer is simple. UVM's enrollment tripled following World War II, and has remained substantially tripled since that time. The new residence halls, the new library and gymnasium - and other needs besides - are the basic "bricks and mortar" needs UVM must meet to ensure that its present and future students shall enjoy the kind of living and study environment which make it possible to bring together both scholars and students from a diversity of backgrounds and communities, and to provide them with the materials and the space of formal education.

Arts Festival Exhibit

Students will find the UVM Student Festival of Fine Arts in full swing at the Fleming Museum on their return from vacation. Opening April 13, as part of the Festival program, is a lively new exhibit of twenty-five top drawer watercolors on special loan from the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum in New York City. Designed to supplement the Museum's present long term loan from the Guggenheim Foundation of twelve paintings by modern masters, the new show is one of a series being circulated among educational institutions in the United States. Each group of pictures has been selected on the basis of quality, without regard to particular style or movement in art. The Fleming exhibit ranges from animated realism to expressionist and cubist abstractions in tempera, gouache, and straight transparent watercolor. Included are such venerable modern masters as Marc Chagall, Lionel Feininger, Vasily Kandinsky, Ernst Kirchner, Paul Klee, Fernand Leger, Franz Marc, Lazlo Moholy-Nady and Joseph Stella. The show also touches on recent directions in modern American Art, represented by William Baziotes, Adolf Gottlieb, and Charles Howard. The Fleming Museum has added three items from its own collection, a watercolor by Theodore Stamos, an ink wash by Eugene Berman, and a newly acquired gouache by Robert Kaufmann.

The exhibit continues through May 4th when the UVM student show, 1960, takes over.

Meet The Catamounts

by Doug Grubbs

Meet the Catamounts is a feature article dedicated to letting an outsider pry with blunt instrument into the personality of Vermont's varsity teams. With the regular baseball season just around the corner and the baseball squad in mid-season practice, we thought we should take an inside look at the 1963 baseball team. This week the spotlight falls on three senior Catamounts - Cheerleaders Gerry Cassidy and Charlie Isles, and pitcher Steve Cooper.

Gerry Cassidy, the five foot nine inch, 170 lb. smiling co-captain from Hopkinton, Mass., is one of the mainstays on the varsity baseball club. Last year Gerry led the club in the batting department with a sparkling .375 average, and from pre-season indications is headed for an even better season this year. Co-captain Cassidy's fine leadership and keen knowledge of baseball, combined with an outstanding ability as a player have already landed several pro baseball offers. Gerry's athletic skills are not confined to baseball as he has also received a varsity letter in football. An Economics major in the College of Arts and Sciences, Gerry is also an officer of Kappa Sigma fraternity, and a member of both the Newman and Varsity clubs.

Charlie Isles, captain of this season's basketball club, will be a member of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity, belongs to the Society for the Advancement of Management, and is President of the varsity club.

- - - - - - - - - -

Steve Cooper, one of the big men on this year's club, stands six foot two inches, weighs 200 lbs. and hails from Manchester, Conn. A hard throwing left hander, Steve has been looking sharp in recent practice sessions. Steve, a returning letterman from last year's club, is expected to be a mainstay in the UVM mound staff. A history major in the College of Arts and Sciences, Cooper also plans to attend a Medical school in September. The "Big Coop" is also a brother of Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity, a member of both Hillel and the Varsity club, and has twice been named to the Dean's List.

Varsity Club Elections Held

Two weeks ago the Varsity Club held its annual election of officers. Harry Zuess was elected President, Don Parlato, Vice-President, Steve Moore, Secretary, and Paul Eck, Treasurer. The Varsity Club is comprised of all those who have earned a letter in varsity competition at UVM. Its primary purpose is in increasing interest and participation in sports here at Vermont. Its functions include hosting a group of high school athletes on a trip to UVM each spring in an attempt to interest them in coming to Vermont for their college education. Also, the Varsity Club supplies blankets to alumni athletes of UVM in an attempt to keep their enthusiasm for sports at Vermont as active as it was during their college days.

Baseball Season Begins Monday

Coach Ralph Lapointe's University of Vermont diamond-men enter their final week of practice before heading south to open their 49th Annual Southern Trip at Columbia University in New York City next Monday.

Lapointe stated at Monday's practice that "Gerry Cassidy will definitely start in center field. Bill Morrison will be in either left or right, and Prescott, Jarrett or Brown will play the other field."

Cassidy, a senior from Hopkinton, Mass., is co-captain of the club as well as having led the team in hitting last season with a blazing .375 average. Gerry bats left, throws right, and appears to be headed for another terrific season.

Morrison, a junior from Danielson, Conn., is a newcomer to the club, and has been showing well in practices thus far. Batting and throwing right, Bill is 6-0 and weighs 165.

The Catamount outfielders went outdoors Saturday for the first time this spring, and hope to get in another "fresh air" practice before the end of the week.

Vermont QB Lyford Signed By Hamilton

BURLINGTON, VT., APR. 7. - University of Vermont passing ace Peter Lyford of Wilder, Vt. has been signed to a try-out contract with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Eastern Canadian pro football champions, it was announced today by head coach Jim Trimble.

Lyford, whose pass completions were racked up primarily with fellow backs Lou Petronaci and Roy Greene, led Vermont in total offense last year, threw four scoring passes, and scored three TD's himself.

The 6'1" 195-pound senior broke into the Vermont lineup late in the 1958 season, completing 23 of 50 aerial attempts for 324 yards and five touchdowns. He won honorable mention All New England honors that season for his showing in less than three complete games.

Last year, playing in mud throughout the latter half of the campaign, Lyford shared UVM signal-calling duties with QB Bob Fiance. His most spectacular effort came against St. Lawrence University, when he completed six of nine attempts, and threw for two last-minute TD's to pull out a 20-14 victory in the rain and mud at Canton, N.Y.

His try-out contract with the Tiger-Cats, terms of which were not announced, calls for him to report to training camp with the team in early July.

Lyford's work, as a pro candidate with one of Canada's top grid teams, is clearly cut out for him. He will be seeking to win a spot behind the Tiger-Cats' league-leading passer Bernie Faloney. Faloney, a former All-American at Maryland, picked up 2,852 yards in the air in 1959, good for 18 TD's and a .544 pass completion percentage.

Pete "Golden Arm" Lyford (AVS)

The Vermont quarterback's effectiveness as a passer is believed to have won him the Canadian try-out. Under Canadian grid rules, a team may keep possession of the ball for only three downs unless advancing for a first down. This regulation has made Canadian football a "wide open" game, where accurate passing and reliable pass-receiving are at a premium.

Lyford is an economics major in the UVM College of Arts and Sciences and is a candidate for graduation this June. He is a member of the UVM Varsity Club and of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

TRACK- - - - - -

In the past I've mentioned the potential record-breakers on the Kitten track team. Some of them are no longer potential record-breakers, but are record-breakers. Hal Billings broke the old mile record of 4:56.4 by almost 2 seconds, making the run in 4:54.8. Overall, the freshmen came through in the IFC Meet held Saturday. In the 30 yd. sprint, freshmen placed 2nd, 3rd, and 4th, being Garcia, Heller, and Bernstein respectively. S. Borroughs placed 3rd in the high hurdles, and Steve Bernstein took a first in the pole vault. In the mile run that Billings won, another frosh placed----McKendry was 3rd. DelNegro and Sequist took the shotput, Bill Mulhern the 440 run in 58.4 with Rush 3rd, DelNegro 2nd in the weight throw, and J. Stahler took 2nd in the high jump. In the 880 Special Run, the Varsity was beaten by a freshman, Simpson, who broke the old record with 2:13.5. Bill Mulhern took a 3rd in the 220 with 27.1. Hal Billings took another first, in the 880 in 2:16.2, and McKendry placed 4th. In the Broad Jump, Borroughs placed first with a leap of 10'11". Garcia came in 2nd, with a jump of 18'4¼".

Congratulations to these freshmen who won, and to all of those who competed!

Starting Monday, the boys out for spring football were practicing on the partially rain-soaked Centennial Field. We'll be hearing more about them later.

The baseball team has begun practice in full swing. The frosh 9 should do all right this year. After the spring recess there will be a lot more about them also.

The Tennis team has been burning the lights late in the gym 4 nights a week now, for about 2 months. Things are looking good there too.

This should be one of the best years the freshman teams at Vermont have had in a while!

Gov. Stafford To Speak At Honors Day Ceremonies

The speaker for the Honors Day Program, to be held on May 2 in the Ira Allen Memorial, will be Governor Robert T. Stafford, the 69th man to serve as Chief Executive of the State of Vermont.

Born in Rutland, Vermont on August 8, 1913, Governor Stafford still makes his native city his home. He attended Middlebury College and received his B.S. degree from that institution in 1935. He received his law degree from the Boston University Law School in 1938.

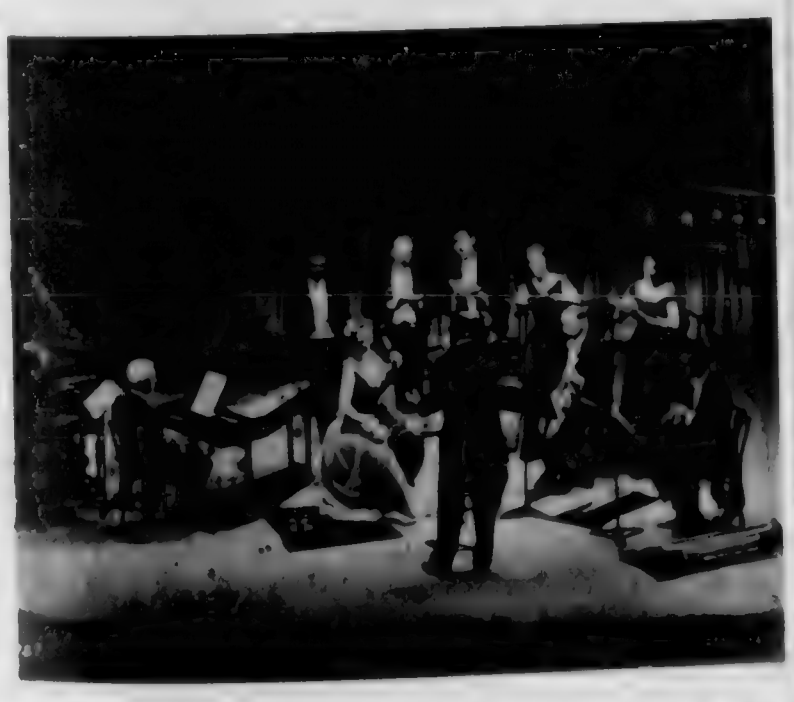
One of the youngest men to be elected Governor of the Green Mountain State, Vermont's Chief Executive first began his public service when he was elected Rutland City Grand Juror before his 25th birthday in 1938. He served in that position until 1942, and was elected to two terms as Rutland County State's Attorney, from 1947 to 1951.

His political career on the state level began in 1953 when he was appointed Deputy General of Vermont. Two years later he was elected Attorney General of the State in his first bid for statewide elective office, and in 1957 his meteoric rise up the the state political ladder continued as he became Lieutenant Governor.

In 1958 he entered the Republican Primary for the office of Governor and was unopposed, the first time a Republican seeking his first term has had clear sailing for the nomination in Vermont's recent history. Governor Stafford won election over his Democratic opponent in the November General Election.

In addition to his public career, his political service includes membership in the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Rutland Lions Club, Fraternal Order of Eagles and Elks; he is also a member of the Vermont Bar Association and the Rutland County Bar Association.

The Honors Day program will also include official recognition of the men's and women's honoraries: Boulder, Gold Key, Key and Serpent, Mortar Board, Staff and Sandal, Sophomore Aides; All Sports Club, Astronaut Air Society, Commerce and Economics Society, Ethan Allen Rifles, Alpha Lambda Delta, Alpha Zeta, Kappa Delta Pi, National Collegiate Players, Omicron Nu, Pershing Rifles, Sigma Delta Psi, Tau Beta Pi, and Tau Kappa Alpha.



H.S. Students Tour UVM

On Saturday morning, April 23, busses arrived at Waterman and deposited some 1000 Vermont high school juniors. The occasion was UVM's annual High School Day, which is under the direction of the Administration office. This program originated eight years ago, and was designed for high school seniors, the plan being to give them a first-hand view of college -- what requirements for admission were, what their chosen curriculums would consist of, and what to expect in respect to study, extra-curricular activities, and expenses. The second year, the program was modified somewhat. It was felt that it would be much more beneficial to high school juniors, the main reason being that by having an opportunity to find out what high school preparation was necessary for their chosen fields, they would be able, in their senior year, to take courses they might have missed or thought unnecessary.

Dean Rowell and several student leaders addressed the visiting students at the opening meeting at Ira Allen Chapel. During the remainder of the day they were free to attend informal discussions and tours, which were headed by students and faculty members of the several colleges and the departments within the colleges. They also had an opportunity to visit sample classes, and several department exhibits were set up for them. During the afternoon, rooms in Waterman were set aside for each county. The visitors were welcome to discuss campus life with UVM students from their own counties and high schools.

The program was concluded with a concert by the UVM band in the Chapel, under the direction of several of the band members.

New York Pro Musica Closes Lane Series

On Tuesday evening, May 3, the 1959-60 Lane Series will close with the Red Series performance of the New York Pro Musica. The Pro Musica is an ensemble of some ten musicians, both instrumentalists and vocalists, and their Musical Director and founder, Noah Greenberg. The group was founded in 1952, and has set for its objective the appreciation of the general public of that "composers of the Renaissance and pre-Renaissance---had produced pieces suitable only for performance on the most somber of religious occasions."

The music performed by the Pro Musica covers a period of some five centuries, from 1200 through 1700. The group has been called by critics "one of the leading chamber groups on the scene" and a Virtuoso ensemble.". It has played to sell-out crowds all across the country and recently received a $46,000 Rockefeller Foundation Grant to "enable this unique organization to continue its work and expand further the research necessary for the programs they offer."

Buddy Freeman To Play For Senior Day

"The master of the tenor sax", Bud Freeman, will be on hand to provide smooth jazz sounds for tomorrow afternoon's 4th Annual Senior Day Jazz Concert. The performance will take place on the campus in front of Waterman Building from 3 p.m. until 6 p.m., and everybody is welcome. Should the skies darken, the concert will be held in the Student Lounge.

The name of Bud Freeman has been synonymous with jazz since the glorious 20's when he was one of the famous Austin High Gang in Chicago. He led his own small groups, notably the Summa Cum Laude and Famous Chicagians whose excellent recordings are timeless jazz classics.

Bud Freeman plays with constant good taste and swinging conviction; he is one of the truly great individual stylists on the tenor sax. His perfect phrasing, brilliant tone and magnificent technical ability are an invaluable contribution to good jazz.

In selecting Freeman and his group to play Senior Day, event co-chairmen, Betty Samson and Stan Messinger, jointly stated that "we wanted to get an individual whose works were well known and a man who would attract a large audience. Bud Freeman is certainly this man."

UVM jazz fans would get double enjoyment from one of "Bud Freeman and His Summa Cum Laude Trio", on the Dot label. Bud's drummer for the 12 numbers in this LP is popular Mousey Alexander, whose talents are quite famous in this area.

This past year, Freeman has stuck mainly to recording with his own units and doing solo work so that he could have more time for his favorite pastime, golf.

See you tomorrow afternoon at 3. . .on the green in front of Waterman.

Annual IFC Sing Saturday Night

On Campus with Max Shulman

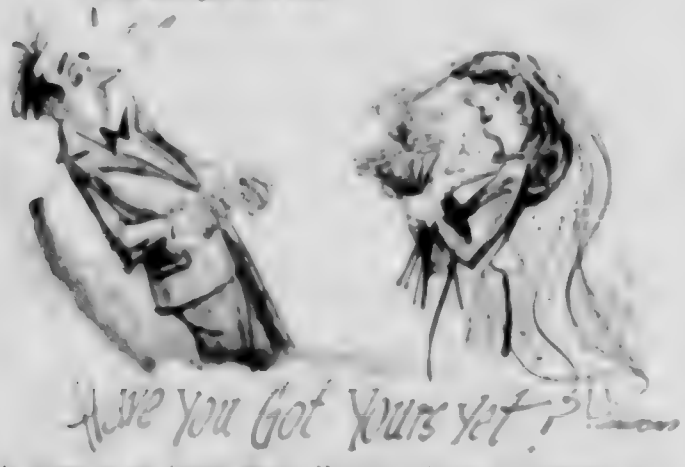
author of "I Was a Teenage Dwarf" "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis" etc.

A GUIDE FOR THE LOVELESS

[illegible] take warning. Love is closer [illegible] than the mouth of cobra. Have you got your pair? If not don't die. Your [illegible] is not to hesitate to get a pair. All you need to be a blest succedaneum [illegible] is ability to dance a gavotte.

For example, don't ever call a girl for a date at the last minute. Always give her plenty of advance notice. Like three months for a swim date, six months for a movie, a year for a prom, two years for a public execution. This shows the girl that she is not your second or third choice and also gives her ample time to cancel her existing [illegible].

And when you ask for a date, do it with a bit of Old World gallantry. A poem, for instance, is always sure to please a young lady, like this:



I think you're cute,
Daphne La France.
I'll put on a suit,
And take you to a dance.

In the unlikely event that you don't know any girls named Daphne La France, try this:

I think you're cute
Winifred Jopp.
I'll put on a coat
And take you to a hop.

In the extremely unlikely event that you don't know a Winifred Jopp either, try this:

I think you're cute,
Isabel Prall.
I'll put on a suit
And take you to a ball.

It seems to me Isabel Prall, Winifred Jopp, or Daphne La France (as your campus) it is quite obvious why you've had trouble finding dates all year. you've enrolled in an all-male school and [illegible]!

Next let us take up the question of etiquette once you are out on a date with Isabel, Winifred, or Daphne. The first thing you do, naturally, is to offer the young lady a Marlboro. Be sure, however, to offer her an entire Marlboro—not just a Marlboro butt. Marlboro butts are good of course, but whole Marlboros are better. You get an extra inch or two of fine flavorful tobacco—and I mean flavorful. Do you think flavor went out when filters came in? Well, you've got a happy surprise coming when you light a Marlboro. This one really delivers the goods on flavor, and when you treat Isabel, Winifred or Daphne to whole, complete, unscrimped Marlboros, she will know how highly you regard and respect her, and she will grow misty and weak with gratitude. Mind you, it's very important when you take her out to dinner, because the only kind of meal a college man can afford to feed a girl on a week end is a meal that costs 1 cent. Latest statistics show that a coed is normal and fine only up until a meal bigger than one that weighs more than 3 pounds.

At the end of your date with Isabel, Winifred, or Daphne, make certain to get her home by curfew time. That is good manners. Do not leave her at a bus stop. That is crude. Deliver her right to her door and if possible stay there until you are dragging her off.

The next day send a little thank you note. A sweet [illegible] Like this:

For a wonderful evening, many thanks,
Isabel, Winifred, or Daphne.
I'll take you out for some more soon if possible.
Next Saturday, if you'll accept me. [illegible] Max Shulman

We can't give you a home, but we'll give you good reason why you'll enjoy Marlboro and Marlboro's unfiltered companion cigarette, Philip Morris. One word says it all: flavor.

Club Party Raises Money

The Cosmopolitan Club raised $45 in behalf of the World University Service at the "International Cafe" function it sponsored on April 2. In addition to the above, financial contributions were made to the World Univerasity Service to aid refuged students in pursuit of their educational aims. the Newman Club has donated $50 and the Student Christian Association donated $8. The total University contribution to the World University Service Refugee Relief program will be upwards of $120. The clothing and book drive for the World University Service resulted in a donation of approximately fifteen cartons for the refugee students usage.

The officers of the Cosmopolitan Club have expressed their thanks to the students and faculty of the University of Vermont who have contributed money, clothes, books and support (publicity) to the World University Service.

The next meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club will be held Tuesday, May 17, at 7:30 P.M. in the Student Lounge of Waterman Building. At this meeting, there will be a panel discussion (consisting of foreign and american students) and an election of officers for the next year. All students and faculty are welcome to attend.

Gym Fund Committee Begins Three Year Drive

UVM students have posted a fund-raising thermometer outside Waterman Building. Its "red ink" indicator will go over the top when the student goal of $50,000 for the gymnasium fund drive is attained. Assisting in "planting" the thermometer were Joan M. Manley, '62, Brattleboro, Alan S. Maclean, '62, Drexel Hill, Pa., and Corinne E. Szeglin, '61, Glen Rock, N.J.

The Gym Fund Committee, under the chairmanship of Joan Manley, has begun its fund-raising drive. It will follow a three year plan of operation in coordination with the alumni body, who are soliciting pledges for a three year period. They have had the cooperation of the university, faculty, alumni association, and administration.

The student committee is an independent body, separate from S.A., with representatives from many of the student organizations on campus. It is acting as a coordinating body to organize any programs that student groups might set up for the purpose of getting money for the new gym. This is the first committee on campus that has directed its efforts towards getting the support of other organizations. As an example of this the "Hairy Legs Ballet". This was the Gym Fund Drive's first campaign, and many other independent organizations. Five hundred dollars towards the new gym was collected at this event.

The committee, itself [illegible] permanent one on w[illegible] students will serve [illegible] year of their graduat[illegible] is felt that this w[illegible] it easier to carry [illegible] scale programs that [illegible] become progressively [illegible] and more remunerative. [illegible] will be able to progress [illegible] out having to reiterate [illegible] points. The group is [illegible] open to suggestions as [illegible] what other organizations [illegible] campus would like to [illegible] raise money.

A notice will be sent to all students during the year, and anyone interested in becoming a member to write a letter to the committee. They will be [illegible] according to interest [illegible] qualifications.

The University is [illegible] necessarily concerned with groups planning fund raising activities in which everyone may donate.

The thermometer outside [illegible] the Waterman building is to register the progress of student contributions. The aim over a three year period is $50,000. The alumni goal is $1,000,000.

In 1902, when the present gym was erected, it was considered the finest [illegible] physical education plant in New England. With the growing enrollment its facilities are of service only 600 of the required 1100 men.

Corinne Szeglin, Treasurer of the Committee, had this to say about the new gym campaign "although the majority of the students presently enrolled at UVM will not be able to enjoy the actual benefits of a new gym, working towards such a goal will aid in the coordination of student spirit and cooperation."

Campus Spotlight:

"This is the first in a series of articles on Campus Spotlights on students in the news of the week."

The campaigning is over and the votes have all been cast and counted. Now, it's time to take a close look at UVM's new Student Association President and some of his views concerning campus life and Vermont.

Jerry Edelstein, 1960-61 SA President, is a member of the class of '61. He is enrolled in the Arts & Science College as an economics major. Jerry, one of UVM's many Long Island residents, is from Rockville Centre and plans to attend graduate law school when he completes his education at UVM. His past accomplishments in his studies as well as his many extra-curricular interests indicate that Jerry will prove a most capable SA President. During his three years at UVM, Jerry has been on SA Council, Sophomore Class President, Gold Key Honorary, Joint Social Activities Board, SA Treasurer, President of Key & Serpent Honorary, Homecoming Co-Chairman, and head of the 1960 blood drive. And also a member of Phi Sigma Delta.

As President of SA, Jerry plans to initiate a program of government reform and constitutional revision. The aim of this program will be to improve a stronger student government. In accordance with his reform program, Jerry feels that the now functioning "Joint Social Activities Board should be abolished and many of its duties assumed by SA. It is a committee which seems to feel that the student is incapable of a mature opinion and therefore hampers him with too many rules and regulations."

"SA, in the past, has been mainly a finance committee. This year we hope to have more emphasis placed on policies beneficial to the student body rather than on finances." Mr. Edelstein also hopes that the "University's governing bodies may incorporate into one strong student government."

Even though Jerry, one of next year's seniors, will not be using the proposed library, he feels that the library fee is the only way to make progress in University building. "After all, library fees are commonplace and often much higher at other universities."

One of Jerry's pet ambitions is to have the parking lots in back of the Freshman men's dorms converted into basketball and tennis courts which could be flooded and used as skating rinks during the winter. "Due to the fact that no Freshmen are allowed cars on campus, there is no real necessity for these parking lots. The amount of cars parked there is way below the lot's capacity and therefore the lots have lost their usefulness." If the lots can for some reason not be converted into recreational facilities, Jerry feels that Freshman men should be permitted to have cars second semester, if their first semester average has been satisfactory.

In regard to the CYNIC, Jerry is pleased to see that it is becoming more of a voice for student opinion. "Until the segragation incident, the CYNIC never really voiced student opinion. The CYNIC has the opportunity to and should fight for student rights. I believe it's improving, but it still has a long way to go.

Mr. Edelstein has definite ideas about many of the University's weak points such as apathy and lack of unity. With Mr. Edelstein at the helm of UVM's Student Association, many of these "germs" may be "remedied" and UVM may come closer to a smooth and efficient government for the entire student body.

Clifford And Mosher Attend Conference

The Conference of the National Association of Student Personel Administration, attended by Dean Clifford and Dean Mosher, April 7th-9th, to discuss the "Policies on Students Use Of Automobiles" seemed to conclude that each university must formulate its own policies in accordance with the personality of its own institute and its own local conditions. The two main reasons for universities taking action to limit automobile use are: academic and or inadequate parking facilities. Dean Clifford said that the purpose of forbiding autos to freshmen, at UVM, is solely academic. The automobile policy at Vermont grew out of a faculty decision, indicating its orientation toward the academic. It is felt that the freshman has many adjustments to make in the transition from High School to College. By the time a student is a sophomore he should be able to plan his time and be capable of managing a car and studies.

In a comparative study of college automobile policies it was found that most institutions have a freshman limitation, but the rules ran the full gamut from no restrictions; UVM being somewhere in the middle.

Guest Speaker At Newman Club

Rev. Robert F. Drinan, S.J., dean of Boston College Law School will be the guest speaker at the Newman Club Meeting in Ira Allen Chapel tonight, at 7:30. Father Drinan's topic is "Religion and Government in America". Among the questions he will touch upon are, What About a Catholic as President? The Teaching of Theology on a State University Campus, Separation of Church and State, and many other topics of current interest. The meeting is open to everyone.

Concert Postponed

The date of the University Orchestra concert has been postponed from April 28 to May 11. At this time the Music Department will present a joint orchestra-chorus concert, under the direction of Professor Howard Bennett and Professor Ippocrates Pappoutsakis.

NOTICE

Any campus fraternity sorority or other group wishing to participate in Vermont Varieties for 1960 Freshman Week should submit its name to COSA office by May 9, 1960.

Fr. Branon Elected Province Chaplain

At the annual convention of the New England Province of the National Newman Club Federation, Rev. Philip J. Branon, chaplain of the Newman Club at the University of Vermont, was elected New England Province Chaplain. In this capacity he will direct the Newman Club activities of the New England States. There are approximately sixty Newman Clubs in this area, on most of the non-sectarian campuses.

Father Branon became chaplain of the UVM Newman Club in June of 1957. Recently he took up residence at the Newman Center, 146 Williams Street, devoting all of his time to work with college students. He will serve a two year term. Father Branon succeeds Rev. William Nolan, chaplain at Dartmouth College.

The new province chaplain gave the following message to the delegates to the New England convention: "To make the Province serve its purpose, we shall strive to standardize Newman activities. Of special interest will be the educational program. It is necessary to think in academic terms on every campus. We must be ready to provide our students and their confreres with the best in Catholic literature and learning. "A second goal will be to implement the teaching of Theology and Catholic heritage. We see as vehicles for teaching: classroom courses, lecturers, discussion sessions, and especially the inclusion of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine program in the Newman Apostolate.

"This in keeping with Newman's statement, 'Admit a God and you introduce among the subjects of your knowledge a fact encompassing, closing in upon, absorbing, every other fact conceivable."

Lane Series:

The recent announcement by the George Bishop Lane Artists' Series of a third Series, to be presented next year along with the regular two, marks another step in the progress and growth of the Series. The Lane Series was instituted several years ago in compliance with a bequest to the University by George Bishop Lane. There was originally a single Series, which consistently sold out. Demand for tickets became greater and greater, and it was decided last year that a double series would be offered for the 1959-60 season. This, too, was a complete sellout, and in view of the tremendous response the Lane Committee has planned the third Series.

CONGRATULATIONS TO COMMITTEE

Now, as the last of this season's presentations approaches, the CYNIC would like to extend the congratulations of the entire student body to the Lane Series Committee for a job well done. The members of the Committee have had the sometimes thankless, but always, we hope, rewarding job of attending to the requirements of the artists while they are in Burlington, and of arranging for the large audiences who come to see and hear these artists. At the same time the Committee has been selecting and booking the artists who will appear in next season's performances. A glance at the schedule of any Committee member, especially on a "Series Day", will attest that he has no easy job.

VARIETY AND QUALITY

The variety and quality of Lane Series presentations, as well as the other necessary preparations, are a tribute to the Series Committee. In the past season alone subscribers heard and saw both opera and folk singers. They saw fine plays and heard great orchestras. Both ultra modern and medieval music was heard. And each and every type of production was presented by one of the leaders in its field. This is the Lane Series.

Now, at the end of the 1959-60 season, the current Lane Series Committee can look back with pride at its achievements. It is the first Committee to handle the double Series, and it has done a fine job. It has furthermore not been content to equal its predecessors: it has planned a third Series. The Series itself can look back at a successful past, and, at the same time look forward, with those of us who will be here, to next year's Series.

Letters To The Editor:

Why Picket?

A recent letter printed in the forum of this paper stated several seemingly strong arguments against picketing Northern chain stores because of segregation policies in the South. But upon closer examination, the logic of these arguments cannot stand against the facts that have already been accumulated by those studying the effects of the protests.

Picketing in the North, its critics say, causes nothing but resentment in the South, as evidenced by the violence between Negroes and whites in recent clashes there. But the fact is that a lunch-counter picket movement started in North Carolina and moved south before it crossed the Mason-Dixon line. The closely related boycott was begun in the heart of Dixie, in Montgomery, Alabama. As for the racial violence, most of it has taken place in lunch counters between protesting Negroes and members of the Ku Klux Klan. It may also be noted that very little in the way of social reform has been accomplished without resentment, adverse criticism, and even bloodshed.

Some claim that picketing is too strong a measure. Actually, however, it is the closest thing possible to passive resistence. This form of protest is non-violent, quiet, peaceful, completely lawful, and protected as one of the freedoms of our democracy.

Why pick on one store, it has been argued. Others have the same policy. The answer is that since the chain most frequently boycotted is the largest keeping a segregated lunch-counter policy, it was felt that this was the best place to start. And it has been proved in many local instances, that when the largest store adopts a fully integrated policy, the other establishments follow.

But the local store is being picketed, and it has served one and all for over thirty years. What possible good does it do to march in front of it? The answer to this objection can be found in the picketers' signs -- "Economic Pressure in the North means Policy Change in the South." When students from over one hundred colleges throughout the United States picket the branch in their towns, each small sting becomes part of a strong economic blow to the entire chain. Possibly even more important is the image which a public institution must maintain to keep customers. Picketing historically, has called forth the image of "Unfair!" Many people will not deal with a store that is unfair, or even accused of being unfair to anyone.

But the most important question is whether or not the picketing is going to be successful. The answer appears to be that it will be a success. A new branch of the chain recently opened in Texas on a totally integrated basis. At least two segregated branches have closed. The movement is getting more and more recognition and more and more support from civic groups, mayors and governors. The national headquarters of the boycotted chain has already instituted a partial integration on a trial basis.

Why picket? Because this is, the only sane, immediate, peaceful personal step that can be taken to stamp out the smoking embers of a long-burning social evil.

Sincerely,

Jules Older

Quote Of The Day

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of quotations which will appear regularly in the CYNIC)

"Goethe, who also lived through a crisis of [illegible] said to his generation: 'What you have inherited from your fathers, earn over again for yourselves or it will not be yours.' We inherited this freedom we talk about so glibly. We seem unaware that it has to be regained and re-earned in each generation of man. One reason for this failure is, I believe, passing at last. In recent years we were stifled complacent self-confidence. We believed ourselves dominant in every field. We talked of 'the American Century.' We forgot the ardors and efforts that have given us a measure of pre-eminence. Complacency made us impervious to ideas, even the obvious idea that we are in danger. So we assumed that all we need was to sit still and enjoy the 'peace and prosperity' that was our right."

April 16 19[illegible]

Dear Editor:

We enjoyed the very readable and illuminating editorial regarding the NDEA affidavit which appeared in the CYNIC on March 20, 1960. It is very important that students understand the issues at stake if they are to lodge effective protest with Congress; and such editorials are important in the achievement of this goal.

Lamoureux Presents Enjoyable Evening

the Lamoureux Or- playing of the ...d French national ...s a sneaky way of ... standing ovation, certainly deserved Markevitch displayed unemotional and ...mpetent technical the music. The was thoroughly re- his lead and the ...owed an excellent facility of their erformance might be ...med up as brilliant and Markevitch showed ...gment in his selection relatively familiar ...t the audience could ...easily appreciate and ...and, and of emotional music, permeated ... crashing climaxes so ... of this period, which ...as obviously most suitable ... his temperament and ... of the orchestra. I ... add that the orchestra ...played superb coordination.

...e first selection, Gounod's ...Symphony In E Flat Major, ... a relatively unsepc- ...ular, modest piece some- ...at reminiscent of the un- ...ssuming regularity of Haydn. ... gives the orchestra pre- ...senting it a chance primarily ... show off their coordina- ...tion and technical facility, ...rather than their competence ...in presenting quick changes. ...It was perhaps fortunate ...that this selection began the ...performance, for by its un- ...assuming nature, it served ...as the start of an emotional ...build up which the audience ...seemed clearly aware of.

The next piece, Dukas' The ...orcerer's Apprentice was a ...delightful surprise to the ...audience, not being on the ...program. It was based on one ...series of notes, and developed ...from a slow, soft and deli- ...berate pace to an intense ...emotional frenzy. It was by ...far the most exciting single ...piece of music on the program, ...and its brevity only accent- ...uated that quality. Here, as ...in the Berlioz work, the loud, ...crashing climaxes were pre- ...sented skillfully and with ...striking coordination. Marke- ...vitch was well aware of the ...emotional quality of the ...music, and made certain that ...it was expressed, yet he never for a moment lost his cool-headed unemotional and technical command of the orchestra.

Ravel's Daphnis and Chloe Suite, the next work on the program, falls in the so-called Impressionist period of music, primarily a French movement that included Debussy and Ibert and several other composers. It differs from earlier romantic classical structuring, and creates a dreamy, outdoor effect, bringing to mind vast, lazy scenes of plains and seas. It was clearly a test of the Lamoureux's versatility, and was handled admirably. Markevitch and the orchestra applied their technical facility to the music, and succeeded in expressing the mood which Ravel probably intended. I don't doubt that they express romantic emotional works better than impressionistic ones. This is perhaps part of the excitable and emotional French temperament. This may be pertinent as the orchestra in its entirety is imported from Paris.

The last selection, Berlioz' Symphonie Fantastique, was a fitting and magnificent climax to the concert. This was Berlioz' first acclaimed work, falling near the start of the romantic period, and is experimental. It was particularly experimental at the time when it was written, employing for the first time strong emotional build ups and climaxes, and also, especially in the fourth movement, a vibrating, pizzicato, effect. The orchestration in this work is massive, complex and mangificent, and places heavy demands on any orchestra, primarily those of instantaneous response and perfect coordination. The Lamoureux fulfilled these demands, at the same time building up to smashing climaxes the dreary, sad, happy and intensely frustrated moods that Berlioz himself (who was madly in love with the Irish actress, Harriet Smithson, at the time, and she was scarcely aware of his existence) was experiencing when he composed this work.

Markevitch was unusual in his calm, self collected approach to conducting. He might even be described as graceful, an expert carefully making certain that everything that was supposed to happen did happen. While failing to manifest a personal emotional involvement with the music, as Bernstein, Munch or Ehas do, I do not think that this constituted any loss whatever to the performance. His technical skill in keeping the orchestra fully coordinated and completely under his control -- this, I think, was more pronounced than under any American conductor I have seen. He is truly a master of his art. The players of the orchestra were no less masterful in responding to the demands which Markevitch placed on them. I cannot help paying particular tribute to the flutist, who was superb.

All in all, I think that the Blue Series audience on April 6th was privileged to see and hear a group of experts conducted by an expert reveal a truly striking command of orchestral music. Indeed, expert, powerful and delightful would be the most appropriate words.

By EDSON DARER

Good afternoon. Here we are entering the homestretch of the year. I hope it has been a successful one for everybody. This is my last year and aside from being very fruitful, it has also been a lot of fun. I guess the old saying "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," holds true even for college students.

FIRST, WORK

Many of us find it necessary to study away from our living units. This means that we have to go to the Library or to the Reading Room, or one of the various classrooms that are left open in the evening. This is term paper time and soon finals will be upon us. There probably is some reading that we all have to do in the library. But, one gets so discouraged, time and time again, going to the library and not being able to find a seat. This is not the first time I have related this problem to no avail. UVM is composed of many good samaritans it seems. The administration thinks of everybody and not only of their own students. I still advocate that the need to keep the library open only to UVM students is a dire necessity. When the new library is built maybe the situation can be alleviated. Until then, the UVM library should be for UVMers ONLY!!!

NOW PLAY

Another lack of facilities arises for the lovers of tennis. There are four tennis courts on Redstone Campus and about eight at Centennial Field. The ones at Centennial are not open yet. This means that the Tennis team has to practice at Redstone and the girls' gym classes are there also. This doesn't leave too much time for the ordinary student to indulge in his favorite pastime. Aside from this, many of the townspeople come and play on these courts also. In most cities there are usually Municipal tennis courts. Burlington is not fortunate enough to have these. Hence, many Burlingtonians come to the University's tennis courts and play there for the whole day. Once again, this situation can only be eliminated if the courts are open only to students of the University. If this cannot be done without losing face, then students should at least have priority on the courts. The University should appoint someone to be at the courts and carry out these measures.

HERE 'N THERE

The artists in the ensemble are dedicated to recreating the sounds of earlier music with as much faithfulness as possible. To achieve this goal the instruments of the group follow as closely as possible those used by medieval musicians. The singing, too, is closely styled to the medieval tradition. The Pro Musica has assembled an interesting collection of instruments in its years of existance. They include an 18th century treble viol, which is called "perhaps the finest instrument in the consort", an unusual portable harpsichord which rests in a specially devised case while the Pro Musica is on the road, and a portative organ, the most recent acquistition of the group. This organ is modeled on a XV century instrument and was built by Josef Mertin, Viennese organ builder.

One of the major accomplishments of the Pro Musica was the performance last year of the "opera" The Play of Daniel, which had not previously been performed since 1250. The presentation, which required four years of preparation and research, was presented eight times at the Cloisters and three times at the Riverside Church to sell-out crowds. It has since been recorded on Decca Label.

The title of Tuesday evening's concert will be Montiverdi and the Italian Baroque.

Most of the pieces on the program are from his works, including his Laudate Dominus, Lamento d'Arianna, and many others. Montiverdi is an an Italian composer of the late 16th and early 17th centuries. Noel Newman states that Montiverdi "almost singlehandly transformed renaissance music into that passionate and dramatic utterance we know as baroque." He has received such appellations as "Music's Oracle" and "Creator of Modern Music," for he "aroused music from conventionalism and inspired it to bold contrasts, emphatically declamatory goals, and multicolored sonorities." Since Montiverdi left no purely instrumental works, the program contains works by the "pioneering violin virtuoso" Biagio Marini and the "giant of keyboard music," Girolanio Grescobaldi.

The Christian Science Monitor has said, "All the performers are superb artists, all of them perform with inner conviction, all of them communicate the music intact to the audience."

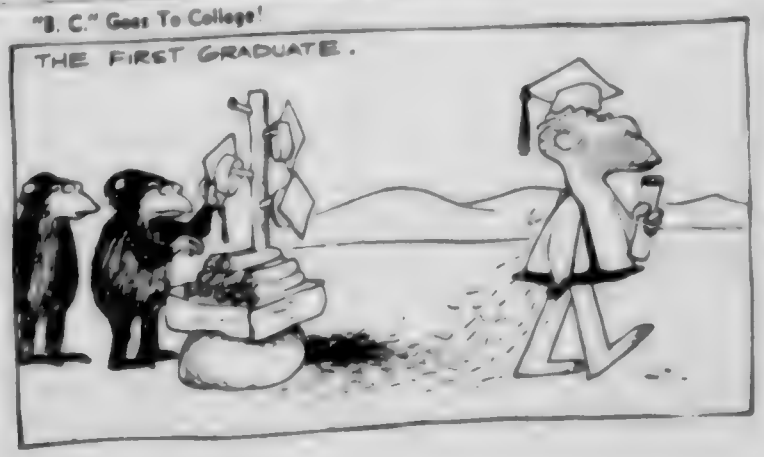
Zoning Hearing For Fraternities



The Burlington Zoning Board's recent doubt as to whether to renew the operating permissions due to neighbors complaints of Theta Chi and Alpha Epsilon Pi has produced mixed reactions from their officers.

When contacted for comment, the ex-president of Theta Chi located at 170 Spruce Street said that his house had had a complaint from a neighbor, and that neighbor wasn't among those who had protested to the city. He added that he felt the boys were on quite good terms with their neighbors at the present time. He said he felt that many of the complaints listed by the residents did not apply to his particular house.

Mary Vipler, president of Alpha Epsilon Pi, located on South Willard Street, when asked for his coments on the situation, said he felt "the less publicity the better off we are" and would not give any further comment.

There has been an official complaint to the zoning board about the two fraternities, signed by residents of South Willard Street, charging loud radios, cars parked on lawns, bugle blowing, and other disturbances. The recent purchase of a house on South Willard Street by Phi Mu Delta was mentioned as a possible incentive to residents who didn't want their exclusive street turned into a fraternity row. Usually the zoning board renews the lease each year without incident unless complaints are received. A public hearing was held at their last meeting, and a more decisive meeting is to take place in early May.

Admission Requirements Revised

A revised set of admissions requirements has been announced by the University of Vermont in effect making more flexible course requirements for admission.

Previously, UVM's catalogue recommended that applicants present a minimum four years of English, two of mathematics, two of science, two years of one foreign language and one year of history.

This recommendation has been changed to a basic requirement, according to Harold C. Collins, director of admissions at UVM, who said the change has been effective to further means of [illegible] the number of students who drop out for scholastic reasons.

He said that UVM's scholastic drop outs are not out of line with national averages but said the University is in company with American higher education, [illegible] interested in improving the opportunity for success of students admitted.

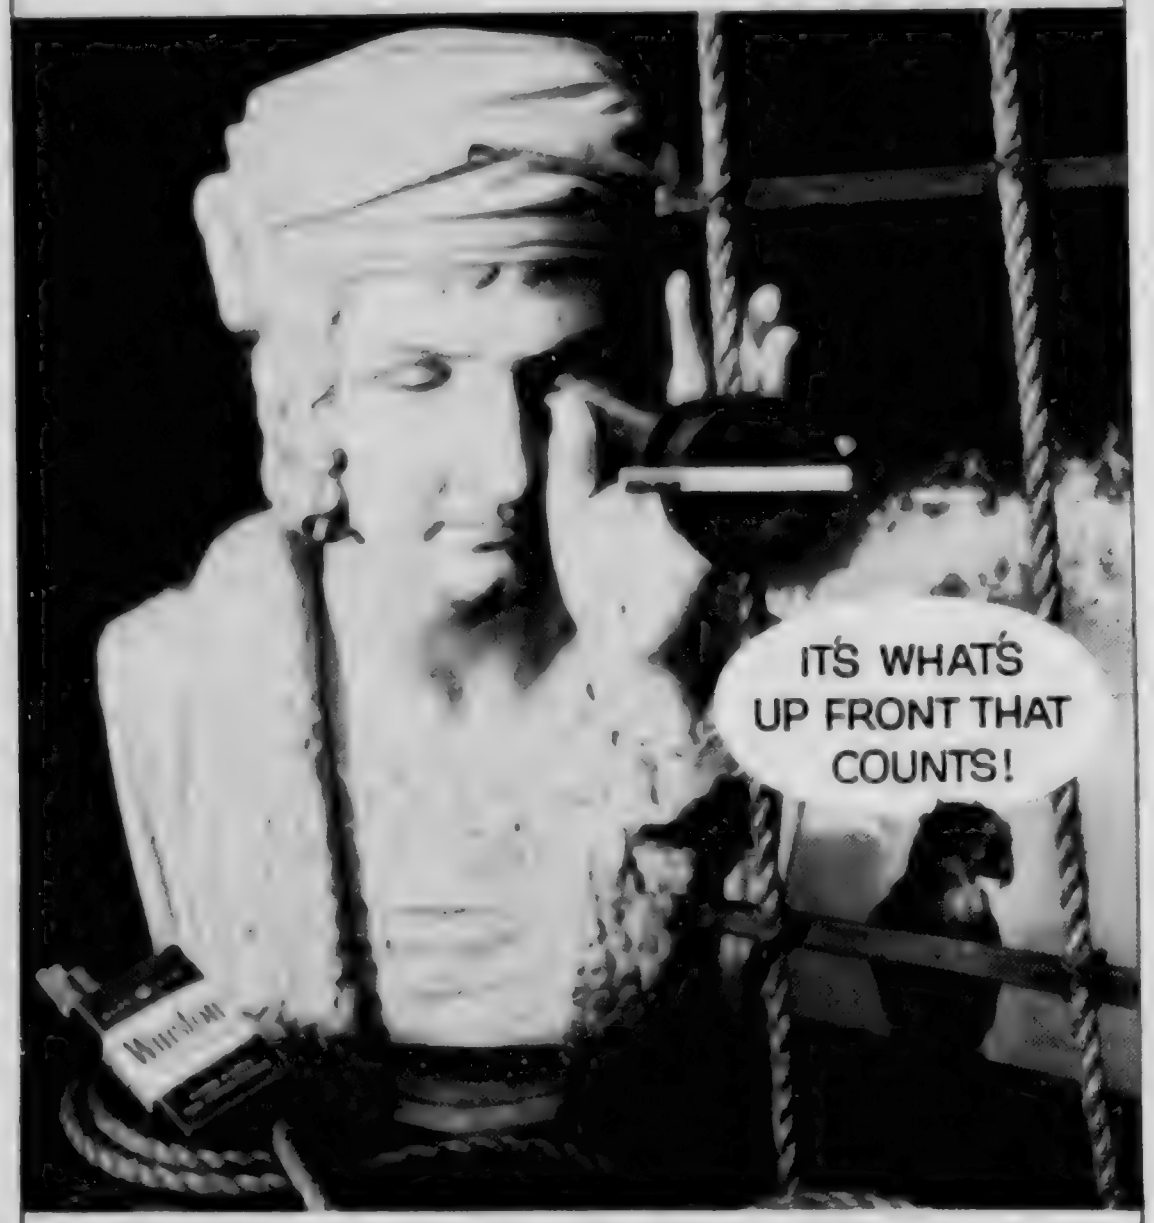
Collins said that UVM expects to implement its admissions policy "with some flexibility" during a transition period in which some students presently in high school will not have had the opportunity to meet entirely UVM's basic course requirements.

"Students who are exceptionally qualified will not be barred automatically," he said, "if they do not present each of the course requirements."

Admission to UVM's freshman class, Collins said, will be determined on the basis of the high school principal, scores on the College Entrance Examination Board Scholastic Aptitude Test and a personal interview if requested by the Admissions Office.

At least three-quarters of the grades for high school courses should be at the college certifying level or higher as determined by each high school, with quality of work in the junior and senior years being "especially important," he said.

Applicants should present the basic required courses outlined - four years of English, two of mathematics, science and foreign language and one of history - and admission to certain colleges of the University may require additional mathematics and science courses.



Additional courses in mathematics, history, and a third year of one foreign language are recommended as desirable preparation for admission to UVM, he noted.

The UVM admissions director also indicated that the University will welcome applications from high school students who have taken college level courses offered in their high schools under the advanced placement program of the C.E.E.B. Students qualified under the program will be given an opportunity to enroll in some UVM courses above the freshman level.

Library Begins

It is expected construction will be begun in June on UVM's new library. Present plans call for completion by the fall of 1961, when a student library fee of $[illegible] a year will go into effect. The student fee will meet the major share of the [illegible] bond issue, with the State to pay off the remainder.

Graduate Dean Resigns

[illegible] Kent, Dean of the [illegible]ollege at the Uni[illegible] of Vermont, will step [illegible] his position August [illegible].

[illegible] was named dean in [illegible] he began there were [illegible] students in the grad[illegible]ollege a limited number [illegible] master's degree programs [illegible]eading to the Ph.D. [illegible]ders the College's [illegible] accomplishment to be [illegible]d and steady develop[illegible] because of the spirit of [illegible]astic cooperation that [illegible]culty has always shown. [illegible]se there have been [illegible] differences of opinion, [illegible] everyone has had the com[illegible] of the College upper[illegible] his mind."

[illegible] undergraduates appear [illegible] little about the [illegible]raduate College. Perhaps [illegible] ignorance stems from the [illegible] that the graduate stu[illegible]s are dispersed throughout [illegible] academic quarters and [illegible] quarters. UVM now [illegible]ers 5[illegible] masters programs [illegible] Ph.D's, but the number [illegible] any single program is quite [illegible], the largest single [illegible]gistration being eight in [illegible]istry and in English. [illegible] graduate students in [illegible]ience this semester is [illegible] an enrollment greater [illegible] that of The College of [illegible]edicine.

Dr. Kent feels that one of the many needs of this university is for a graduate center, with or without dormitories. "Curiously enough, the overall building plan for the next 20 years includes no plans for the graduates. If I could wave the magic wand, this would be my first choice. An ideal center would include a dormitory for men, a dormitory for women, and apartments for married students." As it stands now graduate students are unable to live in the dorms due to the lack of rooms.

Dr. Kent's decision to resign was reached partly because of his personal wish to return to full-time teaching and research and partly because he feels that the graduate deanship should be a "rotating office." A graduate dean, he feels is the executive officer of a faculty of peers who are devoted to scholarship; because of this, the dean himself should not be too far removed from active teaching and research. Dr. Kent, whose official title is Roberts Professor of Classics, will continue to serve as chairman of UVM's Classics Department. Because many of us aren't acquainted with him, Dr. Kent deserves a re-introduction to the undergraduate colleges.

He holds the M.A. degree from Queens University in Ontario and Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. Before coming here he taught at high schools in New Brunswick and Tennessee; also at three colleges, his last appointment being Professor of Latin at Southwestern in Memphis.

He has done research at the Institute of Advanced Study at Princeton, was sent by the University of Chicago to Greece to study archeology and while in Greece was appointed Wheeler fellow by the American School of Classical Studies in Athens. In 1949 he was a Fulbright research fellow, in charge of all the excavations at ancient Corinth. Dr. Kent has the honor of appearing in "Who's Who."

Dr. Kent urges all students to keep in mind for Advanced Dtudy the Classics Department. "Students well prepared with any foreign language in high school should not be too quick to switch into a different language when they enter college. I wish more Latin students would give us a try."

Fine Arts Festival

UVM's fifth annual Festival of Fine Arts will offer 10 separate attractions, including four plays, a concert by the University Chorus and Orchestra, a dance concert, two films, and exhibit of student art and one of water colors from the Guggenheim Museum, and a lecture by Christian Science Monitor Art Critic Dorothy Adlo. The Festival opened Apr. 22 with a student directed production of "Arsenic and Old Lace," and runs through May 17.

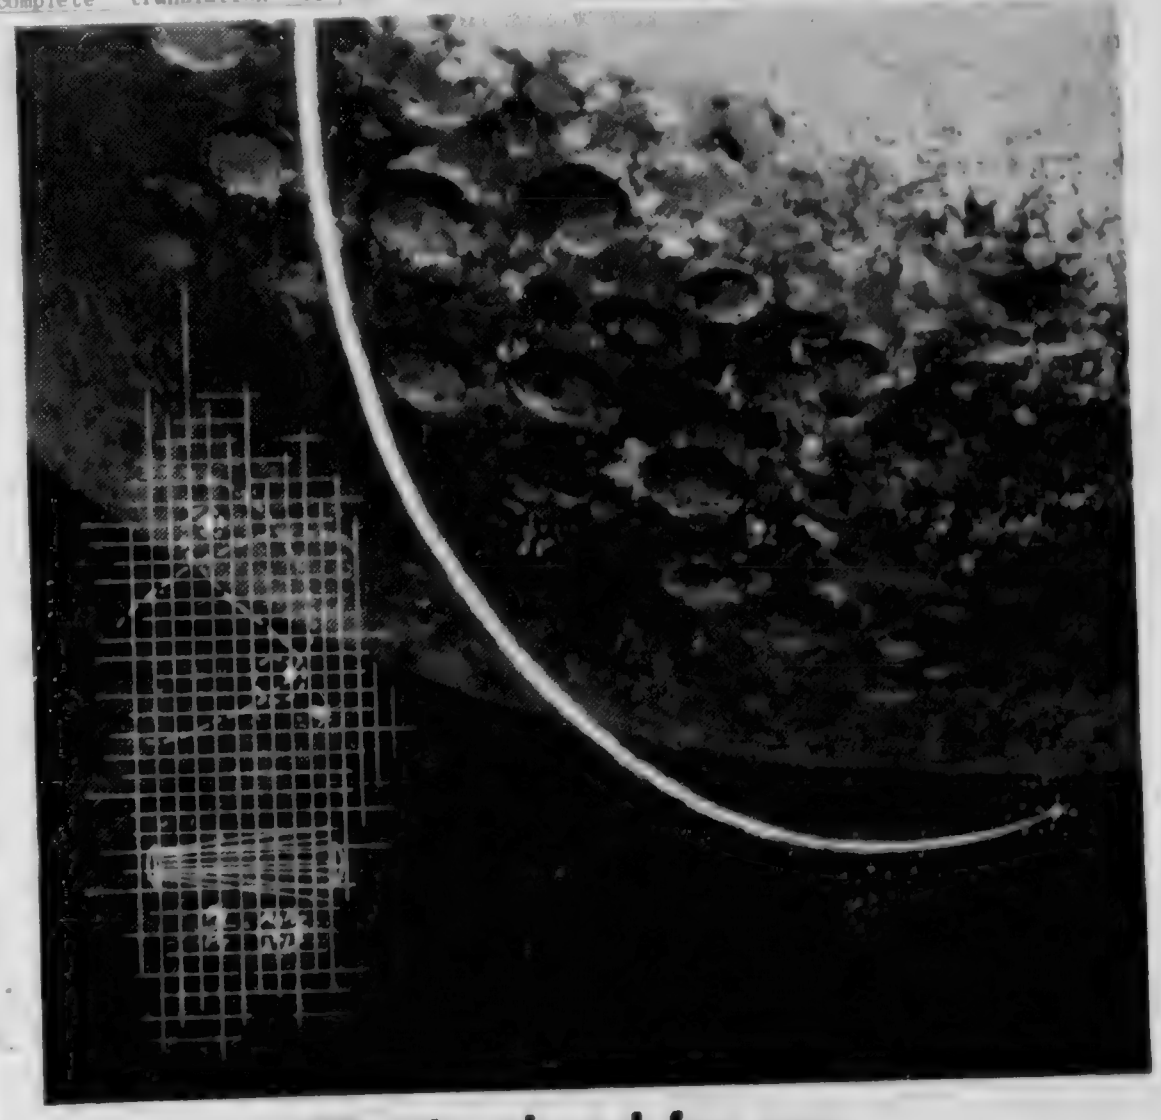
Dr. Kaufman Of Princeton To Speak

On Monday, May 2 the John Dewey Philosophy Club will present a lecture on Existentialism by the noted Princeton philosopher, Dr. Walter Kaufmann. The lecture, entitled Critique on Existentialism, will be held [illegible] in the Student Lounge.

Dr. Kaufmann is the author of three books in addition to his many articles and translations. His major work, Existentialism from Dostoevsky to Sartre, was published by Harper and Brothers and selected by Auden, Trilling, and Barzun for their book club, The Readers Subscription. It is now being translated into Finnish. His first book Nietzsche: Philosopher, Psychologist, Antichrist, was originally published by the Princeton University Press. Later, a revised edition was issued as a paperback by Meridian Books. In the spring of 1959, the Beacon Press published his From Shakespeare to Existentialism.

He has edited two books with original translations--the Nietzsche volume in The Viking Portable Library, and his Existentialism from Dostoevsky to Sartre--and has done a complete translation of Judaism and Christianity: Essays by Leo Baeck. His works have appeared in [illegible] published in the United States, England, Germany, and Israel, as well as numerous American and [illegible] journals.

Dr. Kaufmann graduated from Williams College Phi Beta Kappa in 1941, received his M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard in 1942 and 1947 respectively, and has been a member of the Princeton faculty since 1947. His courses there include such classes as "Hegel, Neitzsche, and Existentialism," "Nietzsche and Contemporary Thought," "Social Philosophy," and graduate seminars in "Philosophy of Religion" and "German Philosophy Since Kant."



Many universities and colleges have invited Dr. Kaufmann to appear as teacher and speaker. These institutions include the New School in New York, the University of Washington, Cornell, Columbia, Yale, Harvard, Vassar, and many others. While in Germany as a Fulbright research professor in 1956 he was invited to give two Loeb lectures at the University of Frankfurt. In 1958, he was invited to the American University in [illegible]

[illegible] to give the first annual Walter J. Hamlin Memorial Lecture to which he participated at the Memorial Lectures at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Dr. Kaufmann is presently [illegible] and has spent an academic year [illegible] Princeton. He is [illegible] this may also be one of [illegible] with terms and "isms." It would be to our good advantage to hear this [illegible] and to discover what or [illegible] one of these "isms" consists of.

What's ahead for you... after you join Western Electric?

Anywhere you look—in engineering and other professional areas—the answer to that question is progress. For Western Electric is on a job of ever increasing complexity both as the manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System and as a part of many defense communications and missile projects.

These two assignments mean you'll find yourself in the thick of things in such fast breaking fields as microwave radio relay, electronic switching, miniaturization and automation. You may engineer installations, plan distribution of equipment and supplies. Western also has need for field engineers, whose world-wide assignments call for working with equipment we make for the Government. The opportunities are many—and they're waiting!

You'll find that Western Electric is career minded—and you minded! Progress is as rapid as your own individual skills permit. We estimate that 8,000 supervisory jobs will open in the next ten years—the majority to be filled by engineers. There will be corresponding opportunities for career building within research and engineering. Western Electric maintains its own full-time, all-expenses-paid engineering training program. And our tuition refund plan also helps you move ahead in your chosen field.

Opportunities exist for electrical, mechanical, industrial, civil and chemical engineers, as well as in the physical sciences. For more information get your copy of Consider a Career at Western Electric from your Placement Officer. Or write College Relations, Room 2008, Western Electric Company, 195 Broadway, New York 7, N. Y. Be sure to arrange for a Western Electric interview when the Bell System team visits your campus.

CLOUD NINE

Congratulations to Jim Willard, Phi Delta Theta, and Carol McKillop, Kappa Alpha Theta, who recently became pinned. Also best wishes are extended to another Phi Delt, Carl Reintzelman, who is now engaged to Miss Judy Hartman of New London, Conn. Congratulations are in order to O'Neil Keeshan, Sigma Nu, '61, who has given his "white star" to Sandy Concannon, Pi Beta Phi, '61 and for another Sigma Nu, Stan Williams, who recently pinned Joanna Lull, Delta Delta Delta.

ALPHA DELTA PI

The Alpha Delt's are all very sorry to say good-by to Lois Wilhelm. The Alpha Delta Pi National Collegiate Travelling Secretary. Lois has been with us for over two weeks and leaves behind her lots of great ideas and a houseful of friends. We have also said good-by, temporarily, to Nev Rogers and Mary Ellen Russell who are practice teaching in the Rutland area.

All the girls in the house had their fill of root beer and fun at a party given by [illegible] last [illegible] Mrs. Groe. We would like to thank her for the good time, [illegible] of good times and exchange dinner with Sigma Nu, and one of the best ever. Thanks for us.

The ADPi's would like to congratulate Betty Lou Sherry on her Pledge of the Week award and giving Betty Lou's

DELTA DELTA DELTA

The Tri-Deltas held their annual spring formal on the roof of the Hotel Vermont last Friday evening, a most enjoyable evening was had by sisters, pledges, and guests.

143 Willard Street is ringing with soprano and alto trills as we practice for this weekends' I.F.C. Sing.

Recent new sisters are Pat Irving, Ginny Boorstel, Marcia Bernhoff, and Mary Prespare. Congratulations, girls!

DELTA PSI

At the IFC track meet some of our new pledges proved themselves to be fleet-a-foot. After a roaring beginning we managed to retain the lead, although drastically slowed down when all of our runners showed signs of tiredness. Some of the lads even looked out of shape.

Rallying once again to the starting gun, the team of Kipp, Rust, Mulhern, and Hollman managed to edge their way into the finals of the IFC relays. Through pure determination they were able to slither by their opponents and capture first place by 1/10 of a second.

Returning to the slopes for the Outing Club Slalom, the Delts entered seven teams. Although most of the entrees had never skied before, all looked quite professional. "Cannonball" Rugo arrived in last years hockey attire and the dome, "Hairline" Nelson could be seen glowing in the

The Gamma Phi's and their guests all had a wonderful time at our annual Spring formal. The festivities began with an open party at the home of Brickey Dale. Later the party moved up to Sunny Hollow where everyone enjoyed a delicious buffet dinner and danced to the music of Pete Davis' orchestra. The following day we all went up to Hazel Robinson's camp in South Hero for the traditional beach party.

Congratulations to the Sanders-Claggett basketball team for winning the W.R.A. tournament. Their excellent playing put the undefeated Gamma Phi team in second place.

We're glad to welcome Nancy Gibson back into the social whirl after her two weeks of enforced solitude.

Last week the Gamma Phi's were happy to have Jan King and Carol Phillips, UVM's "Stray Greeks", down to the house for dinner.

Congratulations to Bev Cawley, who is the new subtreasurer of S.A.

Now that vacation is over, 381 Main has become very musical. Under the able direction of Sandy Peters, the girls have been working hard at song practices hoping to be able to repeat last year's success.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Congratulations and best wishes are extended to Nancy Thompson on her recent engagement to Ensign Gary L. Henderson of the United States Navy. Nancy is presently taking her junior year at the University of Hawaii in Honolulu. Ensign Henderson is serving with the Airborne Early Warning Barrier Pacific Squadron at Barber's Point, Hawaii, and hails from San Francisco. Nancy and Gary became engaged on February 4th and are planning an August 6th wedding in Rochester, New York. Looks like she'll be taking her senior year there, too! Best of everything to both of them from all the Thetas!

Carol McKillip, who recently became pinned to Jim Willard, was serenaded on Monday evening, April 4, the fellows' voices were in tip-top shape as they presented their lovely

On the same Monday evening Miss Woodard, Theta's [illegible] for this academic year, was our guest for dinner.

LAMBDA IOTA

Now that all the Owls seem to have outlasted the vacation, we are prepared to settle ourselves back into the normal exasperating routine of study/sleep/study [illegible] occasionally by brief periods of joyous frovolity (parties).

We were all quite relieved to witness the [illegible] return of five of our brothers from our fair country (Florida). Led by the consummate driving skill of J.J. [illegible] and his co-pilot and navigator Brother Pathfinder Ri[illegible] the crew managed to surprise us all by arriving home with no - or almost no mishaps. The rest of the crew consisted of Brother John Foster [illegible] Brother Marco McMasters, and Brother Distant Horizons Jan Brown.

The brothers returned from the vacation to find renovations galore taken place at 440 Pearl. Thanks to the new pledges, the front hall and the downstairs stairwell were repaired and repainted, and the inside pillars in our front hall were reinforced. Thanks for a job well done pledges!

The Owls wish to extend a heartiest welcome to Kenneth Miller, who is the latest pledge to enter under the wing of Minerva.

For two days during the vacation, the Owl House was turned over to nineteen of the delegates from the faculties of Vermont's secondary schools, who were attending the teachers' convention in Burlington. We hope they enjoyed their stay at 440 Pearl Street.

We of Lambda Iota wish to express our best wishes to Nu Gamma of Phi Mu Delta on the purchase of their home on Houth Willard Street.

Five Owls received their brother' pins prior to the vacation. They are Frank Chupka, Ira Allen, Bill Winlund, Ron White, and Jack Brown. Congratulations!

PHI DELTA THETA

The Spring spirit has sent the Phi Delt house spinning again with preparations being made for Spring Formal, IFC Sing, Softball, Intramurals and beach gatherings.

Last Saturday, led by the Pledge class, the Phi Delt House was swept, mopped, painted, polished, and raked into shape for the Spring and Summer months. The only near-fatal injury occurred when Chuck Ippolito, still sleeping off the effects of vacation, was almost buried alive in one of the horseshoe pits where a couple of energetic pledges were dumping excess manure. However, one of the first few shovelsful hit Chuck in the head and his loud screams brought the Brothers to the rescue. Needless to say, the Pledges were fined!!

Applications For Admission Increase

Applications for admission to the University of Vermont have increased to nearly 1000 this year, University President John T. Fey reported to the Board of Trustees. Dr. Fey told the Board that applications from out-of-state residents are nearly double what they were last year as of UVM's April 1 count.

Applications for admission to next year's freshman class total 2077 as of April 1 this year compared to 1713 last year at this time. UVM will admit a freshman class of about 1000 he said.

Applications from out-of state men have increased by 87 percent, and out-of state women applicants have increased by 67 percent. In all 1917 out-of-state applications have been received to date compared to last year's total of 1041 as of April 1. Applications by Vermonters are also up by 42 percent for women and 11 percent for men for a total of 760 compared to 620 last year.

Dr. Fey said that the University had received a significant increase in the number of students seeking to enroll in the College of Arts and Sciences, and noted that increased applications had been received for engineering, commerce and economics, medical technology, elementary and secondary education, dental hygiene, nursing, chemistry and home economics. While applications for agriculture were down slightly, Dr. Fey indicated that applications from out-of-state men were up in agriculture.

engineers

and what they do at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft...

The field has never been broader
The challenge has never been greater

Engineers at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft today are concerned with the development of all forms of flight propulsion systems—air breathing, rocket, nuclear and other advanced types for propulsion in space. Many of these systems are so entirely new in concept that their design and development, and allied research programs, require technical personnel not previously associated with the development of aircraft engines. Where the company was once primarily interested in graduates with degrees in mechanical and aeronautical engineering, it now also requires men with degrees in electrical, chemical, and nuclear engineering, and in physics, chemistry, and metallurgy.

Included in a wide range of engineering activities open to technically trained graduates at all levels are these four basic fields:

ANALYTICAL ENGINEERING Men engaged in this activity are concerned with fundamental investigations in the fields of science or engineering related to the conception of new products. They carry out detailed analyses of advanced flight and space systems and interpret results in terms of practical design applications. They provide basic information which is essential in determining the types of systems that have development potential.

DESIGN ENGINEERING The prime requisite here is an active interest in the application of aerodynamics, thermodynamics, stress analysis, and principles of machine design to the creation of new flight propulsion systems. Men engaged in this activity at P&WA establish the specific performance and structural requirements of the new product and design it as a complete working mechanism.

EXPERIMENTAL ENGINEERING Here men supervise and coordinate fabrication, assembly and laboratory testing of experimental apparatus, system components, and development engines. They devise test rigs and laboratory setups, specify instrumentation and direct execution of the actual test programs. Responsibility in this phase of the development program also includes analysis of test data, reporting of results and recommendations for future effort.

MATERIALS ENGINEERING Men active in this field at P&WA investigate metals, alloys and other materials under various environmental conditions to determine their usefulness as applied to advanced flight propulsion systems. They devise material testing methods and design special test equipment. They are also responsible for the determination of new fabrication techniques and causes of failures or manufacturing difficulties.

Exhaustive testing of full-scale rocket engine thrust chambers is carried on at the Florida Research and Development Center.

Frequent informal discussions among analytical engineers assure continuous exchange of ideas on related research projects.

Fraternity Politics

To the Editor:

For a long time I have wished to express some opinions and some facts which for too long have gone unsaid on the topic: Fraternity Politics.

Since I came to UVM I have become increasingly disgusted with the way in which student organizations are run. I find that in the formation and the elections of every organization fraternity bodies have taken the place of the individual voter. Some of the larger fraternities appear in mass to the formation of every new organization simply to gain controlling power over future membership and to elect, or rather place, their members in office. Control is then handed down from class to class within these same fraternities that originally gained dominance. What of the student who wishes to work and take an active part in his school activities?

Fraternalism is all well and good, but it should not carry over into politics. University politics is supposed to be a preparation for the duties of good citizenship, to me it seems a preparation for corruption! Good citizens vote for someone, not because he is a friend or fraternity brother or because they feel he is best suited for the position. Can the men of UVM no longer think for themselves, that they let their fraternities make their decisions?

These statements are, of course, generalizations and do not pertain to all organizations and fraternities on campus. However, I feel that that these involved are indeed too many. Nothing much can be done in most cases unless the students themselves seek to again become individuals.

The group of organizations which in particular, I would like to see changed are the men's honorary societies. All the above statements on this false doctrine of politics apply in full to this example. It seems that the memberships in these honoraries are pretty much passed down from class to class within the few controlling fraternities. It is almost impossible for an outsider to "break the block". Many students are left out while average students from these houses are "elected" to membership.

At the present, members for each honorary society are elected by the out-going members. First of all, a few fraternities control the votes in these elections and thus are able to install their members and "keep it in the family". Secondly, how can a handful of students know all the students of the following year well enough to decide comparatively who is most worthy of membership? I would like to see a solution through the initiation of a faculty committee which would be more capable of choosing the membership of these honoraries fairly. Let us revise the conotation of the word "Honorary" on this campus and make it mean something!!

I sincerely hope this letter will encourage some thought and promote some changes.

Respectfully,
George Adler, '62

Dear Editor,

The Burlington Committee on Community Relations, which is concerned among other things with racial prejudice and discrimination, has written the President and Trustees of the University and the Student Association, expressing approval of the action taken in regard to southern Negro college students.

We wish to commend the CYNIC also for its positive attitude on this question.

Sincerely,

Trustees Commend SA Resolution

The Board of Trustees has commended the University's Student Association Council for a resolution deploring [illegible], and expressed sympathy "in sympathy with the spirit of the position taken by the Student Council."

The student resolution, unanimously March 24, urged Trustees to "make every possible effort to enable qualified students, who have been expelled from their colleges and universities for having protested acts of discrimination against Negro students because of their race, and to extend financial aid, on the same basis as provided for other students in the University."

It was noted that UVM has received "many more applications than it can accept," and that "many qualified young men and women have already been turned away, many more hopefully have asked to be placed on a waiting list foradmission."

Favored admissions policy for any special group, the Board concluded, could be offered only at the cost of "prejudice to individuels who have applied in good faith."

Concerning the resolution at their meeting Saturday, April 16 the Board noted that the University has always stood "by implication in its charter, and by fact of policy and action, to eliminate prejudice and discrimination in any form with the result that no individual or group has been given favored or prejudiced admissions treatment on account of race, religion or creed."

"In view of this policy, the University stands ready to admit qualified students who have been expelled from their colleges and universities for having protested acts of discrimination against Negro students because of their

Two Views Of "Arsenic And Old Lace"

BY MIMI PORTNOY

Who was it that said, 'Murder can be fun?'" "Nonsense! It's not fun it's hilarious!' And Dave Watson's Studio Production of Kesselring's "Arsenic and Old Lace" proved it last Friday and Saturday nights. Directed and acted by a refreshingly bright and talented group of students, the first event of 1960's Fine Art's Festival proved to be a fast-moving, delightfully farcicalevening's entertainment.

Making her debut on the UVM stage, Judy Mandell, in the colloquial words of the theatre, was a "hit" Her performance as the adorably homicidal Abby Brewster was perfect. A sweet and ingratiating murderese, she was ably aided by her bustling side-kick Martha, played by another newcomer to the UVM stage, Debbie Godwin.

To continue the run-down of the play's lovable lunatics, Teddy Brewster was outstandingly portrayed by talented Jules Older, an Old Arena Theatre prp. His frighteningly maniacal brother Jonathan was more than adequately played a la Frankenstein by Fred Labelle. And last, but not least in the roster of Wax Museum--specialties, was the capable performance of in the role of Dr. Einstein . . . (this last done in true Peter Lorre style for those of you who specialize in late show horror movies.)

On the sane side, Chuck presented an excellent performance as the disturbingly confused hus I mean, nepher Mortimer while Pam Middleton's "blue-eyed blonde" semi-naievete added a more soberly humorous element to the play.

I know critics are supposed to be terribly sophisticated and disapproving but this particular critic enjoyed the performance too much to be too Brooks Atkinson-ish. So, at the risk of violating some sort of unwritten critics code I'll reaffirm my praise for a job well done by all the actors in the cast (even the dead ones) the outstanding UVM's spring 'Fine Arts Festival'' got off to a truly "fine" start weekend with the University players production of Arsenic and Old Lace. This comedy of Joseph Kesselring's about the eccentric Brewster family and the trouble that this eccentricity caused them, brought repeated laughter and applause from the once again too small audience in the Arena Theater It is really a shame that more people did not see this excellent production of an old and loved play.

Starting with the basic play itself, which was a fine choice; the University players kept up the high level throughout. Even the two corpses were convincing. The acting which was unusually fine, was headed by Judy Mandell and Debby Godwin as the two old-maid and bird like aunts who kill lodgers and bury them in the cellar. Aside from stepping out of character once in a while, when the audience's laughter was too much for them, they did a fine job. Jules Older as their son Teddy, who thinks that he is President Roosevelt, deserves special commendation. His stage mannerisms and shout "charge" as he walked up the stairs were especially good.

The "sane" member of the Brewster family, Mortimer, played by Charles Goudey, was the straight man needed to prevent the play from becoming a real fairy tale. When the 12 bodies buried in the cellar were becoming, to the audience, as almost natural; it was Charles who reminded us that this was crazy and unlawful to do. His girl friend Elaine Harper, played by Pam Middleton further contributed to the reality of the situation. Her facial expressions were extremely good, as she portrayed Mortimer's fiance. He continually tells her to "get lost" so that she will not find out about his eccentric family.

Jonathan Brewster, the Frankenstein-like third son, and his plastic surgeon accomplice were played by Fred LaBelle and Bryant Reynolds respectively; thus rounding out the leading characters in this little comedy. Special mention should be given to a comparatively small part that of Lieutenant Rooney played by Gil Tournabene. The role of the harassed police inspector was characterized and portrayed unusually well, so that he literally stood out during his one scene on the stage.

Though I have spent much time reviewing the characterications of Arsenic and Old Lace, I must also mention the fine direction and lighting. The blackout with the candles burning was especially effective. This production has set a lofty standard for the entire "Fine Arts Festival" to continue to uphold. It is a high one, that is true, but it is a standard worth trying to meet. Congratulations, you did a fine job.

Bringing new knowledge to eager finger tips

Braille has opened up bright new worlds for thousands and thousands of blind persons. However, the difficulty of translating printed material into this complex "touch language" has limited the number and variety of publications.

To make more Braille material available, a method of transcribing the printed word into Braille automatically has been developed by IBM scientists in cooperation with the American Printing House for the Blind.

The text, in punched card form, is processed by a high-speed IBM electronic computer. The computer can translate a 300-page book into its equivalent Braille in less than an hour.

It takes all kinds of talents to develop computer systems that can handle complex jobs like this. Expanding computer applications at IBM have created opportunities in research, engineering, programming and manufacturing. Perhaps one of these IBM careers is the "future" you've been looking for.

Cats 4-4 On Southern Trip

by Doug Erskine

On Tuesday, April 23, the University of Vermont's baseball team concluded its 1963 Southern Trip compiling a record of four wins and four losses, one of the best Southern trip records in many years. Considering the fact that the Wyoming game was the first time the Catamounts were able to work as a team outside, this is a very impressive record.

After the Cats returned they found they had garnered a total of 64 hits for 267 times at bat, giving them a team hitting average of .239. Six of these hits were doubles, four were triples, and nine were home runs. The home runs were hit by: Lee Brown, Gerry Cassidy, and Maynard Ducatte, with two apiece, and Jim Evans, Charlie Isles, and Mike Pesare sharing the honors for the other three four baggers. Isles led the team in the batting percentage with .400 knocking out twelve hits for 30 times at bat. Isles was followed by hard-hitting Gerry Cassidy who got twelve hits for 34 trips to the plate for a .353 batting average. Gerry also was top man in the slugging department with a .676 percentage belting out one double, two triples, two home runs, and collecting a total of 23 bases. Isles and Ducatte followed Cassidy in the slugging average with .566 and .433 respectively. Ducatte led the squad in runs batted in with a total of 12 with Bill Federici, co-captains Charlie Isles and Cassidy batting in 8 apiece.

Fielding-wise, the team had a .921 fielding average led by Ducatte, who has gone errorless for 30 games and has 52 putouts and 4 assists to his credit.

Looking at the pitching statistics we find 30 innings of baseball were pitched by the UVM recruiters giving up 56 runs, 45 hits, 56 bases on balls, and striking out 48 opponents. Harry Zingg was on top of the win-loss column with a 2-1 record. Zingg was followed by Steve Cooper and Bob Hobbie with 1-1 records and Dave Reisig 0-1. Cooper turned in the lowest earned run average of 2.20 followed by Wally Schilo with 3.60. Hobbie and Cooper headed the strike-outs, whiffing 15 opponents apiece.

These Southern trip statistics indicate a successful season for the Catamount diamond men. One reminder. . . .the first home game will be played at Centennial Field Monday May 2. Come on out and see how these statistics are made.

Isles received from Tom Sanders All American from New York University the Big Basketball Award. Sponsors included Baseball Coach Ralph Lapointe. Vermont Drops Two To Coast Guard And UNH

by Lou Dellefave

The United States Coast Guard Academy edged the University of Vermont Baseball Catamounts Friday in a free hitting contest at New London, Conn., 10-8. The Cats collected 14 hits to the Sailors' 10, but due to shakey pitching, failed to capitalize on them. Maynard Ducatte and Co-captain Charlie Isles had 4 hits apiece, while Lee Brown and Joe Silveria poled two each. Silveira made his first appearance with the squad after recooperating from a broken ankle suffered earlier in spring practice.

Three Vermont double plays and seven Coast Guard errors could not overcome the hazardous walks given up by UVM pitchers Harry Zingg and Wally Schilo. It was the fifth loss for the Cats this season.

by J. D. Chadwick

The UVM Baseball Team completed the Southern Trip with a respectable 4-4 record but later dropped a couple of tough ones to the U. S. Coast Guard Academy and the University of New Hampshire after they returned. Hitting admirably on the trip were Co-captains Charlie Isles and Gerry Cassidy. Charlie led the team posting a respectable .400 average on the trip, while Cass followed with .353. Another great aid to the Cats was that they belted out nine home runs in eight games.

On the darker side of the picture, it was the many errors and bases on balls given up by Catamounts that caused the failure to improve on the .500 team record after the Southern trip.

Thanks to the weather man, Vermont has gotten ten complete games out of ten in so far. Let's keep our fingers crossed. This week the Cats travel to West Point to play the once-beaten Army team. Thursday they will be at B.U. before completing a twin bill at Amherst against U. Mass. The return of Joe Silveira to first base has given the Cats a great boost, for the initial sack was a glaring Cat weakness all throughout the Southern Trip.

Last Saturday, Centennial Field hosted a pair of track meets. The Varsity met with Bowdoin while the frosh encountered St. Johnsbury. The versatile Joe Barry led the Cats with three firsts in the pole vault, high jump, and high hurdles. The Cats looked especially strong in the distance runs as Fred Kolstrom took both the mile and two mile jaunts. The Kittens were paced by the running of Tim Simpson, Bill Mulhern and Lou Garcia as they trounced St. Johnsbury hardly.

Praise and credit should be given to those responsible for the strengthening of the Booster Club. Formerly just a local organization, it has grown into a club that is rapidly gaining membership in other areas. Alumni in the New York area have nothing but praise for the club as they enjoy very much, receiving its literature that is sent out each week. The club is something that every student should consider joining after graduation, for this group is wholeheartedly dedicated to the idea that there is a new gym in our future and that it will do much to benefit UVM.

by Roy Stanton

Baseball —— Two new contests have been added on to the Kitten schedule. They're both with Plattsburgh Air Force Base: one on May 4th at Centennial Field, and the other there on the 21st. Coach "Fuzzy" Evans said it was difficult to single out any one or two ballplayers, but he did say that the two pitchers, Cassani and Jones, the shortstop, Pere, and the catcher Charlie French looked good. Hinting at a tentative starting team, Coach Evans put Potter at 3rd, Burrell at 1st, Robinson in center (he can also catch and pitch) Yendrzeski in right, Nichols and Cassani (the pitchers) alternating in the outfield. The outfield starting line-up depends largely upon hitting, as the fielding looks pretty good. An alternate at 1st is Ian Bright. In commenting about the team, "Fuzzy" said, "I have two good pitchers--that's important and French is a good catcher. With 4 games a week, the going can get rough, and the pitchers can't go every game. It's too early to tell how the team is going to shape up."

Track —— Hats off to the Cindermen who took the first meet of the season, by beating St. Johnsbury's Academy. The meet, a 91 34 victory, was led by Tim Simpson and Bill Mulhern. The Kittens took 13 out of 15 firsts, and 9 second spots. Garcia (10.7) and Bernstein came in 1st and 3rd in the 100-yd dash respectively. Bill Mulhern took the 220 in 23.4 with Garcia second. The 440 was taken by Bill Mulhern in 52.4, with Collins placing 2nd. Simpson won the 880 in 2:07.7, and Billings took second. Simpson also won the mile run (4:46.7) with Billings again copping second. The Kittens took the 880 relay in 1:43.6, with Mulhern wrapping up the victory as anchor-man. Burroughs took 3rd for UVM in the 120-yd high hurdles. Leonhardt took 2nd in the 180-yd high hurdles, followed by Burroughs. Lewis (5'6") took first in the high jump, followed by Voytek and Bolden. Garcia (20' 1½") took the broad jump, with Burroughs placing 2nd. Steve Bernstein placed first in the pole vault contest with a leap of 11 ft. Sequist won the shotput with a throw of 47' 11½". In the discus throw, Voytek took first with a toss of 132 ft., followed by Sequist in 2nd. Simpson took the javelin throw for Vermont with a throw of 169 feet, and Cohen came in 2nd.

CYNIC Opposes SA Resoloution

This year is perhaps the year in which the question of man's injustice to man has been more in the forefront than at any other time since the Civil War. This year Southern Negroes, Northern Negroes and Northern whites have worked together in an effort to secure for the Negro his rights as a citizen of the United States. In the South the struggle has been for the Negro to get the right to be served at chain-store lunch counters hitherto reserved for whites only. In the North the lunch counters are not segregated, so Northern supporters of the Southern movement have picketed chain stores known to adhere to segregation policies in the South.

Among the stores picketed here in the North was one in Burlington, Vermont.

SA RESOLUTION "CONDEMNS" PICKETING

Last Thursday evening the Student Association of the University passed a resolution which condemns picketing of any Burlington store. Even if the implications of the wording of the resolution are discarded (for it would appear from the wording that SA is opposed even to picketing by a labor union during a strike), the resolution is one of the most shocking things to come out of SA in recent years.

The CYNIC, when informed of this action, was amazed that any group purporting to represent the student body of an institution of higher learning could advocate such a policy. It feels that a very important segment of student opinion will be suppressed. This is a violation of basic human rights as defined in our Constitution, i.e. the inalienable rights of assembly, and of freedom of speech. Can the Student Association justify this morally or ethically?

UVM Students Picket Store For Second Time In Protest

Saturday afternoon about 15 University of Vermont students picketed Burlington's Woolworth store for the second time in recent weeks. They marched in a circle in front of the store for three hours carrying signs reading "Northern economic pressure means Southern pressure change." "Help Southern Negroes fight for rights" and "For justice, don't buy here. According to to one of the demonstraters the participating were not representing any particular group. He said that the students were interested obtaining "basic human rights denied the Negro in the South."

The students circulated petitions urging people not to enter the store in protest against the chain's segregation policy in the South. About two hundred and fifty signatures were obtained which will be mailed to the Woolworth's New York office in hopes that the central office will order its Southern branches to end their segregation policies.

Police, who had been informed beforehand about the picketing, remained on hand all day. The demonstration was peaceful at all times.

One of the picketers told the CYNIC that the demonstration was "an education in itself." He stated that some of the attitudes here in the North "where there is supposedly no race friction, are really surprising." He stated that the problem is not as acute as in the South, but noted that several carloads of people in passing stopped while the occupants shouted such phrases as "Nigger-lover" and "They should go back to Africa where they belong." The picketer also informed the CYNIC that "many passers-by were evidently opposed to Negro rights" and that a few expressed their opposition in "language that is not only unprintable but unmentionable."

The picketing last Saturday occurred two days after the Student Association passed a resolution opposing picketing in Burlington. One of the leaders of the pickets said that the resolution "might represent an opinion, but certainly not an informed opinion, on the nature, from, and effect of the anti-segregation picketers." He added that he was sorry to see that the SA would not support what he called "positive action toward desegregation", and added that he and several other students were ready to picket with or without SA support "whenever we feel that picketing will aid the fight against segregation."

ATO fraternity winners at IFC Sing

Fraternities and sororities lifted their voices in song Saturday evening at Mansfield Auditorium. Twenty groups competed in the Interfraternity Sing competition. Rae Paris Activities Chairman of IFC, introduced the evening's activities and Dave Parris, Vice-President of IFC, announced the groups and songs in the large and interested audience.

Alpha Tau Omega was first place in the singing. Their selections were "Carolina in the Morning" and their lovely fraternity song, "ATO Jewels". Second place went to Acacia who pleasingly sang "Aura Lee" and "We Are A.T. Good Brothers" and third place went to Sigma Alpha Epsilon with their two renditions of "Ride the Chariot" and "Yo Ho Ho".

Kappa Alpha Theta rendered a fine performance of "Bell Hall" which was most interesting to win first place in the sorority competition. Second place went to Delta Delta Delta with the song "Dear Land" and third place went to Alpha Omicron Pi for their rendition of "Sea Lady".

Fraternity performance was good for the most part and stage presence and preparation was sufficiently professional. Sorority performance on the whole lacked polish and it was difficult to judge and write up winners. Both various arrangements of numbers and commentary were new to the Sing and this year the sororities eliminated their appearances on stage.

Books of practice and good labor had gone into each group's performance and the directors of each are to be commended for their professional display of direction and knowledge of musical arrangement. The 1960 IFC Sing was enjoyable even though locality and in the middle of the Delta Theta house was held. "Wait til next year!"

Parents To Visit UVM This Weekend

Saturday, May 7, 1960, will mark the commencement of 1960's version of UVM's traditional parent's weekend. The events will officially get underway Saturday afternoon with an opening reception for the parents on the roof of Hotel Vermont. This will be followed at 7:30 that evening by a dinner-dance to take place in the Waterman building. The dinner-dance will be open to members of the classes of 1962 and 1963 along with their folks and dates. Other than those already mentioned no other special events have been scheduled, in order that everyone have adequate free time to explore the grounds.

A large parent turnout is expected at the UVM vs. Connecticut baseball game Saturday afternoon also, arrangements have been made at a local country club so those parents who are interested in playing golf will have the opportunity to do so. The dormitories, for the most part, will be open to visitors and many will have student guides.

Parent's weekend is sponsored by an organization known as the "UVM Family Associates - 1962." This group was organized last year to achieve the dual aims of promoting class unity and giving the student body more in the way of school social events. Besides successfully running several functions this school year and last, the "UVM Family Associates 1962" have established a number of food scholarships for University of Vermont students.

One of the main goals of this year's parent's weekend is to create an organization out of the 1963 class' parents analogous to the 1962 Family Associates group. This new association will work with, and implement the current 1962 group.

So far 125 families of the class of '63 and quite a number of families of the '62 class have sent notification of their coming and acceptances are still pouring in. Let's support Parent's Weekend and make it a big success.

PICKETING: A POSITIVE ACTION

Picketing is the most effective non-violent way that the students in the North have of showing the characters and the world that they will not tolerate the continued oppression of their fellow men. It has been recognized as a legitimate means of expressing this feeling by over one hundred Northern colleges. Yet UVM's Student Association has seen fit to condemn it "on principle".

Whether the Student Association realizes it or not, it has in effect put its seal of approval on the "status quo" in the South. To attempt to prevent any groups from the only effective means of protest is to make that group ineffective. If the Student Association believes the means of change I opposes change.

SA RESOLUTION INEFFECTIVE

It is true that the Student Association did pass a resolution several weeks ago to the effect that Southern Negro students denied an education because of their participation in lunch counter sit-down strikes should be admitted to UVM with financial aid where necessary. It is also true that the Board of Trustees commended this action. The CYNIC at that time predicted that this resolution would never be more than an ineffective resolution. And, to quote from an article appearing in the CYNIC last week: "It was noted that UVM has received many more applications than it can accept." And from the same article, "Favored admissions policy for any special group, the Board concluded, could be offered only at the cost of 'prejudice to individuals who have applied in good faith.'" Need the CYNIC reiterate that the SA's resolution is ineffective?

We were pleased to see the Student Association take positive action in this matter. However, bringing those students who most object to segregation in the South to the North is not meeting the problem head-on. It is, rather, removing those students from the area in which they can do the most good. The problem must be solved in the South, with help from the North. If these leaders are brought to the North, the intergration movement in the South will lose its leaders. This is certainly not helping the cause of intergration, either in the North or in the South.

CYNIC: STAND & SUGGESTIONS

By Passing the resolution opposing picketing, the SA has put itself on the side of those groups which believe that anything is better than trouble in its own back yard. The CYNIC cannot agree with this attitude. It believes that segregation, especially in "the land of the free", must be fought tooth and nail on all fronts with whatever peaceful means are most effective. It cannot agree with, or urge Vermont students to comply to the anti-picketing resolution.

FROSH CORNER

At a recent meeting of the Freshman Class Activities Committee further plans were formulated for the forthcoming Class Picnic to be held on May 21st. As announced previously it is hoped the affair will be a beach party beginning at one o'clock on the afternoon and extending well into the evening. The site for the beach party has not yet been finalized but it is supposed that the event will take place at one of the many lovely shore areas and are in the immediate vicinity of Burlington.

The beach party sponsored by the Class of 1964 will be open only to Freshman students in an attempt to achieve a lasting unity of the class before the lengthy summer vacation commences. As a non-profit function, only a very nominal fee will be charged each student for transportation and food.

The theme of "Midget" has been selected for the beach party and the voting for the affair will take place in a manner similar to that presented in the movie "Midget". For the girls, a "Miss Midget Contest" will be presented and a prize will be awarded to the girl who best exemplified Midget on the played out role in the famous movie. Qualifications for the contest mandate that the girls entering must be between the height of 5 feet 2 inches and 5 feet four inches. Those who vie for the "Miss Midget Award" will be judged also according to their type of dress, spirit, and vivacity.

As an added attraction a softball game will take place between Freshman boys and many professors and deans. It is hoped that Dean Clifford and Dr. Torch will be present to participate along with many other administrative and faculty celebrities.

The "Midget" beach party, as planned will be a great success and it is hoped that the Freshman will miss the spectacular opportunity of an afternoon of fun and recreation at the beach.

Contest Results

Alpha Delta Pi won the Zeith Night record player in the Parliament Mardi Gras Alpine contest. Second prize a 24-cup Pearl Reed Coffeemaker was awarded to Kappa Sigma. A total of some 26,542 boxes and packs were turned in during the contest. This represents over 5 million cigarettes and is one of the largest numbers of packs to be turned in any of the annual contests here at UVM to date.

Letters To The Editor:

Protests Action Against Students

Dear Editor:

Since the inception of the latter university and higher education I don't think there is any form of punishment which is greater or more severe that is administered to the students who have been put on probation for periods of time ranging from six months to a year for drinking -- but will still remain on campus but never truly enjoy from participating. The fact of the matter is that they were placed on probation by the administration as a measure of humiliating them into paying hidden charges or lookings that they had received.

I have until this time, been not only mildly interested with the regulations and regulation enforcement at UVM. True drinking is not allowed on campus. I do not contest this rule. Perhaps it is inconvenient at times to certain parties, but it is not a very painstaking matter to leave the confines of one's dormitory in order to drink. True also, that students at UVM as at any other school, are expected to behave themselves in a way which will not bring down unfavorable publicity on the university. This is understandable. If a small group of UVM students were publicized as being responsible for a robbery, drunken driving incidents, physical attacks on innocent persons, burglaries, or any other act which might be construed as criminal in nature, I would sympathize fully with the university, and would agree with them in regarding these students as undesirable elements.

There is a sentence in the catalogue, which, I believe, holds UVM students responsible for the observance of all local, state, and federal laws. I do not contest the fact that these students, by being under 21, and consuming alcoholic beverages, were violating a state law. What I do question is the seriousness of their offense. If the university was to put on probation every student who had ever drank illegally in Vermont, I am afraid that it might have to advertise in the national magazines for students. Likewise, if they put on probation every student who had hitchhiked illegally in Burlington (a local offense) or who had mutilated pennies by cutting them or dissolving them in acid (a federal offense).

Evidently, the fact that these students were creating no disturbance whatsoever, causing no injury, or committing any offenses criminal in nature, but were instead keeping to themselves and bothering no one, failed to make an impression on those responsible for putting them on probation. Likewise, the fact that their having been reported was indistinguishable from an act of blackmail -- something which is in my humble opinion a far more serious offense than drinking under age. Likewise, the fact that these students were out of town, on vacation, and not even making any effort to influence other students to join them or imitate them in their evil activities.

The person who administered these probations stated that he spent some two weeks in serious thought before he did what he did. He may have spent two weeks in thought. Whether this thought even pertained at all to the issue of these students, and whether it was serious in nature, I am inclined to skepticism.

I am certain that administrative officials at UVM carry a very respectable workload, and that they can make mistakes, and that these mistakes should be expected of them, as of anyone else, on occasion. But I think that they also ought to be able to recognize when they have made mistakes, and while I am not going to set myself up dogmatically and state that they have made a mistake in this instance, I think that if they really gave this incident some more open minded thought, they might possibly see that they ought to modify their decision in this matter.

The Melting Pot

By ROGER ZIMMERMAN

News Conference", a Sunday night radio recently discussed the "sit-in" demonstrations Southern Negro students. A panel of White and students answered the questions of two senators Southern judge.

He informed the panel and radio audience of position to the "sit-in" movement. He failed, to say much more than "I am opposed". The on the other hand, logically defended both and objectives of the movement.

that the original "sit-in" demonstration was -inspired, one student told of her stay in She was convicted on a city charge of disorderly and a state charge of conspiring to obstruct and trade. The first charge is ridiculous. resistance of the Gandhi type is a part of the her conduct could not possibly have been But, for want of a better term, she was by city officials as such. The state charge personified. She was actually trying to engage in by purchasing something. Another student on had been suspended from school. He was out on at $1500 dollars for Disturbing The Peace"

MORAL ISSUE INVOLVED

One of the questions asked was why some Northern students are responding to the situation by taking such overt action as "picketing". The question was not easy to answer, for a multitude of purposes are responsible for measures such as "picketing". However, a White student from Colorado eloquently answered: "I believe that many of these northern students are expressing their respect for the moral courage of the Southern Negro student". Firmly entrenched attitudes and a long tradition of racial inequality opposes the idea of moral courage. Is violence the only alternative? I don't think so. Yet, in Atlanta a Negro lost his sight, in Nashville, a White is beaten brutally. An eye for an eye, but violence is not the answer.

AS I SEE IT dept.

A recent letter to the CYNIC has "broken the ice" on a heretofore relatively undiscussed subject. The topic is fraternity politics. The letter of "G.A.", class of '62, summed up the situation admirably. Stating that "fraternalism is all well and good, but it should not carry over into politics", the letter further spoke of fraternities carrying ont decisions that should be individual matters.

The fault, however, rests not entirely with the fraternities. The administration, affable scapegoat of the typewriter, must assume responsibility, in part, for the present situation. I wonder if it hasn't been a case of "passing the social buck". Fraternities have been carrying the full weight of producing a student social life. Where are the all-University functions? In their effort to provide a social life, many fraternities branch out into other areas. And here's where the trouble starts.

One of the campus organizations recently had an election. The voting was a fine example of the "block type" A free election in chains. And in most of the campus elections, this is the rule not the exception.

Official SA Stand On Resolution

Last Thursday evening the Student Association Council of the University of Vermont condemned the actions of students who have picketed Burlington business enterprises.

The Council felt it unjust to picket Burlington business establishments which have no control over the present crisis in the South.

This action, of course, did NOT mean the Council went on record as condemning picketing in general - only that which would harm the normal transaction of business in a local concern as well as that which perhaps may cause disfavorable comments towards the University community.

A governing body must not allow emotion or idealism to interfere with its working. It must only be guided by a belief of what they do is for the betterment of the whole University. As the Council represents the students of the University of Vermont, through a democratic election, it must also be guided by the popular sentiments of the students of the University of Vermont.

The Council HAS NOT AND WILL NOT CHANGE its conviction that discrimination practiced against any "race, religion or creed" is a heinous offense.

The Student Association Council
Gordon Sprigg, Publicity Chairman

Lane Series

last year's Lane Summer Series. November 16 is the contracted date.

From New York City, completing the two series, will be four more attractions. The New York City Opera, led by its musical director Julius Rudel, will be seen in Bizet's Carmen (sung in French) on one Series, and Mozart's Cosi fan tutte (sung in English) on the other Series. This will be the fifth consecutive year in which this opera company has played under the auspices of the Lane Series. The dates are October 31 and November 1. Casts will be announced later.

Also from New York will be the Belafonte Folk Singers, a group of fourteen singers and three instrumentalists conducted by Robert De Cormier. These singers, who started out as accompanists for Harry Bellafonte, will appear at Memorial Auditorium on January 5.

Finally, New York City will send two theatrical productions Archibald MacLeish's Pulitzer prize winning play, J.B. (October 24), and Hal Holbrook's one-man presentation of Mark Twain Tonight (January 11).

The division of the Series into the Red and Blue concerts will be announced next September in a brochure, which will be sent to all students, faculty and staff, and Chittenden County (Vt.) mail, and also to all townspeople on the Lane mailing list. These brochures will contain ticket applications.

Tickets will go on sale shortly after college opens in September.

Announcements of the concerts in the Lane Summer Series for 1960 and also for the newly established third Lane Series -- the Lane Chamber Arts Series -- will be made before college closes in June.

Highlights

By EDSON DARER

For over one and one half years now, it has been my extreme pleasure to fill part of a page of this newspaper every week. Now, as time for graduation draws near, I sincerely regret that my experience in learning, and my membership in the Fifth Estate must come to an end. I find that other duties, such as term papers and hour exams, force me to give up the time that is needed to continue.

During my writing period, I hope I have informed as well as entertained. If I have gotten my point across but a very few times, I feel it was well worth it. Much of my writing has been poor. I hope I have improved. There are certain space limitations that limit what a columnist can say. If he has something to say and he is learning, like myself, he never quite gets it said the way he would have it. But, there is some self-gratification, when one knows he tried.

Many have disagreed with my opinions and others have backed me up faithfully. I admit to many mistakes. Many have called me critical. I am a critic. When I was selected to write this column,, it was with the idea that what I had to say would be said. I don't try to be critical on purpose, but when I felt or feel that something is wrong, I told about it. That is one great feature of this small New England college newspaper. There is no censorship. No one reads my column and tells me that certain material cannot be printed. The University has no control over the newspaper. This is true freedom of the press.

If I ever disturbed one of you I am sorry. If I have missed communicating to you I am truly sorry. I have enjoyed great freedom and this certainly has been an exhilarating experience. When one knows his words and thoughts are being read . . . I really can't explain the feeling. To stimulate interest, to make people stand up and take notice, to be controversial . . . this is what I have tried. I hope it has paid off in a few cases.

Before closing, I would like to sincerely thank Messrs. Stanley Israel, David Zuckerman, and David Steele, for letting me continue with my writing. These are the three bosses that I have had. I would also like to thank certain members of the faculty and administration who have helped and corrected me many times. Last, but certainly not lenst, I would like to thank you, my fellow students who, I hope, have read my article and possibly reaped some sort of reward from it. Good luck to all of you in the future"

Congratulations to Bobbie Zuckerman on her recent pinning and also to Debbie Godwin for her tremendous performanance in "Arsenic and Old Lace".

The sing was great.

ATO

Spring has sprung.
The grass has risen.
Right where the ATO house is.
The yard is clean,
Our house is swept
And the people looks neat-is kept

Yes sir the boys may look [illegible] but that mansion at 21 Williams looks like a million bucks. A little wax action here, some rake dragging there, and the Taus now have a sparkling pad.

Here we must express our thanks for this very successful spring cleanup not to the notorious seasonal fever, but rather to that hard-driving Simon legree-type whip snapper, master of pitch fork and paint brush--house manager Barry Jackson. Take another bow, Harry. (Oh, go on, take two. They're small.)

Speaking of bows, Art Norberg deserves to take a few big ones. At a recent New England Convention of Newman Clubs, Art was elected to serve as Province Chairman for the New England Province for the coming year. Okay boss, now go to it.

Along the same line, let's extend our greetings to Dick Urban, Dean Oliver and Gil Turnabene who were recently pledged. Nice to have you aboard, fellows.

ATO's Spring Formals is scheduled for Friday, May 13, at Ralph's Country Inn in South Burlington.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

On Tuesday, May 3, seventeen girls were initiated into Delta Delta Delta. The new sisters of Tri Delta are: Inness Carey, Middlebury, Vt.; Janet Christenson, Morrisville, Pa.; Katherine Coburn, St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Judith Conant, McIndoe Falls, Vt.; Mary Donaldson, Westfield, N.J.; Marilyn Dorn, Burlington, Vt.; Susan Dykes, New Canaan, Conn.; Robin Hubbard, Morrisville, Pa.; Ann Maynes, Woodstock, Vt.; Frederica Means, Springfield, Vt.; Maryann O'Brien, Quincy, Mass.; Cay Sanderson, New York City; Susan Sipprell, Buffalo, N.Y.; Margaret Smith, Little Silver, N.J.; Katherine Thomas, White Plains, N.Y.; Gretchen Van Raalta, Wollaston, Mass.; Leslie Van Raalta, Wollaston, Mass. Initiation at the Chapter House was followed by a formal banquet at the Park Cafe. Judy Conant received the award for the most outstanding pledge, and Ann Maynes received the scholarship award for the highest average among the pledges.

Tri Delta's Butterfly Breakfast will be held from 9 to 12 Sunday, May 8, at the Chapter House, 143 South Willard Street. The breakfast is held each year to raise money for the sorority's scholarship program.

Eta Chapter awards a local scholarship at various times and also participates in a national scholarship program. Awards are made to deserving women students, irrespective of fraternity affiliation.

GAMMA PHI BETA

Congratulations are in order for Ginni Clark, '63, who was recently pinned to Mike Logan, '63, a Delta Sigma Phi at Ohio Northern University.

Best wishes to Nancy Gibson, '61, who was just pinned by Jay Harvey, '60, Sigma Phi Epsilon. This year Jay has been down at Long Island University, but in September he's coming back to UVM to [illegible] next-door neighbor.

We all enjoyed [illegible] Cawley and Pat [illegible] who did such a fine job [illegible] the Swim Show at the [illegible] week. This week marked the annual Gamma Phi Parent's weekend. The event began with a picnic on Saturday. After the Sing there was a coffee hour for the parents which gave them an opportunity to become better acquainted with all the girls in the house. Sunday afternoon the weekend officially ended with a tea-banquet.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

On Friday, April 22, the Thetas enjoyed a very successful and pleasurable spring formal with Pi Beta Phi at the Olde Board. After a delicious buffet dinner, there was dancing with the music supplied by Bill Arnold and his band. Frank Bolles was honored as the Theta [illegible] for 1960.

Pat Bishop and Drew [illegible] appeared in the recent [illegible] Swim Show.

On Monday, April 25, Miss Davenport, Theta's adviser for next year, was our guest for dinner. We are all looking forward to working with her.

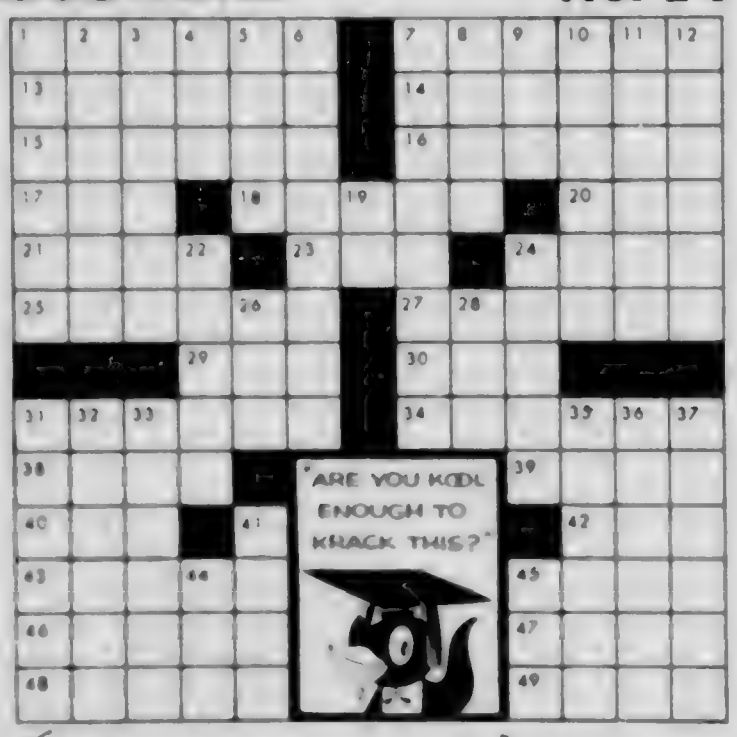
PHI DELTA THETA

The Phi Delta Theta house was very honored the past week in welcoming four new Brothers into the Bond. They are Fred Thomas from St. Albans, Vt.; Dick Towle, Bath, Maine; Len Swinyer, Poultney, Vt.; and Paul Valicenti from Weymouth, Mass. The formal ceremony, conducted by President Robert Flance, took place on Sunday following two hectic days of Pledge initiation.

Last Saturday the Phi house packed up shop and hiked to North Beach where the members conducted a general cleanup of the bathing area, replacing driftwood with tin cans (beans, etc.). During the cleanup, the Phi's singing team was rounded into final shape by their [illegible] conductor, John "1-2-3-4" Andrews. The unbelieveable display of Phi singing really showed how well John shaped the boys up!

The 1960 edition of the Silver Knight softball [illegible] broke into the win column in its first outing by beating Phi Sig, 10-4.

SAE



Five freshmen were recently pledged to SAE. They are Bill Cioffy, Chuck Marsh, [illegible] Butler, Bob Pasco, and [illegible] Coburn. We are very proud and pleased to welcome [illegible] Robbins, '60 as a sister of SAE. She and President [illegible] Hroneck were pinned the night of Spring Formals.

Several of the brothers became worried when they noticed that they were outgrowing their clothes, and they have gone on a strict diet. No names will be mentioned, but the dieters have formed a little club known as the Lunch's Lards.

New Dorms To Provide Extra Comforts And Facilities

by JOANN BREGSTEIN

[illegible] the ground breaking [illegible] completed, work will not begin on the new University expansion project. Included in this construction is the building of a new men's dormitory.

For the first time there will be an ease of association and a center for men, where they will have an opportunity to entertain and play host in their own residence area.

Prior to this the girl's dorms or fraternities were used for co-ed singlings. It will be a whole new dormitory experience for the men students. The new dorms will be equipped with the latest sound proofing devices to provide a significant reduction of noise. This is orientated towards academics. No longer will the lad who has spent a full night entwined in his books, have to stumble [illegible] tiny cubby-hole and [illegible] his way to an upper [illegible] the new dorms will have [illegible] with all single beds. After [illegible] will enjoy [illegible] more functional and [illegible] appearance. The [illegible] men who live in these dorms won't have to trudge to [illegible] in below zero weather, to [illegible] the present [illegible] dormitories will contain [illegible] with a capacity of 150. The present dormitories are adequate but do not meet top standards.

After enrollment in September the administration will have to study the campus population problem to determine who will be required to live in the dorms. It is hoped that the building of this new unit will help to strengthen the fraternity life. All Freshmen will continue living in the dorms and perhaps those Sophomores that are not living in a fraternity house will have to live in the dorms. Fraternities will thus have less trouble filling up their houses. Any member of a fraternity, above a freshman, will be permitted to take meals at his fraternity. Second semester freshmen will continue to keep their meal contract till the end of the year. Dean Clifford is confident that the facilities will be such, that a sufficient number of upperclassmen will seek to live in the new dorms.

The new dorms will also provide facilities for eating and sleeping that are better than can be bought otherwise. This is because householders don't buy in quantity so that their per-unit cost is more than ours. Assuming that one doesn't settle for a lower standard when he rents an apartment the university can provide him with better facilities for less money.

The city of Burlington can not continue to absorb the increase in student population. In the past they have made quite a contribution to men's housing. However, now the space in the city is at a premium. The landlords have been wonderful in their support of housing and Dean Clifford is looking forward to their continued assistance as we will have a need for private housing for still some time.

The new men's dorms will be ready for boarders in February, 1962.

"Evening With Williams"

Frederick LaBelle

The campus saw two Tennessee Williams one act plays last Wednesday, a project directed by Geoffrey Moss. I am concerned with the "Case of the Crushed Petunias."

This play is a gentle epistle from the Book of Life, a blank verse allegory on the pertinence of being over existing. The fixtures of the play, i.e., props, signs and staging, are made plain to permit the portrayal of the theatrical conviction by the players.

The principals never made it, barred by "five days of rehearsal," and realizing the impatience of a one nighter all for no other reason but that it does add to the actor's peace of mind to open and close in one night and await the reviews with no hope of redemption) the main characters rarely found courage to approach the stage.

Polly Page as Miss Simple, sputtered and flickered and gleamed intermittently as she adjusted to the harness of an on stage evolution of character. She was courageous in her continued efforts to salvage the play from the stifling grip of Larry Dugan who, in theory, was the young man from Life Incorporated. He never got much evidence to substantiate this. The character never got past the first chapter. Dugan stalked the stage, very often not looking at Miss Page, punctuating the entrancing passion of the lines with stalwart glances at the vast distances beyond the fifth row of seats in the Arena Theatre and intoning his lines with block-footed sonority. He turned warm invitation into hollow oratory, and solemn poetry into cold gospel, and made this reviewer wonder what kind of wood produced that tone. When he forgot his physical presence Dugan reached the audience. The occasional confrontation was enough to send the fire of interpretation back to its self-conscious gleam in the chink.

Ted Edgecomb moved through the street (s) of Primandproper, Mass., as the policeman and played a [illegible] in defining the town [illegible] attitude for us. Jeanne [illegible] as Mrs. Dull acted the [illegible] some, unimaginative [illegible] rose "small town" pers[illegible]. The incidental characters [illegible] the willingness of [illegible] dience. French Comedy To Be Shown Soon

The University Players will follow up their dramatic successes of Carousel and Carmen by presenting the French comedy Ring Around The Moon on the nights of May 12th, 13th, and 14th. This delightful play, translated by Christopher Fry, is under the direction of Mr. Edgar Peidner and will be performed by members of The University Players. Tickets, at the price of $1.00, will soon be on sale in the book store and it is recommended that they be purchases as soon as they become available - considering that Carmen was sold out a week in advance.

Can You Find It In The Bible?

THE BIBLE is the most widely read book in the world. Its ethical standards are the highest known. Through the centuries its religious precepts have appealed to the best instincts within man. Most of us have read it and respected its authority from childhood. How much do you know about what the Bible really teaches? 2. Did Christ ever do anything wrong?	☐	☐
3. Is the Old Testament law of Moses still in effect?	☐	☐

UVM Loses 9-4 To West Point

By Lou Dellelave

The University of Vermont was plagued by loose defense in a 9-4 defeat at the hands of the United States Military Academy in the first game of a disastrous four game road trip. Steve Cooper's steady pitching seemed to have held Army's bats well in check until the fifth inning when the bottom dropped out from the UVM defense. At this point in the game the West Pointers tallied 8 runs on five hits and numerous mis-ques to decisively go ahead of the Cats.

Leading the Vermont batsmen were Jerry Cassidy and Lee Brown with two hits apiece.

NOTICE Freshman or Sophomore men interested in applying for a sports assistantship in the Public Relations Office for 1960-61 contact PR Office by May 10th for competitive assignments. Applicants must have a knowledge of sports, ability to write interesting copy, be able to type (not necessarily touch typing), and must be in good academic standing. Apply at Alumni House.

Double Event At Centen

On Wednesday, May 18, Centennial Field will be the scene of two athletic contests; one a track meet between UVM's cindermen and the Panthers of Middlebury in the afternoon and the other a baseball game under the lights the same night between the Cats and the Middlebury nine.

Admission will be charged for both of these events for all persons regardless of their status as students. The proceeds of this collection will go to the United States Olympic Fund. This is a most worthwhile cause in that the U.S. team is not subsidized in any way by the government as are those of some of America's keenest competitors. A large turnout is expected for these two contests.

Team will certainly pick many new men from the present Frosh Cindermen. However, in the case of the Varsity Golf Team, it's slightly different. There will be no Freshmen Team to recruit from. Why? Because this year, there are no Frosh Linksmen. Surely it can't be the lack of facilities. The Varsity uses the Burlington Country Club. Why couldn't a Freshmen Team? Is it because of a lack of talent and enthusiasm? I doubt it very much. There are many Freshmen who are able to play and would like to play golf, if given the chance. The Freshmen have every Varsity Sport but one, Golf. Why the Frosh do not have a team representing them, I don't know. I don't know. I know one thing, though. They should!!

Cats Split With UMass, 4-3, 6-0;

Zingg Shuts Out Norwich 3-0, On 5 Hits

by Roy Stanton

In the first game of the 1960 season, on Monday at Centennial Field, the University of Vermont Catamounts shut out the Norwich Cadets, 3-0. The first run was scored in the second inning, when after back to back singles by Cassidy and Zingg and a walk given up to Brown, the Cadet pitcher gave a base on balls to Joe Silveira, forcing in the run. In the third inning, Bill Federici singled, moving to third on a Norwich error. This set up the second run, and he scored on Brown's long sacrifice fly. This was enough for the Cadets, and Everett Mack took over the mound duties for Al Winder. He kept the Cats scoreless for only two innings. In the sixth, Jim Evans took third on a wild pitch, after he had doubled. He scored when Maynard Ducatte grounded out to first.

The only trouble Harry Zingg got into was in the first inning when a Norwich Cadet advanced to third. Zingg then settled down, never facing more than four batters in any of the remaining eight innings. Zingg gave up only 5 hits, contributing 1 to the Vermont cause himself.

Vermont accumulated seven hits, while Catamount runners scored three times. The only UVM error occurred in the first inning. The Cadets didn't score, although getting five hits. They also made one error.

The next Vermont home game will be tomorrow, at 4:00 p.m., against the UConn Huskies. The Cats play host to the Huskies again, on Saturday, at 1:00 p.m. Both contests will be held at Centennial Field.

In their first contest of the season, the Kitten Netmen lost a tough match to Mt. Hermon Academy, 4-3. Lance Levine was the only man to win a point in the singles division for the Kittens. He played well, winning 6-3, 6-3. Pete Jellinek and Herbie Weiss won the first doubles after a slow start, 1-6, 6-4, 7-5. The only other winners for the Frosh Netmen were Lance Levine and Bill Cullen, who won the second doubles, 6-3, 9-7. The next contest the Kittens will face will be against Northwood, on Wednesday, May 11, at Lake Placid.

Coach "Fuzzy" Evan's frosh baseball team walked over Vermont Ag. & Tech. Institute in their first game of the year, 19-2. Each of the three pitchers got a chance to show their stuff by going three innings apiece, and that they did. The starting pitcher was Dick Cassani, who didn't give up a hit in his third of the game. In the fourth inning, Nichols took over, and did qually as well, only giving up one hit. Ted Jones put the wrapper on the package, by going the final three without giving up a hit. Every player on the frosh squad got a chance to play. Durrell and Yendrzeski each went three for five, giving them a .600 batting average. All told, the frosh 9 collected 16 hits. The next time the Kitten Baseball Team takes the field will be a double-header against the Dartmouth frosh, this Saturday, at Hanover, N.H.

Track - - - - - - - -

The UVM frosh track team racked up their second victory in as many meets, by defeating Lyndon Institute 78½-38½. The Kittens, who captured 10 first plays, were led by Tim Simpson, Lou Garcia, and Peter Voytek. Simpson set a new freshmen javelin throw record, with a heave of 187'1". Bill Mulhern tied the freshmen record for the 440-yd. dash, making it in 52.1 seconds. It shouldn't be too long before he breaks it! Garcia placed first in the 100-yd. dash (10.4) for the Kittens, and Steve Bernstein came in second. Garcia's 2nd first place came in the 220-yd. dash (23-5). He was followed by Bill Mulhern and Steve Bernstein. In Mulhern's record-tying 440-yd. dash, Frank Bolden placed 3rd. Tim Simpson won the 880-yd. run in 2 minutes, 7.4 seconds. Billings came in second for the UVM Cindermen. Simpson also won the mile run, in 4:40, with Billings again placing second. Burroughs placed 2nd for Vermont in the 120-yd. high hurdles, and took first in the 180-yd. low hurdles in 22.7 seconds. Leonhardt came in second. The Kittens swept the high jump, with Voytek jumping 5'8". Willi Lewis placed 2nd, and Frank Bolden tied for 3rd with W. Simpson. Garcia and Burroughs placed 2nd and 3rd respectively, in the broad jump, and Steve Bernstein won the pole vault with a leap of 11'. Voytek won the discus throw with a toss of 136'. Leonhardt placed third in the javelin throw, the event in which Jim Simpson broke the old record.

Congratulations are in order once again to the Frosh Cindermen, who turned in a fine performance this past Saturday.

by Doug Erskine

Friday the University of Vermont's baseball men traveled to Amherst, Mass. to face the University of Massachusetts Redmen in a two game series.

The Catamounts got off to a good start Friday afternoon in downing the Redmen 4-3 and and gaining their first Yankee Conference win of the season.

The 3-3 tie was broken in the top of the 8th inning when Maynard Ducatte worked UMass pitcher Len Wennick for a walk. Bill Federici singled, stole second, and Spike Jarrett grounded to the third baseman who fumbled the ball in attempting to make the play, allowing the speedy Federici to score. Ducatte was thrown out trying to make the trip from first to third on Federici's single.

The Vermont men had left Bob Hobbie go the distance for them while Mass used two hurlers. Hobbie gained his second victory of the season, giving up six hits, striking out six batters and issuing nine bases on balls. The southpaw's control difficulties kept him in trouble but the Lapointe men played errorless ball behind him.

Bill Federici led the Catamount hitting attack, knocking out three of the Cats' six hits, one of them a double. Co-captain Gerry Cassidy clouted a pair of doubles for his two hits and batted in two of Vermont's four runs.

Saturday afternoon the Redmen again hosted the Vermonters, this time shutting them out 6-0. This was the Cats' third Yankee Conference tilt of the season giving them a Beanpot record of 1-2, with losses to UMass and New Hampshire.

Coach Ralph Lapointe again went to his left handed moundsmen using Steve Cooper who went the distance for the Catamounts. The big southpaw faced Bill Glynn of UMass in the pitchers duel and came out the loser. "Coop" pitched good ball giving up six hits, walking five and striking out five. All Mass. runs were earned.

The only serious scoring threat the Cats posed came in the top of the 4th inning. Maynard Ducatte walked to start the inning and Gerry Cassidy belted a long double which moved "Duke" to third base. Levi Brown struck out and then on a very confusing play Reggie Godin tried to squeeze Ducatte home with a bunt, but after a reverse decision on interference he was called out at the plate.

The hard-hitting co-captain Cassidy, collected two of the Cats' hits including a two base knock.

Under Secretary of the Treasury, Fred C. Scribner, Jr. will deliver the Commencement Address at the University of Vermont's 156th Commencement Exercise, June 12. It was announced today (THURS.) by UVM President John T. Fey.

Scribner, a native of Bath, Maine, joined the U. S. Department of the Treasury in 1955 as a general counsel. Two years later he was named an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and subsequently assumed his present post as Under Secretary.

A graduate of Dartmouth College, he holds the L.L.B. degree from Harvard University, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Admitted to the Maine and Massachusetts bars in 1933, he became a partner in the Portland, Me., law firm of Hutchinson, Pierce, Atwood and Scribner two years later. From 1946-55 he was a director, general counsel, vice-president and treasurer of the Bates Manufacturing Company of Lewiston, Me.

Scribner has taken an active interest in politics during most of his adult life. He was chairman of the Republican City Committee in Portland from 1936-40, chairman of the Maine Council of Young Republican Clubs from 1938-40, and a member of the Maine Republican State Committee from 1940-50, being chairman of its executive committee from 1944-50.

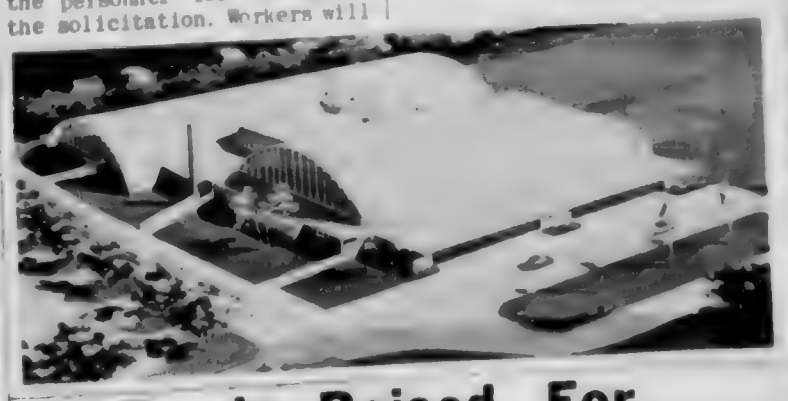
Student Gym Fund Drive Next Week

The student drive in support of UVM's Gymnasium Drive is scheduled for a kick-off next week with a concentrated effort planned to complete the solicitation in four days (Monday through Thursday). Planned along similar lines followed in the Alumni campaign, students will be asked to make a three-year commitment. This procedure, it was pointed out, will facilitate President Fey's determination to start construction of the new gymnasium-physical education plant next year.



Student Association approved the student effort and a $50,000 three-year goal. It is anticipated that this goal may be attained through student pledging, as well as by a series of affairs, such as the recent and successful innovation, the "Hairy Legs Ballet".

The UVM Varsity Club and members of other campus organizations are cooperating in the effort and will furnish the personnel for conducting the solicitation. Workers will call on their fellow students at university dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses.

Frank E. Dion, Director of Development at UVM, said today, "Here is an excellent opportunity for our undergraduates to develop the spirit of stewardship which will be expected of them when they join the ranks of the Alumni."

We are not so much concerned with how much they give as we are with the idea that each do something. Participation is paramount", he said. "It is much more important that an overwhelming percent of the student body do their conscientious best, than to have a minority produce an even greater dollar total."

Dion pointed out that student pledging for the three-year period will end in June but emphasized that fulfillment of pledges may be made through each of the calendar years. Additional volunteers will be welcomed, he concluded.

Funds Raised For Refugee Students

Several University of Vermont student ... in observance of World Refugee Year, have pooled their efforts in raising funds, books and clothing for World Refugee Students. The combined efforts of the Cosmopolitan Club, Newman Club, Men's Residence Hall Council, and the Student Christian Association have resulted in the collection of $174.48, and of sixteen cartons of used clothing and books, all of which have been donated to World University Service. Undaunted by the magnitude of the world refugee problems, the UVM students followed the advice of an ancient sage in viewing their participation in the World Refugee Year program in that it is much better to light one candle than it is to curse the dark.

Players Present "Ring Round The Moon"

(In May 12 13 14 the University Players major production of "Ring Round the Moon" will be staged at the Arena Theatre. "Ring Round the Moon," a light farcical work by Jean Anouilh was adapted for the stage by the English playwright Christopher Fry. The cast members for the University Players production are Hugo and his twin brother Frederic played by Ralf Rode. Hugo is described by playwright Fry as the "sophisticated, suave young man" while his twin is pictured as a young romantic who is deeply in love with Diana.

Diana the daughter of millionaire Messerschmann and who is really in love with Hugo is played by Dorothy Swanson. Jessica, the "crumb-cake butler" is played by Paul Schlenke, opposing Shepard Sass, who plays the part of the "secretive secretary of Messerschmann." Partice Bombelles". The domineering aunt of Hugo and Fred, Madame Desmortes, is played by Marjorie Seldon. Lady Loretta Isolda the mistress of Patrice is played by Miriam Portess. The "faded companion to Madame Desmortes", Capulet, is portrayed by Judy Drabble. John Stevens takes the part of the "sweet-toothed millionaire" Messerschmann. The sometime playboy, and patron of the arts, Romainville, is played by Ronald Hector. The ballerina Isabelle is played by Susan Crane. Playing the part of Isabelle's mother is Gena Mason.

The Crew members for "Ring Round The Moon" are Stage manager, Linda Bowman and technical director, Barry Leete. Music for the intermissions was written by Jack Gritt.

The whole production is under the direction of Mr. Edward Fiedner of the speech department.

"Ring Round the Moon" is set in the winter garden of the Desmortes Chauteau during Spring. A ball is being held to celebrate the engagement of Frederic and Diana. Hugo, who is a great practical joker, persuades Isabelle to come to the ball as the beauty of the evening to enchant Frederic. Frederic is enchanted and falls in love with Isabelle. From there the plot becomes more complicated and, entwines all the characters.

The play will be presented in the Arena theater at 8:30. The price of admission is $1.00. It promises to be one of the Players outstanding productions this year.

Annual Arts Festival Now In Progress

The Fifth Annual Festival of Fine Arts is now in progress. The Festival events that remain are the play by Jean Anouilh, "Ring Around the Moon" to be given May 12, 13, and 14th; a concert by the University Chorus and Orchestra on Wednesday, May 11; the dance concert on May 19; and two art films on Picasso and Alexander Calder on May May 17th.

The events which have been held already a lecture by Dorothy Adlow, art critic from the Christian Science Monitor, "Arrowtie and Old Lace", "The Seventh Seal", "27 Wagons Full of Cotton", and "The Case of the Crushed Petunias", have been well received.

The Fine Arts Festival was first planned in the year of 1955-56. The first members of the committee were interested in encouraging student participation and contribution to the fine arts, in the curriculum itself as well as in extra-curricular activities. The Festival has grown from a consecutive three days events to the ten events this year which are being during a month-long The Festival committee grown and it now Chairman Greg Falls, Director Larry Van Bennett, Mr. Colburn, Mrs. Mills, Bennett, Miss Byers, Mr. son, and Mr. Pappoutsa Sophomore Aides and Staff Sandal have worked and have aided in greater student interest the Festival.

The Fine Arts Festival unique at the University Vermont, for though schools hold similar vals, here at UVM the is on the student contribution to the Festival. SA Revises Resolution

Last Thursday evening, the Student Association of the University of Vermont met and rewrote the anti-picketing resolution against which the CYNIC protested last week. The resolution, which formerly "condemned picketing" now states:

REVISED RESOLUTION

Resolved: "Student Association Council respects the right of students to protest in any lawful manner acts of discrimination against people for reasons of race, creed, or national origin. The SA further declares that such protests are not to be construed as necessarily representing the views of Student Association."

The CYNIC is glad to see that the dreadful wrong done by the old resolution has been alleviated by this newer statement.

WORDS ARE IMPORTANT

The CYNIC was told that its Editorial of last week misunderstood the purpose for which the "Condemnation" resolution was passed. While it is true that perhaps the intent of the resolution was to disclaim Student Association responsibility for the picketing, the working of that resolution definitely did not state any such thought. It heaped a blanket condemnation of picketing not only on the desegregation pickets, but also on any other pickets. The new resolution corrects the impressions inevitably left by the old. It is hoped that SA has learned that the meaning of its actions will be, and can only be, determined from the statements it makes and the resolutions it passes. If words are to be understood in the manner in which their author intends, they must be stated in such a manner as to preclude the possibility of misunderstanding.

PRAISE FOR SA

Nevertheless, the Student Association is to be praised for its action in passing the revised resolution. This statement includes what the Council wanted to say in the first place. It is also the type of statement that even the most avid supporter of the anti-segregation pickets will be satisfied with. Although the CYNIC wishes that the SA would support the pickets in an active manner, it is in complete agreement that the picketing is probably not representative of the views of the Council.

The SA Council is to be praised further because it had the courage to change its original resolution after the resolution was condemned by the CYNIC. SA has said that this new resolution is a rewording of the old one. It is a restatement of the Council's feelings in a more correct manner. Nevertheless, it might appear that SA has reversed itself completely. The Student Association has had the courage to admit that its original statement could have been misinterpreted, and it has corrected its statement. To admit an error is very hard. SA has admitted and corrected an error. It deserves our praise.

Letters To The Editor:

Objects To CYNIC Editorial

To the Editor

The student, elected student representatives of this institution, have passed a resolution condemning picketing of [illegible] stores as a means of solving the area's [illegible] problems. The CYNIC has opposed this resolution and does so because it feels picketing is the only peaceful method of proving that certain businessmen are violating the basic human rights" are denied to the non-whites and that "a very important segment" of student opinion is being suppressed.

Consistent with its previous position does SA forbid UVM students from picketing? Where does it say the expression of student opinion on the matter? The truth is that it doesn't, and for a very good reason. It can't. All it can do and has done is to express the wishes of the student body who elected it as nearly as these wishes can be determined.

No one's rights, basic or otherwise, are being denied by an SA resolution nor are anyone's opinions being suppressed. If any body of University students disagrees with this resolution, they have only to do what Mr. Older's group did do - that is, simply picket in spite of it.

To the Student Body,

The Executive Committee of the Class of 1962 recently had a meeting with the new class advisor, Dr. Severance, to plan events for the coming year. We of the Class of 1962 need the help of you, the student body, in choosing these activities. We hope to create more class unity by having the Junior Class act as host to the rest of the student body at these various events.

We have drawn up a list of activities we thought you would enjoy and we are presenting them to you and asking you to select the ones you think you would like. The only one we feel needs explanation is Junior Carnival. Junior Carnival has been successful at other colleges and we would like to try it here with the possibility of making it an annual event. It would consist of student vs. faculty "activities" - a tug of war, a [illegible] fight, pose fight, cane rush, etc.

There will be various ballot boxes placed around campus [illegible] where you may drop this ballot sheet.

Thank you,
Class of 1962

FROSH CORNER

Saturday, the twenty-first of May, the Class of 1963 will hold its "Gidget" Beach Party at Camp Ahnahi. The members of the various committees have been working for several weeks toward this final event of the school year, but, its success depends upon you, the members of the Freshman class.

The Beach party is an attempt to bring the class together as one unit and therefore only Freshmen are invited. The cost of the tickets is seventy-five cents, which includes the transportation to and from the site of the party. Those who have cars will have to pay their own way, while students who haven't will have to [illegible] with those who have cars.

The [illegible] committee promises a [illegible] afternoon for all with a [illegible] softball game as well as student versus student softball and volleyball games. Towards evening as the party moves indoors at the camp site, there will be a band to play for the dance being held until 11:00.

There have been people this year who felt there was not enough spirit in our class. This is only to their fault. Spirit need not be the yelling and confetti-throwing at football games. Spirit is the intangible commodity which makes a class successful. This is the most important activity of the Freshman class. It only [illegible] to [illegible] them [illegible] an attempt can be [illegible].

Actually, you're cheating yourself if a good time results missing the chance to [illegible] with these Freshmen whom you may not know. If you don't go [illegible] a little bit to your class and make the Class of '63 the best ever.

Popular sentiment is made up of a great many things, ...cluding emotion and idealism. Critic Calls Pro Musica "One Of The Finest Ever"

by DON E. KERR

The music of Claudio Monteverdi has long been regarded by American concert audiences as something for the library shelf alone, the general attitude being that the music was important for its influence upon the "better" music that followed, its present task being only to gather mold and dust and to be viewed on occasion by various pendants with some sort of crackpot attachment to the past. This attitude is, fortunately, being changed by the inspired performances of competent groups like Noah Greenberg's New York Pro Musica, for with their use of scholarly approach and proper instrumentation the music lives, and all of its glories come into full being. The holders of Lane Red Series tickets were privileged to hear one of these performances by the Pro Musica, which, I daresay, was one of the finest performances of anything by anyone that has ever been given in this city.

The group was obviously in full command of the music that it played, and over and above the mastery of the technical details, it was also able to make the music say something. The affair was not an academic one, rather, it was an artistic experience of the highest order. The group performed with a purity and clarity which created the impression of a beautiful, infinitely delicate bubble which might at any minute burst, and suddenly we were living in another age, for the emotional impact and the expressive qualities of this music were shown to their fullest. Especially noteworthy selections were the ensemble performances of the Lamento d'Arianna and the Litany to the B.V.M., along with the continuo player's solo performance of the two Frescobaldi works. It is difficult, however, to single out any number or any performer as being outstanding, for they were all excellent. Monteverdi was the Stravinsky of his day, and it is performances such as this which will eventually restore him to his rightful place as a composer equal in stature to Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms.

Congratulations are in order for all those having apart in this season of the Lane Series. The writer hopes for one improvement, however: the latecomers should be allowed to enter the auditorium only at intermission. That many people walk in after the first number (some even wave to their friends on the way!) is a source of both disturbance and embarrassment to many in the audience, as well as being a terrible imposition on the performers. People who do this are not, I am sure, aware of the impression which they create, and if they were to hear some of the comments which have been made by various Lane Series performers, they would be completely ashamed of themselves. Those who continue to do this not only make asses of themselves, they create a bad impression of the whole audience, and do not believe that this does not affect the performers' desire to give their best efforts. The Lane Series has done a fine job in educating people musically - let us hope that certain of these people will, in the coming season, be taught how to act at a public function.

Dental Hygiene Holds Ceremony

On Sunday, May 8, the University of Vermont School of Dental Hygiene held its annual capping ceremony. Dr. Wadi I. Sawabini, Dir. School of Dental Hygiene, greeted the parents and friends and explained to them the scope and importance of Dental Health. Following Dr. Sawabini's speech, Lyman Rowell, Dean of Administration, conveyed the greetings of Pres. John T. Fey. Everyone was then introduced to the guest speaker for the afternoon, Miss Edna Bradbury, Pres.-Elect of the American Dental Hygienists' Association. Miss Bradbury spoke of the many fields open to a hygienist and the qualities one needs to be a proficient dental hygienist.

Both Miss Phyllis Quinby, Asst. Dir. School of Dental Hygiene, and Miss E. Jean Young, Pres. of the American Dental Hygienists' Assoc. Junior Chapter, gave short speeches and then the new officers of the American Dental Hygienists Assoc. Junior Chapter were announced. They are as follows: Pres., Susan Dahl; Sec.-Treas., Linda Mintzer; Reporter, Mary Ploof; Social Chairman, Donna Woodbury. The honor students, E. Jean Young, Merle Tucker, Mary Ploof and Susan Dahl were then introduced. Upon completion of this, the Freshmen students were capped by their big sisters in the Senior class. Those honored were: Sandra Bailey, Waterbury; Barbara Bigelow, Brookfield; Susan Dahl, Burlington; Patricia Jens, Randolph; Phyllis McNellis, Pittsford, N.Y.; Sheila (Miller) White, Shelburne; Linda Mintzer, Burlington; Wilma Philips, Barre; Mary Ploof, Burlington; Elizabeth Poplawski, Burlington; Jacqueline Ryer, St. Albans; Bonnie Stewart, Rochester, N.Y.; Sara Wisell, Bristol; Dolores White, Greenwich, Conn.; and Donna Woodbury, South Burlington.

Other members of the Dental Hygiene staff present were Miss Norene Paquette, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Heininger, Dr. Richard Conklin, Dr. Newton Howe, and Dr. Howard Slack. Also present was Miss Carlita Phelps, the Trustee of the Vermont Dental Hygienists' Association.

There was a tea following the ceremony.

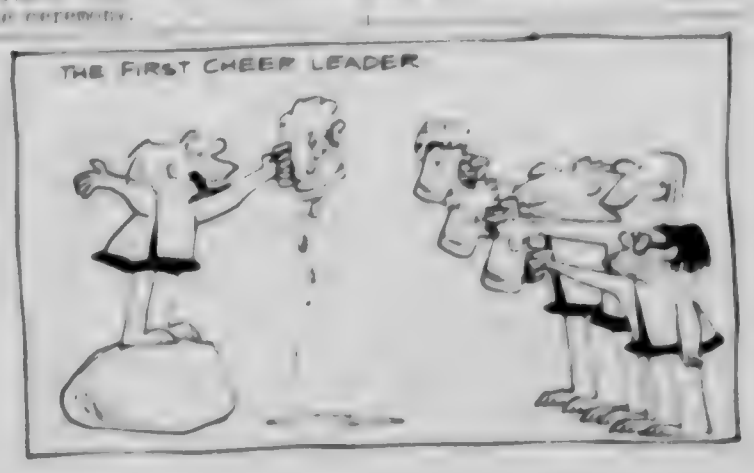
WUS Supports Civil Rights



World University Service, the international student relief organization, in which more than 100 schools and colleges in New England are active participants, today announced its willingness to render practical support for American students who are in difficulty and possibly in need because of their participation in current protests against segregation practices in the United States.

In a statement released by the National Office of United States World University Service on April 11, WUS reaffirmed its own non-discriminatory nature and expressed "moral support for students in their peaceful, determined and non violent efforts to obtain human and civil rights." WUS further indicated its endorsement and support of its own sponsoring agencies in their efforts on behalf of students. These sponsors are B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations at American Universities, National Newman Club Federation, United States National Student Association, National Student Christian Federation, National Student Councils of the YMCA and YWCA.

Calling on its 40-year experience, which includes work with interned Japanese-American students during World War II and placement of Hungarian students after the Hungarian Revolution, World University Service stated its "willingness to accept and process offers of study opportunities for students who have been displaced from their studies and require replacement due to participation in sit-in demonstrations." World University Service "accepts, should the need arise, any responsibility requested by its sponsoring agencies for the coordination of scholarship programs and for the administration of scholarship funds made available to World University Service by its sponsoring agencies."

Prof Of The Week

Mr. Lighthall

by Dabbit GODWIN

I am sure we are all acquainted with the name of Pythagoras. Through Mathematics we learned that he was the man responsible for the famed Pythagorean Theorem. Echoes of this theorem may be heard in the hallway which resonate from the stimulating lectures of Harry Lighthall, our Professor of the Week.

Professor Lighthall originates from Johnstown, New York and is now permanently established in a perky little home overlooking one of Vermont's most scenic views.

In response to a question on student apathy and concern for intellectual enterprises, Professor Lighthall feels that students at UVM are no different than students at MIT or Harvard University. Both are universities from which he received his degrees. However, he does feel that the primary concern of an average American student is not the "intense desire for knowledge," but rather the use of college as a stepping stone to attain good jobs.

When asked about his views on counseling here at UVM he expressed the fact that counseling was good in principle but he objects to counseling because too many interest people are left out and the more responsible person is not reached. However he is concerned with the discrimination problem and only wishes it could be helped to that end.

Whenever a free period prevails Professor Lighthall can be found high among the clouds soaring through the sky in his plane. Then again, during the summers he can be found teaching at the UVM Summer Sessions. Or if you looked for him last summer, he was getting married to a former UVM graduate and member of Alpha Chi Omega who is presently doing research on Maple as a Research Associate.

If you look for Professor Lighthall and his wife next summer you will have to go to Norma to the University of Rangoon. There Professor Lighthall and his wife will have the fascinating and exciting opportunity to lecture.

Just in case you happen to pass a lecture room with echoes of Pythagoras, stop and go in. Who knows? You may suddenly find that Mathematics is what you always wanted or then again, you may be another Pythagoras.

ROTC Cadets Visit West Point

Three University of Vermont students enrolled in the Army ROTC Advanced Course visited the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. for four days starting March 31.

The cadets, all Vermonters, are Stanton Williams, Charlotte; Robert W. Billings, Burlington; and Robert C. Eaton, South Royalton and Asuncion, Paraguay. They went to West Point on March 31 and were assigned a cadet escort with whom they attended classes and participated in every phase of cadet life, social and military. Cadets from other New England colleges and universities were also in attendance at the Academy during this time.

Stanton Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson J. Williams, Charlotte, Vt., is a graduate of Kimball Union Academy, Meridan, N.H., and is a political science major.

Robert W. Billings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Billings, 27 Adsit Court, Burlington, is a graduate of Burlington High School and is a zoology major.

Robert C. Eaton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Eaton, Asuncion, Paraguay, graduated Mount Herman High School, Mount Herman, Mass., and is an international relations major.

Winter CENTAUR Reviewed

By Neville Garrett

The opening editorial in Centaur "Hot Water, Dry Feet", gave an excellent discussion of apathy and University life. It might have considered putting in a side-handed plea for more contributions with greater variety to Centaur.

Needless to say, this Winter edition is good, but the strictly fiction-poetry content limits its appeal. Funds are hard to come by, of course, but why not canvass for some articles from the sciences, education, etc.? This is not to say that there haven't been some articles in the past of this sort, but this issue is strictly a literary one. I don't think that all the students in the other branches of learning are so concerned with a few blisters from the "hot water" technique of passing one of the stimulants of learning, but that they might let off some "steam" by approaching Centaur with a bit of written something on fire for publication.

P.E. Brown's "Creation" calls to light the creative rush of the falcon in a sharp image. The dizzy effects of the chaos from which the poet must "beat" and "forge" his falcon flight recalls to mind the Welshman, Dylan Thomas, hammering and "packing down the bone" of shape. The poem is good, but the chaos still has its shapes in the "midnight whin". The falcon's flight (if one knows the bird from experience) is one of quick ascent and then --- ATTACK. The meaning of the fulfillment of flight, beautiful in itself, might have been richer for a completed thought of its purpose related to the creative purpose of the poet. A fluidity of rhythm in the poem somewhat stilts the effect of flight.

Mr. Colburn's poem "To Some, No Doubt, a Pegasus" is a rich and vivid lyric, also of a seeking and an isolation, with an unrequited loneliness; "and everywhere a color like the desert of the past." The fallen star, deep space imagery and the quest for some beauty which this paraphrase cannot evoke, gives the poem a mood of true aloneness. The "classic" seas of the moon and the craters --- such as the Crater of Copernicus (science) or Plato (philosophy) are no doubt real elements from which Mr. Colburn's imagery and thought symbolize the search for truth (or beauty).

"G.D.", whoever she/he may be, wrote a very fine lyric as "warm and mellow as wine." There is a fundamental solidity of imagery here which makes the thought of need and desire come forth quite well. It is a good love song, emptying itself into a sustained, steady glow of passion.

"Thought" by Mr. Moss is a good humorous piece -- and Centaur can do with more humorous poetry. I have occasionally been hit with a "flying Chaucer" any student will verify the truth of this gem.

The four poems by Shepard Saslaw --- "Memory", "Song", "Before a Stained Glass Window", and "The Last Metamorphosis" --- are short, conventional in form and they also rhyme. The "graveyard" thought of memory is sharply evoked in "Memory", but there is a lack of essence here, too much unwarranted gloom. The cold sea and those "little fishes" do effectively remind one of the immutability of the past. A similar preoccupation with gloom is fought against in "Song".

The "bitter intimacies of the flesh" are cast aside as hopes for "fields of rain" and the "Chalice of the heart" should be filled by seeking again the balm of freedom of nature. "Before a Stained Glass Window" encounters the horror of [illegible] and the unreality of [illegible] seems inescapable between the mirror of a "transfixed" and immovable existence. "The Last Metamorphosis" also struggles against illusion and the despair of shadow. The poet seems too detached from the "magicians" of the night and his battle against an evil chaos is life long and irreconciliable, even lost to self in that which it rages against. But, perhaps this is true during darker moments.

The Short Story, "The Fire Circle" by Joel Posner, is a passionless chronicle on the famous "robot" theme of present science fiction. The phony ring of the "engineer" and "novelist" marriage of perfection might be a slam at the merging of science and art. The robot "one of the best cadets that the R.O.T.C. program ever had" is more of a person than his cell-like thing parents in the story. The motivation is utterly barren, the power of "romantic love" denied by a great novelist (the robot's mother) is absurd. The campus "love" which so utterly shatters the nearly human(?) robot is the best part of the tale. It does have merit, but there is a chronicle-like presentation of events which keep the story from "living". It lacks, for example, insight and a "moment of illumination" which might give meaning to the experiences of Mr. Robot and Co.

"Agonges" by Audrey Y. Gordon has implications of a mystic summoning up with the past and the somehow united images-symbols of starfish, rabbit, the dance and the sea (which gave birth to life). The idea of evolution is somehow implied -- "acrid seas" which have seen decay of statuary in an "abandoned pyramid." This is the most elusive of Centaur's poems and yet there are explicit connotations and relationships of the starfish which "waltzes" in its sea of life while the poet cannot even "ride his chariot over fossil highways". Why rabbit should "lie dead in the foul odor of a lover's touch" or why foul and love are equated on this imagistic level, escapes meaning. Yet a feeling of the irrationality monument of life through evolution and man's [illegible] decay seems to exist somewhere (?).

"A Frog..." by Jane [illegible] a series of implied metaphors -- an immediate juxtaposition with "people" being necessary to contain the thought. The lack of a fundamental rhythm within the poem is clear (like e.e. Cummings) upset by live positioning. It is more than an impressionistic piece, but reminds me of certain people who are unable to escape from routine and always have their "hair in their eyes".

Spring Formal weekend is still wearing off some of the Phi's as they trudge wearily back to classes this week. The formal was held at Shelburne Harbor, with music by the Catamounts at both the Friday evening buffet-formal, and the Saturday afternoon and evening barbecue-jazz session. "Lou" Reutelhuber (KAO) presided over the festivities as Phi Delt's very beautiful Sweetheart for 1960.

Saturday afternoon, the annual Frisbee championship was decided on the green of Shelburne Harbor, with the finals pitting "Ramrod" Brigham and "Fireball" Morse against a girl duo known as the "Imports". The "Imports" knocked the "skids" from under the Phi's when "Fireball" fizzled in the lake trying to retrieve the illusive Frisbee. All's well that ends well. . . I suppose . . .

The Silver Knight football squad continued on its winning ways by knocking off Sig Ep, 9-8, and Kappa Sig, 9-7. "Sugar" Petromaci and "Bonfire" Graff hurled the Phi's on to victory in these contests.

Incidentally, this is the first week in quite a while that the Phi's haven't contributed to the "Cloud Nine" section. But never fear, girls, a new supply of pins and rings are on order along with 15 gallons of Tom Unsworth's grape juice. . be prepared!!

PHI SIGMA DELTA

The Phi Sigs extend their heartiest congratulations to Jerry Edelstein and Bob Goldman on being elected to Boulder; to Joe Levin on being elected to Key and Serpent; and to Jeff Falk, Joel Bauer, Pete Brem, Lance Levine, and Carl Sherter on being elected to Gold Key.

Our Spring Formal was a tremendous success. The barbecue on Saturday afternoon was especially great. over the weekend, three of the fraters and their girls were serenaded and received flowers. Ira Raff was pinned to Vivian Sourifman, '62; Bob Meskel, '60, was pinned to Miriam Reiner, '60 and Bob Wiener, '60 was engaged to Bev Sugarman, '62. Senior awards on Saturday night caused quite a bit of excitement. The mothers up for the weekend received a corsage in honor of Mother's Day.

The men of Fern Hill are very proud this week. Carl Perlmutter, a junior, was accepted at Tufts Dental School and Dick Falk, also a junior, was accepted to the three year program at UVM Medical School. So far this year, twelve of the fraters have been accepted at graduate schools throughout the country.

PI BETA PHI

A special congratulation to those Pi Phis recently elected to campus honoraries. Elected to Mortar Board were Margaret Connolly and Sally Nadon. Staff and Sandal elected Christine Borgmann, Ag Esposito, Noel Hallett, Joan Manley, Priscilla Paul, and Marcia Smith.

Barbara Hentz, Janet Hill, Bonnie Stewart, and Sandy Timmermann were chosen Sophomore Aides. Cynthia Marvin was elected to the Sigma Xi National Honorary Society.

Connie Anderson, Ann Van Gilder, Jeannier Blodgett, Mary Jo Brush, Margaret Connolly, Mae Gleason, Barbara Hentz, Janet Hill, Jane Hunt, Sue Bowers, Nancy Hayes, Jacqueline Hussey, Patricia Morrone, Judith Symonds, Bonnie Stewart and Sandra Zimerman. The Initiation Banquet was held at the Lake Board.

Sandy Hayes has been elected to the position of Ariel editor for the 1960-61 school year.

New officers in WSGA Council include Nancy Paquin, Vice-President; Marge Connolly, House Chairman; Ag Esposito, Assistant House Chairman; Assistant Judge in Student Court is Judy Hunt.

Among the new officers for Senior Week committees are Sandy Mowry, Executive Council; Ruthie Fondin, Co-chairman for publicity; Sue King, Co-chairman for Senior Ball, and Jan Ledbury, Chairman for the Class Walk.

Last weekend we entertained parents at a luncheon on Saturday, entertainment provided by Davis and Humphrey with their "Billboard Song". The parents were invited to attend the sing that evening.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Congratulations to the twelve pledges who were initiated into the brotherhood of SAE on Sunday afternoon. They are Dan Macdonald, Jon Capaldo, Duane Barber, Jon Stabler, Fred LaBelle, Kyle Martin, Al Gour, Joe Gottlick, Bill Greene, Terry Fitzgerald, Ron Hart, and Lorne Droque.

The house would like to thank Jack Ovitt for his fine job of preparing and leading us to our third place win at the I F C Sing.

Last Saturday, the SAE's went to the Boggios Foundation on S Prospect Street where they cleaned up the grounds as part of the spring work detail.

Spring has finally come to 56 Summit Street. The members of the Sun Worshippers Club can be seen fighting for space on the roof of the house. We also had our annual water fight with the Thetas last week. This delightful spring social event was chaperoned by Theta's house mother, Mrs. Eddy.

SIGMA NU

The I F C Sing is over and now we can read our strained voices. We certainly appreciate the time and effort that Ken Fristefano and Jeff Kirk paid into it.

Turning back from strained voices to strained muscles, the Softball season is off to a good start. Our first game was against Delta Psi. It was a close one, but we finally pulled in the victory. Last week in a thriller against TKE, we pulled in our second straight victory. The team really began to look professional with Norm "Lighter than Air" Wilson, John "Speedster" Moore, and Charlie "I Always Get My Ball" Hines doing a wonderful job "retrieving" balls in the outfield. The infield is also in capable hands with such old timers as Ron "Straight As An Arrow" Fine on the mound and Frank "Horse" Giordano behind the plate. Other notables such as "Gym" Fine and George "In the Spirit" Gunn also add great support to the infield. Two

Academic Dress Has Interesting History

The history of academic dress reaches far back into the earliest days of the oldest universities. In the second half of the 14th century, the statutes of certain colleges forbade "excess in apparel" and prescribed the wearing of a long gown. Hoods seem to have served to cover the tonsured head until superceded for that purpose by the skull cap. In the Laudian days in Oxford it was prescribed that any tailor who departed from the authorized design "even by a nail's breadth" in the making of any article of collegiate costume was to punished by the Vice-Chancellor of the University.

In 1902, the Regents of the University of the State of New York gave a charter, "the Intercollegiate Bureau of Academic Costume." In nearly every instance of the many hundreds of colleges and universities of the U.S. which have academic dress, the standards thus prescribed have been adopted and followed, either wholly or at least in the mean.

In 1959, the Committee on Academic Costumes and Ceremonies, appointed by the American Council on Education renewed the costume code and made several significant changes. The committee also prepared an Academic Ceremony Guide.

The gown for the bachelor's degree has pointed sleeves, while the gown for the Master's degree has an oblong sleeve. The gown for the doctor's degree has bell shaped sleeves. The material for both Bachelor's and Master's degree is cotton poplin and rayon of silk ribbed material for the Doctor's degree. Black is the recommended color.

The gowns for the Bachelor's and Master's degree has no trimmings. For the Doctor's degree, the front must be faced with black velvet with three bars of the same across the sleeves. These facings and cross-bars may be of velvet of the color distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains, thus agreeing in color with the binding or edging of the hood appropriate to the particular Doctor's degree in every instance.

The length of the gown worn for the Bachelor's degree is three feet; for the Master's degree, three and one half feet; and for the Doctor's degree four feet. The hoods are lined with the official color or colors of the college or university conferring the degree.

The binding or edging of the hood is velvet or velveteen, two, three or five inches in width for the Bachelor's, Master's and Doctor's degree respectively. The color should be distinctive of the study to which the degree pertains.

The caps are black cotton poplin, broadcloth, rayon or silk to match the gowns, or for the Doctor's degree only, velvet. Mortarboards are usually recommended, although soft square-topped caps are permissable for women. A long tassel is to be fastened to the middle point of the top of the cap only, and to lie thereon. This is to be black or the color appropriate to the subject for which the degree is awarded. The Doctor's cap may have its tassel of gold thread.

In charge of the arrangements, preparations and script are Helen Keigals, Laurie Fisher, and Hannah Hinman. The poster publicizing the show was designed by Kay Sorenson, and, silk-screened by Buff Chamard and Sylvia Cozzi. Their advisor is Miss Joan Reid of the Home Ec department.

Cats Crush St. Lawrence 11-6 Drop Two Confence Tilts To U Conn. 6-3,6-0

by Lou Bedalov

The University of Vermont baseball team routed the St. Lawrence University nine in a league game in Canton, N.Y. on May 4. This raised the Catamount record to seven wins and nine losses.

The Cats collected ten hoses on balls and every inning but four the Lions batted. First baseman Joe Silveira paced Vermont with three hits, while Bob Hobbie and Spike Jarrett each had two each. Jarrett and Maynard Ducatte teamed up to knock in five of the Cat runs. Ducatte had three and Jarrett two. Gerry Cassidy got the only extra base hit for the Vermonters tagging the ball for a double. Vermont's big innings came in the fifth and sixth when they collected six runs.

Starting pitcher for the Cats, Jeffs Bob Hobbie, went seven innings, issuing three bases on balls, seven hits, striking out seven batters, and giving up two runs and getting the win to boost his record to 3-1. Hobbie was relieved by southpaw Dick De Simone, who pitched the remainder of the game allowing one base on balls, five hits and four runs.

This past weekend the University of Vermont hosted the University of Connecticut in a two game Yankee Conference baseball series. The Friday afternoon tilt resulted in a 6-3 victory for the Huskies, followed on Saturday with a 6-0 three hit shut out win over the Catamounts.

Friday, behind very shaky ball handling, Vermont suffered a 6-3 loss with four of the UConn runs unearned.

Both pitchers got off to shaky starts as the Huskies ran three runs across the plate and the Cats scored two in the first inning. But they settled down until the sixth when two singles and three Cat errors scored two runs for the Huskies. Southpaw Steve Cooper, hurled the entire game for the Lapointe men giving up eleven hits, three bases on balls, and fanning five opposing batsmen. The loss gives Cooper a 1-4 record for the season.

The sixth inning was the turning point in the game as the Huskies surged ahead 5-3 on two singles and two UVM errors. The Cats threatened to pile up some runs in the bottom of the sixth when Lee Brown singled, Spike Jarrett grounded out moving Brown to second, Federici sacrificed pushing Brown to third, and Joe Silveira singled to pick up an RBI. Cooper ended the inning grounding out to second base.

In the eighth frame the Huskies scored again on a bad double play throw that would have ended the inning. The throw went into the dirt, and taking a bad hop, hit first sacker Silveira in the face. UConn scored the play.

Vermont's two runs in the first inning were set up when "Fuzzy" Evans was hit for the first of three times by a pitched ball. Co-Captain Isles beat out a drag bunt putting the Cats in scoring position. Maynard Ducatte singled, driving Evans home and Gerry Cassidy clouted another single scoring Isles. Lee Brown smashed a long fly ball to center for a breath-holding out, and Jarrett and Federici both grounded out to end the frame.

The Cats posed one other scoring threat in the third with one out Brown tripled deep to centerfield, but was stranded. Brown collected three of the Cats' nine hits.

Saturday, Vermont was again set down by the Huskies 6-0 behind the three hit shut-out pitching of John Risley. Although Risley was nothing but a junk ball pitcher the Cats could not catch fire and suffered another hard loss to UConn.

Harry Zingg started on the mound for Vermont, but was shelled for ten hits in the 3 2/3 innings he pitched, giving up four big runs in the fourth frame. Zingg's troubles began in the third when the Huskies collected three singles to load the bases. He escaped the jam with no damage, but gave up six hits including two triples in the fourth. Wally Schilo rescued the remainder of the fata. fourth and pitched the next 4 1/3 innings giving up four hits and two more runs in the 8th. With two out in the eighth Schilo gave up a pair of hits and Tom Hamwell singled the two base runners home. Dave Reissig pitched the remainder of the game allowing one hit.

UVM's three hits, all singles came from the bats of Lee Brown, Joe Silveira and Nick Carmoli. The only scoring threat the Cats posed the entire game came in the first frame when Charlie Isles gained first on a wald, advanced to third, and was stranded there.

Tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m. the Catamounts will host Rhode Island in the first night game of the season at Centennial Field. This will be the first of another two game Yankee Conference baseball tilts, the other game to be played Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m.

Cindermen Lose By 3 Points To Trinity

by Joe Kaplan

The University of Vermont track team sustained its first loss of the hands of Trinity last Saturday. Minus the efforts of several top men, the Catamount trackmen were edged 65-61 in a dual meet contested meet.

Bill Perkins set a new UVM record in the mile run in the fast time of four minutes, 23.3 seconds. This broke Larry Demon's 1956 record of 4 27.5. Joe Barry added three more firsts to his collection in the high hump, pole vault, and 120 yd. high hurdles. Fred Kolstrom took another first in the two mile run.

The only other Vermont first was copped by Bob Desautels in a 170 ft. 5 in. javelin toss.

Yankee Conference Tennis Championship

Results

by DAVE ETTINGER

The University of Vermont the University of New Hampshire and the University of Massachusetts tied for the Yankee Conference Tennis Championships this weekend in Durham New Hampshire.

The Catamounts coming from behind made a final burst in the last round on Saturday to take their second Yankee Championship under Coach Fred C. Marston. The last title was in 1958.

Ray Reimer playing in the number two position "Ray" as he is known around campus, of Rhode Island according to the Master plan, two of our teams must win in the finals requiring three points apiece to the meeting. These were the second and third doubles teams. The second doubles team, known as the "untouchables" with Frank Miller and Ed Rother had been seeded and the third team of Pete Sawa, and Bernie Lamb. Coach Marston's little scamper was victorious in a grueling final three set match which had Marston on the edge of his seat and on his third pack of cigarettes of the day. The Cats copped a total of 13 total points as did Mass. and UNH.

Lane Summer Series To Present Diverse Program

Four concerts will be presented this summer at UVM in the fifth annual Lane Summer Series.

The Program includes such artists as the Budapest String Quartet who will make their second appearance under Lane auspices on July 7. The world's most famous string ensemble will give to a Burlington audience a program including Schubert's String Quartet in A Minor, Villa Labos' String Quartet No. 17, and Ravel's String Quartet in F Minor. Joseph Roisman will be at the violin, Alexander Schneider also at the violin, Boris Kroyt, at the viola, and Mischa Schneider at the violin cello.

On July 13, the summer series will present List and Glenn, piano and violin duo. List is a major concert pianist, having appeared with most of the major orchestras. Two of his records are included in the New York Times survey of "The Best Selling LPs of the Past 10 Years". Carroll Glenn (Mrs. List in private life) has made innumerable appearances with such orchestras as the New York, Philadelphia, and Chicago, and has appeared frequently at the great outdoor summer music festivals. According to the New York Times, "Miss Glenn has few superiors in the world of violin playing." Recently the two were sent by ANTA to concertize in Indonesia, Singapore, Pakistan, and India. Mr. and Mrs. List are summer residents of Manchester, Vermont where they have appeared at the Southern Vermont Art Center.

A new company that bids fair to become the "national" ballet of the United States will be presented on July 19. The Washington Ballet directed by Mary Day and Frederic Franklin have a repertory of both classic ballets and those choreographed by the two directors. Guest artists for the New York City Ballet, and the sensational Hungarian dancer Istvan Rabovsky. Frederic Franklin, who danced in Burlington in 1953 in "A Streetcar Named Desire" will also star.

On July 26 America's foremost folk singer, Pete Seeger, will appear in a program of "Songs Around the World". Seeger has been singing his folk songs for the past 20 years in the United States and Canada, and recently made his first European tour. In 1950 he organized the Weavers, with whom he remained until 1957. Deeger's repertory of songs runs into several thousands, and his banjo playing is considered of the best in America. Of him a music magazine recently wrote: "If this nation has seen a restoration of the American folk song, a good deal of it has been accomplished through the itinerant infallible banjo and infectious happy voice of Pete Seeger. He is sort of a reincarnated troubadour--an American tuning fork."

Pete Seeger will appear in a program of "Songs Around the World."

All concerts except the Washington Ballet will be presented in the Ira Allen Chapel. The ballet will be held in Memorial Auditorium.

Season tickets will be available as in the past, as well as single admissions. The price for the season ticket will be $4.50 for four concerts, and $1.50 for each single concert.

The Lane Summer Series, like the Red and Blue Series, is substantially subsidized by the George Bishop Lane Fund, which was given to UVM by Mrs. George B. Lane in 1954 in honor of her husband, a graduate of the class of 1883.

Largest Graduating Class In UVM History To Receive Degrees

The one hundred fifty-sixth Commencement of the University of Vermont will be held Sunday, June 12, 1960 on the college green. Approximately 600 graduates will hear an address by Mr. Fred Clark Scribner, Jr., Under-Secretary of the United States Treasury. The baccalaureate will be held on that day at 10:00 A.M. in the Ira Allen Memorial Chapel. Guest speaker will be Dr. Gustave Weigel, Professor of Theology at Woodstock College, Md. Their topics have not yet been announced.

Mr. Scribner holds in LLB from Harvard University, and a Doctor of Laws degree from the University of Maine. He served as general counsel for the department of the Treasury from 1946-55, assistant secretary of the treasury between 1955 and 1957, and is presently Under-Secretary of the treasury. He is active in Maine Republican organizations, and professional law associations.

Dr. Weigel, a native of Buffalo, New York, holds an AB from Woodstock College, and a Litt. Doctorate from the University Catolica de Chile. He was Professor of Dogmatic Theology at the University Catolica De Chile from 1937-48, and had held the position of Professor of Theology at Woodstock College since 1948. He served as an exchange lecturer for the United States State Department to Germany in 1953, and to Chile and Columbia in 1956. His published works include Psicologia de la Religion, Faustus of Riez, and A Survey of Protestant Theology in Our Time.

Professor Maraton will serve as University Marshall, Professor Schoolmaker as Marshal of Academic Faculties, and Roy Greene as Marshall of the senior class. Since it is the marshal's duty to see that students are lined up in correct order to receive their diplomas, seniors who do not plan to attend commencement are asked to notify Roy as soon as possible. Music for the processional and recessional will be supplied by an organ placed just inside the doors of the Waterman Building. Professor F. Weinrich will be the organist. Rev. Donald Boyer, Episcopalian chaplain, will give the opening prayer and benediction.

Each senior is entitled to tickets (married students to three) but tickets will only be required if the commencement ceremony is held in Memorial Auditorium due to rain. Rain or shine, the baccalaureate will be held in Ira Allen Memorial Chapel, and no tickets are needed.

No commencement program itself is unusual in that diplomas are granted to each graduate individually, rather than having merely a reading of names. This ceremony is expected to last about one and one half hours. There will be approximately 560 undergraduate diplomas presented thirteen two year certificates from the school of dental hygiene; 29 BS in Nursing, 3 BS in Business Education, 2 BS in Music Education; 73 BS in Education; 48 BS in Agriculture; one BS in Agricultural Engineering; 21 BS in Home Economics; one BS in Chemistry; 59 BS in Commerce and Economics, 25 BS in Civil Engineering, 25 in Electrical Engineering; 19 BS in Mechanical Engineering; nine in Management Engineering, two BS in Mathematics; 10 BS in Medical Technology; and 242 BA's. There will be approximately 91 graduates from the graduate colleges: 47 Master of Education; 8 Master of Arts in Teaching; 33 Master of Science; 21 Master of Arts; and 42 Doctors of Medicine.

1000 Participate In Review

On Friday, May 13, the annual Military Review was held at Centennial Field. The troops formed in the playing fields behind the gym at 2:30 and marched in formation to the review at Centennial.

The first attraction of the afternoon was the performance of the Army and Air Force Drill Teams, who put on a spectacular show for the small crowd present. Following this the main body of troops marched on to the field and the Review proper got under way.

Awards were presented to many persons. After the awards had been given, the troops were inspected by Col. Richard D. Smith, Col. C. Lyman Calahan, John T. Fey, Dean Kidder, and Robert S. Babcock, Lieutenant Governor of the State of Vermont. Finally the troops passed in review before the inspecting party and marched back to the campus.

Music for the Review was provided by the UVM band, which participates in the Review every year. After the Review, many students said that this was a relatively good Review. Fewer mistakes were made than in some of years past, and the cool weather made standing at attention in the heavy wool uniforms a far easier task than is usually the case.

SCA Holds Conference

A conference of the Student Christian Association was held last Saturday afternoon at the SCA center. The conference, attended by fifteen students, discussed and instituted the reorganization of that association.

At the meeting, chaired by Jeanie McDonough, much was accomplished to make the SCA an active, integral part of the functions of this campus. Suggested revisions for the constitution included the formation of a new executive committee. Elected to its offices were Sandy Burnap and B. Grandy, co-chairmen; Jean Rideout, corresponding secretary; Barb Clayton, recording secretary; Dick Burgess, treasurer; and Craig Bradie, assistant treasurer.

The use of the Campus Christian Center at 43 South Prospect Street is available to any other groups of students by making arrangements with Rev. Leidburg or Father Boyer in advance. New faces are always welcome there.

The calendar of events for next semester includes sale of second hand text books at the center the week of Sept. 9, dedication of the building on October 20, a retreat in November, and a Christmas program.

TILL WE MEET AGAIN

Today I commence my sixth year of writing columns for the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris cigarettes. It has been my custom during these six years to make no attempt to be funny in this final column. (I have achieved this objective many times during the year also, but never on purpose.) The reasons for the lack of levity in this final column are two. first, you are preparing for final exams and, short of holding you down and tickling you, there is no way in the world to make you laugh at this time, and, second, for many of us this is a leave-taking, and leave-takings, I think, ought not be flippant.

If I have caught you a moment or two of cheer during the past year, I am rewarded. If I have persuaded you to try Marlboro or Philip Morris cigarettes, you are rewarded.

Let me pause here to express my heartfelt gratitude to the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris. They have given me complete freedom in the writing of these columns. There has not been the slightest hint of censorship. They have never changed so much as one comma in my copy. I wish to take this moment to state publicly that I am forever grateful to these magnificent totalitarians and I hereby serve notice that if they find it in their corporate heart to engage me for another year of columning, I shall require a substantial increase in salary.

The money is not what matters—not as money, that is, but only as a token. I want to be assured that they love me as much as I love Marlboro and Philip Morris. And what, indeed, is not to love? Marlboro is a cigarette which proves beyond cavil that flavor did not go out when filters came in. Philip Morris is a cigarette that is pure mildness from lip-end to tip-end. Both of these estimable smokes come in soft-pack or flip-top box. Neither is ever sold in bulk.

The summer lies ahead. For underclassmen summer will be a hiatus, a breather in which to restore yourselves for next year's resumption of busy college life. For seniors there will be no more college. You must not, however, despair and abandon yourself to idleness. There are other things to do in the world besides going to school—basket weaving, for example, or building bottle in bottles, or picking up tinfoil, or reading "War and Peace." Many graduates fall into the erroneous belief that their lives are over when they leave college. This is not so. It is possible to make some sort of life for yourself with a bit of ingenuity . . . or, if that fails, dye your hair, change your name, and enroll at some other college.

Whatever the future holds for you, be assured that the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris join me in wishing you the best of everything. We have taken great pleasure—the makers and I—in bringing you this column each week throughout the school year. We hope a little pleasure has accrued to you, too.

May good fortune attend your ventures. Stay happy. Stay healthy. Stay loose.

We, the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris, can only echo kindly old Max's parting words. Stay happy. Stay healthy. Stay loose.

Band Provides Music For Many Occasions

The University Band completed an active and successful school year when it played for Military Review, May 13. The band participated in many activities during the second semester including Penny Carnival, Kake Walk, Spring Concert featuring James Burke, Spring Concert Tour, High School Day Band Concert, Honors Day, and Military Review.

The high point of the school year was the Spring Concert featuring James Burke as Guest Soloist. This concert helped to initiate a Band Scholarship planned to be awarded to a freshman for the 1960-61 school year. James Burke, considered by many as the world's most celebrated cornet soloist, captured both the audience and the band by the ease with which he executed the most difficult solos. Mr. Burke has appeared with America's finest professional and University Bands, and he is constantly in demand as a recording artist by the leading recording companies. Concert numbers rendered by the UVM Band varied and were well received by an enthusiastic audience. Jack Ovitt performed as organ soloist in one of the selections. Of particular interest to many in the audience was the performance of "The Universal Judgment" by C. DeNardis. This composition is one of the most difficult of all band literature, and it is seldom played in its entirety as by the UVM Band on April 2.

The 1960 Spring Tour included seven concerts in six schools. All concerts were well received, and in all cases school officials expressed the desire to have the band return again shortly. During the tour Frank Coderre performed as clarinet soloist. Alan Grout and Roy Kelley acted as student conductors. Band members were accommodated in local homes during an overnight stop in West Rutland.

The University Band played a concert once again for High School Day. High school students from throughout the state attended. An an experiment this year the entire program was turned over to student conductors, and this turned out to be quite successful. Student Conductors who were responsible for the concert were Alan Grout - 62, Roy Kelley - 61, Frank Coderre - 62, Jay Sheperd - 62, and Jack Ovitt - 60.

For the second year the Concert Band participated in Honors Day. Jack Ovitt, a regular member of the band, was organ soloist during the overture, Alleluja by Mozart. Jack also combined with the band in the National Anthem.

The band closed its' activities for the current season when it participated in the Military Review, May 13. With Alan Grout, Drum Major, in maneuvers performance, and Jay Sheperd sounded the trumpet calls.

Banquet Held To Honor Dr. Pierce

Friends and colleagues of Dr. Harold B. Pierce, chairman of the biochemistry department of the College of Medicine since 1938, staged a testimonial banquet Thursday night (MAY 12) in honor of his "years of service to medicine and education."

The banquet, held in the Waterman Dining Hall at 7 p.m., included the presentation of a portrait of Dr. Pierce, done by Francis P. Colburn, chairman of the UVM department of art.

A graduate of the University of Massachusetts, Dr. Pierce received the M.S. degree from Pennsylvania State University, and the University of Rochester, before joining the UVM faculty in 1937.

At the University of Vermont, he has engaged in a nueber of research projects in addition to directing the progras in the department of biochemistry. He served on University Senate ceremonies committee from 1938-40, the curriculum committee from 1949-52, and the admissions committee from 1945-49 and 1956 to the present.

He has, in addition, served on a wide variety of committee; the committee on curriculum for undergraduate and graduate instruction; the library committee; the sophomore comprehensive committee; the correlation conference; the advisory committee; the executive committee; and the advancement committee.

He is a member of Sigma Xi, scientific research honor society, and of the American Chemical Society, the American Society of Biological Chemists, the American Institute of Nutrition, the New York Academy of Sciences, the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine, and the American Society of Clinical Chemists.

He is also a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Institute of Chemists, and the American Public Health Association.

Dr. Pierce is married and he and Mrs. Pierce make their home at 360 College Street in Burlington.

Critic Praises Players' "Ring"

By ELAINE MARGOLIN

With the art of the inner [illegible] flight above, and [illegible] of the beatnik [illegible] close, the University [illegible] seem to have accomplished the impossible. The [illegible] have felt way [illegible] to sat in the Arena [illegible] weekend, for [illegible] Fry's adaptation of Jean Anouilh's "Ring Round the Moon" was nothing more [illegible] ght and delightful [illegible] There was no beat or [illegible] else; instead the [illegible] was met with a witty [illegible] which created the [illegible] atmosphere of hilarity.

The plot was concerned with the intriguing love affairs of the idle rich. As the characters became more involved in their foolish games, the height of amusement rose. At times one was reminded of a Pygmalion type idea which lacked the refinement of G.B. Shaw.

The play takes place during the springtime and is set in a lovely winter garden. It is here that the nonsense of the reality and the baseness of the poor meet, and the result was, without a doubt, one of UVM's finest productions.

The acting in all the chief parts was excellent. Ralph Bode's dual portrayal of the twin brothers was consistently delightful. As the sophisticated playboy Hugo, he charmed the audience as well as the rich spoiled Diana; and as the ungainly Frederick, Mr. Bode gave us a true sense of the trials and tribulation of the shy soul blindly in love.

Sue Crane made her UVM debut in the role of the beautiful yet simple Isabelle. Her portrayal conveyed a certain youthfulness and naturalness which added a great deal to the performance. Paul Schimelpfenning was, as usual, wonderful. Playing the part of the confirmed old Butler firmly convinced of his purpose in life, he was a pleasure to observe. Special credit must also go to Mimi Portnoy who played the part of Lady Dorothy India. Dressed in an amazing costume once worn by the famous Hildagard, her ostentatious gestures never ceased to amuse us all.

Ronald Hector and Gena Mason were faced with the difficult roles common to many soap operas. They both did the most with their parts though one often felt that Miss Mason overacted a bit too much. Shepard Saslaw who played the part of the secret secretary and Marjorie Seldon in the role of the invalid aunt both did fine jobs. The part of Diana was filled by Dorothy DeCecio. Looking perfectly lovely, she gave an excellent portrayal of the comic spoiled brat.

Mixed with the fine acting were beautiful sets and perfect costumes. In all, Mr. Fiedner production was a pleasant change as well as a huge success.

AFROTC Team Takes State Title

On Saturday, May 14, at the Burlington Municipal Airport's Armed Forces Day display, the UVM Air Force ROTC Drill Team won the state drill championship. The Air Force team, commanded by Cadet First Lt. Stanley E. VanHorn, Jr., defeated teams from Norwich and Dartmouth to take the championship and cup.

Performing before a small crowd, the team put on a stunning display of precision and ability and easily outpointed the other teams. An AFROTC spokesman noted that if the trophy had gone this year to Norwich, the traditional Rothschild Trophy, awarded to the winner would have been retired to Norwich.

Witnesses said that the 20 man drill team was one of the best ever to represent the University in competition for the Rothschild Trophy.

Shakepeare Festival Begins In August

Comedy, history and tragedy will be the fare when the second annual Champlain Shakespeare Festival opens on the campus of the University of Vermont this August. The Festival, under the direction of Greg Falls, will make its second annual bow with The Taming of the Shrew on Aug. 1, to be followed in continuous repertory by Henry IV, Part I, and by Macbeth.

The Festival will also present a children's matinee of "As You Like It". Last year's children's matinee drew the largest single house attracted by the Festival, according to Falls. Scene for the plays will once again be the Arena Theatre where this year's company of young professionals will go into rehearsals beginning July 5.

Falls said the company will be increased from last year's 20 members to about 30 this year. Last year's inaugural Festival was underwritten by University students, who provided 90 percent of Festival support. It attracted more than 3000, permitting a return of 73 percent of the original underwrite.

The Festival, which won for director Falls a regional award from the New England Theatre Conference, is being sponsored this year as an attraction of the University's Summer Session program.

Victory In Nashville

A recent news item from Nashville, Tenn., announced the ending of lunch counter segregation in that city. White and Negro citizens, it continued, met TOGETHER and decided that lunch counters would henceforth be integrated in Nashville.

RESULTS REALIZED

This news item is the beginning of the results that this year's Southern sit-in strikers and Northern picketers have hoped to accomplish. To be sure, Southern citizens were primarily responsible for the integration order. But Northern sympathizers were probably the deciding factor in the move. The segregated lunch counters could do without Negro customers--they have for years. Negroes demonstrating alone in any Southern City cannot expect fair treatment from either laws or law enforcement. The sit-in picketers in the South are undoubtedly a thorn in the sides of the white segregationists, but they are an easily removable thorn. Terror and unequal application of the law would soon have resulted in a stoppage of the sit-ins if the overwhelming sentiment in the nation had not been for desegregation. The picketing that has gone on all over the United States has been the leader in the expression of this sentiment. It was the hostility of the rest of the nation and not the efforts of a few "troublesome" local Negroes that resulted in the desegregation order.

PICKETS: POSITIVE & DIRECT PRESSURE

The students who picketed the local Woolworth's branch recently have been told again and again that their picketing has had no beneficial result, and that it is only harming "innocent people." Many have steadfastly refused to accept the fact that Woolworth's central office, which could order desegregation in its Southern branches, absorbs all of the profits of the various branches, and that all of the employees of the local Woolworth's store are on salary and therefore cannot be financially harmed for something they can not directly control. Now at last it can be proved that the pickets, by showing their active support of the Negroe's cause, have had a positive effect toward desegregation.

CYNIC REITERATES STAND

The CYNIC reiterates that picketing is the most effective way to speed lunch counter desegregation and at the same time express general disgust at any kind of segregation whatsoever. It is now apparent to the world that picketing has had a positive and direct effect on the issue. The CYNIC feels that picketing should proceed until every lunch counter is desegregated, and that then pickets should turn their efforts to other facets of the problem of Civil Rights.

FROSH CORNER

by PAT CONNIT

This is the last issue of the CYNIC and also the last week of activities for the Freshman Class. The "Widget" Beach Party is coming up on Saturday, the twenty-first, and it is hoped that no one will miss a wonderful time at Camp Abenaki, which in addition to the party has facilities for boating, canoeing, and swimming. There will be two life guards on duty during the beach party.

In order to make it possible for more Freshmen to attend it was decided at the meeting of the Activities Committee on Thursday that buses would be leaving from the camp site not only at [illegible] P.M., but also earlier in the evening so those who have other plans for that night could get back to main campus.

It was also definitely announced that the Big Up band will play for the dance, being held towards evening, and that the quartet from Theta Chi with Dave Hoelterling will sing.

An extra attraction of the beach party will be the choosing of a "Miss Widget," who will be judged on personality, pep, and dress. This contest is open to all girls in the Freshman Class with no limitation on height.

After hearing President Fey speak in connection with the party, at the meeting on Tuesday, it is hoped that you'll all come to the "Widget" Party, for this is the chance to have a great time with the members of your own class.

In wishing a happy vacation to the members of the class, congratulations also go to the Freshman track team for a very successful season.

Dr. Fey, who attended a two-day meeting of the National Association of State Universities two weeks ago in New York City, appears in a group picture taken at the meeting and captioned by LIFE as "A Huddle of University Heads."

The turnout of state university presidents at the meeting was the largest such group ever assembled, and included representatives from Puerto Rico and every state save Massachusetts. The presidents in attendance oversee a total of 695,126 students enrolled in the nation's state universities.

Band; Chorus Concert Reviewed

by BOB BILLIG

On May 11 the University Orchestra under the direction of Operatess Papoutsakis and the University Chorus directed by Howard Bennett, gave a joint performance in Mansfield Auditorium. The Orchestra and Chorus were assisted by soloists from the recent University Players production of "Carmen".

The program opened with the Orchestra playing a Suite from "Dioclesian" by Henry Purcell, "Sinfonia Opus I, No. 8 by Luigi Boccerini, and "Eight Russian Folk Songs" Opus 58 by Liadov. This part of the program proved the most enjoyable for this reviewer, for the Orchestra performed better than I had expected. Mr. Papoutsakis was always in complete control of the musicians and his interpretations of the "Sinfonia" of Boccherini was admirably done.

The Concertmaster, Sadah Shuchari Start should be given special recognition for her playing of the beautiful Andante of the "Sinfonia." This was one of the highlights in which she was able to display her virtuosity and extraordinarily clear tone. Unfortunately the other violins playing pizzacato sounded a bit muddy at times. Even though a mistake occurred at the beginning of the "Round Dance", one of the "Folk Songs, no detraction can be made from Mrs. Start's playing during the evening. The mistake should be discounted.

The Chorus did not perform well in the "Four English Works" by Benjamin Cooke, "Come Again, Sweet Love" by John Dowland, "My Love Dwelt in a Northern Land" by Edward Elgar, and "From the Textbooks" by Charles F. Bryan. Although singing a Capella, the sopranos and altos were not heard and did not add the expected fullness of tone required. Although Mr. Bennett's direction was good, the singers did not respond to his demands in these works, especially in the Elgar number.

The exception in the Chorus' performance was in the "Three Modern American works by Peter Memim and in the two Negro Spirituals, "Deep River" and "Joshua Fit the Battle of Jericho".

One of the songs sung was very amusing. The lyrics from "From the Textbooks" are: "The area of a regular polygon equals half the product of its apothem by its perimeter, and all regular polygons of the same number of sides are similar."

After the intermission excerpts from "Carmen" featuring soloists from the Players Production were presented. Micaela (Carole Demas) sounded just as good as she did in the production, although in the production some notes were too high for her and her voice broke at times. Don Jose (Robert Prenier) sounded better in parts than during the performance although his voice broke at times also, and some of his notes were flat during the duet between he and Micaela. Escamillo (Roy Kelley) was in better voice, but it is too bad that his voice does not have the full richness and tone color that the part of Escamillo warrants.

The opening Chorus and Ensemble was done very well. In this work, Alice Zalon could be heard very well, harmonizing beautifully with the other voices. The "Suite

Wall Street Course Offered

...one of the nation's most ...at the courses in operation and con... the University of Vermont's Wall Street course in the economics of capital formation will mark its tenth anniversary this summer with sessions from June 20-July 2 in the heart of New York City's financial district.

The six-week course, which is presented as a joint venture of the New York Financial Community and the University, was founded in 1950 by Dr Philipp H. Lohman, chairman of the department of Commerce and Economics. Since that time, the offering has been met with enthusiasm by hundreds of leaders from the world of finance, who have appeared before its classes as guest lecturers.

The course's unique and practical approach to the study of the nature and operation of securities markets and security analysis has won for it favorable comment from newspapers, magazines and journals throughout the country. Most recent of these is an article appearing in the spring issue of "The Financial Analysts Journal," which notes some of the unique features of the course and lists a number of the guest lecturers who will appear before this year's session. The journal is published by the National Federation of Financial Analysts Societies.

The founder and director of the course, Dr. Philipp H. Lohman, is no stranger to the world of securities markets and analysis. A veteran of five years banking experience in California and in Germany, Lohman resigned as business and finance editor of TIME magazine in 1945 to join the faculty of the University of Vermont. Since that time, in addition to heading the commerce and economics department and directing the Wall Street course, he has been instrumental in organizing two New England banking programs, the Vermont-New Hampshire School of Banking and the Vermont Business Roundtable.

As founder of the Wall Street course, Dr. Lohman is largely responsible for the offering's annual schedule of lectures and visits to the stock exchanges, security houses, etc. This year, students enrolled in the course will visit the New York and American Stock Exchanges, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and a number of security houses. Also planned are visits to commodity markets sponsored by the Educational Committee of the New York Commodity Exchanges.

Persons interested in enrolling in or learning more about the course, may obtain a descriptive brochure on the offering by writing the UVM department of commerce and economics, Old Mill, Burlington.

ROTC Mobilizes As Summit Confernce Collapses

by BENJAMIN BREADSTICK, III

On Monday, May 18, the Commanding officers of the Army and Air Force ROTC units ordered "Immediate and 100%" mobilization as the US Secretary of Defense, Thomas Gates, ordered a world-wide defense alert of all US armed forces.

Within minutes after the mobilization order had been given, thousands of ROTC Cadets had gathered on the field behind the gym, ready to give their all for the insulted President of the United States. Army officers hurried to and fro, trying desperately to find firing pins for the outmoded M-1 rifles borne bravely by Army Cadets. At the same time, Col. Lotsarank, Commander of the Air Force ROTC group, ordered his troops to stand fast. He told a CYNIC reporter that he was expecting momentary delivery of 345 F-51 Mustang fighters for his men. Col. Lotsarank continued "We-al'll knock them Runkies outen the skies." Asked whether the ROTC Cadets knew how to fly, Lotsarank said, 'No, but they're fast learnern."

Several hundred Cadets were reported to have fainted from the heat and, as one high echelon officer put it, "From fear." The casualties were hurried from the field to a temporary field hospital located in Old Mill. Col. Henry Mantan, commander of the Army ROTC forces said "I haven't seen so many cases of battle fatigue since the Gilbert Islands." Col. Mantan also reported that his last experience in pitched battle had been "a real go" with his wife last Saturday night when "I tried to bring my favorite tank into the house."

As the evening progressed guards bearing the only armed M-1s available surrounded the battillion as desertions threatened to decimate the ranks of the brave Cadets. Capt. S. Queeg, USAFROTC instructor said "Desertion in the face of the enemy is one of the most cowardly of all acts." Capt. Queeg, interviewed at his hidden camp "Somewhere in the Canadian wilderness", reported he had been on "extended emergency leave since 2:46 pm Monday" The alert was called at 2:45.

At 11:45 pm Monday evening the alert was called off after Cola. Lotsarank and Mantan called a press conference. They read a statement, excerpts from which follow.

"Whereas."

The rest of the statement also left no doubt as to their determination to persue the war if the president finds it necessary to declare war on "Them Roushians", but decided to call off the alert for the time because "We're gettin tird."

Joint performance given by University Orchestra and Chorus.

No. 8" from "Carmen", performed by the Orchestra, was played very well. If there were more strings and other instruments in the Orchestra, the cymbals and tympani would not have sounded as crashing as they did, but with the Orchestra as it is at present, the performance was exceedingly good.

As a whole, the evening was very enjoyably and well spent listening to some fine music.

Dance Concert To Be Presented

Members of Orchesis rehearse for Dance Concert

Tonight at eight o'clock in the Arena Theater, Dance Orchesis will present its annual Dance Concert. There is no basic theme for the concert this year. Instead the members of Orchesis will present various classical, interpretive and folk dances.

The vice-president in Orchesis is Miss Byers, an extremely amiable member of the Women's Physical Education staff. The officers are as follows: President, Diana Jordan; Vice-President, Phyllis Babbitt; Secretary, Carol Shapiro; Treasurer, Cathy Pantazis; and publicity, Marsha Snyderman and Bill Withoff.

Among the numbers to be featured tonight is an original ballet choreographed by Joan Loveridge. The story of this ballet begins in a dance hall in Latin America where an American Newspaperman and his girl friend are spending the evening. A beggar, portrayed by Andy Baily, enters. The newspaperman gives him money and the beggar then goes out and buys a lottery ticket which he puts into his coat pocket. The beggar has a dream that he wins the lottery and marries the newspaperman's girl. After the sessions he meets a beggar friend who is cold and hungry and gives him his coat. His friend burns the lottery ticket in the process of lighting a cigar. Our beggar later discovers that he has won but his ticket is destroyed and he must go on living in poverty.

Some of the other features of the concert are a duet by Bryant Reynolds and Sue Kalman which tells of the college years. There will also be a classical duet called "Salutation" choreographed by Miss Byers and danced by Phyllis Babbitt and Maureen Keaton, a spiritual entitled "Motherless Child" by Eve Halvorsen, a Siamese dance by Drew Pickett, and an Israeli Folk Dance by Flo Tretter, Marsha Snyderman, Carol Shapiro and Vivian Sourifman, and an original dance by Diana Jordan to "They Call the Wind Maria".

Orchesis hopes that all of the UVM dance enthusiasts and the rest of the students will attend this concert. It promises to prove to be both an entertaining and worthwhile evening.

You fire my cotton gin
I'll bring you my cotton.
You gin my cotton, . . .
I'll fire your wife . . .

This was the theme. And it happened . . . nearly.

The play is simply set. Emotion, warmth, persuasion and sensuous conclusion are the chief characters. The players only act these parts or they miss the tale completely.

Jerry Koker, the dark hero, and Arnie Wexler, the light villain (in the characters of Vicarro, an immigrant success, and Jake, an enterprising local, respectively) divide the stage, the action and the exchange between them. When Ruth Clifford (as Flora) appears on stage we see the attraction which unites the whole play. She is the "sensuous (and credible) conclusion".

Concerning the method. Recall children playing on the edge of a swimming pool, or at the beach yearning to break and run for the water but not sure of the reaction of their parents. The attraction becomes too inviting and, forgetting their fears they plunge in.

Our players, one now in the Arena, the other two veterans stood on the edge [illegible] long into the deep pool of plain emotion. Then they plunged in. Wexler and [illegible] came up quickly. Miss Clifford finished poignantly in her dreamlike final scene. She sounded the depth of the part. She came up glistening.

May 9 to 11 Mrs. French is a member-at-large of the Kappa Alpha Theta Grand Council and is from Hartsdale New York.

PHI DELTA THETA

The Marble Palace was surprised and sorry this past week when our amiable housemother, Mrs. Greta M. Noyes, announced her resignation. She had been with Phi Delta Theta for almost three years, coming to us from Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in the Fall of 1957. Her womanly advice and counseling will be greatly missed this Fall, and indeed the Phi's will be very hard put to find another housemother with the high standards of integrity that were portrayed by our Mrs. Noyes.

Election of officers for the Fall semester was held with John Andrews winning the Presidency of Phi Delta Theta. Jim Carr became Vice President and Head Steward, Reid Lawson is the Fall semester Secretary, and "Spike" Jarrett was chosen Treasurer-Housemanager.

General outdoor cleanup was the order of the day last Saturday as the Pledges leveled the now-dry Phi Delt swamp (Jim Willard finally got Carol McKillop to rescue him), burned brush, sewed grass seed, raked, mowed, and took all kind of heat from the Brothers. In the evening, the annual Pledge "Shipwreck" Party was held at the house, and all that was accomplished during the outdoor cleanup was quickly and completely demolished. Feature of the evening was the vocalizing of a trio known as the "Pelicans" consisting of "Slammin' Sammy" Towle, Bing Valicenti, and "Golden Mouse" Beebe accompanied by the guitar plunking of Duane Gonzinger and Elvin Thomas.

The Phi Softball squad ended their league play by knocking off AEPi, 14-7 and remained undefeated. Now on to the playoffs ... g' Phi's ---odd that amen!"

"The time has come the Walrus said" ... go to exams and then to summer school. Best of luck from all the Phi's for a great summer ... see you same time, same page next fall!"

PHI MU DELTA

Finals are just around the corner and we Nu Gamma boys are working hard to get our fourth consecutive IFC Scholarship Trophy. Someday we hope to get enough in order to put one on each of our mantels.

We wish to welcome into the fold the following men who became pledged to Phi Mu Delta: Paul Sawyer, Allen Heflin and Bill Davies.

We are having a tough time in softball competition. We lost our game to Theta Chi by a large margin. Our record is one win and three losses.

Saturday is the day, we hope, that we take possession of our chapter house. We are all eager to start work on it. Volunteers are always welcome.

Phi Mu Delta would like to extend their congratulations to the following men who graduate in June: Mazzini Beuno, Dave Johnson, Marve Aber, Bill Bradley, Dave Curtis, Roger Pollander, Pete Colcord. We wish them all the best of luck.

Essentials of Good Grooming
Prof. Tonsorial

Introspective reading of the Bard's works to prove that grooming was a motivating factor. Close observation indicating that Shakespeare's heroines were disillusioned by bad grooming. Lady Macbeth by Macbeth's hair that went *witch*ever way (alcohol tonics, obviously). Ophelia by Hamlet's "melancholy mane" (hair creams, no doubt). Classroom lecture on how to present the perfect image by grooming with 'Vaseline' Hair Tonic. Proof beyond an ibid of a doubt that you can use all the water you want with 'Vaseline' Hair Tonic. 'Vaseline' Hair Tonic replaces oil that water removes. Keeps hair neater longer and attracts the op. cit. sex as Romeo did Juliet.

President - Paul Morton
President Interfraternity Affairs - Maynard Lavoie
Pledge Chancellor - Fred La Belle Pledge Correspondent - Kyle Wells
Pledge Recorder - John Barncraft

Pledge Master - Ken Hyatt
Chaplain - Terry Fitzgerald

The SAE Spring Formal was held last Friday night at the Lincoln Inn. The music was supplied by Jack Ovitt's band. It was a very enjoyable evening and needless to say all Big Apples and their dates had a good time.

SIGMA NU

Last weekend the Sigma Nu's headed towards Bristol Inn where we had a formal. We danced to the fine music of the Catamounts and enjoyed a delicious buffet supper. On Saturday we had a picnic and softball game which put the final touch on a wonderful weekend.

On Monday, May 2, the brothers of Sigma Nu serenaded Jo Lull, Delta Delta Delta, who was recently pinned to Stan Williams and Randy Concannon who is pinned to O'Neil [illegible]. The girls were each given the traditional white rose and the brothers sang "The White Star of Sigma Nu" and the Sweetheart song.

In softball we picked up our third straight win, deflating ATO. The team again showed its professional touch by thrilling the crowds with many sensational plays. However, all the teams are getting warmed up and it looks like the final part of the season will be tough.

Congratulations to Stan Williams who was initiated into the Ethan Allen Rifles and to Joan Martel, who was initiated into the Astronaut Society. Joan also was chosen for the engineering honor society, Tau Beta Pi.

On Saturday, May 7, much to the disappointment of all our house manager John "Whip It Hard" Martel announced another clean-up. House manager Martel stated that since the previous six clean-ups were so successful that we should have another one. The day was perfect for a clean up, and the temperature rose to around 85°. Due to Mr. Martel's sharp bargaining, he managed to get seven loads of gravel which was to be used for repairing the driveway. Every one worked diligently and before we knew it we had created a four lane highway which has since come to be known as the Williams Street exit of the new Vermont thru-way. However, being greatly enthused by the excellent job done on the driveway; the house manager decided that a couple of "dead" branches should be removed from the trees. So with chain saws and axes in hand the tree surgery committee started work. Evidently there had been some misunderstanding, for before we knew it shouts of "timber" and "look out below" were coming from all sides and three beautiful trees went crashing to the ground. House manager Martel, quick to make the best of everything had a couple of signs made and is now selling firewood for fraternity beach parties.

Luckily there were no serious casualties. However, there were a few who fainted, claiming they had sun-stroke, but upon being rushed to the beach they recovered immediately. The only close call was when one of our "back woodsmen" pledges, Frank Pagliaro, got entangled in the ropes which were tied to one of the big trees that was about to fall. But, due to the heroic actions of Ed Abrahamson and Jim Rodgers, who held the tree up until Frank could escape, a casualty was averted.

SIGMA PHI

The Society would like to congratulate those Brothers who became members of the honorary societies: Boulder Society Rolly Allen, Key and Serpent Mike Collins, Dave Gardner, Jerry Emery, Ted Edgecomb, Gold Key Jim Newman, Steve Clark and Jeff Bennett. Congratulations to Pete Snow for the Goldburg and Hamilton Watch Awards.

At the last house meeting, new officers were elected for the next school year. They are: Rolly Allen, President; Jerry Emery, Treasurer, and Ernie Cordes, Secretary.

Everyone is still recovering from the "party time" atmosphere of Spring Formals. There were also several additions made to the sinking "Cloud Nine." At special ceremonies Sunday, Kathe Brother became the Sig Sister of Rolly Allen; Joanie Seugling became the Sig Sister of Charlie Tetzlaff; and Merle Tucker became the Sig Sister of Ted Edgecomb.

THETA CHI

Things are looking up at 170 Spruce. The [illegible] voted a huge success. Dave Heelerling's attempt to dance on one leg and did something or another the other in a softball practice.

The men who will be graduating next year would like to take this opportunity to say goodbye to the Seniors who will not be back, but especially to the II men for TC who will be among the graduates. Just think, Uncle Sam needs you. As Elvis Presley did you will be in the army.

Bob Wedwaldt finally went to a ROTC drill-Military review.

Frank Diller, Captain of the Tennis Team, reports that the team is doing very well. It tied for first place in the Yankee Conference. Frank himself has yet to lose a match.

To those who will return see you next fall!

Annual UVM Homecoming Weekend Promises To Be Biggest Ever

In hardly a month, UVM will settle, as it settles into the advancing autumn, into its first major social weekend--Homecoming. To the new freshmen, the idea of Homecoming means little, but soon they will find themselves, during the brief period away from the studies, initiated into the social aspect of college life. To the returning upperclassmen, Homecoming 1960 regenerates memories of the bon-fired and spirit fired pep rally, the football game, the King and Queen reigning over festive Homecoming Ball, the Peerade of Floats, and many other new and old events, all in a setting of autumn gold.

Not to be forgotten is that Homecoming weekend is an extended welcome to all UVM alumni to return to the campus of the Green and Gold and renew college friendships and memories. Also, the weekend offers students the opportunity to invite their parents to enjoy this Vermont fall spectacle, and to witness the campus in its relaxing atmosphere of New England beauty. The UVM Family Associates and Public Relations undertake the welcoming of both parents and alums.

In order that Homecoming may achieve the greatest amount of publicity, the Homecoming Committee, consisting of members from the junior honorary societies, Staff and Sandal and Key and Serpent, are promoting the annual Homecoming Poster Contest. The competition, which opened September 24th, is open to all UVM students, and the committee urges anyone with some artistic talent to submit his poster design. Further information on the poster competition can be obtained from bulletins

Fleming Museum Presents A Varied Fall Program

Richard Janson, director of Fleming Museum and Carole Denes view plan of Model City.

The Fleming Museum is opening its fall program with an exhibit in modern church architecture. This exhibit is lent by the Metropolitan Museum of Modern Art and will remain at the Fleming until October 9. The display consists of photographic enlargements, plans and interpretative text about 24 buildings of seven countries.

Church architecture is presently breaking away from tradition represented by antiquated style, and is moving towards traditional aspects expressed with freedom of artistic talent. The designs of the more modern churches utilize reinforced concrete in many ways and replace traditional stained glass windows with windows of a more abstract design.

The first section of the exhibit presents fourteen churches of France, Germany, Finland, Italy, Mexico and Brazil. The second group is ten sanctuaries of the United States. All the buildings were designed in the 1940's and '50's, except for one earlier church in each group which represents an early departure from the old-style architecture. In the foreign group this is the church of St. Jean de Montmorte designed by Anatole de Baudot in 1894; in the U.S. collection, the Unity Church of Oak Park, Ill., designed by Frank Lloyd Wright in 1905 is the representative.

The second exhibit, which is the major exhibit of the year, will be of especial interest to native Burlingtonians, as well as UVM students. It is a display called "Downtown Burlington," a redevelopment project for Burlington dreamed

Nixon Wagon Passes Through Burlington & UVM

Vice President Richard M. Nixon paid the city of Burlington a visit as part of his campaign this afternoon. Although CYNIC press deadlines prevented on the spot coverage of the events, we have presented the story from the latest facts available by press time, Tuesday evening.

Mr. Nixon and his wife landed at the Burlington Airport at 11 00 a.m. and were met by an official welcoming committee of state and local leaders as well as members of the Republican party. He then proceeded by motorcade into downtown Burlington, passing en route the UVM campus on Main Street. The parade continued down Church Street, and ended at Memorial Auditorium at about 12 55 P M. Mr. Nixon then presented what is classified as a 'major speech,' lasting about 30 minutes and covering a proportionate amount of material. Both local and national newsmen were on hand.

When his speech was completed, he returned to the airport. The plane debarked at 1 30 p.m.

The Republican Club in Burlington, the newly formed group at UVM, and the Young Republicans of St. Michael's, using the slogan "Let's turn out to tell Vermont and

Library Initiates New Regulations

Two important changes in regulations are in effect at Billings Library this fall. The loan period is now one month. This is a compromise between the usual library loan period of two weeks (too short) and the semester (far too long). Books can still be recalled for another borrower after two weeks. There will be no renewals. The month loan period should hasten turnover of books in demand and thereby increase availability.

The second change in regulations has to do with fines for overdue library books. In past years the library has not been successful in obtaining the return of its books when due. Overdue notices have been ignored, books have been returned when the borrower was good and ready - or not at all. In order to awaken the student body to its responsibilities as library users the University Council has authorized the library to impose a fine of $10.00 plus replacement cost for failure to return each overdue or recalled book. This is a severe penalty and many will question its use.

However, no library can give service unless books are returned 'routinely' in accordance with an established time schedule. Chaos results when the individual sets up his own rules. Our records attest to the complete disregard of loan policy by many of our users.

These new policies seek to provide you with better library service through a more sensible loan period and a provision to insure prompt return of books when due or recalled.

Their success depends on the understanding and cooperation of all.

SA Council Holds First Meeting

The first meeting of the University of Vermont Student Association Council for the [illegible] academic year convened in the S.A. council room Thursday evening September 22. Vice-president Ted Higgerson chaired the meeting in the absence of Jerry Edelstein, the Association's president.

Individual committee reports were heard and during this time, the chairman of the cultural committee stated that something big was in the offing, but was not at liberty to be specific. The results being completed. Mr. Thomas Mahoney was introduced as the new Dean of Coordinator of Student Activities). Mr. Mahoney is a permanent member of the administrative staff and will devote his full time to this job.

Due to the resignation of the regular S.A. treasurer, Bev Cheley, it was necessary to appoint David Gardner to this position until elections can be held in October.

An important topic discussed was the Student Leadership Conference which was held for the first time last fall. This conference, referred to as "Camp Abnaki" has been the subject of widely differing opinions on the part of members of the faculty and administrative staff. The concensus Thursday evening was that the conference is vitally important to the continuation of UVM student government and the motion to reconvene Camp Abnaki this year was passed unanimously. At the 1960 conference the main subject of discussion will be the reorganization of the Student Association Council. One of the goals hoped to be attained by this proposed reorgination is a different system of S.A. representation whereby the individual student will have a greater say in his college government. This can possibly be accomplished by admitting representatives from each of the campus living units, and having additional independent representatives for those students not affiliated with any fraternity, sorority or residence hall.

It was announced that upon completion of the new library, the present library building will be converted into a student union. In the near future, students will be asked to forward suggestions as to what they would like incorporated into this union, and it is hoped that some original and worthwhile ideas will be received.

All S.A. meetings are open, and all interested students are invited.

All-University Invited To Mountain Day Climb

Sunday, October 2, marks Mountain Day, the annual event in which all members of the University are invited to explore Mount Mansfield, highest point in Vermont. Although Mount Mansfield is visited annually by thousands of people who use the ski lifts and trails to take advantage of some of the finest skiing and panoramas in the east, Mount Mansfield's many other attractions are comparatively little known, since relatively few people take the time to get off the beaten paths around the Toll Road and chair lift areas. Sunday's trip should be an excellent opportunity to become further acquainted with the mountain which is almost in the University's back yard.

Although no startling new discoveries will be made (such as the amazing rock formation recently reported in the Free Press) an exciting and interesting time should be had by all. From the bare rock top of the Chin interesting local views and exciting panoramas are in store, ranging from Jay Peak and Canada in the north, Killington in the South, Champlain and the Adirondacks in the west, and the Vermont eastern highlands and the New Hampshire presidential range, dominated by Mt. Washington in the east. With the fall foliage due to be almost at its height, the woods will be alive with color, heightening the views and adding a prime opportunity for pictures. Unusual alpine flora, interesting rock formations, and inviting side trails traversing sheer cliffs and passing through caves are a few other attractions. Topping everything off, of course, will be free cider and donuts at Taft Lodge.

Traditionally an all-University outing, Mountain Day has had a checkered career including a lengthy period when it was an official University holiday. It's origin is lost in time, but unquestionably it has been a tradition since well before the turn of the century. In 1946, Mountain Day came under the sponsorship of the Outing Club, and although routes and dates have changed some, the basic nature of Mountain Day has remained the same.

Mountain Day, October 2, is open to all members of the University, including faculty, staff, graduate and nurses students, and of course, undergraduates. Everything is free; all that is required is a lunch. Buses will leave Waterman at nine and arrive back around five. Routes will include the Long Trail from Smuggler's Notch to Taft Lodge and the Chin and a choise of the Cliff and Fern Trails or the Profanity Trail back to Taft. Other side trips may be arranged. After lunch and cider and donuts at Taft, the group will head back down the trail to the buses.

IFC Holds Dorm Meetings

This past Sunday dormitory meetings were held with members of the executive committee of IFC. Their purpose was to stimulate interest in the October Open Houses and to answer general questions about fraternity rushing.

Fifteen fraternities and one fraternal club are participating, and sixteen physical houses will be open for inspection.

Freshmen are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to learn about fraternity living.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH, DEAR FRIENDS

Today I am a little misty who can blame me? For today I begin my seventh year of writing columns for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes.

Seven years! Can it be possible? It seems only yesterday I walked into the Marlboro offices, my knickers freshly pressed, my cowlick wetted down, my smooth pencil box clutched in my toy hand. "Sirs," I said to the makers of Marlboro, as handsome an aggregation of men as you will find in a month of Sundays, as agreeable as the cigarettes they make—mild yet hearty, robust yet gentle, flavorful yet soft, jack. Sirs, I said to the assembled board of makers, "I have come to write a column for Marlboro Cigarettes in college newspapers across the length and breadth of this great free land of America."

We shook hands then—silently, not trusting ourselves to speak—and one of the makers whipped out a harmonica and we sang sea chanties and bobbed for apples and played "Run, Sheep, Run," and smoked good Marlboro Cigarettes until the campfire had turned to embers.

"What will you write about in your columns?" asked one of the makers whose name is Ironhand Strongheart.

"About the burning issues that occupy the lively minds of college America," I replied. "About such vital questions as: Should the Student Council have the power to levy taxes? Should proctors be armed? Should coeds go out for football?"

"And will you say a kind word from time to time about Marlboro Cigarettes?" asked one of the makers whose name is Honor Bright.

"Why, bless you, sirs," I replied, chuckling silverly, "there is no other kind of word except a kind word to say about Marlboro Cigarettes—the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste—that happy combination of delicious tobacco and exclusive selectrate filter—that great companion in fair weather or foul—that joy of the purest ray serene."

There was another round of handshakes then and the makers squeezed my shoulders and I squeezed theirs and then we each squeezed our own. And then I bade me to my typewriter and began the first of seven years of columning for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes.

And today as I find myself once more at my typewriter, once more ready to begin a new series of columns, perhaps it would be well to explain my writing methods. I use the term "writing methods" advisedly because I am, above all things a methodical writer. I do not wait for the muse. I work every single day of the year, Sundays and holidays included. I set myself a daily quota and I don't let anything prevent me from achieving it. My quota, to be sure, is not terribly difficult to attain—it is, in fact, one word per day; but the important thing is that I do it every single day. This may seem to you a grueling schedule but you must remember that some days are relatively easy—for example, the days on which I write "the" or "a". On these days I can usually finish my work by noon and can devote the rest of the day to happy pursuits like lard-waiking, moneypoly, and smoking Marlboro Cigarettes.

The makers of Marlboro are happy to bring you another year of Max Shulman's free-wheeling, uncensored column—and are also happy to bring Marlboro Cigarettes, and for non-filter smokers—mild, flavorful Philip Morris.

Building Program

Now that Summer is over and everyone is back on campus, it is possible to see with one's own eyes things that were last year little more than words on paper. Building which we have heard so much for the past several years are underway. UVM's building program is at last nearly fully under way. On Redstone Campus, a new Women's Dormitory is rapidly taking shape, on Spear Street the new Men's Dorm is due to have its floors raised within three weeks, and in the formerly blank space between the old gym and Mills Hall construction work on the new library has advanced rapidly.

Buildings Reflect UVM's Growth

These new buildings, together with the gym (on which construction will begin before too long) reflect UVM's growth. The new dormitories will cope with ever larger student bodies, the library is needed to replace a building already made obsolete by too large a student body, and the gym will serve to satisfy the ever-growing needs of the school both in regard to athletics and the need for more and better auditorium space.

The order of construction of these new buildings is also revealing. The new dorms should be completed first, as they will be allowing adequate housing for not only the numbers now enrolled, but perhaps for an increase in the future. Next should be the library, with more space for these students and the books which are an all important part of their education. The gym will be last to be completed. This is as it should be, for important as the gym is, it is no more than the frosting on the cake.

Why Not Classrooms?

The only question that there could be about this program concerns classroom space. It is hard to understand why good classrooms should be lacking that it is still necessary to use Fast Hall while we can consider such things as a new gym. The most important facet of college is education, and it seems strange that the improvement of educational facilities (with the exception, of course, of the library) should have to wait till later. It is to be hoped that the project immediately following the construction of the gym will be the construction of some more and better classroom facilities.

All considered, however, UVM can be justly proud of the structures rising and soon to rise on it's campus. Few, if any, colleges of comparable size can boast of such a program of expansion. Our growing campus is and should be, a source of pride to each and every student, faculty member and alumnus.

NOTICE TO THE SCEPTIC

The CYNIC has already assigned its pair of columns for this year as a result of last year's contest. Furthermore the very nature of a column precludes the possibility of an anonymous author. The CYNIC, however, needs talent such as yours. We invite you specifically and the student body in general to consider the CYNIC as an outlet for writing talent.

Students who are interested in taking any of these courses may sign up for them at the Newman Center or contact any member of the Newman Club. Classes will begin the week of October 2nd. The Introductory Course in Catholicism will begin Tuesday evening, October 11th.

Four non-credit, non-University courses are to be offered to interested students by Rev. Richard Leidberg, Protestant chaplain, and others. They will meet weekly at the Campus Christian Center, 43 S. Prospect St.

These study groups are tentatively titled "What Protestants Believe", "The Bible Today", "Politics and World Crisis", and "Contemporary Drama and Literature".

"What Protestants Believe" will deal with basic questions in the light of Protestant doctrine: "Isn't the Church just a bunch of hypocrites?" "Can the existence of God be proved?" and "I try to lead a good life, isn't that enough?"

"The Bible Today" will examine the Bible with the tools of modern science and within the thought of contemporary theology. The Biblical distinction between legend and fact, the differences between the Old and New Testaments, and the teachings of Jesus and Paul will be considered.

Of special interest in this election year will be "Politics and World Crisis". The study group will discuss the Christian and the world he lives in, a world of new nations and Communists threats.

"Can war ever be an acceptable solution?" is one of many provocative questions to be raised in this course.

As a supplement to classwork, an informal group for the discussion of "Contemporary Drama and Literature" will read plays and books. Works to be included are Death of a Salesman, J.B., The Stranger, and On The Road.

These study groups will meet for eight weeks beginning the week of Sept. 26, 1960. Maximum classes will be a dozen students. Anyone interested in enrolling should drop in at the Campus Christian Center, just north of the Waterman Building, and pick up an application and more information.

posted conspicuously about the campus, or is available in the COSA office. Time remains valuable, however for the contest closes Friday Oct. 7.

A complete schedule of Homecoming Weekend 1960 will be made available in the near future, but briefly, a tentative schedule is as follows: Wednesday, Oct. 26 will be voting day for Home...coming King and Queen, to be chosen from the Class of 1964. The Pep Rally draw its cheers Thursday evening, and Friday the long-awaited Home...coming Ball, with its tradi...tionally well-known band, to be announced soon, and newly crowned King and Queen, will be the centers of attraction. Saturday morning will be especially for parents and alumni, with registration, a coffee hour, and various meetings and tours throughout the morning. The IFC Peerade will capture everyone's imagination at noon, to be followed by the Homecoming football game against Northe...eastern at 1:30. Following the game a carillon concert and roast beef barbeque will take place. Saturday evening will find parents and alumni entertained by a cocktail party and lecture, and of course, the Vermont Varieties will be presented, with its entertainment appealing to all ages. Sunday will find Homecoming 1960 drawn pleas...antly to a close with the sorority teas. All in all, Homecoming proves, as it has so successfully in past years, to be a weekend for students, parents, and alumni alike.

Lane Series

fourteen voice chorus con...ducted by Robert De Cormier, Friday, January 20, the Royal Ballet (Sadler's Wells Co.) of London, and Friday, March 3, Victoria De Los Angeles, Metropolitan Opera soprano.

Red concerts are to fea...ture, in addition to Solisti Di Zagreb, the following artists: Tuesday, November first, the New York City Opera in Bozet's "Carmen"; Wednesday, November ninth, the Israel Philharmonic Or...chestra, conducted by Joseph Krips; Tuesday, December sixth, Robert Casadesus, French pianist and composer; Wednesday, January 11, Hal Holbrooks raging success, Mark Twain Tonight, Thursday, January 19, the Royal Ballet.

Mr. J. Trevethick, Executive Secretary of the Lane Series Committee, said the coming of the Royal Ballet repre...sents a success in six years of negotiations on the part of the committee with Sol Hurok, the Company's agent. The Royal Ballet will be appearing here during the mid-year examination period, since the Company will be between other tour stops in Montreal and Boston. The University Council has grant...ed special permission for the performance, since usually no activities may be sched...uled for that time.

Mr. Trevethick also stated that the symphony orchestra, ballet company, and jazz performer were, in that order, the most requested performers. He pointed out that neither series this year includes a jazz per...former, due to inability of the committee to procure a good one at a workable time.

Psych. Prof. Authors Text

The chairman of the depart...ment of psychology at UVM is co-author of a new text, "Systems and Theories of Psychology," just published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

Prof. James P. Chaplin and Prof. T. S. Krawiec, chairman of the department of psychol...at Skidmore College, are the authors of the text. Their interest in the project was born three summers ago on the Vermont campus when Dr. Krawiec was a visiting member of UVM's Summer Session faculty. The 455-page text, primarily intended for use by graduate and advanced level undergraduate students, is a study of the evolution of psychology from the time of the Greeks down to the cur...rent day

Prof. Chaplin is also the author of a "popular" book, "Rumor, Fear and the Madness of Crowds," published as a soft-cover last year by Ballantine Books. The same publisher will bring out a second Chaplin soft-cover to be called "The Unconscious," this November

by JULES OLDER

Welcome to education. Take it or leave us.

If you take it, and take it big, college will be rewarding, fulfilling, and exciting. If you leave it, you can look forward to four more years of the same old drag with a few parties and card games thrown in to relieve the boredom. Or you'll be gone within a year.

If you have decided that education is not for you, I hope for the sake of the real students that you'll choose (or be chosen for) the latter course. Incident...ally, if you have already classified yourself as a mem...ber of the non-educatable group, you can turn back to the funnies. WHY NOT? isn't meant for you.

Now, back to the lecture. Studies are the most im...portant things at college. But the University of Ver...mont seal says something about "other worthwhile pur...suits." These are not to be scoffed at. They have an important place in a total education. Parties, ball games, dates, and skiing keep Jack from becoming a dull boy. In moderation. In excess, they make Jack a very dull conversationalist, theme writer, chemistry student, or engineer.

The intellectual pursuits on and around this campus keep Jack safely away from the pitfalls of those two notorious campus clubs, Grade Grubs, Ltd. and Playboys, Very Ltd. First, Jack, buy a ticket to the Lane Series. This unsurpassed cultural series is entertaining, un...usually well-rounded, and a must for everyone with an interest in culture. Buy early because it's nearly al...ways a sellout. If you can't afford a ticket, join the Outing Club for one dollar. This club (which is worth joining anyway) has the soft drink concession at the Series and vendors see the shows free.

Next, get settled in your work. Then look over the list of student clubs and activities. Join those that you think you can improve or that can improve you.

The fragmentary list of clubs that follows was made up solely on the basis of my own preference and inter...est.

The Cultural Committee and the Vermont Conference Committee bring important guest speakers to school. Members have a great responsibility and invariably run into strong opposition, no matter who is chosen. If they bring back Lawrence Fetlinghetti, they'll hear from Father Branon; if it's John Casper, they'll catch it from the NAACP; and if there are too many dull, non-controversial speakers, they'll be getting nasty re...views from me.

The John Dewey Club, the Philosophy Club, and the International Relations Club are all basically good organizations that need new blood to make them strong.

The "Barn" is an excellent informal discussion group that meets up with poetry, jazz, and guest speakers on Sunday nights in the frame house on the Pearl Street side of Waterman Memorial.

All of these activities are a useful and worthwhile part of education. The student who works hard at them, who gets the important basic information from all his courses, and who has a genuine interest and curiosity about life, should have a happy and successful stay at UVM. It may even be educational . . . WHY NOT?

BEAT MAINE!!

Across the Campus

This 'n That

Although this is not truly [illegible] welcome back upperclassmen and hello to freshmen. To those of you who are new this spot is known as the gathering place, chance to [illegible] college acquaintances and [illegible] fraternity and sorority news.

Something new has been added since vacations began. The girls have returned homes and are now residing in them. We'd like to welcome early the home of Phi Mu Delta and also to greet Alpha Gamma Rho Club's [illegible] house on Prospect Street. The [illegible] Phi Mu [illegible] new home [illegible] the summer. Best wishes to [illegible] the junior years.

CLOAD NINE

Vacation seems to have proved profitable in more ways than one to those who [illegible] proudly walking around campus with new pins and sparkling rings. It only goes to show that Cupid was hard at work even this summer. Does he never have a vacation? We want to congratulate two Thetas, Sue Adams, '61, who is now pinned to [illegible] Adams, Delta Psi, '60, and Danny George, '61, who has a newly acquired Delta [illegible] pin from the University of Virginia. Wedding bells rang out over the summer for Louise Wagner, AEPhi, '61, and Sheldon Seiner, Phi Sigma Delta, '60. Congratulations to the both of you and also another AEPhi, Sheryn Cohen, '60, and her new fiancee, Frankie Hymen, TEP, '60. Also over the summer Bob Seiner, Phi Sigma Delta, '60, was married to Beverly Sugarman, '62. Best wishes!

Three Alpha Chi's came back to school with stars in their eyes. Sharon Berry became engaged to John Klinck, '59. Jane Wackin became engaged to Walter Blank, '59, and Joan Blubaugh is now engaged to Scot Robinson. Congratulations to Marty McDonald, Gamma Phi Beta, '62, and her recently new fiancee, Dave Munro, '62. Best wishes to another Gamma Phi, Harriet Pudvah, '61, and Mike Lovejoy, Sigma Phi Epsilon, '62, who were married last Spring.

ACACIA

"Acacia Cleans up again."

"And this time what is it? Football?

"No. Too early."

"Girls?"

"Nope that goes without saying."

"Rushing?"

"IN September?"

"Well what then?"

"The HOUSE of course."

This fall with 31 of our 40 members living in the house big things are happening. The house is undergoing its annual fall cleaning, painting and general rearrangement.

The boys at 604 College are back with a vengence this fall, and with no summer casualties. Tell that in, with hardly any. During the summer Fletcher Foote was married. Also Dick Hammel, our House president of last year, married Barb Schneider. We learned about Brad Lawrence's marriage to Phyllis Unger.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Don't let the noise you hear as you pass the Alpha Chi house startle you. Our alums are building a garage to protect Mrs. Douglas' car. We were all happily surprised to find, when we returned from vacation, that our alums had done some redecoration. The house is in tip-top shape now.

The Alpha Chis are planning an open house after our first home game on October 2. All are invited! Refreshments will be served to the music of one of our own bands. A good time is promised for all - so drop in.

ALPHA DELTA PI

All of us at ADPi want to welcome everyone back to UVM. To those of you who are here for the first time, we extend special greetings.

by SANDY CAMERON

The social season has begun as ADPi took part in Kampus Varieties, Friday, with the able assistance of Theta Chi. Despite slightly dubious coordination, a good time resulted for all the participants. The Alpha Delts met with the men of Sigma Phi on Wednesday for an exchange dinner. We all had fun . . . thanks fellows!

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

The girls of AEPhi wish to welcome our new housemother, Mrs. Cutts. We are very happy to have her with us.

Car wash was its usual success; job well done, Linda.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

Another school year is upon us and the APES of UVM would like to extend a "Happy New Year" and best wishes to all for the coming semesters. And extra-special greeting to our new neighbors, Phi Mu Delta. Lots of luck in your new house, guys!

The AEPi house has taken on a new look! Armed with paint and paint brushes, a respectable percent of the brotherhood "stormed the portals" a whole week before classes started and proceeded to "smear" their rooms, roommates, and everything else in sight.

Congratulations to B[illegible] Dworsky and Joel [illegible] becoming the newest [illegible] of AEPi.

Our first open [illegible] scheduled for Sunday, October 2, and we wish to extend a hearty invitation for all to attend.

GAMMA PHI BETA

The Gamma Phi Beta Trustees have announced that [illegible] versity of Vermont is one of the schools selected to receive a grant to be given to worthy women regardless of sorority affiliation. Here at UVM Janet Tinker has been chosen to be the recipient of this reward for 1960-61.

Lois Beadle and Joan Meyerhoff were chosen to be Beta Nu's representatives to the Gamma Phi Beta National Convention which was held in New Orleans, La., at the end of June.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Along with everyone else on campus, the Thetas are settling down and resigning themselves to classes again after what seemed to be, generally, very pleasant Summers had by all. There are plans being made for next Summer already, in fact.

The newest and most welcome member of the house is the new Housemother, Mrs. Sheffert, who is a whiz at remembering names and has been a great help and warm friend to everyone already.

Most of the Thetas worked for remuneration in the form of that precious "green stuff" during the Summer, but it seems a couple directed their efforts in another area. Congratulations to both Sue Adams and Danny George on their vacation pinnings.

Everyone is either twining domestic or is anticipating a cold winter, because the majority have taken up the art of knitting. Looks like bridge takes a back seat, but nevertheless, it's something to keep them "off the streets at night".

LAMBDA IOTA

Lambda Iota Society is back in session again. This year marks 125 years of existence making the Owl House not only the fraternity here at UVM, but also the oldest local fraternity in the United States.

In addition to celebrating their anniversary, the Owls are "booking" with a real vengence. This semester Lambda Iota is bound to raise its average even higher!

And speaking of social events, the Owls have returned the house to a spotless condition for Lambda Iota's Open House, Sunday, September 25.

PI BETA PHI

Now that September is here we find the Pi Phis back at school rested and ready for another wonderful year.

Many changes have taken place in the lives of our last year's seniors. Gail Kaufman is engaged to Larry Brown a Delta Psi who was graduated from Vermont last year. Pat Lyman is married to Richard Swenson who was in Sigma Phi Epsilon at W.P.I. Cindy Marvin is on a fellowship this year at McGill University in Canada.

Exciting news in the air includes the announcement of Susie Sells' engagement to Bill Benner who is in Sigma Nu at UVM.

Judy Hanna, Az Esposito and Gail McQuilkin attended the Pi Beta Phi national convention in Hot Springs, Arkansas.

We are very happy to announce that our new faculty advisor is Mrs. Ebert. This will be Mrs. Ebert's first year on the teaching staff of the Physical Education Department at Vermont.

PHI MU DELTA

The Men of Phi Mu Delta are very happy to return from their summer jobs to their new chapter house. The house was prepared for occupancy by brothers and pledges who spent their spare hours painting and cleaning.

President Rod Stone and Vice-President Ken McCormick spent Sept. 7-10 at Pernwood summer resort at Bushkill, Pa., attending a national conclave of the Phi Mu Delta fraternity. While there, the officers received new ideas for the purpose of operation and obtaining of goals for our chapter.

The brothers and pledges of this chapter wish to extend their thanks and appreciation to Alpha Epsilon Pi for their friendliness, fraternal attitude and their best wishes. With our new house we hope to be able to live up to the ideals and standards established by our fellow fraternities.

Lastly, the fraternity looks as if it will have another great Dixie Jazz band again this year with Tom, Carmen, Eric and Neil who by the way did a grand job in the Kampus Varieties.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

The construction of a new porch and the painting of the house by the Brothers and pledges, has certainly made the summer a profitable one for Sigma Phi Epsilon. The house is eagerly looking forward to its Tenth Anniversary celebration with plans being made for the return of many alumni during the gala Homecoming Weekend.

SIGMA NU

The summer whizzed right by and here we are back at good ole' UVM. Many had a fabulous summer and others, unfortunately, went to summer school. Among the travelers this summer was Chris Bromberg, who traveled throughout Europe.

Robin Haessler, Stan Williams, Ron Fine, John Maynes, and John Moore traveled out to the Pacific Coast. Robin was in California visiting his family, and the others were in Portland, Oregon at the Sigma Nu Convention.

During the summer four Sigma Nus took a big step in their lives, they got married. Joe Dye, '60, married Day Macdonald, '59. Delta Delta Delta; Bob Weiss married Sue Graf, '59, Delta Delta Delta. Also Day Macdonald, '59, married an unknown swine.

We were pleased to welcome two Sigma Nu Brothers back to UVM, Ron Martin and Ed Proctor, who, Ron Says, a transfer from Norwich.

THETA CHI

At the first general meeting, brothers and pledges heard President Joe Ruley outline plans for the coming year. First on the list of objectives is higher scholarship. To help achieve this end longer and quieter study hours have been instituted.

Brothers Tom Sherman and Mil Simmons gave a report on the National Theta Chi Convention they attended in Atlantic City ---- at the time of the Miss America contest. Wonder just how much work got done?

What would YOU do as an engineer at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft?

Regardless of your specialty, you would work in a favorable engineering atmosphere.

Back in 1925, when Pratt & Whitney Aircraft was designing and developing the first of its family of history-making powerplants, an attitude was born—a recognition that engineering excellence was the key to success.

That attitude, that recognition of the prime importance of technical superiority is still predominant at P&WA today.

The field, of course, is broader now, the challenge greater. No longer are the company's requirements confined to graduates with degrees in mechanical and aeronautical engineering. Pratt & Whitney Aircraft today is concerned with the development of all forms of flight propulsion systems for the aerospace medium—air breathing, rocket, nuclear and other advanced types. Some are entirely new in concept. To carry out analytical, design, experimental or materials engineering assignments, men with degrees in mechanical, aeronautical, electrical, chemical and nuclear engineering are needed, along with those holding degrees in physics, chemistry and metallurgy.

Specifically, what would you do?—your own engineering talent provides the best answer. And Pratt & Whitney Aircraft provides the atmosphere in which that talent can flourish.

Development testing of liquid hydrogen-fueled rockets is carried out in specially built test stands like this at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft's Florida Research and Development Center. Every phase of an experimental engine test may be controlled by engineers from a remote blockhouse (inset), with closed-circuit television providing a means for visual observation.

At P&WA's Connecticut Aircraft Nuclear Engine Laboratory (CANEL) many technical talents are focused on the development of nuclear propulsion systems for future air and space vehicles. With this live mock-up of a reactor, nuclear scientists and engineers can determine critical mass, material reactivity coefficients, control effectiveness and other reactor parameters.

Representative of electronic aids functioning for P&WA engineers is this on-site data recording center which can provide automatically recorded and computed data simultaneously with the testing of an engine. This equipment is capable of recording 1,200 different values per second.

Studies of solar energy collection and liquid and vapor power cycles typify P&WA's research in advanced space auxiliary power systems. Analytical and Experimental Engineers work together in such programs to establish and test basic concepts.

Carnival, Varieties Success

Freshman Orientation culminated in a grand finale Friday night at the Club Carnival and Varieties. The Class of '64 showed great enthusiasm by coming out in full force to sign up for various clubs to round out their academic life at UVM with fun and extra-curricular activity. The University Players deserve special credit for dressing up in costumes to add a special attraction to their group.

Talent from the Class of '64 was as noteworthy as their enthusiasm. The foundation of the gym rocked from the cheers given to the freshman folk singers and the outstanding Rock and Roll group. "This is college? Feels more like American Bandstand!" was one amused freshman's comment.

The upperclassmen were not to be outdone as was evident by the superb dancing of Phyllis Babbitt. Petie Hirschland and her partner took us back to Broadway with their dance from L'il Abner. Theta Chi and ADPi provided many laughs with their skit, "Five Foot Two". Sigma Nu made full use of the hit parade by centering their amusing skit around the current [illegible] "Please, Mr. Custer" [illegible] Demas again proved her [illegible] ability by singing [illegible] that she composed herself. These are only a few of the highlights of UVM talent show us on Friday night.

Penny Fienemann and Fran Pagliaro were responsible for the organization and production of this very successful evening's entertainment and fun at the 1960 Club Carnival and Varieties.

ACROSS THE NATION

By Joe Levin

With another gridiron season rapidly getting into high gear, let's look at the prospects for the forthcoming year.

In the Yankee Conference it appears that Connecticut will add another title to their mounting list of Yankee Laurels. Individually, pre-season scouting reports find the teams like this Connecticut: These perennial favorites are as strong as ever and appear to be a near-cinch to reappear as Conference titlists.

Massachusetts: This Sophomore-studded eleven should mature as the season progresses, and may prove a strong challenger to UConn's bid for a fifth consecutive title.

New Hampshire: Although young and inexperienced, the Wildcats could surprise the opposition as they did the Dartmouth Indians a week ago.

Maine: With Halfbacks Wayne Champeon and Dave Cloutier leading Maine's attack, the Bears are certain to improve last year's mediocre record.

Rhode Island: The Rams will feature a heavy line which will increase their chances to better their 3-5-1 record of the 1959 season.

Vermont: The Catamounts will suffer the loss of their graduated lettermen, especially in the line. Vermont, headed by Captain Maynard Ducatte, will rely heavily on several members from last year's frosh eleven to fill in the void in the backfield. The Cats, still in the midst of a rebuilding program, will have to work hard to match last year's winning record.

All of the YC teams will see action this week. This is the way I see it: Maine 32 Vermont 7, UConn 8 Rutgers 6, Rhode Island 14 New Hampshire 6, and Harvard 16 Mass. 12.

Switching the scene to the Midwest and the Big Ten, we find this once star-studded conference lacking the stars but still receiving the plaudits of faithful fans and alumni. The Big Ten Title appears to be up for grabs, with Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan State likely to do battle down to the wire for the coveted crown.

Cats Sunk By Coast Guard 25-0; To Face Maine Here Saturday

New London Conn. Sept. 24

The soph-studded Vermont football team suffered its first defeat of the 1960-61 football season at the hands of a powerful Coast Guard squad. The Cats, fighting every inch of the way to uphold the glory of Old Lake Champlain, came out of the gruelling affair on the short end of a 25-0 score.

Starting in the UVM backfield were Bill Fleming, Capt. Maynard Ducatte, Frank Amato, and Dominic Parlato. The Coast Guard defense was masterminded by Coach Otto Graham, one time All-Pro quarterback. Prior to the game, Coach Donnelly stated,"This is the lightest team I've ever coached at Vermont. If no injuries occur, we'll be O.K." When the gun sounded ending the first quarter a couple of "goose-eggs" were posted on the scoreboard, indicating a hard fought battle right from the opening whistle.

The play in the first period foreshadowed something of what was in store the remainder of the game. Rugged defensive tactics were the watchwords here. The Vermonters thwarted two Coast Guard onslaughts on their 25 and 14 yard line respectively. But as time wore on, it became increasingly evident that the efforts of the Catamount offensive platoon weren't bearing fruit. Explosive defensive play by Bill Mooza and Jim Guyette were key factors in containing the Cadet offense in the first half. However, at the close of the second period the pattern of the game was clearly emerging: Vermont's offense didn't click and the hometeam was continually gaining the offensive via the visitors' punts. Three quick rushes by Fred Kelly, Steve Ratey, and Mike Burdain brought the ball down to the Cat 24 yard line. The first score was then set up by a button-hook pass to George Wisnesky, and at thirteen minutes of the second quarter, Steve Ratey hit "pay dirt" by scampering the remaining four yards. The conversion was wide and at the half the score read Coast Guard 6 Vermont 0.

The whistle beginning the second half saw a charged-up Vermont team take the field with the purpose of erasing their slim six point deficit. However, chance and fortune were absent from the Green and Gold's bench this day, as was their offense. The Cadets, taking advantage of accurate passing and "hard-nosed" running crossed the Catamount goal line three more times. As the gun sounded ending the game, the final score stood Coast Guard 25 Vermont 0.

At the termination of the contest, an M.V.P. award was presented to George Wisnesky of the Coast Guard as the outstanding lineman of the game, and another to Steve Ratey, also of the Coast Guard, as the outstanding back of the game. James Guyette of Vermont placed second in the balloting for the lineman award.

While graduation has taken the last of the veteran harriers from Coach Archie Post's great '59 team which won both the New England and Yankee Conference championships, hopes for a successful season in 1960 are not yet dimmed. However, the outlook at this point is largely conjecture and the possible results of the '60 season can be predicted only in light of some set-in-the-answered "ifs". Part of these "if" factors revolve around the lettermen returning from last year's squad which boasted a 4-1 record, with a third place finish in the Yankee Conference and a sixth place finish of 18 teams entered in the New England Championship Meet. Another part of the "if" factors is connected with the runners coming up to the varsity from one of UVM's best all-time frosh teams.

HALFTIME BREAK

EVERYBODY LIKES A WINNER

How do they do it? How do schools like Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth, UConn, and Syracuse get athletes? How? They attract them with scholarships! How do they get the money for these scholarships? That's pretty easy to answer. ALUMNI! Why do their alumni give them money? Take a look at the title of this editorial.

I'm sure schools don't get the money to pay for scholarships from gate money alone. In order for a school to get money for scholarships, it must be noticed. How is a team noticed? By its athletic record. Now, compare Vermont's athletic record, and the number of scholarships we have to offer. We give ONE full scholarship per team, and approximately four partial scholarships for each team. Our records? Last year was UVM's first winning football season in four years. Our record? Four wins, three losses.

Perhaps you are beginning to see the correlation between the number of scholarships given out and the team records. All of the teams mentioned above offer three or more scholarships.) Now you might be saying to yourself, "But if the administration can't get the alums to give us money for scholarships, how can we?" The answer is relatively simple. At present, there is a gym fund drive going on. Why not an athletic scholarship fund drive, TO HELP YOUR FELLOW STUDENTS, and the school? YOU can start the ball rolling, by filling in the questionnaire at the end of this editorial. Check "yes" if you're in favor of this idea; "no" if you are not. You're not pledging any money by filling it in. This is just to get the opinion of the student body. When you've filled out the questionnaire, drop it in a box in the CYNIC office, Room 40, lower Waterman.

THE SEASON IN BRIEF

It's already old news that the Catamounts dropped the opener to Coast Guard. This only goes to show how much a team can improve in one year. Last year, we beat the Cadets 34-6. This year, they beat us by almost the same margin 25-0.

In two days we play what might turn out to be the surprise game of the year. Maine pays us a visit Saturday, 1:30 at Centennial Field. The Black Bears beat us last season 52-14. Although we got off to a slow start this year, we are slated to improve. IF we can get through the Maine game with little or no injury, the score will be very close.

The next two games are away. We play Rhode Island and Rochester respectively. There isn't too much of a chance that we'll beat URI, but the Rochester game is a toss-up.

Next comes the Norwich game on October 22. This is a game we should take without much trouble. The following week is Homecoming game against Northeastern. That might turn out to be the closest game of the year. Our final contest will be another close one, against Middlebury, here in Burlington on Nov. 5.

It isn't that our boys don't try, but how can they be expected to compete against the paid ballplayers of other schools! The 1960 Vermont Football Team is the best we've had in recent years, so let's ALL (Freshmen AND upperclassmen) get out there Saturday and let them know that we're behind them.

Sports Questionnaire

by BARRY BARKLEY

QUESTION: If a Physical Education major was instituted at the University of Vermont, how do you think this would effect UVM athletic teams?

Stephen Reiter, '62 -
It would make the curriculum easier, but first you must get the athletes.

Charles E. Goudey, '61 -
The program would attract more athletes because of the appeal of the simpler program of studies.

David May, '62 -
The financial scholarships offered to athletes are the primary attraction at any University, therefore, the Phys. Ed. program would be only a secondary attraction.

A. Peter Low, '63 -
I just don't know.

Ivy Sloan, '62 -
Because the athletes are participating in the activities outside of regularly scheduled courses I don't think the program would have either a positive or deleterious effect.

Alan Kaniss, '63 -
Athletes aren't as dumb as everyone thinks, the institution of a Phys. Ed. program would not make an iota of difference. If more scholarships were to be alotted for scholarships however, that's a different story.

Jose Jimenez, '61 -
In my attendance at UVM as an undergraduate for the past seven years I have yet to see a strong team, however in the ensuing five years am highly optimistic.

VOL. 78 UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT BURLINGTON, VERMONT OCTOBER 6, 1960 NO. 12

Twelve Russian Students Will Visit UVM Campus

From October 31 through November 2, the University of Vermont will be host to approximately twelve Russian students. They will be living in three campus fraternity houses: Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi, and Phi Sigma Delta. They are the only Russian students of those visiting this country who will be allowed to live in a fraternity house rather than a dormitory.

Twelve visiting men and three women plan to visit UVM as one of two land grant institutions on their tour. During their stay they will tour dormitories and other campus buildings, attend classes, especially in agricultural subjects, and sit in on various meetings of campus organizations. Wide radio, television, and newspaper coverage of the visit is expected.

To Live In Three Fraternity Houses

Bob Goldman, IFC President, stated that the students are to live in a fraternity house rather than in a dorm so as to give a truer picture of university life, and also because of a lack of dormitory accommodations. He stressed that it had been extremely difficult to select the houses. A committee consisting of Professor G. Little of the Political Science Department, Mr. Mahoney, Coordinator of Student Activities, Dean Clifford, Professor R. Cochran of the English Department, and Bob Goldman, President of the Interfraternity Council requested applications from fraternities telling why the house wanted to be host to the students and what accommodations were available. They received twelve, and narrowed them down to six. Then the committee visited each house on Friday, September 30, and made the final choice of Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi, and Phi Sigma Delta. The Russian students are to live in groups of four, and take their meals in the house.

Names of the students and further details as to their visit are not yet available; Professor Little is at the present time in Poultney, Vermont, at a conference to complete final arrangements.

SOLISTI DI ZAGREB OPENS LANE SERIES WEDNESDAY

To Feature Janigro And Stanic

Wednesday night, October 12, the Lanes Series will present the first concert of the 1960-61 season in the Red Series, that of the Solisti di Zagreb, chamber orchestra from Yugoslavia. This program will initiate the orchestra's third United States tour after an absence of three years, during which the orchestra has performed in most of the major cities of Europe.

The group was formed in 1953 and by 1956 had reached international fame through outstanding performances at the Salzburg and Dubrovnik festivals. As a result of these outstanding performances the fourteen musicians of the Solisti were offered engagements in every country in Europe. Their first tour included England, Austria, France, Germany, Holland, and Ireland, and was followed by one to Russia, Poland, the United States, Canada, Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. While on the second tour they were asked by Dag Hammarskjold to play at the United Nations General Assembly, marking a memorable event for both the audience and the performers.

Heading this illustrious organization is, Antonio Janigro, well-known both for his talent as a celloist and as a conductor. Mr. Janigro studied at the Milan Conservatory and in Paris at the L'Ecole Normale de Musique, beginning his professional career at the age of sixteen. Antonio Janigro has in the twenty-six years of his career, received world-wide attention and is recognized as one of the most prominent living musicians today.

Janigro, considered the leading musical personality of Yugoslavia since 1939, has performed in many major European orchestras under a score of famous conductors. Last year, he won acclaim as guest conductor of the Radio Symphonie Orchestra of Berlin with his interpretation of Tchaikowsky's Symphony No. 4. Mr. Janigro was later asked to conduct the Radio Symphonie Orchestra of Berlin when the scheduled conductor was unable to appear. The enthusiatsic approval of the audience resulted in further engagements for Mr. Janigro. Listed among his accomplishments are a number of recordings for RCA Victor, Westminster, and Vanguard Labels.

The program to be presented on Wednesday is the same one Sol Hurock Attractions has lined up as a tour beginning at Town Hall in New York City. In addition to the members of the Solisti, and Mr. Janigro, there will be another soloist, Mr. Jelka Stonic, an outstanding violinist. This is a musical treat which should be of more than average interest. Holders of Red Series tickets should plan to attend - come h--- or high water.

Homecoming Poster Contest Nears Close

A great number of UVM students are not aware that the Homecoming Poster competition has come--and almost gone. The contest closes tomorrow, Friday the 7th, when entries will be accepted between 2 and 4 p.m. in the COSA office. Here is a splendid opportunity for the budding artistic student with constructive ideas to design an appealing Homecoming poster. The rules to the contest are simple and few, and are posted in all living units. The contest winner, to be notified the week of the 10th, will not go unrecognized. Pictures of the winner, holding his or her winning poster, will appear in the CYNIC, the local papers and the hometown publication. Also, at the greatly enlarged half-time ceremonies during the Homecoming football game (Saturday afternoon, October 29th--don't miss it!), the poster contest winner will be presented with a trophy as in previous years. A new poster contest committee, consisting of Chris Borgmann and Agnes Esposito, recently has been formed with the idea in mind of making this Homecoming poster contest "The most effective ever."

WHAT TO DO TILL THE PSYCHIATRIST COMES

Once upon a time at the University of Virginia there was a coed named, oddly enough, Virginia University who was handsome and kindly and intelligent and ingenuously constructed and majoring in psychology. Virginia went steady with a young man named Oddly enough, Oddly Enough who was pre-med and a BMOC and animated and majoring in phys ed.

Virginia and Oddly enjoyed a romance that was as idyllic as a summer day, as placid as a millpond. Never did they fight—never, never, never!—because Virginia, who was majoring in psychology, did not believe in fighting. "Fighting," she often said, "settles nothing. The scientific way is to look calmly for the cause of the friction."

So whenever she and Oddly were on the verge of a quarrel, she used to whip out a series of ink blot tests and they would discover the true underlying cause of their dispute and deal with it in an enlightened, dispassionate manner. Then, the irritant removed, their romance would resume its tranquil, serene, unruffled course.

After six months of this sedate liaison, Oddly was so bored he could spit. He loved Virginia well enough, but he also believed that people in love ought to fight now and then. "It opens the pores," he said. "And besides, it's so much fun making up afterwards."

But Virginia would not be provoked into a quarrel. One night Oddly tried very hard. "Hey," he said to her, "your nose looks like a banana, and your ears look like radar antenna, and your face looks like a pan of worms."

"My goodness, we're hostile tonight!" said Virginia cheerfully and whipped 150 Rorschach cards out of her reticule. "Come," she said, "let us examine your psychic apparatus."

Oddly tried again. "You're fat and dumb and disagreeable," he said, "and you'll be bald before you're thirty."

"Hmm," said Virginia thoughtfully and lit a cigarette. "This sounds like an anxiety neurosis with totemism, anaegogic trauma, and a belt in the back."

"I hate you," said Oddly. "I hate your looks and your clothes and your toenails and your relatives and the cigarettes you smoke."

"Now hold on, buster!" cried Virginia, her eyes crackling, her color mounting, her nostrils aflame. "Just keep a civil tongue in your stupid head when you talk about Marlboro! Naturally a knocking that filter, that flavor, that pack or flip-top box while there's breath in my body! It's a full-flavored smoke, it's a doozy, it's a dilly, it's a gas—and anybody who says a word against it gets this."

By "this" Virginia meant a series of combinations to the head and liver, which she now delivered to Oddly and turned on her heel and stormed away.

Oddly brought her down with a flying tackle. "I love you with all my heart," he said.

"And Marlboro?" said she.

"And Marlboro even more," said he.

And they kissed and planted love knots in one another's hair and were married at Whitsuntide and smoked happily ever after.

Lt. Col. Weston Blanchard

Army ROTC

Lt. Col. Weston Blanchard, a graduate of neighbor Norwich University, has succeeded Lt. Col. Peter T. [illegible] as professor of military science at UVM.

Col. Blanchard, a native of Windsor, Vt., comes to his UVM assignment from command of the Eastern Sector of the 20th U.S. Army Corps at Wheeling, W. Va. A Windsor High School and Norwich University graduate, he was production manager for Cone Automatic Machine Co., in Windsor prior to entering the Army in 1941 as a captain with the 172nd Infantry of the Vermont National Guard.

He saw service in North Africa and Italy during World War II, and service in Korea prior to and during the Korean War. He also served in Turkey from 1954-56 as senior advisor to the Turkish War College under the American Mission.

Music Dept.

In the midst of trumpet practice, piano tuning and general commotion at the music building this week, a new figure appeared. This figure is the new Head of the Music Department, Prof. Frank Lidrell. A very energetic and impressive man, Prof. Lidrell is a graduate of Algoma High School in Wisconsin. He did his undergraduate work and received his B.S. degree from State Teachers College in Milwaukee. He gained his Masters degree in Music at Northwestern University and his PhD at Eastman.

Prof. Lidrell is certainly a well qualified man and a welcome addition to the University family. Along with his many degrees, he can also claim membership in Pi Lambda Phi Fraternity of which he was a Sponsor and Charter member at Terre Haute, Indiana, Phi Mu Alpha Symphonia (the National Music Fraternity), and Phi Kappa Lambda (the National Music Honorary). However, it is very enlightening to know that he is not the only talented member of the Lidrell family. Mrs. Lidrell is a graduate of the University of Illinois and received her Masters degree in piano at Northwestern University. With these talented parents, it is sure the two boys', ages eight and ten and their little three year old sister will soon be accomplished musicians.

Prior to coming to UVM, Prof. Lidrell was College Band Director at Central Missouri State College in Warrensburg from 1947 to 1956. For the last four years, he was a member of the teaching staff at Indiana State Teachers College in Terre Haute and also from 1958 to 1960, he directed the orchestra at Saint Mary-of-the-Woods College in Indiana. It would be appropriate, therefore, to say that he has worked in or near the south for over thirteen years. And it is precisely because he liked the Vermont climate, the state and the people that he transferred to UVM.

Although he isn't as yet a ski enthusiast, he does like golf, bridge, correspondence chess and sailing.

Among his many plans for UVM are expansion of services of the Music Department to the University, the community and the state at large, expansion of orchestra performances to a series of four concerts with both student and faculty soloists, a spring opera, improved physical facilities, and a state-wide competition for high school students in January. The winners of the statewide competition will be allowed to perform as soloists with the orchestra.

With all this in view we are very proud to welcome Prof. Frank Lidrell to the UVM faculty.

Nursing Dept.

Professor Mary [illegible] Lodge is the new Chairman of the Nursing Department at UVM. Born and raised in New York City, she became interested in nursing as a profession at an early age as she felt that this was a means for her to help people.

She received her R.N. degree at Mercy Hospital in Baltimore, a B.S. in nursing at Teacher's College, Columbia University, a Masters of Science in Nursing Education at St. Louis University and presently she is working toward her Dcotorate which she will receive shortly from Teacher's College. Along with her teaching and administrative duties, she enjoys reading and plays the piano.

When asked about changes she'd like to see made in the Nursing Department, she replied that she has not been here a short while and before changes can be made she will need to extend through careful study her understanding of the present curriculum and department policies.

Professor Lodge's impression of UVM is that everyone has been extremely helpful and kind in assisting her to get adjusted and she feels she will be quite happy working here.

The Miller Analogies Test will be administered three (3) times at the University of Vermont during the Fall Semester 1960-1961, on the following dates:

Dr. D. Melville (Photo R. Coleman, SPS)

Biochem

If anyone has had the opportunity to spend any time in the medical building, he must have seen Dr. D. Melville came to UVM on July 1 after teaching at the Cornell medical school in New York City for about twenty years. Although he was born in England, Dr. Melville moved to a town in upstate New York at the age of ten and has lost any trace of English accent. He completed both his undergraduate and graduate work at the University of Illinois.

Glad to be away from the hustle and bustle, and mainly the rush of New York City, Dr. Melville is looking forward to a chance to learn to ski (he is already fond of water skiing), and pursue his hobbies in electronics including radio and hi-fi. He has a newly set up laboratory where he plans to do further research on a certain compound found in red blood cells and is some other tissues of the body.

As for UVM, Melville has one problem to settle. Now, not only are the medical students included in the department, but also the nurses, the dental and medical technicians, and the Biochemistry students. All these have recently been incorporated into the medical school program. Dr. Melville is extremely interested in teaching, and he believes that research improves teaching while teaching improves research.

Dr. Tomasi (Photo R. Coleman, SPS)

Experimental Medicine

The UVM department of experimental medicine has a new head this year. Dr. Tomasi graduated from Dartmouth College with highest distinction. There he majored in chemistry and zoology and was given the James Melvill Cramer Award for the study of medicine.

He then came to the UVM Medical School from which he graduated cum laude in 1954. After graduation he went to the Columbia Presbyterian Hospital, College of Physicians and Surgeons, for his medical internship. During one of his three years of medical residency there he was responsible for the training of 240 resident doctors.

In 1958 he joined the staff at Rockefeller Institute. Dr. Tomasi was an assistant physician at the Rockefeller Hospital, and he did research in the laboratory of Dr. Henry Kunkel. He studied in the biochemistry PhD. department with an emphasis on physical chemistry.

As a former student and as department head, Dr. Tomasi said that UVM's Medical Department is very good and compares favorably with Women's Ed. Phys.

New instructors in a university bring with them fresh ideas to try to pep up the courses they teach, and new department chairmen supplement and thus bolster complete curriculums because of their wider background of experience. Miss Wills, the new chairman of the Women's Physical Education Department here at UVM has already done more than most to make the program offered more interesting and challenging to the students participating in it.

There are new courses offered for the first time this year, including Horseback Riding, Intermediate Modern dance open to everyone, and a course in Apparatus and Trampoline. Hygiene, a course that was not popular with the student body has been discontinued. The UVM women now have a free selection curriculum instead of the previous program that was half filled with required courses. There are also many physical changes in Southwick itself, including a Staff Lounge and a WRA Room.

Miss Wills attended Medical School for three years before deciding to change to Physical Education; and has attended 5 colleges either as a student or instructor. She has thus

Music Club

The UVM Music Club, which for the past years has only been a token organization, will be brought back to life tonight. An open house will be held for all prospective members at 7:00 P.M. in the Music Building, located at 70 South Williams Street.

Jay Shepard, '61, the president of the Music Club, stated tonight's open house will be repeated at least once a month for the rest of this semester and next. The first open house will consist of a jazz concert by the 1959 winners of the New England Collegiate Jazz Festival and the UVM Catamounts, a short talk by Dr. Frank Lidral, the new chairman of the Music Department, and a "Sing Along with Mitch" by any and all who are in attendance. Refreshments consisting of cider and baked goods will be served.

WSGA Meets

Mary Jean Simpson, former Dean of Women at UVM, spoke briefly at the first mass meeting of the Women's Student Government Association on Wednesday at the Ira Allen Memorial. Since it is the anniversary of the land grant to the college, she mentioned some of the history of the University. Also on the agenda was the installation of House presidents for the year 1960-61. These include Gena Mason, Dawn Kolodziej, Carol Lindroth, Madeline Wishnie, Birute Valeisis, Christine Borgmann, Ann Van Gilder, Brenda Burgess, Pat Irving, Rachel Rice, Nancy Davis, Sarah Pearne, Harriet Katz, Rosalie Wetherby, Ruth Carlin, Roberta Crouch, Barbara Sims, Elizabeth Becker, Carol Fischer, Joyce Alexander, Janet Darby, Judith Hanna, Joan Humphreys, Ann Obreiter, Jean Pillsbury, Nancy Kurlbaum, Marcia Smith, Jean Gianerelli and Sheila McKinley.

The Barn

This week's dialogue at The Barn will range over the subject of Trade Unionism and Management-labor Relations. Speaking for the Union will be Mr. Bernard Sumner, Head of the IUE local at the General Electric plant in Burlington. Participating with him will be a representative, as yet unnamed, from the G.E. organization. Program time is 8:00 P.M. For those who might be interested, the program will be preceded by an hour of recorded union songs. Should any one be in possession of similar management songs, bring them along and they will be accorded equal time. The date is Sunday, Oct. 9. The place, The Barn.

Political Interest

The interest of college students in the current campaign reflects the students' growing sense of the importance of the politics of their country. This was recently expressed on the UVM campus by the formation of Young Republicans and Young Democrats Clubs which, we assume, will devote their energies toward the election of whichever candidate they support.

NIXON'S WELCOME

A further evidence of the current political interest on campus is the rousing welcome given Vice-President Nixon on his visit last Thursday. Over one thousand students lined his route at the UVM campus, and Nixon stopped and gave an impromptu speech. Later, at Memorial Auditorium, Nixon spoke to three thousand people, half of whom, the New York Times estimated, were UVM students. All this activity has taken place on a campus long noted for its student apathy in many fields.

VOTES ON ISSUES

Another encouraging factor noted among students this year is that blind loyalty to either a candidate or a person does not seem nearly as prevalent as some have insisted. A great many of the students who listened -- and listened attentively -- to Nixon speak both at the Campus and in Memorial Auditorium are Kennedy supporters. Their willingness to consider the arguments of the opposition perhaps reflects a change to the type of voting that politicians have long urged (and long feared), the vote on issues or stands on issues rather than on party or personality.

The CYNIC is not endorsing one candidate or the other in this editorial.

The student interest in the current campaign is indicative of an awakening responsibility. The CYNIC congratulates those students who are taking an active interest in the election, regardless of their choice of candidates.

The Cosmopolitan Club invites everyone to attend their first meeting Tuesday, October 11, at 7:00 P.M. - 239 Waterman Building.

Senator George D. Aiken, U.S. senior senator from Vermont and U.S. delegate to the United Nations will be the guest speaker.

You are all urged to attend and take this opportunity to become well informed on the timely issue of the U.N. crisis.

Foundation Applications Considered

The Danforth Foundation, an educational Foundation located in St. Louis, Mo. recently invites applications for the forty-first class (1961) of Danforth Graduate Fellows from college senior men and recent graduates who are preparing themselves for a career of college teaching and are planning to enter graduate school in September, 1961 for their first year of graduate study. The Foundation welcomes applicants from the areas of Natural and Biological Sciences, Social Sciences, Humanities and all fields of specialization to be found in the undergraduate college.

President Fey has named Dean Charles Braun as the Liaison Officer to nominate to the Danforth Foundation two or not to exceed three candidates for these 1961 fellowships. These appointments are fundamentally "a relationship of encouragement" throughout the years of graduate study, carrying a promise of financial aid within prescribed conditions as there may be need. The maximum annual grant for single Fellows is $1500 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students; for married Fellows, $2000 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students with an additional stipend of $500 for each child. Students with or without financial need are invited to apply. A Danforth Fellow is allowed to carry other scholarship appointments, such as Rhodes, Fulbright, Woodrow Wilson, Marshall, etc., concurrently with his Danforth Fellowship, and applicants for these appointments are cordially invited to apply at the same time for a Danforth Fellowship. If a man received the Danforth Appointment, together with a Rhodes Scholarship, Fulbright Scholarship, or Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, he becomes a Danforth Fellow without stipend, until these other relationships are completed.

All Danforth Fellows will participate in the annual Danforth Foundation Conference on Teaching, to be held at Camp Miniwanca in Michigan next September, 1961.

The qualifications of the candidates as listed in the announcement from the Foundation are: men of outstanding academic ability, personality congenial to the classroom, and integrity and character, including serious inquiry within the Christian tradition.

All applications, including the recommendations must be completed by January 15, 1961. Any student wishing further information should get in touch with our Liaison officer.

Lane Series Committee Prepares Third Program

by Barbara Dutton

This year the Lane Series will have a third, and separate, program of four performances to be known as the Chamber Arts Series. The programs, whose exact times and artists are yet to be announced, will include a modern dance group, a chamber music group, a poet, and an instrumentalist. All performances will be held in Ira Allen Chapel, except the modern dance group, which will be held in Southwick Gymnasium. A season ticket for the Chamber Arts Series will cost $4.50, and tickets to individual events will be available at $1.50. Mr. Trevethick noted that the 1958-9 year marked the first double (Red and Blue) Lane Series offering, necessitated by the lack of space for the would be audience and the desire for the participation of more artists. Even so, over 500 people were turned away last year.

The Lane Series Committee is made up of faculty members and students. Any interested student may attend meetings notice of which is posted in lower Waterman, next to the Bookstore. The Committee discusses and decides on programs, sees to the administration of the operation and dispensation of the budget, over one third of which is from the George Bishop Lane endowment, the rest coming from the sale of tickets. The Committee for 1960-61 is as follows: Ann Drexler, '61, Chairman; Theodore S. Edgecomb, '62; Production Manager; Robert I. Keimowitz, '61; Treasurer; Jerold [illegible] Jacobson, '62, Publicity Director; Linda S. Sack, '61, House Manager; Daryl J. Schoenknecht, '61, Secretary; Lorraine A. Snow, '61, Assistant Publicity Director; Edward S. Crane, '62, Assistant Production Manager; Mary Jane Edwards, '62, Assistant Secretary; and Professors Greg Falls, Ippocrates Pappoutsakis, Jack Trevethick (Executive Secretary), and Larry E. Van Benthuysen.

I.F.C. Revises Rushing Rules

The Inter-Fraternity Council recently has taken definite action to abrogate the inherent evils existing in its rushing policies. New agreements have been reached which are vital to the primary goal of establishing a spirit of fair competition among the fraternities.

Last year the relations between freshmen and the fraternities were governed by a policy of "No contact for a thirty day period prior to the formal rushing."

Experience showed the I.F.C. that the "no contact" rule created an unrealistic situation. Fraternities openly violated the restriction. The policy then became impossible to enforce. It was also felt that the rule was too harsh on freshmen who are striving to adjust to university life during the first semester.

The new policy set up by the council permit contact between the fraternities and freshmen during the first semester. The purpose of this contact would be to induce participation in the formal rushing program. The idea would be to sell fraternity life rather than any specific fraternity.

The I.F.C. rushing policy has been reduced to a few restrictive clauses. Freshmen are barred from fraternity houses, apartments and property before formal rushing. An exception will be permitted during specific days for open houses. No obligation through monetary or other means is to be consciously created. A Gentleman's Agreement has been recorded which promises no fraternity will institute any planned rushing program before formal rushing. The new rule will permit a relatively large area of contact between the Freshmen and fraternities.

Any violation on the part of either the fraternities or the Freshmen will be dealt with the I.F.C. Rushing Committee according to the circumstances involved. Serious violation can result in either loss of rushing privileges or a monetary fine. All complaints will be in writing and will contain specific information and alleged violations.

I.F.C.'s Robert Gold summed up the Council's position. "If the fraternities and Freshmen will abide by the spirit of the new policies, they are insuring for themselves and for the University, a more effective and successful rushing program.

IN THE MIDDLE

So, wherein lies the answer? I think perhaps somewhere in the middle between the co-op plan and the standard two-semester college year of concentrated study. The co-op plan, for one thing, takes a year longer. It also leaves much to be desired in its treatment of the humanities.

Perhaps, if, on some sort of voluntary basis, a study work program was worked out, liberal arts might take on a more significant meaning. I'm definitely not trying to minimize the importance of the liberal arts. But I wonder if, with more practical experience in the students general interest area, much time and effort could be put to better use.

Huden Writes Monograph On Vermont Indians

Dr. Huden examines manuscript of his monograph. (Photo R. Coleman, SPS)

University of Vermont Professor of Education, John C. Huden has recently published a monograph which is now available in the school store. This work, which was written with the intention of filling gaps in Vermont literature and history is entirely concerned with Indian archeology. Professor Huden's main reason for the monograph was to offer proof that, contrary to public opinion, Vermont was permanently settled by Indians as early as any of the other New England states.

The monograph itself consists of numerous pages of text and forty pages of drawings of ancient rock carvings at Bellows Falls and twenty illustrations from the work of Dean Perkins, a former dean of this University. Dean Perkins has been called the greatest Indian student Vermont has ever developed, and in 1910 wrote a comprehensive report on Indian artifacts in the Green Mountain State.

The text in Professor Huden's monograph, which is the only one of its kind ever to be published in this area, is a compilation of facts which have taken seven years to find, sift, and organize into a readable form. Included in this compilation are state reports which have been lying untouched for years, a heretofore never aired report on the archeologically important diggings at Vergennes, and reports of important findings in and around Highgate. The monograph is a strictly factual piece of work and contains nothing whatsoever which cannot be scientifically defended.

Professor Huden, whose training is in the field of physical science, has taught high school mathematics and worked as a secondary school principal before joining the UVM faculty more than thirty years ago. He calls his interests in Indian Archeology, "a long intensive hobby". He is a member of the New Hampshire Archeological Society, the Massachusetts Archeological Society and various similar groups. Though their is no such society in this state, Professor Huden and his colleagues would like to organize one.

This is not Professor Huden's first work nor will it be his last. He has composed original monographs concerning Indian Name Places in Vermont, Early Maps of Lake Champlain and plans one in French and Indian influences in early Vermont.

Tradition Questioned

"Certain deep-rooted American traditions" are critici... by a University of Ver... history professor writing in "The New Leader" magazine ... issue of Sept. 19. "Is We Need A National Purpose?"

... raised the question ... Robert V. Daniels ... suggests the past six months have seen increasing concern over the absence of a national purpose ... he concludes that Americans have a lack of purpose but that "certain deep-rooted American Traditions ... individual enterprise, states' rights, national sovereignty ... are proving one-sided or inadequate in the face of 20th century reality."

Daniels, author of "The Conscience of the Revolution" and "A Documentary History of Communism," links increased public concern over national purpose to "the hysteria of national humiliation touched off by Sputnick." He fears that "the Communist problem is adduced as the reason we must have a purpose, the Communists being presumably so purposive that they can be met successfully only by an equally purposive America." He believes this view both illogical and wrong because "in reality, Communism gets very little strength from its ideology and pays an exorbitant price for it. "Communism pursues national purpose at the expense of every human purpose' and "should stand as an object lesson in the evil of trying to discipline a nation to one official set of aims."

Daniels sees the concern about national purpose as the "response of many responsible and thoughtful people to the frustrations of an era when the most powerful nation on earth does not seem able to bring anything like the requisite vigor to bear in meeting its domestic and international problems."

But the difficulty, he suggests, is not lack of purpose, but the inadequacy of traditional values and institutions to motivate and express national purpose.

These, he says, include American insistence on the primacy of the individual over the public approach; the primacy of local interest over the central in American political life; and the primacy of national sovereignty over the international.

Of the first, he maintains that "mass society, world polities, and the complexly organized corporate economy have developed so far as to make individual action and responsibility futile."

Of the second, he sees "American elective polities.. still largely rooted in the local community." When local attention is given to national affairs, he sees it "hamstrung by formulas a century old"...and without "either the power or desire to deal with complex nation-wide economic and social problems."

Crux of the matter, he believes, is not "national but "universal human purpose." This purpose, he suggests, is inherent in the American democratic way of life, and only requires promotion by Americans through the agency of their government.

"We need," he concludes, "the critical honesty to see the truth about our society."

Why Not ?

by JULES OLDER

Pretty soon, these book publishing companies that print the trots like Chemistry Made Cool, Microbiology Can Be Fun, and Grade Grubbers Annual, will come out with a text on college cheating. The title will probably be something like Plagiarism--Its Uses and Abuses. There will be chapters on the history of cheating, instructions for building mechanical crib sheets, biographies of famous cheaters, and a news service on latest techniques. It should sell like a Spanish translation on the day before the final.

WHY NOT? Undergraduate cheating has become an accepted part of college life. The only rationale is that everybody does it, or that stiff competition for for graduate school requires it. Of course this is not quite true. There are still many people who don't cheat, and a lot of them go on to higher education. But the fact is that cheating has become socially acceptable all over the country.

Needless to say, UVM is no exception. Last year the Student Court finally recognized the pressing need for a deterrent to the widespread dishonesty and set up stiff penalties, including suspension, for those caught. Unfortunately, the decision was so poorly phrased as to leave considerable doubt as to its effectiveness. And there has already been some question as to the court's willingness to enforce its own law.

Ideally, the students should be the ones to deal with their own problems. But actually, they often need help, a guiding hand, or a good swift kick to get them started. In this case, the need is pressing. Without faculty and administrative support, this problem will spread like a blight through our university. Unfortunately, the support has not always been available.

Indeed, there has often been a seeming indifference to student cheating in the upper echelons of the University Family. While there are occasional cases of laxity in the faculty, the burden of guilt is with the administration.

I know, for instance, of one case in which an instructor was reprimanded for "browbeating" two students who had handed in identical English themes. Then he was advised that it would not be nice to flunk these offenders or even to give them zeros for the paper. These instructions came from a non-academic dean. The instructor is now working in private industry.

On the other hand, there were several cases of swift action against cheaters last year. This is one step towards cutting down on the number of offenses. Another is to hire enough proctors to monitor examinations for all tests. Still another is to screen more carefully the applicants to the university, and thus eliminate some of the problem children before they become our problem. These three steps should do a lot towards giving the honest student an even break.

And WHY NOT?

He deserves it.

SA Discusses Student Union Building

Thursday, September 29, at 7:05 P M the S.A. meeting was called to order. First on the agenda was the announcement of the election of John Bancroft as new S.A Treasurer and Mark Platt as Parliamentarian.

The Cultural Committee expressed a desire to initiate a Folk Sing. Poetry readings and Foreign Films this year.

The Finance Committee reported that there are approximately eighty surplus date books which will be sold in the bookstore for $1 00 each.

Quite a lengthy discussion resounded on suggestions for our present student lounge with the idea of moving the furniture into the new Student Union Building in Sept. 1961. The estimated cost of such a plan was $2500. The motion to redecorate the present lounge was tabled until more exact information on actual costs could be obtained.

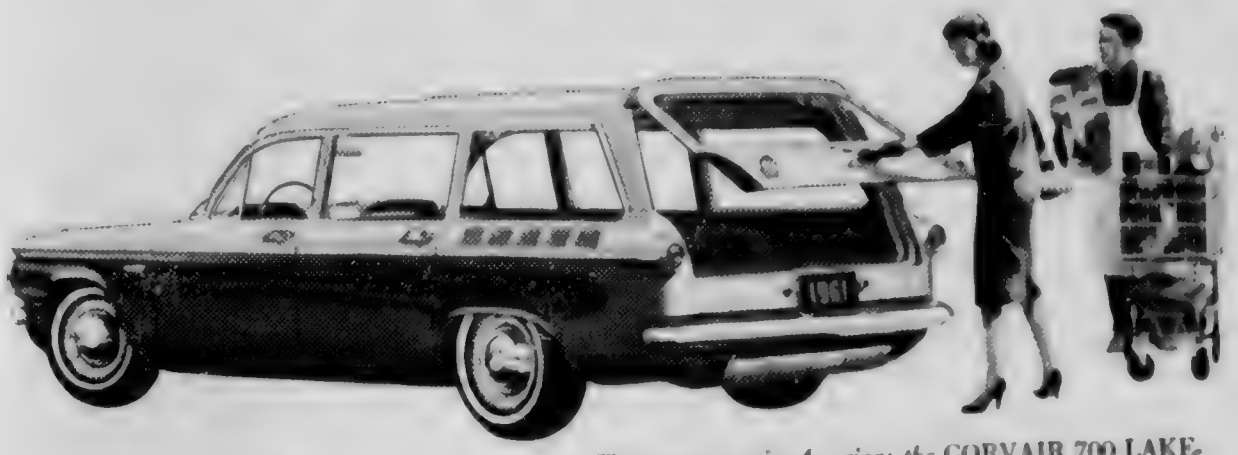
A representative of Centaur magazine was at the meeting to appeal for funds. This year the magazine hopes to reach a larger reading and contributing audience. In the past the magazine only included short stories and poetry. Plays, critical the new student union building. The new library is expected to be completed by September 1961, at which time the present library will be converted into a student union. Some of these ideas were: a reading and study room, lounge (open Saturday nights - with musical facilities), card, pool, and ping pong room, student offices, coffee shop and snack bar. Dean Rowell suggested [illegible] in T.V. sets, and ear phones to make it possible for one to listen to different types of music in various rooms. Army And AF Cadets Place High At Summer Camp

The UVM Army ROTC Cadets placed third at summer camp among the seventeen participating colleges and universities in the New England Area. Twenty-four cadets from UVM attended as opposed to the average of 41 from other schools.

UVM Cadets placed among the top seven in the Map Reading and Field Problem Tests and in Rifle Marksmanship. They also acquitted themselves well during Tactical Week, the fifth week of camp when all previous instruction is put into practice.

The Cadets were visited by the Dean of Men, Earle W. Clifford. Dean Clifford had the opportunity to observe the Cadets in their many phases of training. The visit was highlighted by a party given for the Dean and Cadets in the B Company area.

UVM Cadets who attended the summer camp were: Stephen L. Berry, Robert B. B[illegible]ega, Dale A. Burroughs, Carl R. Butterfield, William C. Carrigan, Roberto C. Eaton, Ralph P. Guidutti, George E. Hatch, David J. Howe, John T. Ide, Douglas R. Jerrett, Roger J. Knisley, Anta Lase, John S. Maynes, Richard A. Metcalf, John T. Moore, Peter E. Nelson, Paul M. O'Connor, Robert J. Perry, Daniel J. Prescott, Kenneth O. Switzer, Marvin Vipler, Stanton Williams and Richard F. DiLorenzo.



The academic year 1960-1961 marks the final year of Air Force ROTC at the University of Vermont. Although the program will soon be gone from the campus, it will not be forgotten, thanks to the record established by the fourteen AFROTC seniors who distinguished themselves at Summer Training Units throughout the nation this past summer. Eleven of the fourteen cadets placed in the upper one third of their respective flights. All of the cadets placed in the upper half of their units. While at Summer Camp, cadets were constantly observed and rated by commissioned officers of the Air Force as they performed specific assigned duties.

The following University of Vermont cadets attended Summer Camp at Otis Air Force Base, Massachusetts: Richard T. Aldinger, Joseph R. Buley, Charles H. Eldred, William A. Hill, III, Ronald P. Kilburn, John H. Martel, Jr., James A. Rogers, Gordon H. Sprigg, and Morton A. Lord. Cadets Vernon F. Fowler and Roland J. Allen were stationed at Lockbourne Air Force Base, Ohio. Cadets Stanley E. Van Horn, Jr., and James E. McCarthy attended camp at Langley Air Force Base, Virginia. William R. Benner, Jr. was stationed at Shaw Air Force Base, South Carolina.

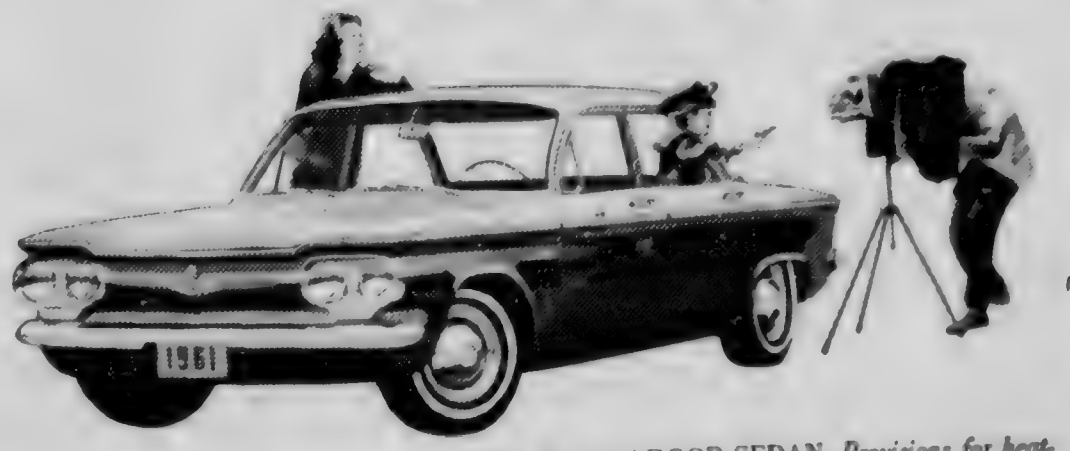
NEW '61 CHEVY CORVAIR



More space . . . more spunk and wagons, too!

The newest car in America: the CORVAIR 700 LAKEWOOD 4-DOOR STATION WAGON.

CORVAIR 700 CLUB COUPE. Like all coupes and sedans, it has a longer range fuel tank.

CORVAIR 700 4-DOOR SEDAN. Provisions for heating ducts are built right into its Body by Fisher.

Here's the new Chevy Corvair for '61 with a complete line of complete thrift cars.

To start with, every Corvair has a budget-pleasing price tag. And Corvair goes on from there to save you even more. With extra miles per gallon . . . quicker-than-ever cold-start warmup so you start saving sooner . . . a new extra-cost optional heater that warms everyone evenly. Riding along with this extra economy: more room inside for you, more room up front for your luggage (sedans and coupes have almost 12% more usable trunk space).

And our new wagons? You'll love them—think they're the greatest thing for families since houses. The Lakewood Station Wagon does a man-sized job with cargo, up to 68 cubic feet of it. The Greenbrier Sports Wagon you're going to have to see—it gives you up to 175.5 cubic feet of space for you and your things.

Corvair's whole thrifty lineup gets its pep from a spunkier 145-cu.-in. air-cooled rear engine. Same rear-engine traction, same smooth 4-wheel independent-suspension ride. See the polished and refined 1961 Corvair first chance you get at your Chevrolet dealer's.

Spare tire is in the rear in coupes and sedans—leaving more luggage space up front.

Even middle-seat passengers sit pretty, thanks to Corvair's practically flat floor.

Now in production—the GREENBRIER SPORTS WAGON with up to twice as much room as ordinary wagons (third seat optional at extra cost).

Miss Davenport, our advisor, gave us the pleasure of joining us for dinner, Thursday evening, and a pleasant time was had by all.

KAPPA SIGMA

After two weeks of classes indications are that this will be a most productive year for the "red jacket" boys. Donald "Ace" Santa Croce, the popular manager of Simpson Cafeteria, has been named alumni advisor replacing Wes Abel. Ray Pinehout has succeeded Mr. Cochran of the English Department as faculty advisor. We wish to thank these two men for the interest and services performed when they occupied these posts.

The Intramural football team has been impressive in the scrimmage games it has played to date. We plan to go all the way this year. On the varsity team there are nine Kappa Sigs represented.

Tom Eldridge, Fred Schnaars and Vern Fowler spent part of the summer in camp. Tom and Fred were stationed at Quantico, Va., and Vern was stationed in Ohio.

Open House was very successful last Sunday. Thanks men for dropping down.

LAMBDA IOTA

Due to our 125th anniversary this year the Owls have scheduled a year full of special events. The kick off of these events, under Chairman John Cruickshank, will take place at Homecoming when the alumni return. It seems that several magazines are interested in covering our 125th anniversary. In keeping with these coming events a special flag is on order.

The sixth Annual Garbage Collectors Cotilion was held October 1, at Lambda Iota. With the front lawn carefully adorned and the interior of the house covered with "garbage" merchandise, the scene was set for a great party. The party, which included an auction of many garbaged items was a "howling" success.

PI BETA PHI

Fall is here and with such fun About the house and Pi Phis run.

They had an open house last week Which everyone thought t'was really neat.

That was a sick, sick, sick attempt at rhyme, but should not reflect on the open house. A good time was had by all who listened to the St. Mike's jazz band while enjoying cider and donuts.

A joint open house is being held this Saturday night Oct. 8 at Sigma Nu. Pi Phi and Sigma Nu want to extend a very warm invitation to everyone for this event.

We want to thank Mrs. Gray for taking over the duties of house mother while Mrs. Sheppard is away. We are very happy to have her with us.

PHI MU DELTA

At last the brothers of Phi Mu Delta can sleep comfortably again. Those floors were getting rather hard. Last week, our new beds arrived. We wish to thank the president and the manager of the Beecher Falls Furniture Co. for their generous gift. This gift was in memory of a brother's uncle who had been associated with the firm for many years.

Things are shaping up here at Nu Gamma. Plans are ready for Homecoming and the dedication of our house, plus a schedule of social events is being drawn up and several men have begun working out in preparation for Rake Walk.

Phi Mu Delta has begun participating in the IFC intramural sports. Even though we lost our fitst football game to SAE 18-6, we are looking forward, enthusiastically, to our other games. Hope our strategy works out.

SIGMA PHI

The Sigs returned to the UVM campus this fall after a very enjoyable summer. Some were fortunate enough to travel throughout Europe while others spent a quiet summer in school.

A large delegation from the house was present at the national convention this year, which was held at Union College.

We are also very pleased to have Mr. Mahoney as our new advisor this year.

Last Wednesday, the Sigs had an exchange dinner with AEPi which everyone enjoyed. Thanks again girls!

We have received word that Bill Grey, now in the Air Force, has been named the top student in his class at Rainbridge, Maryland.

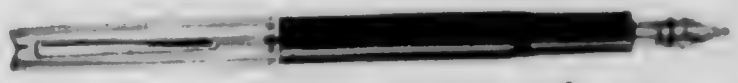
We are still contemplating whether or not to pledge up a certain Theta named "C", who has been seen in the company of some of the Sigs during the past few months.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Sincere apologies are extended to this fraternity and especially to its jazz band for the error in last week's column, where we printed news of Sig Ep's band under the wrong frat listing. Em, anyhow, it does look as if Sigma Phi Epsilon will have another great dixie jazz band again this year with Tom, Carmen, Eric, and Neil, who by the way did a grand job in the Kampus Varietics. Sorry we didn't get it right the first time, guys.

THETA CHI

The sleeping beauties have at last awakened.



Tom (or is it Lou) Sherman recently informed the brotherhood of the reason he is no longer wearing his pin. No, it wasn't lost in the sinking of the Graf Spee! Seems he got pinned. The lucky girl is Carol Bailey of Ipswich, Mass.

Nixon And Wife Welcomed By Burlington And UVM During Campaign Tour Through New England

Pat and Dick board their plane after whirlwind campaign tour of area.

Cheering crowds greeted Vice President Richard M. Nixon when he arrived in Burlington on Thursday, September 29th. He stopped and spoke in the city as a part of his presidential campaign.

Mr Nixon's plane, delayed 15 minutes because of overcast weather, landed at the airport at approximately 11 15 A M He and his wife were greeted by Governor Stafford, and other Republican office-holders, and the Democratic mayor of Burlington, Mayor Fitzpatrick, in addition to about 1,000 Vermonters. Mr. Warren Austin, the first delegate from the USA to the United Nations and a resident of Vermont was also present.

In his short speech upon arrival, Mr. Nixon blamed the flight delay on New York's weather, not Vermont's expressed his love for the state, and told the audience that his daughters spent a summer at Camp Teehowaket.

Then, he proceeded to a red convertible which, as part of a cavalcade, took him into Burlington. There were so many college students awaiting him when he passed the UVM Green, that he stopped the cavalcade to say a few words to them. He told the students of his happiest moment the day he received a scholarship to Duke University Law School. After thinking a moment, however, he added that it was really second to the day he proposed to Pat. Before he left, he commented, informally, on courses and opportunities offered in college curriculums. In fact, he picked up a French book, owned by Ricky Means, a Sophomore student, looked through it, and then indirectly referred to it later on.

After the parade up Church Street, he proceeded to Memorial Auditorium. The building was filled to capacity and people were crowding in the aisles and outside on the steps. His major speech of 30 minutes, while stating no new policy, stressed again the importance of selecting a candidate on basis of experience and qualifications not merely on party label.

At 2 10 p.m., he boarded his plane which was to take him to Manchester. After campaigning there, he planned to go on to Boston.

At the airport, Nixon gave a short welcome to the 2,000 people who greeted him. (SPS)

Young Democrats Club Shows Promising Future

Last Monday, Sept. 26, saw the first organizational meeting of the Young Democrats Club at UVM in Room 260 of Waterman. An overflow crowd of about 40 students were called to order by temporary chairman Charles Tierney, who spoke on the future aims and activities of the group and introduced the club's faculty advisor, Robert J. Sickels, Instructor of Political Science.

Peter Jacobson, a student member of the Re-Elect Meyer to Congress campaigning staff, who is also helping in the organization of Student Democratic Clubs on college campuses throughout the State, outlined the important role the group will play in both the state and national campaign and election.

He stressed the co-ordination of the Young Democrats at UVM with the official national and state headquarters located here in Burlington.

Pete had with him literature about all of the Party candidates and bumper stickers. Following his talk many of the students present signed up for volunteer work at the State Headquarters.

Art Kanis, a student who played a key role in the founding of the Young Democrats at UVM three years ago and former president of the group spoke about the need of such an organization and said: "The success of our Club will depend wholely and entirely upon the attitudes of each and every member and their degree of enthusiasm and support. We can be of great assistance to the Democratic Party if we are willing to work."

The organization has a heavy schedule mapped out for its members in the following months. For example, the group will take part in a State wide bumper sticker campaign, assist the State Headquarters in the distribution of campaign material, canvass the City for the registration of new voters, and drive voters to the polls on Election day.

Also, with the strong probability of a visit to Burlington area by Senator John Kennedy soon, the club will arrange a student welcome for the candidate for the Presidency.

The Sept. 26 meeting adjourned with the nomination of a five member Nominating Committee which prepared a slate of officers to be voted upon at the next regular meeting held on the following Monday, Oct. 3. Prof. [illegible] Danials of the History Department, also Vice-Chairman of the State Democratic Platform Committee, is scheduled to address the Oct. 3 meeting of the club.

With the Young Democrats Club at UVM promising to be one of the most active groups here on campus, all and all interested students are cordially invited to come in and take an active part.

The touch football intramurals started last Thursday, September 29. The teams consist of seven men each and every player is an eligible ball handler, so it looks like there will be some fast-moving games. This year, the teams are broken down into five leagues, three fraternity and two independent.

The three fraternity leagues are comprised of the following teams. League A: Sig Nu, Phi Sig, Sig Ep., Sig Phi, & Acacia. League B: TEP, Kappa Sig, ATO, Owls, & Theta Chi. League C: SAE, Phi Delt, Delt Psi, AEPi, AGR, & Phi Mu Delta.

The two independent leagues, D & E, are comprised of teams from the men's dorms.

At the end of the scheduled league games, winners of Leagues D & E will play for the independent championship.

The all-campus championship game will then be played between the fraternity champions and the independent champions.

A list of scheduled league games is posted in the gym, as well as in the various fraternity houses, so why not get out and support your team? They need YOU!

Sports Questionnaire

by Larry Yarkin

Question: Do you think UVM should initiate ice hockey as part of their winter athletic program?

John Goldhammer, '64—First I would take a poll to see if sufficient interest prevailed. Then if a large enough group wanted hockey, they could make their feelings known by a petition.

Pete Lakis, '63—Definitely. It's a shame to have a northern school without hockey. However, I don't think that a hockey program should be considered until there is money to support it.

Mike Zelterman, '63—UVM, situated where it is, should encourage hockey as a sport. It seems unnatural that any school in Vermont wouldn't have facilities for ice hockey.

Mickey Steinberg, '64—Certainly. It's the fastest growing spectator sport in the country. I think the fact that the other Yankee Conference colleges are represented in hockey should inspire UVM to initiate hockey as part of their winter athletic program.

Irate Allen, '??—Well, to tell you the truth, we seem to be having enough trouble with football.

BEAT RHODE ISLAND

ACROSS THE NATION

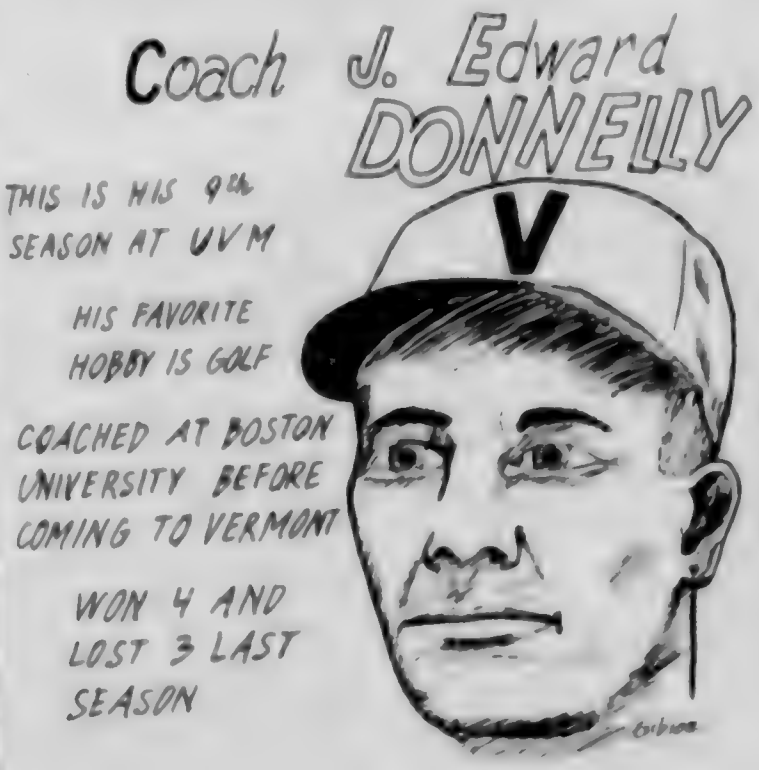
By Barry Barkley

With two weeks of football having been played, the big inter-conference battles will be in full swing this coming Saturday. With some mild upsets in the Big Ten, the emergence of a clear cut favorite has yet to come. At this reading, the strangest contenders are: Michigan State, Illinois the class team, and the surprising Ohio State Buckeyes, who rolled over the vaunted University of Southern California 20-0 last week.

This week Illinois plays Ohio State at Champagne. With the loss of Johnny Counts, the Illini will have a tough time containing the bone-crushing bursts of Buckeye fullback Bob Ferguson. Ohio State should win in a game that could go either way. Over at East Lansing, Michigan, the Michigan State Spartans should be able to handle the University of Iowa's inexperienced sophomores, despite their impressive triumph of Northwestern. Michigan State by 8.

Minnesota will have a sad homecoming as Northwestern is anxious to avenge last week's humiliation at the hands of Iowa. Watch N.W. quarterback All-America Dick Thornton. Northwestern by 13. Undefeated Purdue, dark-horse of the nation, will be riding high. The only weakness the Boilermakers might have would be over-confidence. Purdue by 15.

In other Big Ten games, Indiana goes against the single wing of powerful Oregon State. Indiana, on probation for illegal recruiting practices, had better continue recruiting. O.S.U. by 12. At Ann Arbor, Michigan, the Wolverines are going against one of the fastest teams in the nation; namely the Duke Blue Devils of Durham, N.C. I pick Duke by 3.



In Yankee Conference competition this week, the League championship may well be decided at Amherst, Massachusetts, where UMass, undefeated in three games, conquerors of Maine and Harvard, will pit their sophomores against the perennial conference champions of the University of Connecticut. Riding an undefeated string, UMass should be up in their homecoming game. UMass to win by 10 and capture the Yankon Championship. The Black Bears of Maine, strong and fast, should have little difficulty combating the University of New Hampshire. The boys from Orono by 20.

The composite national football picture shows the Midwest with a powerful aggregation of teams, with Kansas and Missouri rising into national prominence. The Syracuse juggernaut continues to roll, with Ole Miss in hot pursuit. The rise of Eastern football has been astounding the nation. Along with Syracuse; Navy's upset of Washington 15-14, Penn State's fine showing against powerful Missouri, and Pitt's great record with a back-breaking schedule.

In other areas of the land we tend to see more and more the RISE of new gridiron powers. The long drought of gridiron talent is over in the Prairie states, as Kansas, Missouri, and Nebraska are all challenging omnipotent Oklahoma for Big Seven laurels. The always tough Southeastern Conference is laden with at least seven teams that might be able to land in the nation's top ten. Ole Miss, Georgia, Auburn, LSU, Georgia Tech, Kentucky and what might be the sleeper team of the year, Alabama University. With the return of Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, the Crimson Tide are creating an eleven-man monster.

On every Saturday there is always one man with a big grin from ear to ear, that person being a perennial spectator; namely "Old Man Upset."

1. Syracuse 39 vs. Holy Cross 0
2. Pitt 20 vs. Miami 7
3. Stanford 25 vs. Washington 33
4. Massachusetts 24 vs. Connecticut 14

6. Columbia 15 vs. Yale 31
7. Air Force 7 vs. Missouri 10

Second Loss Of Season Handed To Us By Bears

by Howard Gorney

UVM's stubborn defense failed to hold out against the charging eleven from the University of Maine at Centennial Field last Saturday. The end of the fourth quarter found the Cats on the short end of a 27-0 score. Twice, early in the first period, the Black Bears penetrated deep into Vermont territory and twice they were stopped.

The Catamounts twice pushed deep into Black Bears' territory in the last period. They drove to the 20 and 15 yard lines before losing the ball, once on an interception and once on downs.

However, near the end of the second quarter, Maine recovered a Vermont fumble on the Green and Gold 25, and quarterback Vance Wheeler dove into the end zone after the Big White pushed to the UVM two. Art Miles converted to make the score 7-0.

The closing minutes of the first half found Maine on the Vermont 49. Captain Wayne Ducatte made a sparkling play in foiling a Black Bear pass that was labeled TD. Then Maine, reverting a ground attack, scored ten plays later when Walt Beaulieu pushed over from the two. Again Miles put it through the uprights, for a 14-0 score.

The first half was marred by bad breaks for the Catamounts. Quarterback Bill Fleming passed to Ducatte in a play that covered 55 yards, but it was nullified by a penalty. Infractions hurt the Cats on the ground also. Many plays that could have sparked UVM to pay dirt were called back because of penalties. It seemed like even time was against our squad when it erased the Green and Gold's deepest penetration of the game. The Catamounts had pushed to Maine's four, when the clock tolled the end of the first half.

In the second half, depth won out over determination. Halfway through the third period, Maine quarterback Wheeler surprised the Cats with a pass to end Dick Kinney, standing alone on the five. Kinney wheeled, and dashed into the end zone to complete the 40 yard touchdown play. Miles' boot was good again, and the score stood 21-0.

Minutes later, Maine racked up its last touchdown of the day. On the first play from scrimmage after a Vermont punt, fullback Dale Curry ran 62 yards for the longest run of the game.

UVM Places 1 Through 8

by Barry Wilbur

A strong UVM [illegible] team defeated the [illegible] Engineers of Maine last Saturday, here in Burlington. The Cats captured the first eight spots, with George Zinnamister of UVM coming in in the first of the team to cross the finish line. Coach Archie Post's Harriers held a very comfortable margin, and coasted to a 15-44 victory.

The course this year is about one foot shorter than previous years, being about 4.3 miles. The reason for this is the construction of the new library. Now, instead of starting behind the gym, the races begin and end in front of Hills Hall.

Leading the pack was Hal Hollings, a sophomore who ran the course in 23 minutes, 33.1 seconds. Breaking [illegible] was Bill Stetson, also a sophomore, in 24:03. Seconds after three Vermonters crossed the finish line simultaneously, in a tie for third. They were Tim Sargent, a sophomore, Dale Burroughs and John Chenes, both seniors and co-captains. Next came Steve Russell, a sixth, Hugh Stafford and Don Gray, juniors. Zinnamister then crossed the finish line for the Engineers in 25:15.

THE RESULTS

In response to my editorial of last week about student support of an athletic scholarship fund, I received exactly eight answers. Eight out of a student body of over 3000. Perhaps if I had promised a piece of bubble gum with each answer, I would have had a better return! There was a lot of talk about the editorial, but not much of a result. This is YOUR school as well as mine. What happens here in the way of athletics during the next two years may well decide the coming decade. UVM is in the midst of a huge athletic rebuilding program. You can't build on half a foundation and expect the entire building to stand. The new gym is one half of that foundation; scholarships comprise the remaining half.

On the way home from Centennial Field Saturday, I picked up such comments as, "Damn it. That's two in a row we lost," and "Do you think we'll ever win a game this season?" One enterprising sportsman was ready to give odds that we wouldn't register more than two touchdowns all season.

Although the visitor's stands contained not even one-fifth of the population of the Vermont stands, their cheering was as loud as ours. There were a lot of students who just "Didn't feel like coming," but it's these same students who are always asking "Why don't we do better?" The Cats have played only two games thus far. We have five more to go. It is NOT beyond the realm of possibility of our taking four of these five, and possibly ALL!

Our boys fight, and fight hard, against teams whose lines average twenty pounds more than theirs. Some of the other Yankon schools have football teams that are comprised of boys who come to school to play ball and learn. Most of the men at UVM are here to learn, and THEN play ball. This is the way it should be. The men on our squad have a lot of spirit, but we must fight fire with fire. If these other schools offer attractive scholarships, so must we. There are many good ballplayers who want to learn, but haven't the funds. They go to the schools that offer them the best deal. Why shouldn't they? Until Vermont can offer a program to rival the other Yankon schools, we will lose! We may not lose on the field today, tomorrow, or next week, but we WILL lose!

CATS FACE RAMS SAT.

by Joe Levin

This weekend the twice-beaten Catamounts fly to Kingston for an encounter with the battling Rams of the University of Rhode Island. This gridiron contest should prove to be another rough one for the Cats. Vermont has been plagued by injuries since its opening loss to Coast Guard, and several players will be doubtful starters in the URI game. In their recent shutout by the Black Bears of Maine, the Catamounts put up a stubborn battle. They were led by sixty minute performers Buddy Lewis and Bill Mooza.

Rhode Island has also suffered a loss to Maine, by a score of 7-0. UVM will face the much heavier line of Rhode Island, and may feel the absence of sufficient bench strength. Plenty of courage alone will not carry the Cats to their maiden victory against an improved Rhode Island squad. However, don't be surprised to see a fighting Catamount team battle down to the closing gun in this Yankee Conference encounter.

Sax Man Illinois Jacquet To Head Dance Band For Homecoming Ball

Illinois Jacquet, leader of Homecoming Band.

Illinois Jacquet, the "Dynamo of the Saxaphone," will head the band for the UVM Homecoming Ball on October 28th. Jacquet will be leading his band in the best of the latest danceable jazz. Well known in and out of jazz circles, Jacquet has long been recognized as a top performer.

A restless free-lancer, Jacquet started his professional career with Lionel Hampton, who signed him up as a soloist after a 25 minute addition. After two years with Hampton, he broke away to form his own combo, which performed successfully until Cab Calloway persuaded him to join his band, and Jacquet went east to the famous Meadowbrook in New York City, a well known incubator of jazz bands.

Following another period on his own and a successful movie short for Warner Brothers entitled "Jammin' the Blues," Jacquet joined Count Basie, perhaps the best known name in jazz bands today. During the year he spent with the Count, he was featured on a number of records, which have since become jazz classics. Among these are "The King," dedicated to Benny Goodman, "Mutton Leg" and "High Tide." Perhaps his best known record is "Flying Home," cut with Lionel Hampton. He has recently been featured on a record called "Illinois Jacquet Flies Again."

When Norman Granz, energetic and liberal jazz patron of Los Angeles, presented his famous "Jazz at the Philharmonic" and took a number of standout instrumentalists on a nationwide tour, Jacquet was rightfully included.

Subsequent to this successful venture, Jacquet returned to New York to form a band of his own. Soon RCA Victor offered him an exclusive recording contract, from which he has grossed excellent royalties. Some of the classics he has recorded include: "On the Sunnyside of the Street," "All of Me," "Wrap your troubles in Dreams," "Love is Here to Stay," "East of the Sun, West of the Moon," "Honeysuckle Rose" and "Stardust."

Jacquet, the "mighty mite" of the sax, being but 5' 6", has been playing since he was fourteen, and it was at eighteen that he was signed as the star soloist for Hampton. He is famed for his upper register playing, which has been called the "Supersonic Sound," and is reputed to have the highest range of any tenor saxaphonist going.

Jacquet's engagements have ranged from the Apollo Theatre in Washington; to Ciro's in Los Angeles, Birdland in New York; to the Ed Sullivan and Pattie Page Television shows.

Illinois Jacquet will be playing here in full force at Homecoming. As a preview of this talented and versatile instrumentalist, his records will be played on all the local radio stations, as well as WRUV.

SA To Hold Weekend Conference

The annual Student Associ- Abnaki Conference was held this weekend at Camp Abnaki in North Hero, Vermont.

The conference is being held to revise the SA constitution in respect to equitable representation on the council and for more effective communication between the students, the faculty and the administration.

According to Larry Dugan, member of the Conference Committee on Student Relations, "We are not meeting with an attitude of decision on issues. This is a discussion conference, a time in which various views will be expressed, considered and evaluated."

The three major topics of discussion will be;

1. The present problems facing the Student Association.
2. The purpose and objectives of a responsive and responsible student government.
3. The implementation of those attitudes expressed to be most feasible. Most of the work will be done in small group discussions.

The sixty representatives at the conclave will include President Fey, Dean Harris, Dean Clifford, Dean Rowell and other members of the administration and the faculty. Also represented will be the SA councilmen plus presidents and representatives of WSGA, Men's Residence Halls, IFC Panhellenic Council, and the CYNIC.

On Friday night, President Fey will address the body on "The State of the University". The keynote speech will be delivered by Dean Rowell who will tie in the results of last year's conference with the importance of this year's. Both a panel and an open discussion will follow.

Saturday's program will consist of talks and seminars on the three major issues of the conference.

Before the close of the conference, the session will be evaluated by both students and faculty.

During the week-end, the representatives have full use of the Camp Abnaki recreational facilities, to be used during free time. The food is being prepared by the SAGA food service. Transportation will be by individual cars.

General chairman of the conference is Jerry Emery. Other committee sub-chairmen are Jeff Bennett, transportation, Mike Collins, food and Larry Dugan, facilities. Dean Clifford and Mr. Mahoney are the advisors for the committee.

The conference this Friday night will be held in the Waterman Building and will be open to all students.

Details Of Russian Visit Are Disclosed

Latest word about the Russian students coming to UVM October 31 is that the total number of students is to be twelve, including one girl. An interpreter and an American tour director and his wife are to complete the party.

The group will hold a press conference on November first and are expected to appear on local radio and television programs before departing on November second.

The students are coming under the Lacey-Zarubin treaty of 1957. This agreement provides for an exchange of students between United States and the Soviet Union under the auspices of the Communist Youth Organization in the Soviet Union and the Council on Student Travel and the Experiment in International Living group in the United States.

The University of New Hampshire, University of Vermont, Boston, Dearborn, Michigan, Chicago, and Washington, D.C. are to be the major stops on their one itinerary.

The conference was "brought about by increased student interest in government on campus," said Dugan. It is hoped that it will be a "continuation" of last year's conference "and a positive step in the direction of better student government."

Rotival Speaks On Urban Project

Maurice E.H. Rotival

On Sunday, October 16, at 3 o'clock a lecture on Urban and Regional Planning will be given by Maurice E.H. Rotival in the Robert Hull Fleming Museum. The occasion of this lecture is the opening of Downtown Burlington, a project in urban design by fourth year students of the School of Architecture, Syracuse University. Introducing the project will be D. Kenneth Sargent, Dean of the School of Architecture. All students with interests in political science, sociology or economics and any interested Burlington residents are welcome to attend this opening. At the close of the program there will be a reception where guests will be afforded the opportunity to meet and talk with the speakers and some of the Syracuse students who actually designed the project.

Mr. Rotival, the main speaker, is an International Planning Consultant. He was born in Paris, France and educated at the University of Paris where he majored in philosophy, mathematics and law. In 1930 he opened his first planning office in Paris and at present has offices in New York City, New Haven, Paris and Caracas, Venezuela. Mr. Rotival has taught planning at the Yale School of Fine Arts, was chairman of planning and developmental research at Yale from 1940 to 1945 and is presently a visiting lecturer at Yale Law School and a visiting critic at the Yale School of Architecture.

Sunday's main speaker's accomplishments include his membership on the State of Connecticut Commission for Planning and Development and the formulation of the master plan for the redevelopment of New Haven. He was also instrumental in composing the general plan for the Federal District and City of Caracas and was a planning consultant for the Venezuelan government.

During the war, Mr. Rotival was a colonel in the French Air Force and was with the French Fighting Forces under Charles De Gaulle. He was the Secretary General of the French delegation at the International Allied Control Council in Berlin and was commander of the French Legion of Honor and the Legion of Merit.

"HOME SWEET HOMECOMING"

A great number of people have been asking me lately, "What is Homecoming?" but I have been so busy trying to find out why my new sports car leaks that I haven't had time to answer. I am now pleased to report that I finally discovered why my sports car leaks—I have been driving it upside down—and so I am ready today to turn my attention to Homecoming.

Let's begin with definitions. Homecoming is a weekend when old grads return to their alma maters to watch a football game, visit old classrooms and dormitories and inspect each other's bald spots.

The weekend is marked by the singing of old songs, the slapping of old backs and the frequent exchange of such greetings as "Harry, you old polecat!" or "Harry, you old porcupine!" or "Harry, you old rooster!" or "Harry, you old wombat!" As you can see, all old grads are named Harry.

It is not just old grads who behave with such liveliness during Homecoming, the faculty also comports itself with unaccustomed animation. Teachers laugh and smile and pound backs and keep shouting "Harry, you old Airedale!" This unscholarly behavior is carried on in the hope that old grads, in a transport of [illegible] will endow a new geology building.

The old grads, however, are seldom seduced. By game time on Saturday their backs are so sore, their eyeballs so eroded, their extremities so frayed, that it is impossible to get a kind word out of them, much less a new geology building.

Even the football game does not improve their tempers. "Hmmph!" they snort as the home team completes a 101-yard march to a touchdown. "Do you call that football? Why, back in my day, they'd have been over on the first down! By George, football was football in those days—not this namby-pamby girls' game that passes for football today! Take a look at that bench—30 substitutes sitting there. Why, in my day, there were 11 men on a team and that was it. When you broke a leg, they slapped a piece of tape on it and you went right back in. Why, I remember the big game against State. Harry Hagafuss, our star quarterback, was killed in the third quarter. I mean, he was pronounced dead. But did that stop old Harry? Not on your tintype! Back in he went and kicked the winning drop kick in the last four seconds of play, dead as he was. Back in my day, they played football, by George!"

Everything, say the old grads, was better back in their day—everything except one. Even the most unreconstructed of the old grads has to admit that back in his day they never had a smoke like Marlboro—never a cigarette with such a lot to like—never a filter so easy drawing, a flavor so mild yet hearty, so abundant, so bountiful—never a choice of flip-top box or soft pack.

So old grads, young grads, and undergrads, why don't you settle back and have a full-flavored smoke? Try Marlboro, the filtered cigarette with the unfiltered taste, and Homecoming will be a happy occasion and the sun will shine and the air will be filled with the murmur of wings and no man's hand will be raised against you.

At Homecoming time—or any time—try Marlboro's unfiltered companion cigarette—mild, flavorful Philip Morris... Regular size or king size Commander—a brand new and happy experience in smoking! Have a Commander—welcome aboard!

Vermont Now

The [illegible] Vermont Conference Committee is now holding regular meetings in preparation for the Fifth Annual Vermont Conference to be held March 22, 23 and 24.

The purpose of the Conference is to acquaint the student body with fields of knowledge not yet a part of the undergraduate program. In the past the Conference has brought to our campus men who are specialized in many fields, including Alan Watts (religion), J.L. Moreno (psychoanalysis), N. Cristo-[illegible] (physics) and Lawrence Ferlinghetti (poetry).

The present Committee is working on plans for having the speakers more available for classroom discussion, and also included in a panel discussion which would follow the presentation each evening.

Former Newsman Assumes UVM Post

Lawrence A. Kimball, new assistant director of public relations.

A Utica, N.Y., newspaper man has been named to the post of assistant director of public relations at the UVM, effective Oct. 10. Lawrence A. Kimball, a member of the sports staff of The Utica Press, succeeds Raymond L. Finehout, recently appointed alumni secretary of the University. Kimball has been with The Utica Press since June of 1958, and prior to that served two years with The Norwich, N.Y., Sun.

A native of Gorham, Me., where he was educated in the public schools, he is a graduate of Miami University in Oxford, O., where he earned the B.A. in radio-television. He is married to the former Jessica Simmons of Lebanon, Oregon and he and his wife are the parents of a daughter. A veteran of Army service, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Kimball, Morristown, New Jersey.

In his new post at Vermont, he will be responsible for handling the news and sports information programs of the University.

Fleming Museum- A Most Interesting Visit

You say you're not interested in bridge? Too many cups of coffee make you nauseous? Bored by the endless chatter and frivolity of campus life? Allow us to redirect your attention for a moment (or perhaps for the entirety of your student career). Look from the Coffee Shop and other centers of student population to the Fleming Museum. This is an institution which should be of value to every UVM student.

One of the attribute of the Museum is a public Student Lounge furnished with modern, but comfortable furniture, and a hi-fi which is available for student use. A wide variety of records are on loan for use in this room. The location is ideal for study, listening to music, meditation or just relaxation.

Frequenters of the lounge, however, should be on guard. The museum director, Mr. Richard Janson, believes in comfort but not in slovenliness. Perhaps a clue to the meaning of this statement can be obtained from this statement straight from the director's mouth.

"Why do people have to lie down on the couches."

See what I mean?

Several rooms are devoted to the display of artistic endeavors representative of contemporary trends and ideas. At the present there is a photography collection on modern church architecture which was loaned by the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Past collections have included woodcraft, modern art and photography. Most displays are changed monthly.

The Wilbur Library, home of the largest collection of data on Vermont, is also located in Fleming Museum.

One can usually find a University Player or two working downstairs in the Arena Theatre. This Theatre in the Round is the location of many stuudnt drama productions. It has been the scene of many past Thesbian successes. Watch the CYNIC for coming attractions.

Every museum has its galleries, and the Fleming is not lacking in this respect. It offers relics and artifacts in geology, Ancient, Medieval, Oriental and Primitive art, and in American Art and design. If one is interested in a particular subject, the museum usually has articles which may be of value. Since these articles may or may not be on display, if "you don't see it, ask about it." Someone may find it in the attic for you. A foreign and art film program, selected with an eye toward the value to students, is another aspect of the Museum. A membership in the Museum Association ($1.00), entitles one to attend these programs. Entrance fees to films are $.50 to non-members. The membership funds are used for acquisitions for the Museum.

Future Of Wilbur Fund In Doubt

Through the [illegible] endowment of the late [illegible] P. Wilbur, many deserving needy Vermont residents [illegible] been able to obtain an education here at UVM. However these students who [illegible] received this financial aid have had to work for the privilege. In order to be eligible for Wilbur Fund aid the student has to have a 86% or better average in his high school. He must then in his freshman year, main-tain an 81% average, and in his sophomore year move up to 83% in order to continue receiving aid. In his junior year, the student must attain an average of 85%. This means that he will have to be a Dean's List scholar, which for most of us here at Vermont, is no mean task.

Today, the continuance of Wilbur Fund aid to UVM is being threatened. Under the provisions of the original endowment, once the enrollment of the College of Arts and Sciences reaches 1000 students, the unused portion of the $2,500,000 fund goes to the Library of Congress. This explains why today's Pre Med students are enrolled in the College of Technology. However, by virtue of a bill recently signed by President Eisenhower, the Attorney General of the United States is directed to join with the University in petitioning the Vermont courts to modify the outmoded provisions of the trust. UVM's president, T. Fey, has said, "It will be for the courts to decide whether such a modification is justified."

Nurses Hold Reception

The Student Nurses Association held a reception for Freshman nursing students Thursday evening, September 20. Professor Mary [illegible] Lodge, Chairman of the Nursing Department, was introduced and presented with a Freshman beanie. The program also included a brief summary of each of the four years in the nursing curriculum and a discussion of Student Nurses Association membership and Club [illegible].

The next meeting, scheduled for October 25, will include a report of voluntary work in the refugee camps of Austria by Ester Colburn, Joanne Miller, and Jeanne Otto. There will also be a skit by the Student Nurses Association Community Health project.

New Student Coordinator Develops Plans For Students

Here at UVM we have a four letter word which new students will find to be almost unpronounceable. "Check with the COSA". This will be a frequent reply to students both old and new alike, who are participating in student activities here at the University. "Go to the COSA" should not be taken as a derogatory remark for COSA refers neither to the underworld ruler to Satan, its power. What COSA means (in addition to a lot of work) is Coordinator of Student Activities".

The new Coordinator of Student Activities is Arthur J. Mahoney, a 1958 graduate of the University of Massachusetts. Mr. Mahoney has assumed the position vacated by last years coodinator, Walter S. Slamakis, and the post is not an easy one to fill. Mr. Mahoney arrived here only two weeks before the Freshmen, but he is responsible for the efficient and cooperative functioning of extra-curricular activities on or off campus.

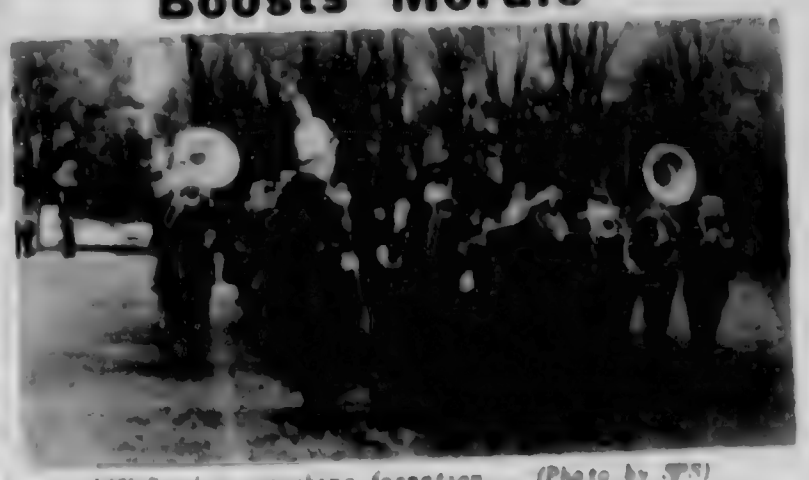
Having been a very active student himself, Mr. Mahoney can well appreciate the needs of students, not to forget the University, to have well planned extra-curricular functions. To support this, in his years at the University of Massachusetts, Mr. Mahoney was Social Chairman, Pledge Master, Activities Master and President of his fraternity, Phi Mu Delta. He was President of the Political Science Club, member of the International Relations Club, IFC, Student Association and others.

The COSA's office operates mainly for the benefit of UVM's extra-curricular organizations; however since extra-curricular activities are for individuals, and with particular consideration for Freshmen, Mr. Mahoney had this advice for them: although the aim of University life was to develop the individual, academic activities coming second. Coming second, yes, but not omitted. This, Mr. Mahoney stressed, calls for serious evaluation and repeated re-evaluation of the individual's needs, duties, and interests in respect to his basic reason for going to college, academic success.

But, to have student activities, there must be active students. Any student (and these are most students) who have the ability and time to help themselves by joining the many extra-curricular functions offered them are encouraged to do so. Finally, any information or advice on student activities may be readily obtained at the friendly but busy COSA office located just before the entrance to Waterman lounge.

Hollywood To Visit Southwick Friday Nites

The Best of Hollywood will once again come to the University of Vermont. The medium for this is the Student Association's film program for the 1960-61 school year. There will be a series of fine films presented admission free at Southwick at Redstone Campus.



Films on this series include "Anastasia", "The Long Hot Summer", "The Sun Also Rises", "Compulsion", "Tea and Sympathy", "Hatful of Rain", and other excellent movies.

The Student Association has set aside funds in their budget to bring this entertainment to the UVM student on an admission-free basis. Gordon Spring, '61, Senior Representative to the SA, is directing this film series. He selects the films and procures them through the audio-visual department of the university. He has also contracted for the use of a cinemascope projector and screen. The new equipment will make the program more enjoyable to the viewer.

This series will give the students of this university an opportunity to see some of the movies that they "missed". It will give others a second chance to see movies that they enjoyed the first time.

During the year the CYNIC will publish the dates and the times for the various SA film offerings in the UVM Calendar.

UVM Band Provides Music; Boosts Morale

Do you like music? Do you play an instrument, or want to learn? Can you twirl a baton?

If you can answer yes to any of these questions, then you'll be interested in the UVM band and all of its activities.

The band has been a part of UVM now for many years and is still a growing organization. Every year there is a campaign for new members which begins with the band reception. At the reception students are informed about the activities and the program lined up for the year by the band. And, according to any member of the band, it is both exciting and fun.

In the fall the band adds to the school spirit by playing rousing marches at all of the pep rallies. Then, at the football games, they march at halftime in their snappy green and gold uniforms. At this time, the majorettes also put on a demonstration.

Football is not the only event at which the band plays. Homecoming, one of

Outing Club Plans Fourth Trip

At nine A.M. Sunday, October 16, the Outing Club will leave Waterman for Smuggler's Notch and Elephant's Head. It will be their fourth trip of the season. Their first was a hike in the area of the Middlebury Snow Bowl; two weeks ago forty-eight people climbed Mt. Mansfield to Taft Lodge for the annual Mountain Day, and last weekend about a dozen outdoorsmen and women camped out overnight in the Adirondacks.

The club has planned trips for every weekend until the middle of November. On the agenda is a return appearance on Mansfield in conjunction with the Green Mountain Club this time to Butler Lodge, Camel's Hump - another overnight affair; and day hikes on Stark, Larraway, and Burnt Rock Mountains.

For those who prefer enjoying the beauties of nature vicariously, the Outing Club has organized a series of slides and movies. The first slide show was presented on Tuesday evening, Oct. 4. Dr. Lewis showed a series of rare photographs of remote areas in Yellowstone Park, including some most impressive pictorial evidence of the effects of a recent earthquake in the area. Later this fall, Mr. Wally Kessler, a former member of the Outing Club, will show his slides of the Pennigavessett Wilderness in New Hampshire, the Adirondacks, and the Green Mountains. On December 3, they will present their annual ski movie which this year will feature eastern skiing exclusively.

Meyers To Visit Barn

William H. Meyer, Democratic Congressman from the state of Vermont, will be at The Barn, Sunday evening, October 16th. It was announced that Mr. Meyer will make a short presentation on his political views, and then answer questions from the students.

Mr. William E. Mikell, Republican candidate for the Vermont House, will also be present to initiate questions, and to stimulate political conversation on the issues.

The Barn meets at the Campus Christian Center, 43 S. Prospect Street at 8 o'clock. All persons are welcome.

Dr. Bryant Awarded Grant

John H. Bryant, Assistant Professor of Experimental Medicine, has been awarded a research grant by the National Institutes of Health in the amount of $90,065. His research, to be carried out over a three year period, will deal with "Steroid Sensitivity and Resistance of Lymphoid Tumors."

Dr. Bryant joined the UVM faculty July 1, 1960. He is a native of Arizona, was graduated from the University of Arizona, and received his M.D. degree from Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons. He served his internship and a two year residency at Presbyterian Hospital New York, N.Y. He was a research fellow and a special research fellow for two years at the Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland; a research fellow for one year at Max Planck Institute Fur Zellchemie, Munich, Germany and before coming to UVM was a Special Clinical Trainee in hematology of the National Institutes of Health for one year at the Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, Mo.

In addition to his teaching and research duties, Dr. Bryant will be available for consultation with physicians in the area.

WSGA Mass Meeting

Women's Student Government Association, the official government of the University of Vermont's women students held its first Mass Meeting of the year a week ago yesterday. Attendance at the meeting was required of all undergraduate women.

After the black robed WSGA Council and Judiciary filed solemnly to their places on the stage, the meeting was opened with the usual recitation of the Vermont Pledge. Then the secretary and treasurer's reports were read and this year's House Presidents were installed. UVM's Dean of Women Emeritus, Mary Jean Simpson then gave a talk to the group, after which "Champlain" was sung and the meeting dismissed. This meeting followed more or less the pattern of all WSGA Mass Meetings from the traditional late start to the final song.

Many people wonder just what is the purpose of making attendance at these meetings compulsory. Certainly nothing is accomplished by the reading of minutes of a previous meeting or the Treasurer's Report that requires the presence of all the women students. The installation of House Presidents may be important to some people, but it is hardly worth the suspension of all other activities for an entire evening.

Miss Simpson's talk was unquestionably interesting, but she no doubt would have had a far more appreciative audience had it not been captive.

One wonders why attendance is mandatory when nothing is accomplished that requires the presence of all women. One wonders if it is the women students in general who benefit from these meetings, or some small portion which is interested in the Women's Student Government as an activity and would attend the meetings even if no coercion were applied. As it is, the majority of women students feel that they have attended the meeting against their will, have wasted an evening, and have accomplished nothing that could not have been better done in some more informal and less time-consuming way.

We suggest that the WSGA seriously consider making attendance at these Mass Meetings voluntary rather than compulsory. If the content of the meetings were interesting and important enough there would be no necessity to make them compulsory. The fact that the meetings are compulsory indicates that there is not enough interest and importance communicated by them to make it worthwhile for the women to attend of their volition. It should be the concern of WSGA Council to make attendance worthwhile on a voluntary basis rather than the duty of the women to attend regardless of content of the meeting. If WSGA Mass Meetings were not compulsory, the Council would soon find that it would be necessary to plan a worthwhile program to insure attendance. Such a course of action would inevitably strengthen WSGA by requiring better programs, and at the same time give the women students another bit of freedom that they now lack.

Applications For Fellowships

An election campaign [illegible] for the [illegible] candidates gets under way today as [illegible] hands of faculty members from universities and colleges [illegible] the United States and Canada begin [illegible] nominations for graduate [illegible] fellowships.

Designed to reduce a nationwide shortage of qualified college teachers, the program annually awards 1000 fellowships for first year graduate study at any university in the United States or Canada. Candidates are selected only after regional screening and personal interviews by one of fifteen regional committees of educators. Each elected fellow receives a $1500 stipend for living expenses plus full tuition and fees at the graduate school of his choice.

The program is open to college graduates mainly in the humanities and social sciences. Both men and women are eligible and there is no limit on the age of the candidate or on the number of years he may have been out of college. Those who receive awards are not asked to commit themselves to college teaching, but merely to "consider it seriously" as a possible career.

The program designed to encourage college seniors of outstanding ability to study for advanced degrees with faculty jobs as their goal, is administered by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation under a $24 500 000 five year grant from the Ford Foundation.

Dr Hans Rosenhaupt, National Director of the Wilson Fellowship Foundation, in an analysis of the past years's activities reported that the highly selected grants have been awarded to graduates from 560 different colleges. This is convincing proof that many colleges throughout the country, not only the few well-known ones, offer high quality education. Almost 90 per cent of all the 1000 Fellows in 1959-60 continued study after the first year, and more than 75 per cent of all Fellows eventually end up in academic positions. Of the nominated candidates who fail to win the Woodrow Wilson Fellowships more than 80 per cent, Dr Rosenhaupt said, went on to graduate school anyway, often with financial help from other sources. He estimated the annual need for new college teachers at 30 000 a year for the next ten years.

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation does not accept applications directly from students. Every candidate for the award must be nominated by a faculty member. Nominated students are invited to declare themselves active candidates for the award by sending the necessary application forms to the chairman of the selection committee for the region in which the prospective candidate is now located. A list of the fifteen regions and the names of the regional chairmen may be obtained from the Foundation's national headquarters, Box 642, Princeton, New Jersey, or from the Woodrow Wilson representative at any campus in the United States and Canada. Names of the fellowship winners will be made known by March 15, 1961.

Dean Charles E. Beach of the Graduate College is the UVM Woodrow Wilson representative for 1960-1961.

The Melting Pot

By ROGER ZIMMERMAN

I am all for sports. Be more the merrier, [illegible] have a winning football team, hurrah . . . Here [illegible] is quite true that this is all part of [illegible] let's not get too enthusiastic.

In last week's CYNIC, a sports editorial, [illegible] motivation, has seemingly gone astray after [illegible] and I think it should be rather carefully trac[illegible] missile full of ideas has, to begin with, a [illegible] inconsistencies. In one paragraph, the columnist [illegible] that "most of the men at UVM are here to l[illegible] them to play ball. This is the way it should b[illegible] But his very next sentence states that, "[illegible] our squad have a lot of spirit, but we must [illegible] with fire". Bill- where is Prometheus to be [illegible]

SMOLDERING FLAME

Yes, other schools do offer attractive sch[illegible] to athletes, but I would suspect that a good [illegible] these scholarships are offered on a "first [illegible] learn" basis. If this is what fighting fire [illegible] is going to mean, then I strongly suggest let[illegible] the others cool by themselves.

UVM is in the midst of a fantastic building [illegible] Vital things, like a new library, are under constr[illegible] tion. True, we desperately need a new gym. B[illegible] shouldn't be half of the athletic re-building [illegible] it should be ALL, for the time being. Suppose [illegible] amount of money was raised for more athletic [illegible] ships. Rather than import a load of potentially "[illegible] then learn" athletes, why not use this same [illegible] more purely academic scholarships; and there [illegible] is a need for more aid on a strict academic basi[illegible] why not use this same money for much-needed renov[illegible] For example, take a quick glance of East Hall, it [illegible] like it doesn't know which side to fall down on [illegible]

CRITICAL PROBLEMS

Classroom shortage, housing shortage, faculty shor[illegible] age; these are some of the problems that the nation's colleges and universities must face in the coming decade. UVM is no exception. These difficulties must be met with foresight, and along with that foresight there must be money, and lots of it. Are we to spare it on a part of college life that is looked upon by some educators as unnecessary?

Look at faculty salaries. Granted, if you want to make a million bucks, you wouldn't go into college teaching. At the same time, should not salaries be commensurate with the training and long years that go behind a college professor?

Rather than build up a program of athletic scholarships, why not build a systematic program of increasing faculty salaries? It looks very impressive to the alumni a season of football victories. At the same time, it is a pretty depressing situation when gifted teachers are forced into other areas because of poor opportunities, opportunity that could have been heightened had foresight been used originally.

If this is basically a case of values, then let us examine our values. It seems to me that the assurance of adequate student housing and classroom space is far higher then does a shortsighted T.D. on the ball [illegible]

WRA Schedules Sports Day

The WRA council has scheduled a Sports Day, October 15, and has invited Middlebury, Plattsburgh, Trinity, Castleton, and Green Mountain Junior Colleges. Girls are welcome to try their skill at hockey, tennis, or archery. The tennis courts will be reserved for this event. In case of rain, volleyball, ping pong, and bridge will be available in Southwick. After the contests cider and cookies will be served. Also scheduled for the coming week is the annual volleyball tournament.

Please note a correction in Item VIII on the entry blank. It should read: "Teams must be prompt or else the game is forfeited to the team which is present. If neither team is present, both will be accredited with a loss. Once a team is scheduled, it can not be rescheduled. Therefore, choose your preference wisely. No tournament game will be scheduled on nights reserved for All Campus Activities."

Players Announce Fall Musical

The Fall musical of the University Players has been announced. The selection was from among 15 all-time greats, the top long-run musicals of Broadway's spangled career. It is Where's Charley, a diverting English farce set in the turn-of-the-century; a frivolous Victorian lampoon of crisp and colorful humor and memorable music. Examples of Frank Loesser's inspiration are Once in Love With Amy, Make a Miracle, and My Darling. Loesser has scored such hits as Guys and Dolls and Most Happy Fella.

Casting for singers will be completed this week. Auditions will be heard today, Thursday, October 6, from 4 to 6 P.M. and tomorrow, October 7, from 8 to 10 P.M. All tryouts are to be held in the Arena Theatre. We need "Charley" and his companions in comedy to begin rehearsal on this show. Come out, look in on us, and try out now. The tryouts are open to all members of the University student body.

Have you lost a book, eyeglass case, ring, diary, Volkswagon, etc., etc., etc.?

If so, check in the CODA office, Room 36, Waterman Building immediately.

The approximately 12 Russian students who will visit the UVM campus will live in fraternity houses to obtain a different view of college life than they will on their other stops, not a truer view as the CYNIC last week erroneously stated.

On Tuesday, October 18th at 8 P.M., Mr. Mahoney, the Coordinator of Student Activities will hold a meeting in the Student Lounge with all the Social Chairmen of Dormitories, Fraternities, and Sororities.

Cuba, Castro, And Me

by EDWARD KRITZLER

Edward Kritzler, a UVM Junior, spent several weeks in Fidel Castro's Cuba this summer. Some of the things he saw and learned there are vastly different from the average American's assessment of the existing situation. In a series of articles commencing in this week's CYNIC, Mr. Kritzler will discuss the Cuba he saw. The opinions in his articles are his own and do not necessarily represent those of the CYNIC.

"Cuba Si! Yankee No!" the roar like a tidal wave swept over me, and I was engulfed by an ocean of noise, or more literally one and a half million vociferous Cubans. The demonstration continued uninterrupted for forty more minutes going through eight different chants, and finally concluding with "Mangos Si! Whiskey No!"

When this display of nationalistic fever subsided somewhat, I turned my attention to the raised platform forty yards before me. On this platform stood Fidel Castro, the Cuban President, Dorticos, and other dignitaries in the Cuban government. It was at this moment Dorticos noticed me, and shot out his hand in a friendly wave. Now, though I had met and talked with him two days before, chills still went up my spine; I mean it's not everyday that a president of a country waves to you. Anyhow, taking advantage of the opportunity, I lifted up my cameras, and motioned that I would like to come forward to take some pictures. With a magnanimous gesture he waved me onward, and told one of the militia to guide me to the base of the platform. Thus, standing in front of the reporters representing A.P., U.P.I. and C.B.S., I began snapping away -- But wait, how did all this come about? What was I doing here, or in Cuba itself for that matter.

To answer these and other questions, I had better go back in time to November of 1957. It was then that I first became interested in Fidel Castro and the Cuban revolution. At that time an article appeared in The Nation written by Dr. Castro in which he set forth the aims of his "26th of July Movement." For the next few years I followed this event very closely, seeing Castro as the answer to Cuban problems. Around March of this year however, I began to wonder --- everyone was denouncing Castro and his regime: he was a dictator, the revolution had turned communistic, his trials had been a blood bath, etc. Though I did not become completely converted by this adverse propoganda, it did throw my mind into a turmoil, and stir up in me the desire to see for myself what was really happening in Cuba.

Not being in the financial position so as to visit Cuba solely as a tourist, I went, during the Easter vacation, to the Cuban Embassy to find out about job opportunities there. When I walked in and told the secretary my situation, she told me to wait a moment, and went into an inner office. A short time later, a small, thinly built man with glasses opened the office door, and beckoned me to come in. He greeted me warmly, and told me how glad he was that I wanted to find out, first hand, about Cuba and her revolution. We discussed this situation for another ten minutes, and then got on to my immediate problem. He said at the moment, since there was unemployment in Cuba, any available jobs would go to those Cubans who were unemployed. He also told me though, that his government was instituting a summer program for those students who wished to visit Cuba. For $70 a month, the students would be placed in summer colonies all over Cuba where they would receive room and board, and be taken on trips throughout the Island to observe the results of the revolution. These summer colonies would begin June 25, and they expected two to three thousand students to participate; in fact they were sending notices of this program to the different schools throughout the United States. I was very glad to hear this, as I could easily afford $70 a month, and thus would be able to remain in Cuba as long as I wished. I thanked him for the time and the interest he had shown me; he answered, he was only too happy to do anything he could for a student who wished to visit his country. Also, if I should encounter any problems, I should call him immediately, and he would do whatever he could. This man was Raul Roa the Cuban Foreign Minister, and head delegate to the U.N.

When actual adjustment, I made the necessary preparations, and on the 27th of June I flew down to Cuba. I must admit I did have some reservations about this program, for since it was sponsored by the Cuban government, I believed they would only allow me to see what they wanted me to. All my doubts proved to be unfounded as I began the most eventful, enlightening, and fascinating summer I will probably ever experience. Though the Cuban government expected two or three thousand students to join the summer colonies, only four others and myself showed up. Thus, after one week, I left the colony and spent the remainder of the summer traveling all over the island on my own.

I always felt my generation was one crammed full of curiosity, not to be satisfied or to take as the gospel all that is written in the press concerning world events -- especially the Cuban situation. History is being made only ninety miles from Miami, and it really was a shame that throughout the summer less than fifteen students came to Cuba to view this revolutionary process. To be honest however, I greeted this disappointment of my generation with mixed feelings, for being practically the only American down there, I was able to do, see, and hear many things that would have been impossible if two or three thousand students had come.

In my ensuing articles, I will recount to you my many interesting experiences, and what is happening in Cuba today - her problems, her people, and her revolution. I will also deal with, and explain the underlying causes behind Cuba's external problems, especially those concerning her conflict with the U.S., and her relationship with Russia.

I realize, I am going to stir up a lot of controversy, for what I will be writing is contrary to what most people have heard about Cuba and Castro. Please bear me out though, for the knowledge I have gained this summer, I believe to be of great importance to the awakening of our generation and thus I wish to share it with you.

Faculty Dance Group Meets

"A woman's work is never done" so it is said, yet an ambitious group of housewives have time to participate in the activities of the Faculty Dance Group. Every Tuesday evening at 8:00 p.m. the dance group meets on the third floor of the Fleming Museum for their modern class, under the instruction of Mr. Herbert McArthur. Mrs. McArthur succeeds Mrs. Eugene Lepeschkin, who stopped teaching last year. The group, sponsored by the University Club, is open to any woman on or off the UVM campus. Dues are $2.50 per year (September of June).

The club was founded ten years ago by Mrs. Lepeschkin, who formerly studied modern dance with Martha Graham. Mrs. Lepeschkin's desire to teach modern dance was supplemented by her avid students. Mrs. McArthur was one of her first pupils. The group itself is nonprofessional, and rarely gives public recitals. A few years ago it did perform for the Unitarian Church and the University Club. The main emphasis of the group is placed on the exploration of rhythms, forces, and the textures of music, and the basic uses of these elements in interpretative dancing. The purpose of the club is "to develop dancing out of the use of the principles of modern dance," Mrs. McArthur stated. All woman students are welcome to join in the group.

HOMECOMING- BEHIND THE SCENES

As Homecoming weekend draws closer we note an influx of students running in and out of CDSA, putting up posters and notices in Lower Waterman, and assembling for meetings at odd hours of the day. This influx is, to some degree, being caused by the Homecoming Committee of 1960. The Staff and Sandal and Key and Serpent Honor Societies have banded together this year as they have in past years to organize a bigger and better Homecoming than ever before. We should stop and take a look at who they are and what they are doing.

First of all the co-ordinators of the whole committee are Noel Hallett and Dave Gardner. Their duty is to see that each committee has its fair share of the work and fun of putting on Homecoming.

Bev Knight is the capable treasurer, taking care of the financing of the weekend. The dance committee is headed by Marcia Smith and Joe Levin, who have procured a band and who will organize the decorations for the Homecoming Ball. Sue Wichterman and Ted Edgecomb have already made great strides ahead on calling together the king and queen candidates from each freshman living unit.

It is the hope of the committee that at the Saturday Homecoming football game the new half-time ceremonies directed by Pat B[illegible] and Jerry Emery, will be very successful. Jerry and Pat have been trying to coordinate their ideas with the Alumni Association.

The tickets for the Homecoming Ball, which have been taken care of by Bonnie [illegible] and Maynard Ducatte, are on their way to the press and will be up for sale the week before the ball in Lower Waterman and in the University Bookstore. Debbie [illegible] and Ann Parker are heading the committee on Mum and Pop's Day. This is a well-balanced program for the parents on Saturday, starting with registration at 8:00 a.m. in Lower Waterman.

The Homecoming publicity has been undertaken by Ken Sadler and Mike Collins, with their committee consisting of Liz Soule, Barb Ri[illegible] and Joan Peterson. Recently a new committee has been formed to assist the publicity, the Poster Committee, with Chris Bergmann and Agnes Esposito as chairmen.

The remaining members of the Homecoming Committee are helping out as they are needed. They are Bonnie Burgess, Susanne Dane, Sa[illegible] Green, Peggy Link, Lou[illegible] Lorand, Joanna Lull, Jo[illegible] Manley, Maureen Sexton, Pa[illegible] Willig, and Alice Zalon.

ACACIA

"By the way, the boys won a football game."
"By a large margin?"
"W-e-l-l"
"Well what?"
The final score was Zero-Zero."

There are now five new brothers in Acacia. The boys were developing paddle fixations so we brothered them up and fixed that. Hilt Abbott, Joel Barkman, Austin Cleaves, Peter Franz and Dave Shiverick, having survived the initiation last weekend, are now proudly wearing the black and old gold triangle.

Some news from recent alums; Carl Peabody is working in Bergennes and is entering the service early in November, as is Richard Ranney who is working for the Soil Conservation Service. Stu Maynard is enrolled at Andover Newton Theological Seminary.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Pam Havens, Alpha Chi, '61, was recently pinned to Bill Amidon, Theta Chi, '61.

We had a very successful exchange dinner with Sigma Nu. After dinner, we all joined in some community singing (Mitch Miller style). We hope we can do it again sometime--it was a lot of fun.

We received word from three of our recent alums. Jane [illegible] is studying for her Masters at the University of [illegible]. and Sue Flax Hines is studying for her Masters up [illegible]. In between time she [illegible] her husband Herbie (now a freshman in Vt. Med. School) [illegible]. On the continental side Joyce Zipf is having a blast blowing around Europe. She's seeing the sights and then some.

The Alphies at home, however have begun knitting for our annual Sock Sale. There's all kinds of progress being made. We're all hoping the 'Monsoon' season holds off until after the sale.

Unfortunately, there seems to be one sad Alpha Chi by the name of Ellie Lissner - could she be unhappy because Uncle Sam has called D.P.B.?

ALPHA DELTA PI

Several hungry ADPi's were thwarted last week when the delivery truck from Doug's, bringing their food, caught on fire in front of 363 So. Willard. Many alarms were turned in, however, and no major catastrophe resulted, except burned food.

Congratulations go this week to Jo Nason, our new WRA representative, and Marion Force who will be in charge of our Homecoming poster.

Marge Edwards, now attending the University of Rochester, was in Burlington last weekend and stayed at the house. We were all glad to see her again.

The Alpha Delta Pi's tea last Sunday for our head resident, Mrs. Grow, was a great success.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

The AEPhi's had a wonderful time at a tea held at Kappa Alpha Theta.

Our annual Fall Party is in its planning stage and promises to be a big success. Our theme is "Psycho" and we are sure we'll all have a "spooking" good time.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

Last Wednesday night, AEPi was honored to have as dinner guests, Dean Leonard, Mr. Wilotkin and their most charming wives. An informal discussion followed the dinner.

The brotherhood wishes to express their gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard and Mr. and Mrs. Wilotkin, for what turned out to be a most delightful and informative evening.

Congratulations to Mr. Paul Wilotkin, our faculty advisor, on becoming an honorary brother of the Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity.

Newest addition to the brotherhood - Mike Zeltzerman; latest addition to our pledge class - Dave Selib. Welcome aboard buys.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

The A.T.O. Prize of the Week goes to the one and only "Chief" Decherd for his active interest in the General Electric strike. The evenings of October fifth and sixth found Chief picketing wholeheartedly for the ----what??---labor groups??

The weekend of October 2nd saw a full house of ninety-five freshmen mingling through the halls at 21 South Williams. Refreshments were served, and an enjoyable day was had by all.

Several brothers from the University of Maine chapter of A.T.O. visited the house the weekend of the game with the Black Bears. Despite their victory over the Catamounts, they turned out to be pretty nice fellows---didn't gloat a bit!(?)

On Tuesday, October fourth, the Fighting Taus defeated Lambda Iota 28 to 6 on the inter-fraternity gridiron, but were defeated on October sixth by an able team from Tau Epsilon Phi, 6 to 0.

The war drums rang out October eighth as the Taus threw a fall Indian Dance complete with war paint and feathers. Everyone had a "whooping" good time despite the frequent appearances of Dew-Dew Fargar and his paint-running squirt gun.

BEAT ROCHESTER!!!!

DELTA DELTA DELTA

The sisters of Tri Delta welcome back Mrs. Fifield, their housemother.

The national convention was held at the Lake Placid Club in June this year. Patricia Morse, Jo Lull, and Beverly Browne attended it.

Two Tri Deltas went to Europe this summer. Jean Ottoway worked at a refugee camp in Germany. Kay Colburn toured.

Patricia Morse has just returned from a stay in Missouri and Michigan where she acted as Vermont's representative to the Danforth Fellowship.

Several Tri Deltas will be attending other schools this year. Patricia Sheehan is at Garland College. Kay Millard is in Hawaii finishing her college education. Stephanie Sirota is in Paris studying at the Sorbonne during her first semester.

Doreen Hector Richards is now married and is living in Center Rutland while attending Castleton Teachers' College.

The Tri Deltas welcome Sue Graff Weiss as their new advisor.

Three new officers were elected: Sharon Garrity is now the Rush Chairman, Carol Fischer, the Social Rush Chairman, and Kay Colburn, the Librarian.

Ricki Means was elected to be the 1963 class representative of Tri Delta in the 1963 Class Activities Committee.

On Saturday all the Tri Deltas pitched in for a work day. Then on Sunday a tea for alumnae was held.

GAMMA PHI BETA

The Gamma Phis give a round of applause to Sandy Kornstedt for her outstanding performance with the fire baton at half time last Saturday.

Congratulations to the girls who were installed at the WSGA Mass Meeting last Wednesday night -- Anne Parker, Junior Member of the Judiciary Council, Barb Rifkin, Treasurer of the WSGA, and Rachel Rice, House President. Also to Lois Lorand who was appointed Junior Representative to the Joint Conference Committee.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Last Sunday, Oct. 9, the Thetas joined the AEPhi's in giving a tea for their new housemothers, Mrs. Sheffert and Mrs. Cutts. It proved to be quite successful and everyone agreed how fortunate the houses are to have such grand persons.

The exchange dinner with Alpha Gamma Roe Tuesday was a gay time with singing, guitar, guitar-playing, and general fun. Our new neighbors across the street have a beautiful house with a patio to boot. All the Thetas were pleased to meet their housemother, Mrs. Simmerne, who certainly has the right spirit for keeping the boys in tow.

The Thetas want everyone to know that Bobbie Crouch returned from Wesleyan two weekends ago with a beautiful diamond. Casey Hayes, the lucky fellow, is an Eclectic at Wesleyan and is going into pre-vet after he graduates this year. A June wedding is planned and they are looking forward to living in California.

By SANDY CAMERON

Ginnah Hunnington, our worldly one, flies to Boston last weekend for the Ariel conference.

PHI DELTA THETA

Just as the University of Vermont is undergoing an athletic rebuilding program, the Phi's are likewise rebuilding, only academically. This semester the big drive is on to raise the house average in the Marble Palace into the plus 75 category. If the present pace is any indications, the Phi's may realize their long sought after goal by semester's end. We hope.

Turning away from the academic scene, the Silver Knight's opened their football season with a resounding 32-6 win over AGR. The Phi's were led by the passing of Jon Wilkinson, and the running of Spike Jarrett, Reid Lasson, Jon Graff, and "Legs" Noble. This season the Phi's have a "team" in the true sense of the word, and are looking forward to a winning season.

On campus, the Phi's are turning their attention toward the upcoming Homecoming weekend and are already in the first stages of float-construction. This year the boys from 439 College are planning to finish the float before the Peerade.

Over the weekend the Phi's were pleased to "entertain" freshman men in an open house affair. Bob Billings, who was in charge of the gathering, reported that the Phi's did a good job in getting the house in shape for the Frosh, and that it was a very enjoyable afternoon.

Familiar faces of Phi Delt alum's were a welcome sight last weekend (especially to two Theta's). They were Roy Greene, Lou Petronici, Al Wagda, and Steve Coops.

SIGMA PHI

The Sigs are still shoveling hay out of the cellar after last week's "hayseed" party at the house which was a great success.

We are happy to welcome our new pledge, Chris Terrien, to the house.

The Sigs are very happy to have been selected as one of the houses on campus to be host to a group of Russian students, who will be visiting UVM early in November. We are all anxiously awaiting their arrival.

PHI SIGMA DELTA

Fern Hill opened its portals this past Sunday to the men of '64. We were able to welcome many freshman and hope their interest in fraternities will increase by formal rushing in January.

Last Thursday night we had guests for dinner. It was our pleasure to welcome Mr. London of the Speech Department and his wife to the house and hope to see them again in the near future. Also over for dinner were Mr. Lisman, the alumni adviser of the house, Mr. Reiter, ex-National President of Phi Sigma Delta, and their wives.

So far our record in football is 2-0. We beat Acacia last Monday and Sig Ep last Wednesday under the able leadership of Captain Bunky Brown with assists from "Selah" Agel and Steve Kuperstein.

The sophomore class is planning a party for the evening of October 15th. If it is anything like last year's pledge party, it should be a tremendous success.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Last weekend Sig Ep played host to District Governor Truman L. Henderson and Robert Kirkpatrick, Grand Chapter Representative is visiting us for a few days this week. The house got back into its singing spirit with the serenading of Nancy Gibson, who was recently pinned to Jay Harvey, and its exchange dinner calendar begins this week with Alpha Delta Pi.

The Fraternity sincerely hopes that Rocky Williams will recover from his recent accident in time to be with us for the Homecoming festivities.

SIGMA NU

Sigma Nu started off its football season well with a victory over Sigma Phi. Although the weather conditions were adverse the team looked like another championship club for the house. Under the able coaching of George Gunn and staff coupled with the sideline coaching of "W" Pine, there is little doubt that we will take home the

This is the B-52? Advanced as it may be, this airplane has one thing in common with the first war galleys of ancient Egypt—and with the air and space vehicles of the future. Someone must chart its course. Someone must navigate it.

For certain young men this presents a career of real executive opportunity. Here, perhaps you will have the chance to master a profession full of meaning, excitement and rewards—as a Navigator in the U. S. Air Force.

To qualify for Navigator training as an Aviation Cadet you must be an American citizen between 19 and 26½, single, healthy and intelligent. A high school diploma is required, but some college is highly desirable. Successful completion of the training program leads to a commission as a Second Lieutenant . . . and your Navigator wings.

If you think you have what it takes to measure up to the Aviation Cadet Program for Navigator training, see your local Air Force Recruiter. Or clip and mail this coupon.

Thursday night Sigma Nu had an exchange dinner with the Alpha Chi's. "Matri's" Waldorf served everyone with his white tablecloths and flawless service. Afterwards over coffee and cookies, conversations ensued. Upon finding two "Cue's" a song fest was started. Ivy Buttercase and Bud Davis "strummed" while the rest of us "hummed". After going through a half dozen Kingston Trio songs we ended with "Good Night, Ladies", putting the final touch on a wonderful evening. Our chaperones were Father and Mrs. Donald Boyer.

Saturday night was also a successful occasion. Sigma Nu and Pi Phi had a combined open house. The music was provided by the Kappa Sigma "combo" band. A good turnout and lots of dancing made the house really "jump". In fact, it almost seemed like a Mid-winter house party.

We were greatly honored to have been chosen by the University to house Russian students that are coming on campus. We realize the educational benefits from this visit and are awaiting them eagerly.

TAU EPSILON PHI

Tep is on the move this year and it looks like one of the best years for us. We're all settled in our great new house, having successfully dedicated the structure with our tremendous "TEP Twin Party", featuring Rick Nash and his Night Riders.

This year the TEP men are looking forward to a successful season of athletics and scholarship. Our football team is ready with one win under our belts and the TEP championship basketball team plans to build its title quest season. With our new scholarship program under chairman Barry Bauer we are looking forward to a semester in which Kappa Chapter will attain the best house average. Social Chairman, Gabe Jaffee, has let the word out that the TEP Homecoming will be the best ever in our beautiful new ballroom. All in all, it looks like a great year with TEP on top.

Government Speaker

Seniors and juniors desiring information about United States Government employment will have an opportunity on Thursday October 20 to talk with Mr. Stuart F. Loeffler Regional Personnel Officer, who will be on campus the entire day.

The main purpose of Mr. Loeffler's visit is to publicize the examination for Immigration Patrol Inspector in the Border Patrol. He will also discuss the Federal Service Entrance Examination, which is open to women as well as men. Individual or group interviews may be arranged at the Placement Service, 159 Waterman, and materials about government opportunities are available there.

[illegible] conversion failed and mid[illegible] the first quarter led 6 to 0.

The second score of the period was as exciting as the first. [illegible] Hughes, a five foot ten defensive end, intercepted an R.P.I. pass attempt on the Vermont 34 and ran 66 yards to score. This time the conversion was good making the score 13 to 0. For the rest of the first quarter and the entire second the Vermont offense threatened but just couldn't get across the goal line. The half ended with Vermont ahead 13 to 0.

The Catamounts never letting up, kicked off to start the second half and within two plays recovered a fumble. At one minute and fifty seconds of the third quarter they scored their only TD of the period. Bob Greco hit right end Paul Toussaint with a 15 yard pass. Greco then faked the extra point and threw to Tom Paris for two points, resulting in a 21-0 score. The remaining minutes of the period saw the UVM defensive stalwarts squelch any R.P.I. attempt for a score. The offense in the meantime continued to roll on. As the quarter ended, the Catamounts were on the R.P.I. 15.

In the first play of the fourth period, Vermont was penalized 5 yards for off-sides. On the next play, Paul Toussaint scored his second touchdown of the afternoon when he caught a 20 yard pass from quarterback Greco. The conversion failed, and Vermont led 27 to 0. The final UVM score of the day was registered with one minute to go in the game. Tom Paris scooted around his right end, gaining 8 yards and the final touchdown of the game. The point after, by Leo Danis, was good and the game ended with an impressive 34 to 0 UVM win registered on the scoreboard.

Sports Questionnaire

QUESTION — What do you think should be done to improve school spirit at UVM?

Rod Stone '61 — It is my belief that the addition of a student [illegible], where the student body, as a group, can get together and exchange ideas will enhance [illegible] spirit which is presently [illegible].

Barrett Smith '62 — I think that [illegible] should express more [illegible] spirit. Also, weekly or [illegible] publications, devoted [illegible] to school functions, should be distributed. An important thing to remember however, is that spirit should not be [illegible] the sport's scene, but should be a part of other campus [illegible] as well.

Bill Davies '63 — I think one of the [illegible] factors to the [illegible] spirit on this campus [illegible] the failure of the pep [illegible]. A number of people around these rallies are poorly [illegible]. Perhaps if they were [illegible] more interesting, or better [illegible]ized, more students would attend. Also if more stu[illegible] played buttons or posters, a general atmosphere of spirit might permeate this campus.

Bob Hoffman '63 — After witnessing the spirit displayed in last Saturday's game between the UVM freshman team and the RPI freshman team, I am convinced that the freshmen should play a more prominent role in the development of spirit on the UVM campus. If they could sit together as a group during football games or other activities, maybe a little of their interest would rub off on the upperclassmen.

Ted Splaver '62 — I think the administration should be loosened up. We should have more organized campus activities. One thing that would greatly improve school spirit is "Frosh Hazing". Freshmen should be required to wear their "beanies" for a suitable period of time. First and foremost however,! GET OUT AND SUPPORT YOUR TEAM, whether it be in football, basketball, track, or baseball.

Dale Allen — Oh I don't know. I think spirits have been flowing pretty well throughout the campus.

Frosh Win X-Country

by Mike Steinberg

The Freshman Cross Country team opened their season on the right foot today, by stomping the Union Frosh 20-41. The winner of the meet was the Kittens' Gary Karen of Rochester, New York. His time was 14:18.8, one minute faster than any of the other competitors. Second was Ron Bishop also of UVM, and third was John Sepples of Union. The remaining places were dominated by the Kittens. Don Moreau, Walker Leighton, Mike Grossman, Jay Ocuin, and Paul Maffie all finished in the top ten.

The remaining meets for the frosh will be warm-ups with High Schools in preparation for the New Englands which take place November 7 in Boston.

Harriers To Face Wesleyan

by Richard Rappaport

The impressive UVM Cross-Country team, in its first away meet of the season this Friday, engages the tough Wesleyan University Harriers at Middletown, Connecticut. The Vermont Cross-Country team is looking forward to keeping its undefeated record intact, while Wesleyan is anxious to avange last year's narrow defeat 24-31.

This year's meeting is again expected to be a close, affair. With the departure of four of the first five Vermont finishers in last year's meet, the outcome Friday will depend a great deal on the ability of this predominantly sophomore team to overcome the unfamiliar surroundings. They have proved that they have the skill and the desire; with these two assets, they should be able to by pass their handicaps and defeat a more experienced Wesleyan squad, composed of some lettermen, and a fine group of sophomores, even on their home grounds.

NOTICE

There will be a Varsity Club meeting tonight" at 7:30 p.m. in the back armory room of the Gym.

FROSH FROLICS

by Wayne Mirsky

Such cries as "Hallelujah", "Wing on St. Lawrence, we'll [illegible] for 'em" and "Who says the Frosh ain't great", echoed through the jubilant dressing room of the Vermont freshman football team as they had just mangled R.P.I. 34-0. This week's performance "boys to a tee" all the praise I had endowed upon them in my previous article. The Kits featured a war-like defensive line and a diversified backfield comprised of two breakaway runners, bruising fullback and a spirited quarterback. All this combined to compile one of the most one-sided victories witnessed at Centennial field in the past five years.

From the moment Al Brown ran a Rensselaer punt back sixty-five yards for a touchdown, to the final gun, the Kittens were never thwarted. Shortly after Brown's run back, Ed Hughes, a speedy end, picked off a would-be pass and galloped eighty yards unmolested for a Green and Gold score. The play brought the highly partisan crowd to its feet in a standing ovation. Hughes remarked after his "journey" that this was something he had long dreamt about but never thought would happen. Keep dreaming frosh, and maybe we'll see a premier undefeated season.

Other notables worthy of mention are Tom Perras for his dazzling end runs, Paul Toussaint for his two "circus" touchdown catches, Ollie Thorensen, who seemed to emerge from the bottom of every pile with the opposing ball carrier neatly tucked away in his arms, Leo Davin for his powerful running and kicks, that held the crowd in awe, and Pete Wiens, a converted end, who ran with cat-like strides, out of the halfback position.

The above mentioned were some of the individuals who provided the thrills for the spectators. However, it is needless to say that the days activities were a team effort. In fact, the second and third teams "held fort" masterfully when sent in to replace the first team late in the first and second halves. Next Saturday, the Kittens travel southward to Canton, New York for a game which should prove a real test of their ability. Last year's Frosh compiled a 4-1 record, with their only loss coming at the hands of St. Lawrence, the team we play this week.

Friday, before the game, the freshman harriers won their first meet of the season with a devastating 20-41 trouncing of the Union Frosh. In this gruelling four mile run, Vermont captured eight out of the first ten places. Gary Karch of Rochester, New York, jogged home in a near record performance. Ronnie Bishop of Jericho, was second for the Kits, and Union's John Sepples was third. Rounding out the field in order were: Vermont's Don Moreau of Swanton, Andy Warde of Union, and Leighton Walker, Mike Grossman, Jay Ocium, Paul Maffei all of UVM.

Congratulations to coaches Archie Post and "Fuzzy" Evans for a job well done, and I'm sure we'll hear much more from these two fine teams as the season progresses.

Letters To The Sports Editor

Dear Stan,

I beg to differ with your statement in last week's CYNIC: "Although the visitors' stands contained not even one-fifth of the population of the Vermont stands, their cheering was as loud as ours."

Firstly, a good portion of those "visitors" hailed from St. Mikes', not Maine, and Michaelman are well-known for their cheering sections.

Secondly, the Vermont stands were jammed with UVM'ers and State Day guests, and we cheered loud and long. It even went to the extent that the cheerleaders picked up our cheers, instead of the opposite.

Thirdly, the Maine cheerleaders changed clothes at Mansfield, where I live, and all of them congratulated us very sincerely on "The best cheering section" they've ever heard at a college game!

Don't you think that the old sports column standby, about lack of enthusiasm, has been worked to death? What do you say—let's retire that number!

Amato Scores From 5; Our 3rd Loss In A Row

by John Kaplan

The University of Vermont football squad sustained its [illegible] straight loss on Saturday to a powerful Rhode Island eleven. The game, was a lot more of a contest than the 48-8 score might [illegible].

Rhode Island opened the scoring within minutes after the opening kickoff. It took only five plays to reach [illegible] and the Cats were on the short end of an 8-0 tally. The Cats bounced back in the [illegible] minutes of the first quarter with a touchdown of their own. With a first and ten situation on the Ram twenty yard line, Bill Fleming hit Maynard Ducatte with a 15-yard pass play that carried to the RI five. Frank Amato bulled his way into the end zone from there, carrying two Rams with him. Fleming then hit Amato for the two point conversion which knotted the game at 8-8.

Rhode Island scored two additional touchdowns in the first half and led at the intermission 24-8. Making use of the long pass, Rhode Island gained 228 yards through the air. Not geared to a strong pass defense against the Rams, the UVM defense was caught flatfooted by the 24 passing attempts of RI.

At the start of the fourth quarter, the Cats, second and seven on the Ram 15, blew their scoring opportunity. On their next series of downs, the Cats fumbled on their own 25. When Rhode Island scored two plays later, the game was all but clinched.

With eleven minutes remaining, coach Donnelly took out his entire first string. Everybody riding the bench played the rest of the way, many out of their regular positions. This group played the rest of the way, giving up three more touchdowns to a still hard-pressing Rhode Island eleven.

Even though the 48-8 score was not an accurate representation of UVM play, the Cats again suffered from inadequate manpower and line weight. The average weight of the Rhode Island line was 218 pounds. This serves as some contrast to the Catamount line which weighs about 191. It can only be hoped that enough members of a powerful Kitten team will be around in the next few years to lend some support to an undermanned varsity. Unfortunately, in the past, quite a number of good prospective teams never quite materialized due to the lack of something known as grades.

CATS FACE ROCHESTER

by Howard Gomey

The Catamounts' improved play in their last two games has caused a change in previously pessimistic predictions of their fate on the gridiron. Since the Cats' disastrous trip to New London, UVM has shown progressive proficiency in the air and on the ground with each consecutive quarter they play. In the tilt against the University of Maine, the Green and Gold achieved its initial first down of the season. The following week, the Burlington populace was astounded to hear of the Cats' breakthrough into the scoring column against the mighty Rams of Rhode Island.

This Saturday, UVM plays against the Yellow Jackets of Rochester. The Yellow Jackets' Varsity has been weakened considerably by graduations, and their freshman squad of last year had a considerable lack of talent, as illustrated by their poor record! The law of averages theorizes that the Cats' bad breaks can't last forever, and this weekend's contest should mark their disappearance.

Harriers Beat Union

Courtesy of Vt. Sports Publicity Dept.

[illegible] VT, [illegible] 8.

[illegible] — [illegible] cross-country ace Hal Billings won first place, the UVM Cross-Country team added another win to their still-undefeated season when they placed the first six men in a meet with Union College and scored a perfect 15-49 victory.

Because in cross-country the low score wins and each runner's point standing equals his placing in the finish, Vermont had the meet already won before a Union harrier crossed the finish line. When Union's first runner finally arrived, it was too late to affect the outcome of the meet as Coach Archie Post's harriers had run away with the top six places.

Winner Hal Billings ran the 4.2 mile course in 23:37.4—only a few seconds off his winning time last week. A fraction of a minute after Billings took first place, his UVM teammates, Bill Stilwell and Tim Simpson, came home hand-in-hand to tie for second place. They were followed across the finish line in rapid succession by Vermont's Dale Farnsworth, John Cheney and Steve Russell who took the next three places and ended any chances of a Union victory.

The seventh man to cross the line and the first man to score for Union was Wayne Laverty. Seconds later UVM's Hugh Spafford came in eighth and was followed by Union's Dick Giddings and UVM's Don Gerry. When, after the last harrier was home, the final tally was 15-49.

For UVM Cross-Country Coach Archie Post, it was the second successive perfect win of the season. Last week, his Vermont speedsters won their opener by trampeling R.P.I. 15-50.

In a preliminary to the varsity race, Coach Post's frosh harriers opened their season by beating the Union frosh 20-40. UVM freshman [illegible] was first in the 2.4 mile race over the frosh course, clocking in at 14 [illegible].

HALFTIME BREAK

ATTENTION SCHOLARS

Both the Frosh and Varsity Football Teams have fine men this year. The academic program at UVM is hard enough, without having to go out to practice every day for a few hours. Last semester we lost three excellent men through academic troubles. This year, if YOU can help it, we won't lose any. The funds provided for tutoring the athletes are limited. It is an unfortunate situation that these men who give their time and effort to Vermont should get little in return. If you are a Dean's List student, you might ask yourself how you can help. YOU are as important as the team itself. Without your help in tutoring these deserving men, we may lose part of the team and our hopes for a winning season. If you have a little extra time each week, and excell in one or more subjects, contact either myself, at the CYNIC office, or the Sports Publicity Department, located in the Alumni House across the street from Waterman. Remember, you may not be out there playing ball, but some of the men couldn't be there without YOU!!

HALFTIME BREAK

The football season is nearly half over. To date, we haven't won a game. In our first contest, against Coast Guard at New London, we gained only three yards. Needless to say we didn't have any First Downs. The final score was 25-0.

Our second game was on home grounds, against the Black Bears of Maine. Although we gained some decent yardage and acquired some First Downs, the Cats were again held scoreless. Final score: 27-0.

The third and most recent contest was against Rhody last Saturday. We made seven First Downs to URI's twelve, and gained 167 yards against 391. Our first TD of the season came in the first half, but to no avail. The final score: 48-8. It should be noted, however, that the entire UVM team had played in the contest before it was over. Three of the URI touchdowns were scored against us by their second team.

Our next contest is against Rochester, this Saturday. Rochester, weakened by the loss of lettermen and an inexperienced sophomore-weighted team, may prove to be our first victory.

The Norwich game, on the 22nd, might prove to be win number two. It must be noted, that the Cadets, although losing, held Coast Guard to only 7 points, while they scored 2.

Northeastern visits us for our Homecoming game on the 29th. This is a rough one to predict. It could go either way by 1 point or 20. My choice: Vermont.

Our final contest is against the Middlebury Panthers, here in Burlington. Middlebury beat us last year in an upset game 27-0. This year the Cats are out for revenge at the Panthers' expense.

LET'S BEAT ROCHESTER

Trying not to be stung again.

Representation System Will Be Changed

Last weekend the Student Association of the University of Vermont held a weekend conference on reorganization of student government. The conference was held Friday evening in the Student Lounge in Waterman building and all day Saturday at Camp Abnaki in North Hero, Vermont. The conference was attended by some 45 students, faculty and administration representatives.

The Conference was opened Friday evening with a short talk by University President John T. Fey on "The State of the University". Dr. Fey pointed out that the first purpose of a University education is to prepare the student for the life he will face once he has graduated. He noted that in many ways the building program is symbolic of the progress of the entire university. He also pointed out that in the past five years faculty salaries have gone up 45%, and is in many cases comparable to salaries paid at institutions having a reputation for high salaries. All these improvements, he said, result in an improvement in the education of the individual, thereby accomplishing the primary purpose of the University.

Lyman Rowell, Dean of Administration, then gave the keynote address. Dean Rowell pointed out that the Student Association must first define its area of jurisdiction and limit its action to this area before attempting to proceed with the proposed reorganization. He noted that SA should function as a policy maker within its own area, and that a major complaint has been that the Association has been mainly an organization for the distribution of funds to other supposedly subordinate organizations.

After Dean Rowell's keynote speech a panel discussion was held. On this panel were Anna Rankin Harris, Dean of Women, Frank Pagliaro and Evelyn Pflug, students at the University. Each made a short comment on his interpertations of Dean Rowell's speech, after which the audience and conference delegates were invited to ask questions concerning the ideas, questions and suggestions brought out in Rowell's keynote. Some of the facts brought out by this informal questioning helped form a sound basis for the discussions held on Saturday concerning the actual reorganization of the Student Association.

On Saturday morning the conference site shifted to Camp Abnaki. Shortly after arrival there at 9:00 A.M., the conference proper was kicked off by a short speech by Larry Dugan, SA councilman and member of the Committee for Student Government Reorganization. Dugan, a long-

Prize-winning Play To Be Presented At Lane Series

The same play will be ... in Burlington on ... 24 as the first ... concert in the Blue Lane Series. This is the second step in a six month tour during which the company will travel to the West Coast and back. The cast will include such notables as Jean Carradine, Sheppard Strudwick and Frederic Worlock in Elia Kazan's production.

Most of the audience will probably be as interested in seeing the actors in person as in witnessing the play for Sheppard Strudwick and John Carradine are well known to the television audience. Strudwick for his appearances with the Lunts and Miss Carradine for the modern dance productions. Worlock has appeared more often in stage productions such as "Medea," and "Richard the Second." But, they are all experienced actors whose mere appearance will greatly add to the enjoyment of "J.B."

One feature of "J.B." which makes it an unusual play is the fact that it is entirely in blank verse. MacLeish is known for this, as proven by his winning of the Pulitzer Prize twice in poetry, as well as the drama prize. Other honors accorded him have been an appointment by President Roosevelt as Librarian of Congress, two years as Secretary of State, a place on the Executive Council of UNESCO and the office of President of the American Academy of Arts and Letters. And by the rave notices that his play, "J.B." has received, Mr. MacLeish certainly now ranks as one of the top playwrights of the United States.

The action of "J.B." centers about the problem of whether a man can withstand torrents of the modern world. There is a proverbial struggle between good and evil, and as in the Bible story one man is caught in the middle. MacLeigh portrays the age old battle of the two opposing sides in a quite startlingly modern setting - a circus tent. The question is whether the hero, J.B. can bear his plight. Those people who have tickets to the Blue Series concert are still some $12 tickets available will wait to see how such a situation is handled and just what makes "J.B." such an outstanding play of this era

Profs. Favor Russian Visit

By Barbara Dutton

"I'm all for it!" was the reaction of four University of Vermont professors and an administrative officer toward the approaching visit of a group of Russian students to the UVM campus.

In an exclusive interview sequence, Professors Schultz, Daniels, Huber, and Steele, and Mr. Benthuysen, Director of Public Relations for the University, were faced with approximately the same questions. Here are the challenging results.

All questioned felt the Russians would benefit from the visit despite Communist preparation, because it would "expose them with fire" said Professor Daniels. Mr Benthuysen observed that our "aim" is improve on the person's person attitude" for later studies, and Professor Schultz, Chairman of the History Department, felt the students should definitely come because "the human element is always there to upon."

The question "why is the Kremlin allowing these students to penetrate the propaganda curtain and observe the 'wicked capitalists' firsthand?" brought varied responses. Professor Schultz thought the Kremlin was breaking the strict Stalinist theories because there are too many curious people behind the Iron Curtain, and also that disagreement within the Kremlin itself was contributing factor. Mr Benthuysen noted that the Russians may realize "they can't influence the world without understanding it." Professor Steele of the Political Science Department postulated the theory that the USSR has respect for the material accomplishment of the United States, but stressed that respect is not the same as agreement. Professor Daniels, who visited Russia in 1956 and speaks fluent Russian, sees the visit as a possible effort to overcome the stigma of Sta-

Mortar Board Spotlight

Mortar Board, the senior women's honorary, was the first honor society for women at UVM. It was organized in 1917 and was accepted by the national membership committee in 1924. Its ideals are scholarship, leadership, and service. Girls who are chosen to be members of the Society in May of their junior year strive to promote high standards, loyalty, college spirit and peaceful co-existence between fellow honorary societies.

Last spring, the Adrain Chapter of Mortar Board here at UVM elected its officers for the 1960-61 academic year. Serving under Linda Sara President are Mari Frangopulo, Vice President, Wagge Connolly, Secretary and Sally Wadne, Treasurer. Also holding offices this year are Lorraine Rowe, Social Chairman, Carol Tyler, Publicity Chairman and Muriel Willis, Scholarship Chairman.

THE PLEDGE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

Today's column is directed at those young female undergraduates who have recently pledged sororities and are worried poor lambs, that they won't make good. Following is a list of simple instructions which if faithfully observed, will positively guarantee that you will be a mad success as a sorority girl.

First, let us take up the matter of housemothers. The housemother is your friend, your guide, your mentor. You must treat her with respect. When you wish to speak to her, address her as "Mother Signafoos" or "Ma'am." In no circumstances must you say, "Hey, fat lady."

Second, let us discuss laundry. Never hang your wash on the front porch of the sorority house. This is unsightly and shows a want of breeding. Use the Chapter Room.

Third, meals. Always remember that planning and preparing meals for a houseful of healthy girls is no simple task. Your cook goes to a great deal of trouble to make your menu varied and nourishing. The least you can do is show your appreciation. Don't just devour your food, praise it. Exclaim with delight, "What delicious pork jowls!" or "What a yummy soup bone!" or "What scrumptious fish heads!" or "What clear water!"

Fourth, clothing. Never forget that your appearance reflects not just on yourself but on the whole house. It was well enough before you joined a sorority to lounge around campus in your old muddy blouse and gym bloomers, but now you must take great pains to dress in a manner which excites admiring comments from all who observe you. A few years ago, for example, there was a Chi Omega named Camille Ataturk at the University of Iowa who brought gobs of glory to all her sisters. Camille hit on the ingenious notion of suiting her garb to the class she was attending. For instance, to English Lit she wore a buskin and perkin. To German she wore lederhosen and carried a stein of pilsener. To Econ she wore 120 yards of ticker tape. Her shiningest hour came one day when she dressed as a white mouse for Psych Lab. Not only her Chi Omega sisters, but the entire student body went into deep mourning when she was killed by the janitor's cat.

Finally, let us take up the most important topic of all. I refer, of course, to dating.

As we have seen, the way you dress reflects on your sorority, but the men you date reflect even more. Be absolutely certain that your date is an acceptable fellow. Don't beat about the bush, ask him point-blank, "Are you an acceptable fellow?" Unless he replies, "Yeah, hey," send him packing.

But don't just take his word that he is acceptable. Inspect him closely. Are his fingernails clean? Is his black leather jacket freshly oiled? Is his ukelele in tune? Does he carry public liability insurance? And, most significant of all, does he smoke Marlboros?

If he's a Marlboro man, you know he has taste and discernment, wit and wisdom, character and eminence, decency and warmth, presence and poise, talent and grit, filter and flavor, soft pack and flip-top box. You will be proud of him, your sorority will be proud of him, the makers of Marlboro will be proud of him, and I will be paid for this column.

The makers of Marlboro, having paid for this column, would like to mention another of their fine cigarettes—mild, unfiltered Philip Morris—available in regular size or the sensational new king-size Commander. Have a Commander—welcome aboard.

UVM Receives Grants

The Board of Trustees of the University accepted just under a quarter of a million dollars in gifts, grants and scholarship funds at their meeting here recently. The Board acknowledged $142,000 in research grants, $72,000 in gifts, and $21,000 in scholarships fund ear-marked for individual students.

Included in the gifts was a $30,000 addition to the Sceva Speare Fund, established toward construction of phase three of UVM's medical building program. Mr. Speare, a Nashua, N.H., merchant has pledged $50,000 to the fund. The University also received $24,000 from the estate of Mrs. Lois C. Isham for the establishment of the Clark and Edward S. Isham Trust Fund. Mrs. Isham was the widow of Edward S. Isham, class of 1889, treasurer of the Burlington Savings Bank at the time of his death in 1937.

The gift total also included an additional $4,518 from the Estate of Mrs. Shirley Farr. UVM has previously received about $150,000 from Mrs. Farr's estate.

Blood Drive Planned

The Ethan Allen Rifles, [illegible] honorary society for Army Seniors is holding its Annual Blood Drive on October 21st from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the Student Lounge at Waterman. All students under twenty-one years of age are asked to bring permission slips from their parents. Doctors, nurses, and typists will be present from the Red Cross Unit in Burlington and will answer any questions you may have concerning the Blood Drive. In addition to these workers, Cadets from Pershing Rifles will lend a hand in loading and unloading supplies from the trucks. Everyone is asked to join in this effort and exceed last year's drawing of 182 pints. This years quota is 200 pints.

In addition to the annual Blood Drive, Ethan Allen Rifles also plans to sponsor, along with the Astronaut Society, one of the most outstanding events of the year, the Military Ball, which is scheduled to take place on the 11th of November in the Waterman Cafeteria.

This honorary society at UVM is recognized for outstanding leadership and scholarship and presently consists of seven members. The President is Theodore Hatch, Vice-President, William Stanton, Secretary, Steve Berry and Treasurer, Bill Eaton.

Remember the Blood Drive is one of the most important events on Ethan Allen Rifles calendar, so let's help make it a great success.

CRITIC CALLS FIRST RED CONCERT HUGE SUCCESS

Antonio Janigro autographs Lane Series program for Anne Trester

by DON E. KERR

The Lane Red Concert Series opened Wednesday night, October 12, with a fine chamber concert Solisti di Zagreb, under the direction of Antonio Janigro. The performance left little to be desired -- unless one were to wish for the ideal atmosphere of a restored seventeenth-century drawing-room with an audience of fifty people! The group is quite well-known for its recorded performances of Vivaldi, and the conductor for his solo recordings of the Bach Suites for 'Cello. The Solisti work well together -- this is especially necessary with a chamber group -- and the performance showed a high degree of polish and good taste.

Vivaldi might well be called music's "most happy fella", certainly the pervading tone of all of his works is one of unrestrained gaiety. Both the Sinfonia, and the Violin Concerto with fine solo playing by Jelka Stanic, were very well done, with the smooth, Romantic approach which Janigro seems to favour. The conductor's virtuosity on the 'cello was evident in the Boccherini Concerto; indeed the man has that rare combination of beautiful tone and impeccable technique which is not always in balance with many of the great 'cellists.

The work by the Croatin composer, Milko Kelemen, was one of both originality and great musical interest. The trend that many similar composers have followed (such as Bartok, Kabalevsky, and others) of using folk melodies and modes in their compositions has been a shot in the arm for contemporary music. Although they started their schools of composition later than the rest of Europe and have until this time not produced many significant composers, one cannot help feeling that the Slavic countries will soon be in their musical heyday.

The reviewer found the Roussel to be somewhat uninteresting, although it is his prejudice that the man was a bit of a charlatan, anyway. The Mozart was delightful, and a fine finishing touch to the program.

What would YOU do as an engineer at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft?

Regardless of your specialty, you would work in a favorable engineering atmosphere.

Back in 1925, when Pratt & Whitney Aircraft was designing and developing the first of its family of history-making powerplants, an attitude was born—a recognition that engineering excellence was the key to success.

That attitude, that recognition of the prime importance of technical superiority is still predominant at P&WA today.

The field, of course, is broader now, the challenge greater. No longer are the company's requirements confined to graduates with degrees in mechanical and aeronautical engineering. Pratt & Whitney Aircraft today is concerned with the development of all forms of flight propulsion systems for the aerospace medium—air breathing, rocket, nuclear and other advanced types. Some are entirely new in concept. To carry out analytical, design, experimental or materials engineering assignments, men with degrees in mechanical, aeronautical, electrical, chemical and nuclear engineering are needed, along with those holding degrees in physics, chemistry and metallurgy.

Specifically, what would you do?—your own engineering talent provides the best answer. And Pratt & Whitney Aircraft provides the atmosphere in which that talent can flourish.

Development testing of liquid hydrogen-fueled rockets is carried out in specially built test stands like this at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft's Florida Research and Development Center. Every phase of an experimental engine test may be controlled by engineers from a remote blockhouse (inset), with closed-circuit television providing a means for visual observation.

At P&WA's Connecticut Aircraft Nuclear Engine Laboratory (CANEL) many technical talents are focused on the development of nuclear propulsion systems for future air and space vehicles. With this live mock-up of a reactor, nuclear scientists and engineers can determine critical mass, material reactivity coefficients, control effectiveness and other reactor parameters.

Representative of electronic aids functioning for P&WA engineers is this on-site data recording center which can provide automatically recorded and computed data simultaneously with the testing of an engine. This equipment is capable of recording 1,200 different values per second.

Studies of solar energy collection and liquid and vapor power cycles typify P&WA's research in advanced space auxiliary power systems. Analytical and Experimental Engineers work together in such programs to establish and test basic concepts.

Editorial:
SA Conference

Last weekend the Student Association of the University of Vermont held a Reorganization Conference at Camp Abnaki and in the Student Lounge in Waterman. The purpose of the conference was the reorganization of Student Association into an effective student government.

The reason that such reorganization is needed is obvious. Student Association, it has been often charged, has degenerated to little more than a committee for the distribution of funds to other organizations. This, to a large extent, is true.

To determine the reasons for this decline was part of the job of this Conference. The other objective was to suggest ways not only to end the decline, but to suggest ways that SA might regain its purpose, true student government.

REPRESENTATION AND APATHY

It was decided early in the conference that one of the primary reasons for SA's present low prestige was that the present system of presentation means, in effect, once a person is elected to SA Council, he is no longer responsible to the people who elected him. This resulted when the class system of representation prevented any effective communication between the Councilmen and the student body in general.

Partly as a result of this lack of communication a feeling grew that Student Association had no area of contact with the student body. Gradually apathy set in. Students, if they even bothered to vote, showed no interest in what the Council was doing. At present, less than half of the student body can name the representatives from its own class, or in some cases, how many representatives each class has.

This apathy spread even to the SA Councilmen themselves. Some of the present Councilmen have expressed scant interest in SA affairs. This can be borne out by the small number of Councilmen, excluding members of the Reorganization Committee, who even bothered to attend the conference.

REPRESENTATION REVISED

Those who did attend the Conference, however, proposed a new method of representation which would do much to end the problem of communication between Student Association and the student body. This system or representation would be based on living units rather than on classes. Each living unit would be represented individually on Council, and arrangements would be made to assure that those living off-campus would be proportionally represented. By basing representation on living units, it is expected that representatives will be directly responsible to those who elected them, and that formal or informal discussions on issues raised by SA Council will be held so that the representative may

Letters To The Editor

Mass Meetings

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

In reference to last week's editorial on the recent WSGA Mass Meeting, I should like to commend you. To my knowledge this is the first time a public stand has been taken on the issue.

By insisting upon attendance at these functions, the WSGA hierarchy degrades the dignity of the association. In the minds of the majority of the women students the solemnity of the entire organization is occasion for laughter.

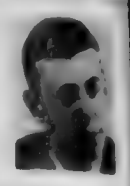
As far as this year's meeting is concerned, I cannot deny that I am glad that I was present. Yet it was of interest solely because of Miss Simpson's talk about UVM as it was fifty years ago, which is a topic of some interest to all students. There was absolutely nothing on the agenda that should require the attendance of every woman student.

I should like to go on record as advocating one Mass Meeting per year, if any, in order to facilitate purveyal of information regarding room-choosing, in order to elect new officers, and in order to recommend choices for the women's honoraries. For no other reason can a Mass Meeting logically be called. And even those purposes may adequately be served in the course of normal House Meetings. If such a proposal is contrary to the by-laws of WSGA, the by-laws should be changed.

A Senior Woman
(Name Withheld)

To Whom It May Concern:

As University of Vermont co-eds, we are supposedly mature, intelligent women, capable, by this time, of knowing right from wrong. College is a fundamental and necessary teacher in helping us to achieve this position. Yet sometimes one really begins to wonder how mature she is when confronted with the many rules and regulations governing her four years at UVM. Agreed, most of these rules are for our own good and perhaps the smooth functioning of the University would be hampered without them. However, I would like to be specific and discuss one of the more recent rules, there are to be no bottles, that at one time contained an alcoholic beverage, in the room of a UVM woman student.



I can see no logic or basis for this rule. The bottles are used for decoration purposes in colleges throughout the country. They are not a reflection on the girl's character nor are they a reflection on the University. An empty bottle on a shelf is no more harmful or suggestive than is a beer mug, a fifth from a fraternity weekend, which is more acceptable.

When this campus was proclaimed to be dry a few years ago, many rules were added to the already large list. Maybe rather than adding more insignificant rules, such as the above, it would be more beneficial to eliminate those insignificant ones already included.

The Melting Pot

By ROGER ZIMMERMAN

Not so long ago, UVM played host to a few Russian students. One of the students, a [illegible] major, spoke in the student lounge before an audience which displayed an overflowing curiosity and enthusiasm. The Russian talked for a minute or two, more or less about himself. Immediately following this, there ensued one of the most ardent question and answer periods to hit UVM in years. The Russian, however, was at a distinct advantage. For one thing, a question was asked, he would answer. But, because of the time lapse involved, the answer he gave could not be requestioned. So there was, for all practical purposes, no discussion. In essence then, curiosity was satisfied - most everyone having been thoroughly convinced that Russians do not have antennae for ears, that they had arms, legs, etc., etc. But as to actual information exchange, there was slight.

RUSSIANS TO VISIT AGAIN

In a couple of weeks, UVM will once again play host to a group of Russian students. Their visit will be brief, most probably because of limited time. This is unfortunate. Ideally, these students would get a much more extensive educational opportunity (as would we if they could stay at UVM for, say, a month or two.

I have heard some question the logic behind the decision to have the Russian students stay in fraternity houses. I'm not sure myself as to the real underlying reason behind this (in addition to the reason already offered - that the fraternities would offer a different view of college life - perhaps a more practical consideration prevailed; that is, better facilities than in a dorm). Anyway, its not really important where the Russian students stay; It's what the Russian students will see and carry in their heads that holds precedence over everything else.

NO PRETENSES, AND LET'S NOT FORGET

I do hope, however, that the chosen fraternities do give the Russians a TRUE picture of this particular aspect of college life. There should be no pretenses, if the individual behavior of the respective fraternities, should have to be radically altered, then the fraternities, in so far as an educational experience is concerned, would be kidding not the Russians, but themselves.

These students are, in a sense, representing the government of the U.S.S.R. This country is regarded as the U.S. top rival. This cannot be forgotten, but it should be stored away in the back of our minds. Also, and I hate to bring up "dead" (perhaps more correctly forgotten) history, but that same government brutally smashed the Hungarian revolution. And what about those Hungarian students? Should we forget their ideals, their rock-throwing efforts to oppose massive Russian tanks? No, I don't think we should forget; but again it would be more to our advantage to keep this story in the back of our minds.

At the bottom of both Soviet and American character is an apparent desire for "the good life". Competition provides a common meeting ground for both peoples; it is meeting ground for understanding - not for war. It is only through education and the exchange of ideas that both Soviets and Americans will come to more fully understand one another.

If the opportunity for real enlightment presents itself (i.e. an open forum, with free discussion between both the Russian students and the UVM students), this could conceivably be one of the highlights of a student's educational career. If we can remember that history is history, yet remembering also that it can be erased as if it were written on a blackboard, and we can stimulate, given the opportunity, a free exchange of ideas, then perhaps some degree of understanding can be achieved. This will be a rare event, one that can yield immeasurable results.

"Anastasia": SA Movie

On the evening of July 16, 1918 the imprisoned and deposed Czar Nicholas II of Russia and his immediate family, were ordered into the cellar of their confine and assassinated by a volley from the rifles of their guards. The bodies were then dumped into a deserted mine shaft near the prison. No sooner were they cold than the rumor that one member of the family had escaped death in the assassination began to circulate.

"Anastasia", to be presented Saturday evening [illegible] Southwick on Redstone [illegible] as one of the major [illegible] feature films in the [illegible] Student Association [illegible] is the fascinating dramatic story of the search for this last surviving member of the Russian Royal Family. This cinemascope technicolor film stars Ingrid Bergman, Helen Hayes and Yul Brynner, and is remembered by many as a beautiful and haunting film. "Anastasia", made its debut at the time of the recent release by Pat Boone

by JULES OLDER

Just what is the matter with the University of Vermont? It is a relatively small school like ours, the individual student should have every opportunity to keep himself physically fit through participation in many types of sports. The location of our college makes it a natural for all sorts of sports that other schools would give half their alumni to have.

Look through the window of your dormitory. What do you see? Mountains - peaks that are snow-covered in winter; slopes that are lush and verdant in spring. Our school motto is derived from these mountains. On every winter week-end you can see classmates loading skis on car roofs heading for the winter sports center of the East. Yet our outing association has never been able to raise the money to build a simple cabin to make an inexpensive hostel for college skiers and outdoorsmen. The cost of building, buying, or renting such a cabin is small enough to be well within the reach of the school budget. But what -- is being done about it?

Take a walk down Main Street. There, at the foot of the hill, is Lake Champlain. It is deep, beautiful, and serene. Our school song was written about it. Not only is there no university owned beach front for student use, but there are no sail boats, canoes, or even row boats available. Why not? Doesn't anyone in the school care about these things. How much do half a dozen canoes cost? Another New England school, Brown University, is located near a narrow, dirty river. But they have a fleet of sailing dinghies that students sail every weekend. We are situated on a yachtsman's paradise and have nothing.

Step outside on a January day. Feel that icy cold. A perfect day for a whirl around the UVM ice rink. Only there isn't any. The new gym will have one, but what prevents us from flooding a field or parking lot this winter?

Let's get together. It's time for the students and faculty to get out of their little non-communicating groups and put some pressure on those who are so tenaciously grasping the UVM pocketbook. Maybe future alumni will be a bit more generous than past grads if they think that their alma mater has given them something worthwhile besides a straight textbook education.

There is someone else who should be applying a full nelson to the tight-fisted ones. He is the President of our University, Dr. John T. Fey. He is well known as an advocate of individual fitness, and he practices what he preaches. If he will now extend his personal ideas to his University, he will be performing a service to his school that will be long remembered.

Cuba, Castro, And Me

by EDWARD KRITZLER

As I stated in my first column, my prime objective in writing these articles is to give you a fuller understanding of the Cuban revolution. My first awareness that something was amiss in the American conception of the Cuban revolution was evidenced by my first night in Havana. In this article I will relate to you just what transpired that night. During the day I had gone to the tourist division of the Cuban government, and made arrangements for leaving Havana the following morning to join the summer colony. Since tomorrow I would be leaving Havana to begin seriously focusing my attentions on observing the revolutionary process, I decided that I would spend this night focusing my attentions elsewhere.

The Tropicanna

Cuba's top nightclub, the Tropicanna, was my destination. While walking to the bus two men in a government jeep pulled alongside me, and asked if they could be of service. I answered I was on my way to the Tropicanna, and before I could say another word, they said they would be glad to drive me there. I was to discover that this was the norm. As you shall see, wherever I went in Cuba, I was treated with every courtesy imaginable, and shown the utmost hospitality.

Upon my arrival at the club, I was greeted by one of the employees. He told me that the show wouldn't begin for over an hour, and in the meantime would I care to have a drink with him. Unaccustomed to this seemingly overt friendliness, I was quite taken back but still managed to respond affirmatively. He told me in broken English that his name was Miguel, and that he was the prop man for the show. He then asked me as to what my plans were for the evening. Not forseeing what would come next, I answered that I had come to eat dinner and see the show. With that, he took my hand, led me to the kitchen and sat me down to eat. Never having experienced anything even remotely resembling this treatment before, I was by this time, completely confused. I hadn't the vaguest notion of what was happening or would happen next. However, when a nice thick steak appeared, I erased all these thoughts, and proceeded to devour the steak. In the kitchen were many pictures of Castro and other Cuban revolutionary leaders. Looking at these pictures, I started discussing with Miguel the uneasy relations between our government and Cuba - with me naturally defending the United States. Everyone in the kitchen stopped working, and entered what soon became a heated discussion. Realizing it was unwise to continue, as the carving knives were quite large, I told Miguel that actually I'd like to go and see the casino. He answered there wasn't enough time, as the show would begin soon, and he had to set up the props. Miguel again took my hand, led me to a ringside table, and told me I could view the show here without charge. He then left, and while waiting for the show to commence, my first impressions concerning the Cubans I had encountered came into being: They were extremely friendly to me and to one another. They showed the utmost respect, courtesy, and generosity to me, and, I assumed, to all Americans. Who was I to be singled out? Lastly, I had not yet met one Cuban who did not profess love for Fidel.

Thus in my bewildered state, I watched the show realizing I was in for an eventful summer.

After the show, I went with Miguel to the coffee shop where all the members of the cast congregated between and after the two shows.

Emphasize

Before I proceed any further, I want to emphasize the fact that most of the other American students in Cuba were accorded the same treatment I received. The Cuban people, with the deepest sincerity, do everything they can for an American who wishes to see and understand the Cuban revolution. It was largely because of this, that I was treated in this manner wherever I went in Cuba.

Surrounded

As I walked into the coffee shop nearly all the cast surrounded me. After the incident in the kitchen, I was ready for anything. I still found it very difficult to maintain my composure, for being enveloped by approximately 15 lucious show girls is not an experience to which my emotions easily become immune. Everyone began bombarding me with questions and statements primarily concerning the revolution. Two of the cast could speak English fluently, and served as translators. I was thus able to carry on a normal conversation. Needless to say, I was enjoying myself immensely, but by six in the morning I was beginning to feel a little tired. During the course of the evening I had been accorded invitations to three different parties and a jam ses-now. I had to turn these invitations down because I was supposed to leave for the airport at eight that morning. Two hours later I received word from the man who still remained and ran off for my hotel.

What I Learned That Night

The essence of what they told me that night was to be repeated to me many times over during the course of the summer. That night all to whom I spoke saw American "Big Business" as the largest obstacle blocking the path to friendly Cuban - American relations. They also complained bitterly about the unfair and distorted press coverage the American newspapers were affording them. They believed that the reason for this was the power of "Big Business" dictated our press policies.

I also observed that night their intense devotion to Castro and all I heard was the way in which the Cubans suffered under Batista, and how wonderful everything was now. They said Batista had sold Cuban interests out to the United States and made her an economic slave. Manuel told me that even though he and the rest of the people in the slum had made much more money under the old regime, they would not, if they had a choice, allow the return of Batista to return. On the contrary, most would give their lives for Castro and the new regime.

My Opinions Of That Night

When I returned to my hotel and began packing for my stay in the country, I summed up the knowledge I had gained that night.

These people had been most adversely affected by the revolution, the tourist trade upon which they were dependent to earn a living was now practically nil. Yet they were still completely for Castro and the revolution. They were intensely proud and nationalistic, and they looked to Castro as a great leader and a great man to whom they would sacrifice everything. Since this was the opinion of those who did not really benefit from the revolution, I could not help wondering about the opinion of those who did.

I saw that these people would do anything and everything for Americans, which wasn't done for money or for love; but to try to convince them that this revolution was the most wonderful thing for the Cuban people.

I did not allow myself to come to any definite conclusions however, for I had only met a certain segment of the society. Though all the evidence pointed the other way, I realized this could very well be a minority opinion.

In my next column I will take you to a typical village in Cuba. Here I will show you its people, how they feel about the revolution, and the ways in which the revolution has affected them.

ROTC Cadets Hold Smoker

The Advanced Army ROTC cadets held their first smoker last Tuesday night [illegible] the meeting Steve Berry was the other guest speaker introduced by Cadet Col. Sexton I. Blanchard, Commander of the Army department here. Captain Harold W. Sarver Jr. and Captain Dexter D. Cram Jr.

Captain Blanchard commented briefly on the role of the US Army in the third world situation of today and its probable mission in a future [illegible] He expressed the opinion that any future conflict will not necessarily be of the all out nuclear type. Recalling history Colonel Blanchard suggested that while both sides had large stocks of poisonous gases during World War I, none were used simply because both sides had these large stocks. The use of the gases would have been mutually destructive. Since both the West and East have atomic arsenals it is Colonel Blanchard's opinion that any future conflict could very [illegible] to be fought with conventional weapons because as would have been the case with poisonous gases the use of nuclear weapons will result in mutual destruction. The possibility of a conventional war is further increased by the fact that the Communists have a large superiority in the size of ground forces, giving them an obviously great advantage in such a conventional war. In this situation the Army will again be the principal deterrent to aggression. Even if there is to be a nuclear conflict, however, Colonel Blanchard pointed out that the Army will have to secure the ground from which the missiles would be launched.

There were several other speakers. George S. Hatch carefully outlined to the the Juniors the rigors of Summer Camp and the ways to overcome them. Roberto C. Paton added much humor by his witty presentation of the political situation in his native Paraguay.

SOPH CORNER

After a successful Freshman year the Class of 1963 has found that we have will be at least better Sophomore year having already accomplished a reorganization of committees for greater efficiency. Formerly under the Executive Committee there was an Activities Committee with three sub committees. Now however these three along with the Activities Committee itself, are all under a Steering Committee directly responsible to the Executive Council. This newly formed Steering Committee consists of Lloyd Hoffman, President; Sharon Comey, Secretary, and the four chairmen of the sub committees Ginny Clark, Publicity; Pat Cowsill, CYNIC, Phyllis Levine, Social, and Jim Newman, Activities.

In addition to revision in class organization, it was decided to get wider representation among the members of the class. Each sorority, fraternity, and women's dorm was asked to choose one person to act as its spokesman and to publicize information concerning the class to their respective groups. Last Wednesday night, these representatives met, and, as the Activities Committee, chose a chairman and secretary Jim Newman and Carol Gillespie. It is expected this group functions will, if possible, not with any other in the committee representatives all factions of Thus, also spirit will be this endeavor.

vote as his constituents wish. If the student body were thus brought into the affairs of the Council, it is expected that the apathy now plaguing it would soon cease to be a problem.

NEW CONSTITUTION

It is necessary to note that the Conference held this weekend merely made recommendations to a Committee which will write a new SA constitution based on them. The writing of this constitution will be a long, painful, and hard process, and no visible results should be expected for at least two months. By late winter or spring, however, the new constitution should be completed and presented to the student body for ratification. The CYNIC strongly urges that each student vote to ratify the new constitution when it appears. Such an action will assure effective student government which is responsible to both the student body and responsive to its wishes.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

As Alpha Epsilon Pi falls into "first hour exam season", a deathly silence has fallen over the house. An epidemic of violent studying has broken out which, if the "patient" lives through it, should be enough to raise our house average higher than last semester when we finished second in fraternity scholarship. --- Look out above!

Congratulations and best wishes to Roger Zimmerman who lost his pin last week, and Marsha Snyderman, the girl he lost it to.

Good luck to all on their exams.

DELTA PSI

"Chimed, I'm sure!" That's the cry from three of the brothers of Delta Psi. During the summer, last semester's president, Peter Cotton, was married to Molly Falone, Class of '60. Jack Sheehan, '61, and Margo Lidell, '62, also tied the knot this summer, and we are happy to report that J.P. Ryan has also fallen by the wayside.

Other news about members of the house includes the welcoming of five Delts into brotherhood. They are: Tom Morse, Rick Hubbard, Mike Woodard, Dick Freeman and Paul Flinn. Also, Charlie Rooney has been pledged into Delta Psi.

The open house for Freshman men held on October second was a great success. One had difficulty in moving from room to room. Cider and donuts comprised the menu for the afternoon and throat lozengers were served for supper.

There is another open house planned on November fifth. This time, it is with Delta Delta Delta. You take it from there!

Finally, our frantic football team finished first in its number one IFC game with A.E.Pi. Sparking in the quarterback slot was our backfield threat, Alan "Gutgasher" Godfrey.

Looking at the "big picture," the members of Delta Psi foresee a banner year in '60-'61. Many will be the hours of hard work but many will be the funs.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

The Tri Deltas all got together last Saturday afternoon and cleaned up the yard. They also prepared for the tea that they had for the alumnae on Sunday. The tea was held from three o'clock until five o'clock and was a big success. Many alumnae attended. Tea sandwiches and cakes were served and the girls had their first chance to show the alumnae their pledge project, the redecorating of the sun room.

The Tri Deltas are proud to say that they have pledged three new girls. They are Anne Larrow, Sheila McCuaig, and Jeanne Pretsch. On Thursday night the Tri Deltas serenaded Tonini Kalinen and Paula Stevenson who will soon be pledges of Delta Delta Delta also.

GAMMA PHI BETA

Gamma Phi is happy to welcome our newest pledge, Suzie Smith, Bridgeport, Connecticut, who accepted an open bid and was formally pledged last Thursday night. Congratulations are in order for our newest sister, Sandy Kornstedt, Bristol, Pa. Her initiation was held Sunday, October 9th, and was followed by a dinner at the New Hi-Hat.

We all enjoyed the singing [illegible] of Sig Ep who' [illegible] Norma [illegible] pinned [illegible] Barnes, '61.

[illegible] was chosen [illegible] to attend [illegible] Ko Ko Ko Pan-Hellenic Yearbook [illegible]. Good luck to Phyllis Spina and Jan McLaughlin who were elected to take charge of our Homecoming Poster.

Last weekend the Gamma Phi House was taken over by the pledges because most of the Sisters were down to Hartford, Connecticut, to Joan Bestio's wedding. Joan, our last year's president, was married to Fred Norton, Sigma Phi Epsilon, '60.

Don't forget, this Saturday night, the 15th, is Gamma Phi's annual Pie Party. Delicious pie and coffee will be served in a French atmosphere to the music of the Sig Ep Jazz Band. Admission is only a quarter stag and 35c drag -- all profit if any will be for our our local philanthropy, the New School for Retarded Children here in Burlington. Everyone is welcome - including freshmen.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Congratulations to Pat Ransom, Dale Wanner and, of course, our ole pro, Toni Franchesci, for making the cheering squad. Now that we know who the energetic ones are, we'll have less trouble choosing people for various duties around the house.

The Thetas are looking forward to entertaining their parents Oct. 22 and 23. Everyone has been practicing the various forms of entertaining, and the banquet this year will be at the Lincoln Inn.

Everyone was pleased to have Miss Mary Jean Simpson for dinner a short while ago. We are very proud to have her as one of us and hope to see her again soon.

A pat on the back goes to Carol Tyler as she has been doing a sometimes difficult but excellent job as President. A wee bit more cooperation from the group at times would be helpful.

Susie Adams reports she's losing inches off her waist from either bicycling or walking from the Home Management House. Oh, to live down there.

It was like old times to have Bill Hartigan, a graduated Delt helping out with the dishwashing last week. However, Preserving Pete Nelson still rates first.

October 15--Nov. 1 is Theta day at the Ski Shop and many of the girls are going out either to drool or to spend a little.

The Thetas were pleasantly surprised to have Norma Canales Birmingham drop in for lunch last week. Marriage must really be the answer as she really looked great.

The click of knitting needles is continuing as about 99% of the group goes domestic. A corps of the smitten ones are showing their ones and onlys by knitting them sweaters. (Thus seeing them for more fittings.)

KAPPA SIGMA

Social Chairman Rocky Cobleigh has promised plans which call for an extra special Homecoming this year. However, the details of the preparation must remain clandestine until a later date.

On the intra-mural scene, the Kappa Sig football team has displayed a powerful defense in their two games to date. The team which is coached by "the Bear" and quarterbacked by Wally Schlib ran rough-shod over Lambda Iota and TKE. The defense is led by "Wolfe" and "Moon".

by SANDY CAMERON

The Sig Tones have been making it big of late. They provided the sounds at the recent Alpha Chi and Sig Nu social events. The band is composed of Tom Eldridge, Pete Vostek, Rocky Cobleigh and Frank Bolden.

Getting in the swing of the campaign year, the KKs have been carrying on heated discussions concerning the upcoming elections. These weekly debates are lead by Jerry Cassidy and Max Lauder, two experts in the field of politics.

"Operation Bootstrap", a campaign for the redecoration of the house's interior has been progressing at a good rate reports the House Corporation.

LAMBDA IOTA

Life moves on in its usual business (chuckle) fashion at 440 Pearl. For instance: Owls are again seen in afternoon classes now that the World Series are over, the third degrees are now treating the 4th and 5th degrees with the long overdue respect since the 4rd realize that the time for brothering up is almost here; the University has begun to swing on the plans for Lambda Iota's 125 anniversary as the oldest local fraternity in the United States; and Beanie and Snuffy are busy bailing their boys out of mischief. Such is life at the Owl House.

Jack Brown is working hard on the Homecoming Poster project and Ken Miller is busily running to and fro-to and fro on preparations for the gala Homecomingweekend.

Also, the Owls are planning a mass migration to Norwich to watch the big game Saturday.

Lambda Iota wishes to thank all the freshmen who attended our Open House. We hope that you will be able to get as much out of the fraternity system as we have.

PHI DELTA THETA

During the week the Phi's were pleased to welcome Brother Frank Fawcett, the Assistant Executive Secretary from national headquarters in Miami, Ohio. Brother Fawcett had an enjoyable visit and was happy to see the improvements made in the Marble Palace. (All right, boys, you can put the coats and ties back in mothballs now!)

On the social scene, the Phi's and the Theta's got together "Mill Style" for an exchange dinner Wed. night, as usual all went well.

Looking ahead to Homecoming the Phi's and the Theta's are planning an unique "Hangover Breakfast" to follow Saturday night's festivities. On the menu-- Tomato Juice and Aspirins. Speaking of Homecoming, the Phi's have scheduled a buffet for Friday night, an open house for Saturday afternoon, and a party Saturday night featuring the Catamounts.

Once again the Silver Knights displayed well drilled offensive and defensive units in sweeping to their second straight victory in IFC football play. The score 26-6, the opponents, Delta Psi.

Congratulations to Phi's Jack Chesney, for his 3rd and 5th places in recent cross-country meets, and to Al Delorenzo for his play in the Rochester game last Saturday.

PHI MU DELTA

On Friday, Oct. 7, we had our first house party. It was a great success. Everyone round and square danced, stuffed themselves with pizzas and played a trick on a pledge. Plans are well underway for our Homecoming party.

We wish to welcome our two new pledges, Bertrand Mongeau and Rodney Hadgewick.

We aren't having very good luck in intra-mural football. ASPi won our second game.

It was nice seeing so many Freshmen at our Open House. We hope that they like UVM's fraternity system. It's really great.

PHI SIGMA DELTA

The Phi Sigs had a wonderful Square Dance Party last Saturday night. We are looking forward to Homecoming with great expectations.

We are very proud to have been one of the three fraternity houses chosen to be hosts to the Russian students. Their visit should be quite an experience for all the boys as well as quite informative.

Seven of the boys attended Camp Abnaki last weekend for conferences with the faculty and administration. They all felt it was a very worthwhile weekend.

Last Thursday evening, Ken Miller, Steve Krintzman, Marty Singer, and Mike Rosenbaum were initiated into the brotherhood of Phi Sigma Delta. Lots of luck to them and we hope they will carry on the traditions of Phi Sig.

PI BETA PHI

The Pi Phi's had a very busy and wonderful weekend Oct. 14, 15, 16, as a result of a visit by Mrs. Tuft, Director of Membership. Mrs. Tuft arrived in Burlington on Friday and was kept busy with numerous appointments throughout the weekend. Friday night a dessert hour was held with representatives of all campus sororities attending.

Congratulations to Hanna Crane, a new member of the Vermont Cheering Squad.

We are very happy to have our housemother, Mrs. Sheppard, back with us. In our opinion her absence was much too long.

The alumnae Arrow Craft sale held two weeks ago was a big success.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

The Men of Sigma Alpha have finally made the CYNIC deadline, but not until a few weeks of frantic organization. Our organization is largely due to the efforts of house manager, Al Gear, who spends his time turning off lights and turning down the heat.

Ascending to top offices are Maynard Ducatte as President, and Bob Ferretti as Vice-President. Also, congrats to John Bancroft, who has just been elected to the office of Treasurer of the Student Association.

The men of S.A.E. have been busy this season on the Varsity Football Team, with four S.A.E.'s starting against Coast Guard, Maine, and Rhode Island. They are "Sixty Minutemen" Bill Mooza and Captain Maynard Ducatte, as well as Bill Burke and Frank Amato. On the Intra-mural Side, the men at 56 Summit Street have won their first two games, beating Phi Mu Delta, and A.G.R.

We were very pleased with the turnout at our Open House on Sunday, October 9, 1960. It was a real pleasure entertaining on each of the previous two afternoons.

Congratulations to Brother Lou Iarria, '60, who was pinned to Miss Joan Labelle over the summer. Lou is now working for Bulova of New York. Miss Brigitte Bardot's marriage over the summer also eliminated Bill Green and Dick Allegretto from the eligible bachelor list.

We are all looking forward to our Annual Masculine Party over Homecoming Weekend. Social Chairman Jim Stahler has been frantically searching for a date(s) for qualified Miss Immorta, and for extraordinary grass skirts. And as for the fronts . . . ooh ooh!!

This week's nomination for Saturday goes to John Bancroft.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

After a busy weekend which included cleaning up The Barn and preparing for the Rushing Open House, the fraternity was glad to welcome through its red doors as many men as it did, and would like to thank the Freshmen who dropped in. Sig Ep is also hard at work preparing its float for the Homecoming Parade.

Newly initiated Angelo Izzobardi, Dean Constantine, Roger Seibel and Robert Wagner were welcomed into the the brotherhood Sunday.

SIGMA NU

The Black Knights of Coach George Gunn continued its winning ways on the gridiron as they knocked the Fern Hill A.C. from unbeaten ranks with a 19-0 victory. Two TD's by our lightning wingback J.R. Moore, Rocky the Squirrel Heller's 60 yard gallop, the sterling defensive play of Hall Winkle Bruce Sherwin, and the booming right foot of "The Muff" sparked the win.

We would like to thank the freshmen and transfers for paying us a visit at our open house last Sunday.

Correction . . . The band at our open house with the Pi Phi's was the Night Riders. Thanks guys for a tremendous performance.

"Little Earl the Muff" created quite a sensation with his new coat at last week's ball game. Black Jack and "The Greek" contributed their artistic talents to the design on his cape.

Congratulations to Sue and Cosmo on their two new additions . . . the Cocker puppies [redacted]!

Lt. Norm Wilson sends us word that the Air Force is just great, especially 105 miles from civilization in the State of Washington.

TAU EPSILON PHI

The men of Tau Epsilon Phi enjoyed having the men of the Class of 1964 as their guests this past weekend. With Homecoming only a week away, great preparations are being made in anticipation of a wonderful weekend. A buffet is planned for Saturday evening, to be followed by a party featuring The Nightriders. We are all looking forward to greeting our brothers.

Our sports program is now in full swing. Our football is 1-1, and all hopes are on our championship basketball which will start practice next week. Bring back the cup, boys!

THETA CHI

This is the week to present the new situations that exist at 170 Spruce. The ranks of bachelors, though fast diminishing, are determined to hold fast against the [redacted] in their ranks.

Latest to be placed on the active list of those lost in battle are Bill Ashton, pinned to Pam Haines of Alpha Chi. Frank Harrington pinned to "Bunny" Wilson of Hamilton Hall. Still another one lost to the cause was John Leonard who was pinned to Mary Pat Quirk, a senior at WCVA. Brother Ron Tuzzo was not quite lost to action, but was lost for good this summer he married.

Welcome to Ike Eastman, big brother from Newport, Vt., our newest Td pledge.

We are also happy to welcome two new brothers to the front stairs, Jack Albinger and Tom Lyons were initiated into the brotherhood Monday evening. No more gigs for Dick, as sorry to say.

To both D A's and to house's regret or have to admit that we lost our first game to ATO. Enough said on that score.

The Beatnik party was voted a huge success. Doc Steele showed up on a motor-scooter, and Ray Paris sported a handsome beard. Of course, the opposite gender made a bit with their tights. Espresso was enjoyed by all.

Open house was also a success. Everyone seemed to enjoyed himself immensely.

LET'S BEAT NORWICH!

Russian Visit

Almost all those interviewed expect the students to be impressed by the high standard of living in the United States. Prof. Daniels and Steele believe the group will be impressed by the freedom and informality of discussion allowed here. Echoing this sentiment, Professor Huber of the Speech Department stated vehemently: "I would welcome their visit to a public speaking class to see us train students to express themselves freely in public speaking as well as other areas, this type of freedom of express is also encouraged in other departments, especially seminars." Professor Schultz, in mentioning the standard-of-living factor, added that in talking to a group of Russians here two years ago, he had found them surprised to note how close together the homes of rich and poor were located. Professor Daniels also felt the availability of consumer goods and variety of local control in the fields of education and government would be [redacted].

The related question, "What things do you feel these students should be sure to see while at the University of Vermont?" brought a varied response. Mr. Benthuysen felt no plans should be arranged in advance but rather that the students should be allowed a free choice after they had arrived. (It has already been arranged for the group to visit the Morgan Horse Farm in Weybridge and to attend the Lane Series featuring the New York City Opera Co. in Carmen.) Professor Schultz suggested we not try to impress them with physical things, but rather with processes. We recalled an incident that had impressed a former group of visiting students - the organization of a club by students without orders from a higher authority. Professor Huber too, did not state any specific physical facilities as musts, but advocated impressing on them that they are seeing everyday life, rather than something special. Professor Steele, on the other hand, proffered a list of specific items - a ride up the Stowe chairlift for the emotional experience and impression of vastness that results, and to show that the materialistic society of the United States still has an aesthetic sense; a trip to the Shelburne Museum to demonstrate that America has respect for its recently short past, and a walk down Church Street with stops in local stores to point out the availability of consumer goods in a small town. Mr. Steele brought out the point that it is valuable for the students to come to UVM as representative of the rural area, since most of the rest of their tour time will be spent in definitely urban situations. All questioned felt the group should be allowed freedom of travel.

The question, "Do you think the students should be allowed to live in fraternity houses?" brought a response varying from "Trepidation" in the words of Professor Schultz, to indifference. The general opinion was fraternity or not, it would be good for both Russians and Americans that they be placed in student housing rather than a hotel or family situation. Mr. Benthuysen's statement was "It's not important where they stay, but it should be with students." Professor Schultz explained his trepidation reaction with "we can't afford to let things go wrong." Professors Huber and Steele felt the students in fraternities could be trusted to be courteous and to treat the students as guests, and Mr. Steele added that it would be a valuable opportunity for contact with their own age group, recognizing that fraternities are a part of the institution which they have come to observe. Professor Daniels was doubtful about fraternity housing, citing the probable disparity in ages - the Russian students will probably be of grad student age.

Professors Schultz, Steele, and Daniels had the opportunity to talk with the students in a group that toured UVM two years ago. That group had been studying in the United States and thus had had the benefit of an extended stay rather than the total one month tour of this group. The professors offered, on the basis of that experience, these hints for talking with the coming Russian group:

1. Don't use a blunt approach; be subtle.
2. Try to discuss and talk, not debate.
3. Assume the person to whom you're speaking is an individual, not a "Communist."
4. Don't rehash well known issues.
5. Don't be afraid to admit failings of our own system - a frank "yes, I agree with you," will disarm them completely.
6. Be aware these people have been carefully selected for the trip.
7. Make the most of informality although "The Russians have tried to keep this type of contacts at a minimum." (Professor Daniels)
8. Remember - They're not going to convert anyone or be converted so don't expect miracles.
9. Talk about non-political matters will be profitable and avoid prepared answers.
10. Finally, be courteous!

SA Conference

time opponent of the present form of SA, stressed that the many factions seeking power have prevented any effective Student Association government.

Following this Jerry Emery, Councilman and Chairman of the Reorganization Committee spoke on "The Problem of Representation". He said that it was the opinion of the Committee that a party system in SA would be ineffective in solving SA's problem, since the real problem was that SA Councilmen are in reality responsible to no one but themselves. He recommended a system of representation by housing units which would result in a larger Council, but which would also result in a Councilman directly responsible to the group which had elected him. The number of representatives on new council was estimated at around eighty.

Following this the group was broken down to five groups, each of which considered one specific problem facing SA. These groups discussed the problems and reconvened to present their solutions to the problems to the group. Discussion of these proposed solutions was followed by lunch.

After lunch Dean Earle W. Clifford, Dr. James Marvin and Ted Edgecomb, SA Vice-President, made up a panel which discussed "Responsible and Responsibe Student Government". In this discussion Dean Clifford brought out the fact that each confe representing something o than Student Association more concerned with preser his own organization's p than with making Stu Association more effect The question was also ra whether it would be be to have more or less sepe government for men and women, or one government all students. The overwhel consensus was that a s government for all stud is desired. It was po out that under a new co tution each of the organizations pres governing some segment the student body (such WSGA, Men's Residence Council, IFC, Pan-Hel, would retain control in area, and that the St Association would jurisdiction in cases cerning more than the fields of these groups.

After more discussi dinner the conference the following recommenda

Pictures of the candidates will be displayed in a Waterman showcase on Monday, October 24th. Balloting will take place in Waterman on October 26. UVM students will be able to vote throughout the day and a picture of each candidate will be posted by the ballot box.

The gala crowning of the King and Queen will take place at the Homecoming Ball on Friday, October 28th. They will be crowned by band leader Illinois Jacquet, and each will receive a special trophy in honor of the occasion.

Saturday the lucky winners will ride in a convertible during the Peerade. They will also have reserved seats for the ball game and will be presented during the half-time ceremony. Saturday evening, there are tentative plans for introducing the King and Queen during the Vermont Varieties.

The King and Queen Committee would like to remind the candidates and any interested persons that all campaigning will be handled by the committee.

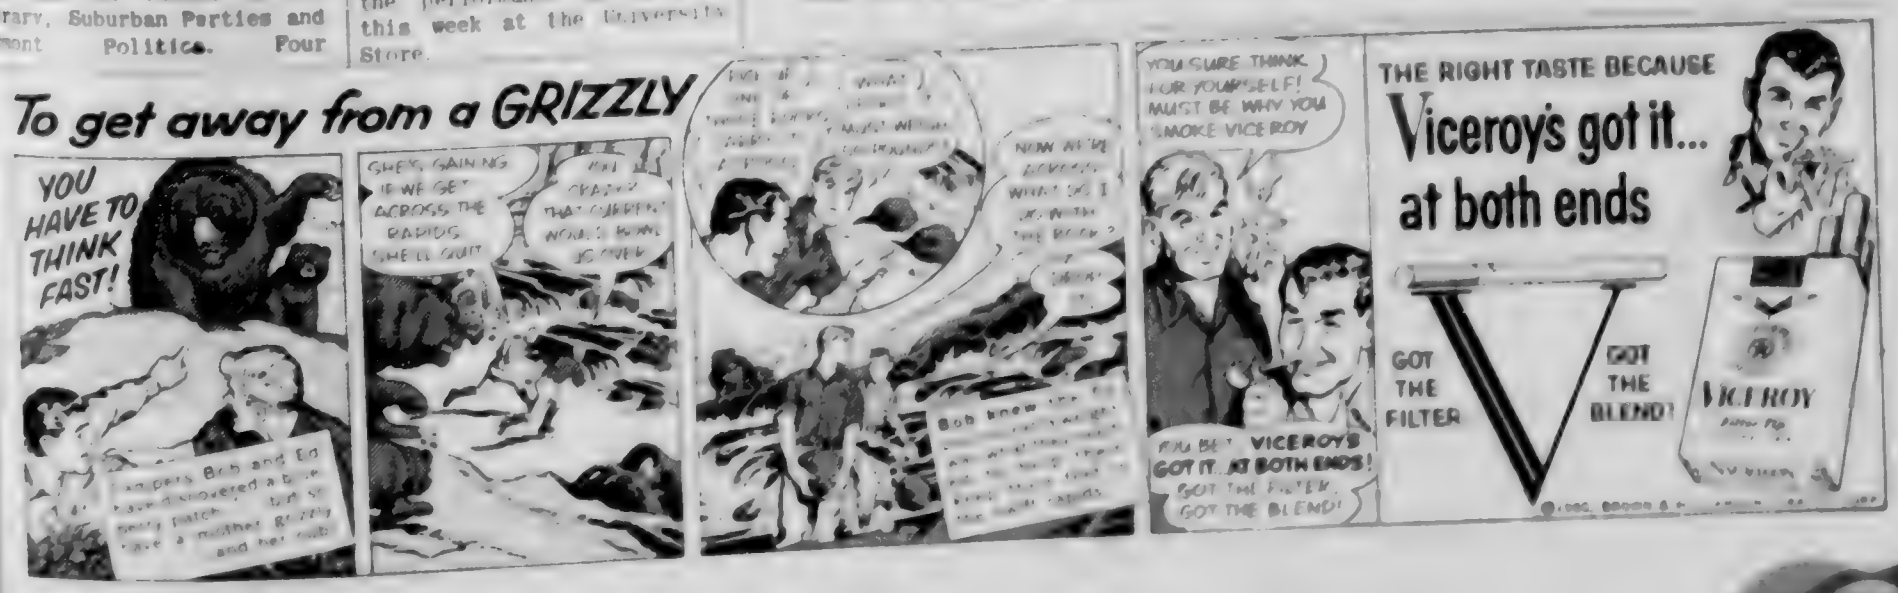
8,000 Management Opportunities!

That's right. There will be 8,000 supervisory jobs filled from within the Western Electric Company by college graduates in just the next ten years! How come? Because there's the kind of upward movement at Western Electric that spells executive opportunity. Young men in engineering and other professional work can choose between two paths of advancement: one within their own technical field and one within over-all management.

Your progress up the ladder to executive positions will be aided by a number of special programs. The annual company wide personnel survey helps select management prospects. This ties in with planned rotational development, including transfers between Bell Companies and experience in a wide variety of fields. Western Electric maintains its own full-time graduate engineering training program, seven formal management courses, and a tuition refund plan for college study.



After joining Western Electric you'll be planning production of a steady stream of communications products—electronic switching, carrier, microwave and missile guidance systems and components such as transistors, diodes, ferrites, etc. Every day, engineers at our manufacturing plants are working to bring new developments of our associates at Bell Telephone Laboratories into practical reality. In short, "the sky's your limit" at Western Electric.

Opportunities exist for electrical, mechanical, industrial, civil and chemical engineers, as well as physical science, liberal arts, and business majors. For more information, get your copy of Consider a Career at Western Electric from your Placement Officer. Or write College Relations, Room 6106, Western Electric Company, 195 Broadway, New York 7, N. Y. Be sure to arrange for a Western Electric interview when the Bell System team visits your campus.

A yearly expedition to the McGill Outing Club and Mont Tremblant in Canada is an event to which everyone looks forward. This takes place for four days between semesters. Before pushing Last year the cost was about $15 for the trip, including room and board. Skiing was extra. Members and officers have had nothing but praise for this event in past years.

Also of interest to the student body is the annual ski movie presented to the club in the late November. Details of this film will be announced.

There are stars in the eyes of Outing Club members when they speak of their ski cabin in Jeffersonville. At present the cabin is a vision, but with support of interested members, it will soon become a reality. The land is bought -- it has yet to be cleared and built upon. The cabin will be lure style making co-ed trips possible. Since eighty percent of the club's skiing is done at Jeffersonville, overnight stays in the cabin would make things more convenient and more fun. Members continue to raise money for the cabin each year at the Penny Carnival. It is hoped that this year's Carnival will help bring about the reality of the cabin in a very few years.

Deans Meet

Tuesday, October 11, Dean Harris, Dean Wing and Dean Clifford attended a meeting of the New England Counseling and Guidance Association at Manchester, Vermont. The topic under discussion was "Guidance and the Underachiever." This is not just a student problem but one of concern to all people living in the world today. Why doesn't the person with ability live up to his potential?

represented proportionally.

That the Council nominate candidates for the top offices, but others may become candidates for these offices if they wish, and if they meet the requirements set by the new constitution for these offices.

That the Student Court, which has recently agreed with the office of the Dean of Men to take on more important cases, be divided into committees to specialize in different types of cases. These include Men's and Women's Judiciaries. Student Court will meet as a whole to consider cases concerning men and women.

That the present method of investing funds is inadequate, and that the finance committee be reorganized in the following way: SA Councilmen only should be eligible for the Finance Committee. All organization budgets are to be presented to the Finance Committee by the Spring deadline if they are to receive consideration. This will enable the committee to arrive at a reasonable estimate of the budget, and prevent overspending. The finance committee should have enough power so that SA Council in general will not repeat the process of breaking down and questioning the budget that the committee has already gone through.

That communications between SA and students will be facilitated by the living unit Representation, and that the most direct routes of communications possible be kept open between Student Association and University Senate and University Council.

These recommendations were given to the Committee on Reorganization of Student Government, who will incorporate them in a new Student Association Constitution. It should be stressed that the writing of a new constitution is a time-consuming process, and that the new one planned for Student Association be presented to the student body for ratification.

Delegates to the conference agreed that the conference was a success. One said "The conference has given us a better understanding of the problems facing a student government and has also produced some concrete ideas for improving the Student Association so that it is a truly 'Responsible and responsible government'."

The primary reason that this time was slower than the one he turned in in the last meet, can be attributed to the slow conditions of the course caused by heavy rainfall Friday, and Saturday morning.

Some distance behind Karch was teammate Ron Bishop, who finished only eight seconds ahead of third place finisher Harley Hough of Waterbury. The remaining finishers in the first ten were Don Huard of Williamstown, Leight Walker of UVM, Lenny McCarthy of Williamstown, Vermont's Don Moreau, and Mike Grossman, and Waterbury's Norm Baylis and Willie Sayah.

FROSH FROLICS

by Wayne Mirsky

UNSCORED UPON FROSH

The impenetrable frosh defensive line failed again Saturday to yield a score. Several of the losers' onslaughts were thwarted by the "Awsome Seven." Meanwhile, the offensive rolled up two scores to edge out a stubborn St. Lawrence team 12-0. The day was marked by tremendous offensive performances by Tom Perras and Leo Davin. Tom, who last week dazzled the spectators by his remarkable runs, was just as effective this week. Davin on the other hand, finally lived up to his pre-season expectations as the fullback everyone knew he could be. Numerous times Leo broke through the line like a Sherman Tank and carried three or four St. Lawrence backs with him. He scored once and was invaluable as a kicker. Other strong games were turned in by the always reliable Ollie Thorensen, Buzz Balmer, Bob Greco, Artie Jacob, Al Brown and Paul Hughes, who once more played the hero role by blocking a Saint punt. As was last week's game, this was also an all out team effort. The second team filled in admirably for the first when the latter was taken out for a rest.

Now leaving behind in their wake the smoldering ruins of the vanquished elevens of Rensselaer and St. Lawrence, the Big Green and Gold turn their guns towards next week's encounter against Williams College and the increasing speculation of an undefeated season.

HARRIERS ALSO UNBEATEN

The Frosh Cross-Country Team fared much better than the Varsity this past weekend. While the latter was being beaten by Wesleyan, the Kits won a dual meet against Williamstown and Waterburg high schools. The powerful Kittens took five out of the first eight places. Gary Karch gallopped home almost one minute before anyone else. Other Vermont placers were Ronnie Bishop, Leighton Walker, Don Moreau and Mike Grossman.

HOOP SEASON APPROACHES

With the coming of the basketball season just a few weeks away, many hopeful candidates have been busily working out in their spare time at the gym and the outside court. There are quite a few boys who are at UVM vin basketball scholarships. John Babcock and Chuck Glick, a pair of slick All Metropolitan guards, Dick Lawson, Dave Strassburg, Howie Lacota, Larry Vender, Larry Solomen, Coach Ed Donnelly's son, Jimmy Susking and Stevie Ratner will probably comprise the nucleus of this year's frosh team. The boys have a tough assignment ahead in trying to equal last year's 18-3 record, but I'm sure that under the able coaching of Ralph Lapointe the entire student body will be proud of its freshman basketball team.

Sports Questionnaire

QUESTION—How do you think Vermont will fare this Saturday against the Norwich Cadets?

Wendy David '61--Having not won a game all year, I think that the Law of Averages is in our favor. If we lose this game, we may as well give up.

Dave Steele '61—One can only hope for the best.

Merilyn Sitomer '64--It gets kind of boring to hear about UVM losing week after week. I think that it's about time we won our first game.

Al Rhein '64—Considering that the Cadets held Coast Guard to only 7 points, and Coast Guard beat us by 25, I am not particularly optimistic. However, I do think that Vermont has a good chance to win, and I sure hope we do.

Lennie Steckler '64—All I know is that we haven't won a game yet, and here's hoping that Norwich will be our first win.

Mary Ploof '61—I don't think that we'll win. I think that we always make the same mistakes, and we haven't learned to correct them yet.

A. P. Low (MSMAFL '63—We stand 0-4 right now, and at the rate we're going, I think we'll be 0-5 next week. The Cadets have a much stronger team this year than last, and that won't be easy.

Karen Berg '63--Well, I certainly hope that we'll win, but I feel very pessimistic about the outcome of the game.

Part of the success of the Kitten's late scoring drive must be attributed to the blocking of 208 pound guard, Merrill Thorensen and 215 pound tackle Ron Oliver, Coach Fuzzy Evans had high praise for his team after a fine showing against what he called, "The best St. Lawrence Freshman team I've seen in years. Not only did we hold them scoreless," Coach Evans said, "But I think we really surprised them with some great playing, both on offense and defense."

ACROSS THE NATION

By Barry Barkley

Purdue 24, Ohio State 21. This score has thrown the country's most powerful conference into a mass of bewilderment. After last week it seemed as if the Buckeyes from Columbus were off and running following their impressive defeat of Illinois. There still remain, however, two undefeated teams in the conference. Those are Michigan State and The University of Iowa. Iowa shows a particularly impressive record as in the main they are manned by sophomores and juniors. Also looming in the shadows is darkhorse Minnesota University going unnoticed all over the nation, but yet to be beaten.

This week we see Iowa against Purdue, conquerors of Ohio State last week. Iowa should have little trouble with the erratic but ever dangerous Boilermakers. In the other clashes throughout the Big Ten there are no major rivalries; however, one can never tell in this conference. Michigan State should have little bother with Indiana, Minnesota will have to fight to defeat Michigan in a close game. Ohio State has a chance to vindicate itself this Saturday against the undermanned forces of Wisconsin University. In other games this week Illinois will test the caliber of Eastern football when it takes on The Nittany Lions of Penn State. Being an Easterner I look for an upset in this one and hope for the best. Northwestern will get one of its few chances for victory as they go against luckless Notre Dame. The Fighting Irish have been floundering along in this a rebuilding year hoping for future revenge for some of the shellackings they have absorbed this year.

Before I dig myself deeper into this bottomless pit of prediction, I shall now produce from a mixture of wishes and crystal ball gazings my choices as the Ten top teams in the nation as of this week.

1. Ole Miss.
2. Syracuse
3. Iowa
4. Missouri
5. Navy
6. Ohio State
7. Minnesota
8. Michigan State
9. Tennessee
10. Baylor

Because of last weeks close squeeze against Penn State the Orangemen from New York have taken a back seat to the powerful gentlemen from the south. Missouri a team that has been rebuilding is finally making its first breakthrough in the national ranking picture and numbered as the favorite for Big Seven Conference honors in place of perennial champion Oklahoma. Navy has come up with one of their finest teams in what, at the beginning of the year, did not look like a particularly exciting array of personnel. With All-America Joe Bellino playing spectacular ball, the Middies are a team to watch. Tennessee has been very quiet in the battles that have been raging around the country, however, the Vols have only allowed 17 points to be scored against them in five games.

Player of the week; Ed Frimleg of Lower Westchester State Teachers College. In other games:

First Loss Of Season

The University of Vermont Cross-Country team suffered its first defeat of the season, losing to Wesleyan University 15-44. Unaccustomed to running in the 80 degree humidity and temperature, the UVM harriers quickly faded and failed to place a runner among the first five finishers. UVM's Hal Hastings was the first Vermont Harrier across the line after he came in sixth in 24:01, two minutes off the winning time of 22:04. He was followed seconds later by UVM's Ian Stewart and Dave Burroughs who took seventh and eighth place. The next Vermont runners to place were Hugh Spafford and Bill Heaney, they came in eleventh and twelfth. Bill Walker placed fifteenth for Vermont, followed by Steve Russell, Don Gero, and Tim Simpson. They placed seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth, in that order.

Kittens Win

by Joe Levin

A good note was sounded for the future as the unbeaten UVM frosh eleven maintained its unblemished record with a 12-0 victory over a strong St. Lawrence team.

Vermont got into the scoring column in the first period on a 37 yard pass play from John Greer to Tom Perras for a touchdown.

Both teams were held scoreless in the middle two periods by the staunch defensive play of their big lines. In the fourth quarter, the Kittens again penetrated the St. L goal-line with an eight-yard march, climaxed by a five-yard run by fullback Leo Davin of Hamden, Conn.

STUFF CYNIC MEN--VERMONT

HALFTIME HALFTIME BREAK BREAK

By Stan

WHO'S TO BLAME?

That's a good question. WHO is to blame? Our football record is now 0-4. Last year at this time we had a 2-2 ledger, and went on to end the season with four wins against three defeats. There are many undergraduate students who believe that the administration is at fault. There is almost an equally large number who say the coaches are to blame. Some of the students go so far as to put the men on the team at fault. Well, WHO IS TO BLAME? There is no one person or persons at fault. We are the victims of a universal problem. M-O-N-E-Y!! The football squad is comparatively small for a school of this size, and the mentors are understaffed. The administration is to blame for the poor scouting system. In other schools they have four men; one for the line, one for the backfield, one for the diagnosis of plays, and one to cover the team in general. At UVM we have two men who scout, and they are usually at different schools. If the administration can see their way to hiring one, or possibly two new men, a large part of the problem may be solved. One of the primary jobs of these new men would be scouting. Another important job would be that of assisting Coaches Donnelly and Evans, in football and basketball respectively. Football and basketball are full time sports, and trying to assist one coach while being the head coach of another sport is no picnic. These new men would do exactly as their titles say, ASSIST. When the football season is over, they would devote their time to basketball.

In a few years when the present coaches retire, these new men will be there to fill their shoes. Granted, it will be a tough job, but at least they will have the experience necessary. The new coaches will be able to couple what they've learned under the tutelage of Coaches Donnelly and Evans with their own knowledge, and start out on the rough road ahead of them.

IN REPLY

I have been "advised" by more than one high source not to answer a column in the CYNIC last week that was aimed at me. Some people might think that it's smarter not to answer it, others to leave things as they stand and not to bring it out in the open. It is my belief that nothing can be accomplished by remaining silent.

The scholarship problem is a controversial topic. I am the first one to admit that academic scholarships MUST come before athletic scholarships, but a line must be drawn somewhere. Apparently, "Mr. Z." believes that academic scholarships must come first, last, and always. If he believes that athletics should not be a part of college, well then "Mr. Z.", YOU ARE AT THE WRONG SCHOOL!! The football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, golf, skiing, and cross-country teams are all an integral part of college life at UVM.

Whether, "Mr. Z.", you are serious in your beliefs, or are just trying to take up space in a column, you MUST be answered. I remember last year that you picked a continuous quarrel with another columnist who has since graduated. If you believe that this weekly dickering will help to increase the number of students who read your column, you have my FULL permission to attack me again next week. I shall not, however, be a part of your plan to get more people to read your column. Although I shall bring up the subjects of athletic

HARRIERS TO FACE BEARS

by Mike Steinberg

The once-beaten UVM Cross-Country Team returns to Burlington Saturday to run against the Black Bears of the University of Maine. The Harriers are going to try and get back on the winning road, after losing a heart-breaker last week to a tough Wesleyan Team.

This year's meeting with the Bears is expected to be a very close affair. Maine is anxious to avenge last year's narrow defeat of 25-32.

The outcome Saturday will depend a great deal on the showing of the inexperienced sophomores on the squad. They have proven that they have the necessary ability, and that, accompanied with a strong will to win, should result in a Vermont victory.

Loss Is 4th In A Row

by Jon Kaplan

The University [illegible] failed in its fourth attempt to win its first game Saturday as the Cats succumbed to the score of 20-8, to a highly rated Rochester eleven. It was characterized by Vermont fumbles and penalties, the Yellowjackets won their last [illegible] under coach Elmer Burman.

Although the Cats were on the move throughout, they were unable to score until the final period of play. The score at this time was 29-0 [illegible] and after the Vermont TD, the Yellowjackets did not sit on the ball till the final gun.

Quarterback Paul Hatt [illegible] Dom Parlato in the end zone for the Catamount touchdown. It was set up by a twenty-yard run around the left end by [illegible] more halfback Frank [illegible] Harris hit Parlato again for the two point conversion.

In the first quarter [illegible] after Bill Fleming intercepted a yellowjacket aerial, the Cats drove down to the Rochester 3 yard line. UVM lost the ball on downs, however, and Rochester went 79 yards in 9 plays for their first TD.

In the second quarter Vermont drove sown to the Rochester 1. A penalty and a fumble saved a scoring chance fade, and Rochester led at the half 7-0.

Midway through the third period, another Vermont [illegible] up the second Rochester touchdown. They scored on a 37 yard pass play. The successful point after the touchdown made the score 14-0. Rochester's final score came on a 70 yard scoring march. A defensive penalty against Vermont helped this score materialize.

Parents Welcomed For Big Weekend

The 1960 Family Associates Weekend which will take place during Homecoming [illegible] be the liveliest ever.

Family Associates is the organization to which parents of students now enrolled at UVM belong. As such they receive UVM BULLETINS and special [illegible] They are invited to participate in a variety of University events such as Homecoming, Family Associates Weekends and the like. Active members are asked to support the programs of their respective classes through dues established by each class. These dues are vital to the carrying out of class projects but are not required for membership in the Associates. The purpose of the Association is to establish an identity and a closer relationship between parents and students and the University.

Memorial Auditorium will be the scene for the Homecoming Ball on Friday evening. Lonnie Jacquet's band will play for the dance.

Saturday morning, October 29, at the crack of dawn (8:9 a.m.) the four classes of Family Associates will stage the customary registration procedures outside Waterman Student lounge. From 8-9 there will be a free coffee hour in the student lounge where parents and alumni will have a brief period of time to meet one another and just relax.

At nine o'clock, the associates will settle down to business with separate business meetings, election of officers etc. in classes.

In the Student Lounge at ten o'clock, there will be a meeting on "UVM's New Look". This meeting is designed to give a brief mental image of the new buildings going up on campus.

The "Peerade" of floats will start after lunch. The "Peerade" will end up at Centennial Field where the Homecoming football game, Vermont vs. Northeastern, will start at 1:30 p.m.

Right after the game there will be a beef barbeque at the UVM Cage for those who are interested. There will also be a cocktail hour (starting at 5 p.m.) at the Hotel Vermont.

After dinner, you have your choice of either the "Vermont Varieties" or a talk by heart specialist, Dr. Wilhelm Raab. The Varieties start at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium. Dr Raab will speak at 8:00 p.m. in the Ira Allen Chapel. He will give an illustrated lecture on the prevention of heart disease.

Sunday the President's Breakfast will take place in Waterman Dining Hall at 9:00 a.m. Dr. John T. Fey will speak. The breakfast brings to a close the activities of Family Associates Weekend.

Mr. Raymond L. Pinehout, the Secretary of UVM Family Associates, is anticipating one of the finest turnouts ever for the weekend due to the large enrollment in this year's Freshmen Class.

Traditional Weekend Offers Several New Attractions

Homecoming 1960 activities are slated to begin tonight at 7 P.M. with a pep rally at the cage, and will climax with Vermont Varities Saturday at Memorial Auditorium.

Two major features have added to Homecoming this year: a lecture for Alumni and members of the Family Association, and a calypso band performance during the Ball intermission. The lecture is to be delivered Saturday at 8 p.m. by the noted cardiac authority, Dr Wilhelm Raab. The topic will be "Loafer's Heart". The Jamaicians, a five man dance and song unit will entertain with music of the Virgin Islands, during an intermission of about one hour. They have previously appeared at Wesleyan, Trinity, University of Connecticut, Tufts, and Yale.

The half time for the homecoming game with Northeastern has been lengthened to permit President Fey to speak and also permit the awarding of two V blankets - one to the Family Association member of Alumni who has traveled farthest to attend Homecoming, and one to the family with the largest number of children currently attending the University. There will also be a twirling performance by Sandy Kornstedt and several selections played by the University band.

Vermont Varieties, still another traditional part of Homecoming will be "the most varied variety show we've had" in the words of Mr. Greg Falls. The emphasis this year is to be on satire, and among the subjects are Vermont politics, history, suburban parties, Fidel Castro, and the crowded Billings Library. Music for both the introduction and final of Varieties was written by Jack Ovitt Class of '60. The tunes "You Can Never Never Tell" (Introduction) and "It's all Over Now" (Final) were used last year, and Mr. Falls hopes to use them again in successive years.

Tickets for all Homecoming events will be available beforehand or at the door. Family Association members and Alumni will be able to purchase them for all events at the Alumni House as well.

Colorful Selections To Brighten Varieties

The 14th Annual Vermont Varieties promises to be one of the biggest yet. On Saturday evening of Homecoming at 7:30 in the Memorial Auditorium approximately twenty acts will be presented by the University Players.

After two solid weeks of rehearsal, the company of fifty under the direction of Associate Professor, Greg Falls, has assembled an hour and a half show of sketches, music, dance, and comedy. The opening by the entire company, You Can Never Tell About a Show was written by Jack Ovitt and was used last year. It is hoped that both the opening and the final, It's All Over Now, also written by Mr. Ovitt will become a tradition.

Included in the varied program are several student-written sketches. Among these are Vermont Politics by Dave Cashore, Parts by Bob Stein and George Eaton, and a satire on Castro's Cuba by Roberto Eaton. Other sketches will [illegible] Boccaly in History and a satire of crowded conditions of the library with song and a soft-shoe routine with Phil Judd, Sue Wichterman, and Ralf Bode.

A group of selections from musical shows of past Players productions will be highlighted. Featured will be Roy Kelley from the original UVM production of Oklahoma of five years ago; Carole Demas from Wonderful Town, Alice Zalon from Carousel, and Bob Frenier and Diana Jordan will present a song and dance routine from Brigadoon. There will also be a selection from the forthcoming production of Where's Charley?

Other acts include a piano-comedy routine by Jon Tenzer, and the Shakespeare Festival Minstrels. Piano accompaniment will be provided by Carol Cailey.

Varieties originated fourteen years ago as a student-faculty show. Six years ago it was moved to Homecoming so that it would become more of an all-university weekend.

N.Y. Opera Company Stages "Carmen", "Cosi Fan Tutte"

The City of Burlington's Opera Season for 1960-61 opens this week at the Memorial Auditorium. The Lane Series is proud to have as its two opera attractions for this year the New York City Opera Company presenting Bizet's "Carmen" and Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte." The Opera Company is under the direction of, and conducted by Julius Rudel.

Rudel will present "Cosi Fan Tutte" on Monday evening, October 31, as a part of the Blue Series program, and "Carmen" on Tuesday evening, November 1, as part of the program of the Red Series.

This is the fifth time that the NYC Opera Company has been a part of the Lane Series. They first came here in the 1956-57 season at which time "Die Fliedermaus" was their presentation. In the 1957-58 season they presented "La Boheme" and in 1958-59, the year of the first Lane Double Series, the Company put on both "Madame Butterfly" and "Rigoletto". Last year "La Traviata" and "The Merry Widow" were offered. Mr. Rudel and his company were commended each time for doing a splendid job.

Julius Rudel, the 39-year old General Director of the NYC Opera and his youthful company have made musical history since 1957, when Mr. Rudel took over the reins. He has been called the "leading light" of the company. Mr. Rudel firmly established the Company's critical and public support and while doing this, he has also expanded his own conductorial horizons. Mr. Rudel is internationally known and has been praised all through the U.S. and in Europe.

Scene from New York City Opera Company's "Cosi Fan Tutte"

His activities on the podium this year have included a special performance of "The Taming of the Shrew" at the Boston Arts Festival in June, a series of Mozart arias in Chicago's Grant Park and on August 26, he led a symphony concert at the Hollywood Bowl. He has recorded for Westminster Records both in the U.S. and in Vienna. With his own opera company he has conducted a repertoire as varied as "Turandot", "The Merry Widow" and Stravinsky's "Oedipus Rex". In October 1954, when Mr. Rudel conducted the company's first performance of Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte", the critics dipped into their choicest adjectives to describe the event. The most frequently used was simply "perfect". An unerring sense of style appears to permeate his efforts as conductor and as a director.

Mr. Rudel has received many awards in recognition of his fine work. He has been given the National Arts Club Gold Medal, a citation from the National Association of American Conductors and Composers, the award and citation of the National Federation of Music Clubs, and

Four Art Films To Be Shown

A series of four art films, ranging from pre-Columbian days up to the present, will be presented by the Fleming Museum Saturday, November 3 at 8 o'clock. The films will be shown in the Arena Theater a fee of fifty cents will be charged for those who are not members of the museum. For all those interested in seeing the originals of some of the "objects d'art" shown in the film, the museum galleries will be open before and after the program.

The first film is on "Pre-Columbian Mexican Sculpture", of which there is a sizable collection in the museum. It consists of the rise of sculpture mediums before the days of Columbus. These terracotta, crystal, stone, jade, and gold works are the only remains we have left to us by "vanished civilizations."

The remainder of the program consists of three films which are all related in that they are of works showing the daily street life of the common people. "Images Medieval" is about 14-16th century manuscript illumniations, which were hand drawn pictures in old song books and religious texts. These pictures, which were used in the sets of the movie Henry V, show all the facets of medieval life from birth to death. The film is also in color and is accompanied by authentic medieval music.

The third film, "Follies of the Town", is in black and white. It captures the life of 18th century England as shown in the prints of Hogarth. These prints are frivilous, social satires of the London Street life, night life, gin mills, politics, etc. They were the basis for the "Beggar's Opera" which was later made into the "Three Penny Opera". Hogarth is also known for his series of successive photographs, each advancing a story on such subjects as marriage and politics.

"Harlem Wednesday", in color, is a progressive film which brings the scene up to the present. It is a group of Harlem scenes painted by Gregorio Prestophino against a band background led by Benny Carter. The paintings and sketches suggest a mid-week Harlem day.

UVM Budget Requests Ready For Legislature

The University will ask the 1960 Legislature to assume an increased share of the University's operating budget, it was announced following a meeting of the UVM Board of Trustees, October 15.

The budget adopted by the Board will be presented to the Department of Administration. It asks a 1961-63 biennial state appropriation of $8,652,000. This is a 29 percent increase, or $1,496,000 more than the $5,156,000 appropriated by the Legislature for the 1959-61 biennium.

The 1961-63 state appropriation requested amounts to 40.7 percent of the University's total estimated operating budget of $16,328,000. The state provided 36.4 percent of the total 1959-61 biennial budget of $14,129,000.

The requested biennial state appropriation includes: $3,559,000 for operation of the University's undergarduate and graduate college programs; $1,356,000 for operation of the College of Medicine; $1,484,000 for operation of the agricultural service and research divisions; $200,000 for deferred maintenance to University buildings; $52,200 for retirement of debts obligated under authorizatjon of the Legislature when the University successfully staved off a financial crisis in the early 1940's.

The requested state appropriations, which amount to 40.7 percent of the proposed total operating budget, represent the single largest source of income available to UVM. Most state universities receive more than half of their income from state appropriations.

Tuition, which is expected to produce over $5,000,000 in the 1961-63 biennium, is the second largest income source available. It accounts for 31 percent of the proposed biennial budget. Resident and non-resident tuitions are among the highest charged by any state univerasity.

OTHER BUDGET FACTS

The $1,356,000 request for the College of Medicine represents an increase of only $30,000 per year over the state appropriation for the current 1960-61 year of biennium. The $1,484,000 request for operation of the agricultural service and research divisions represents an increase of $57,000 per year for each year of the coming biennium. The $200,000 request for deferred maintenance is $120,000 more than the amount received for the current biennium. It is intended, however, to permit the University to renovate some of its buildings which have had little or no major overhauling in decades.

Disease & Prevention Raab's Homecoming Topic

Dr. Wilhelm Raab, who will deliver the Homecoming address Saturday evening. (Portrait painted by Professor Francis Colburn, Chairman of the UVM Art Department.)

On Saturday evening October 29, at eight o'clock in the Chapel, Dr. Wilhelm Raab will deliver the Homecoming speech to parents and alumni. The title of the speech is "Diseases of Civilization and Their Mass Prevention Abroad." Primary among these diseases created by our over civilization are degenerative heart diseases. Every year approximately 50% of all deaths in the United States, over 800,000, are caused by these ailments. It is Dr. Raab's theory, based on extensive research, that this type of heart disease can be traced to three basic factors 1. high fat diet 2. emotional tensions 3. lack of regular exercise. It is the latter of these that the speaker will mainly discuss.

Dr. Raab points out that there is, in the normal body, a balance between two regulatory nervous and chemical systems. When this balance is upset degeneration of the heart muscle threatens to develop.

Physical exercise is very important in this balance. Due to occupations and living habits, most people in America are unable to get the exercise if daily exercise necessary for physical fitness. This situation is not unique to the United States. Industrialized countries the world over are facing the same problem. However, according to Dr. Raab, some of these countries have taken action to solve this modern dilemma.

In Germany, for example, a system of preventive mass-reconditioning in special rural centers has been developed during the past seven years for the benefit of not yet overtly sick workers, employees and executives who are threatened by the detriments of super-civilized living. Russia sends about 4,000,000 workers snnually to similar clinics which restore, through gradually increasing physical exercise, the correct physiological balance. Health lectures for the improvement of living habits are also included. As to the success of these systems in general Dr. Raab says: "Results in terms of subjective improvement, increased and prolonged working capacity, and reduced morbidity are said to be excellent, even though detailed statistical surveys are not yet available." Despite the obvious need, nothing similar has yet been undertaken in this country.

In conclusion Dr. Raab feels that we in America are "more disease-minded than health-minded," and should strive to accomplish physical fitness as a deterrant to disease. He proposes the establishment of a piloting reconditioning center also in this country, specifically in Vermont, equipped with facilities and staff for scientific objective evaluation of some of the reconditioning methods practiced abroad.

Dr. Raab was born in Vienna, Austria and received doctorates from the University of Vienna (1921) and German University of Prague (1926). He came to UVM in 1939 as an assistant professor in Internal Medicine and has been teaching ever since. In 1949 he helped organize the heart unit in the DeGoesbriand Hospital and since that time has been director of this unit. He has recently retired from fifteen years as chairman of the Experimental Medicine division. Married in Boston in 1930 to Olga E. Palmborg, he has two sons; one is a graduate student in chemistry at Wooster Foundation for Biological Research, the other is a junior at UVM.

1959-60 and 1960-61 Ariels will be on sale from Monday, Oct. 31, to Thursday, Nov. 3 from 9-11 A.M. and 2-4 P.M.

Jamaicans To Appear During Dance Break

The Jamaicans who will perform at the Homecoming Ball intermission.

One of the features of the Homecoming Dance will be the appearance of the exciting Jamaicans; the singing, dancing, playing unit which is now making a tour of colleges and universities.

Led by Lou Hanson, who originally came to the U.S.A. to study and receive a degree in music, the group has been an outstanding success in appearances at Wesleyan, Trinity, University of Connecticut, Tufts, Yale, and in engagements at hundreds of private affairs.

While the Jamaicans feature the native calypso music of the Virgin Islands, the versatility of the organization makes it possible to include all phases of music, including rock and roll, which is not only danceable, but also very listenable.

Prior to coming to the United States, Hanson temporarily disbanded the unit, and went to England to be starred with many leading European dance bands, including the famous Geraldo, and finally returned to Jamaica to reorganize his present band.

In the early months of the American Tour, the Jamaicans were hailed in such clubs as, Le Cupidon, New York; The Mocambo, Montreal; The Brown Derby, Toronto; The Blue Angel, New York; Chubby's, Camden, New Jersey, Club Harlem, Atlantic City; and a host of others.

Editorial: Homecoming

This is Homecoming Weekend, and the CYNIC joins the entire University in greeting both returning alumni and visiting parents at UVM. Because of the fine advance planning and the work of all groups and individuals concerned, this weekend promises to be the best of all Homecomings. All those who have so generously given of their time and effort to make this weekend a success justly deserve the praise of all the rest of us, who will reap the fruits of their labors.

Parents visiting the alums returning to UVM will immediately notice the changes being made on the campus. The library is rising between the cage and Mills Hall, a women's dormitory is being constructed on Redstone Campus, and just over the brow of the hill on Route 2 the new men's dorms are taking shape. Construction on a fine new gymnasium will begin in the not too distant future. All these things represent the continuing progress of the University of Vermont not only as a physical plant, but as a university.

Progress is a necessary and a desirable thing. Alumni who have not seen the University for several years and parents who must at times think that progress consists of their progeny's increasing ability to spend money should consider these buildings are representative of progress in all the areas of the university. And as the university increases in physical and intellectual reputation, both parents and alumni will benefit as will the students.

Again, we welcome the parents and alumni who have come to make this Homecoming Weekend successful. We hope that they will come, look, think, and perhaps depart with an even greater understanding of an interest in the University of Vermont.

SA Failure

In last week's editorial concerning the current situation of the Student Association we pointed out that apathy has spread even to the council itself. This situation has become even more apparent in the past week. On last Thursday evening a meeting of Student Association Council was to be held in which the recent Reorganization Conference was to be discussed and explained to Council members who were unable to attend. This meeting could not be held because a quorum was not present.

This is perhaps the most damning condemnation of Student Association that can possibly be made. When members of an organization are so apathetic that they will fail to attend not only a regular meeting of the organization, but a meeting which could possibly point out the way in which their organization could become effective, no more marked evidence of apathy can be found.

"RESPONSIBLE" COUNCILMEN

The students on SA Council, it must be remembered, at least theoretically represent the classes from which they were elected, and should be responsible to these classes. Furthermore, Council meetings are held each Thursday evening, and the Councilmen should be able to schedule their time so that they are able to attend these weekly meetings. If they do not have the time to spare, they should have never run for Council in the first place.

CHANGE NEEDED

We take this to be a further indication of the necessity for Student Association revision. Reorganization, particularly in the field of representation, will result in an association which is responsible to the student body and in which the average student can and will take an active part. As things stand now, it is evident that Student Association does not raise enough interest to be worth the name.

Letters To The Editor

Critical Of CYNIC

To the Editor:

The University of Vermont recognizes the CYNIC as the official school newspaper. While it is commendable to have an outlet for news and views of students, the school seems to lack any awareness that the CYNIC is read by alumni, students, the public, and parents, who accept this paper as its own officially approved publication. If there were awareness on the part of the Administration, it would seem that they would alert the staff as to the condition of this paper. Undeniably, the University, and the CYNIC, offer freedom of the press, yet why don't they realize the RESPONSIBILITY of it??

There are two columns in the CYNIC which serve as prime examples of the lack of journalistic intelligence on the part of the staff and the blindness of the university in condoning it as the official school paper.

The first is the article, "Cuba, Castro, and Me." The stated idea of the writer is to ". . . give you a fuller understanding of the Cuban Revolution." The only understanding I have from the article is that Mr. Kritzler is in dire need of a high school grammar education. His pseudo-sophisticated ideas of the internal and international affairs of Cuba are not only immature but are based on a tourist's experience which are of superficial value in understanding problems and ideas of a nation and its people which is derived from the past. I would suggest that Mr. Kritzler take a course next semester called "Governments of Latin America" along with a refresher course in English Composition rather than insult our intelligence any further.

The second article, by Mr. Older, is tantalizingly called "Why Not??" This very wordiness makes it boring. If the writer has a message, have him give it concisely, rather than fill up space which might be utilized better for coherent ideas of students on school and world affairs.

The cup of immaturity runneth over when editorial writers squabble among themselves until the last word is in; when letters to the editors slammed by the paper with stock answers; and when articles are grammatically incorrect. When a newspaper is afraid of constructive criticism, and its editors have so little faith in the principles for which they stand that they must resort to snide retaliations, then it is difficult to comprehend the standards of intelligence and maturity of the people managing the CYNIC.

Whether the ideas expressed are those of the University or not, it is not easily understood for the reasons stated above, why the University of Vermont, as an institution of higher learning, dares regard this paper as an official publication in in its present status.

[illegible] Freedom

The CYNIC feels that this is an appropriate opportunity to answer the many comments and criticisms which have been made of the paper.

To begin, we have never denied publication of letters written to us under any circumstances. We have always encouraged and appreciated constructive criticism of our work. To answer your letter, point for point, would not be advantageous, for several of your points are basically sound. However, we do strongly resent your accusation of our lack of purpose of responsibility. We have continually endeavored to present the news and issues which face the student body as impartially and as factfully as possible. We have taken positive stands on many of the issues, for example, Student Association, women's regulations and S.SGA compulsory mass meetings, the segregation problem, drinking, etc., in the sincere hope that our suggestions will lead to a better UVM.

Yes, we will seriously consider your recommendations and will continually strive to improve our work. However, we are getting a little sick and tired of the habitual complainers who emerge from their own state of inertia on Thursday afternoons. Our staff has enough work and problems to contend with without the non-constructive roadblocks with the habitual complainers thrive on devising for us.

Praises CYNIC

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

As a Student Association Councilman, I would like to congratulate your paper and yourself for the very competent manner in which you handled the Student Association's Government Conference.

It was handled with frankness and open-mindedness which impressed the student body. You have not blinded the readers to the facts and I am sure that through your present and future efforts, the University of Vermont CYNIC will continue to bring the student body the facts of what occurs at Student Association Council meetings. This communication between students and their governing body is of the utmost importance and at the present time the CYNIC is the only means by which this can be accomplished.

L. Dugan, '63
Student Association

SA Absenteeism

To the UVM Student Body:

Good going, group! Those S.A. Councilmen you've elected are really on the ball! This past weekend they failed to attend the Reorganization Conference at Camp Abnaki, the most important event for the Student Association in recent years. Perhaps they had excellent excuses for that, but where were they tonight, when the Council sat to discuss the results of the Conference? An obvious inference is no interest, and any businessman fires employees with no interest in their work. These people are your employees -- what are you going to do about it?

A small group of interested people are carrying on all the business of the Student Body. They are to be commended, but it is more to the point that the others be reproved.

This evening's S.A. Council meeting was a complete failure, since the members present (Jerry Edelstein, President; Judy Morse, Secretary; John Bancroft, Treasurer; Mark Platt, Parliamentarian; Jerry Emery, Dave Gardner, Lance Levine, Jerry Gersten, and Larry Dugan did not constitute a Quorum. Failure seems to be par for the course -- do you care?

Not Tightfisted

To the Editor of the [illegible]

There appeared in the [illegible] last week a proposal [illegible] Not", which seems to be highly unfeasible. Older's ideas [illegible] recreation are worthy, unfortunately these [illegible] with the financial [illegible] have the same [illegible] insight.

Those "tenacious [illegible] ing hands" that happen to be [illegible] State of Vermont. The Mountain State is one of the smallest states in the union and does not have at it's disposal the [illegible] such an undertaking as proposed. As it stands there is an extensive construction program at UVM the new dorms and [illegible] Isn't this enough for a while?

Vermont has many areas that require [illegible] much, if not more attention. Highway improvement, care of the aged and care of the mentally ill are only a few. Let's think about others in the state besides those in the university community.

If the faculty and students are in favor of the projects mentioned in "Why Not" start a drive for funds, but please don't place such improvement out of all logical proportion.

Respectfully,
Robert Coleman '61

Errors Made

CYNIC Editor
Waterman Building

The October 20 issue of the CYNIC contains an article pertaining to Outing Club activities. But unfortunately some of the statements made in this article are erroneous or misleading. We don't know who wrote this story, but it was out our official correspondent. Furthermore whoever did write this story did so without our consent and apparently without any effort to contact any responsible club officer or council member for accurate information.

To set the record straight, the Outing Club never has had any connection whatsoever with the Penny Carnival nor has it ever asked for or received any of its proceeds. Any other assumption is completely without basis.

Next, "our cabin" is ours only in the sense that we are the ones who thus far have shown the most interest, raised all of the work and raised most of the funds for it. It should be made very clear that this cabin, when it is built, will be for the use of the university and that any reference to an Outing Club cabin is merely a reflection of the intense enthusiasm and effort that the Outing Club is devoting to make the cabin a reality.

The final point to be made should not be necessary, but with or without co-eds always have been and presumably always will be an actively participating Outing Club trips and activities which include overnight trips, Intersemester Trips and our regular day trips.

Although the Outing Club disclaims any responsibility for any of the statements made in this CYNIC article we wish to state that any misleading and erroneous information of this nature should appear in print.

Although admirably fashioning his creation in occasionally eloquent verse, MacLeish seems, to this critic, to pass off too much of his own responsibility to the acting company. MacLeish is striving, as is seen by his subject material, to present what to many would be a highly personal utterance. Yet despite the grand tenor of his breast-beating he comes short of suggesting that link which binds the inarticulate audience to the highly articulate stage. We appreciate the mental anguish of J.B., but although we are sympathetic we very seldom find ourselves on the inside looking out.

The acting company offered laudable expiation for the omissions of MacLeish. Under the sensitive direction of Elia Kazan the cast became

Bob Kennedy And Demo. Heads Address Citizenry

Bernard J. Leddy, chairman of the State Democratic Campaign and Director of the Vermont Citizens for Kennedy group, addressed the Young Democrats Tuesday evening (Oct. 18). Miss Norma Bottaro introduced Mr. Leddy to the group after announcing that Mr. Leddy would answer the question "Why Vote for Kennedy for President?" at a Democratic rally to be held at St. Michael's College.

Mr. Leddy spoke on the advantages of a two party system which "the State of Vermont hasn't had for over a century and the losers are the people." Mr. Leddy went on to say that the State of Vermont has been doing business with the same old board of directors for a long time and that "businesses too closely intergrated are stagnent; this is true also of government." Mr. Leddy further stated that a two party system would be good for the Republicans as well as the Democrats in that "nothing would do the Republicans more good than to be beaten in the State of Vermont; it would teach them to put forward better men." The Democrats, too, would have to put forward good men.

Mr. Leddy referred to the Republican regime as "almost a dynasty you have the crown prince succeeding the king, the princeling succeeding the crown prince. This year one of the princelings (Speaker of the House F. Ray Keyser) overjumping the crown prince.

After mentioning some of the inadequacies, he believes apparent in the Republican regime and the secrecy exhibited by the government officials, Mr. Leddy told the Young Democrats that they could aid the Democratic campaign in a concentrated drive to add new names to the check lists in the area.

Before adjourning the meeting, Mr. Leddy answered questions posed by the group concerning state, local, and national campaigning issues.

On Saturday, Oct. 22., members of the Young Democrats were among the over 400 people who gathered in front of the Hotel Vermont to welcome Robert F. Kennedy to Burlington. Mr. Kennedy arrived at the Burlington airport at approximately 3 PM and proceeded by motorcade to the Hotel. Riding with Mr. Kennedy was Mr. William H. Meyer (D-Vt.) whom Mr. Kennedy introduced as "my brother's old friend, Bill Meyer." Robert spoke briefly from the balcony of the Hotel Vermont to the gathering saying that the real issues of this campaign were not whether Mr. Nixon or Sen. Kennedy had more experience or whether Mr. Nixon or Sen. Kennedy could handle the problems facing the president better, but rather the real issue was whether this country and we as Americans wanted to maintain the status quo or whether we wanted to move ahead and meet our destiny as set forward by Franklin D. Roosevelt and fulfill our future.

Robert compared Mr. Nixon's claim of more experience to the "man who had been driving for eight years without a license and had had twelve tickets and goes to apply for a license on the basis that he now knows what not to do." He also mentioned that Mr. Nixon's method of dealing with Mr. Khrushchev in part consisted of shaking his "finger under Mr. Krushchev's nose and saying you may be ahead of us in missiles and space explorations, but we have better colored television."

At the news conference, Robert stated that he felt the Democrats had chance of carrying the State of Vermont. He also noted that the Republican charge following the first "debate" was ridiculous as the networks had viewed the tape before it was shown.

Cuba, Castro, And Me

by EDWARD KRITZLER

(Occurrences this past week have convinced me to alter my plans for today's column. I now realize my future attempts shall prove difficult to comprehend or believe - that is, unless you are aware of the type of press coverage given the Cuban revolution by American newsmen.

American public opinion and knowledge of every aspect of the Cuban revolution is based almost solely upon what our news agencies have reported. Has this reporting been accurate or is Herbert Matthews, associate editor of The New York Times, correct when he stated earlier this year

> "In my thirty years on the N.Y. Times, I have never seen a big story so misunderstood, so badly handled and so misinterpreted as the Cuban revolution."

What I saw and learned this summer left no doubt in my mind as to the answer to this question. During my stay in Cuba, U.S. News and World Report came out with an article stating, in effect, that Castro is only a tool of "Che" (Cuba's National Bank president) and Raul. Statements such as this I cannot definitely answer either way. I have no concrete facts to back up what would only be my opinion on the matter. However, many times this summer incidents which occurred in my presence would be reported by our various newspapers and magazines -- the complete distortions by our press of what had transpired absolutely amazed me.

TIME REPORTS ON CUBELA

An example of this reporting appears in the July 25 issue of Time magazine. The article is entitled "Stealing a University". It states how Cubela took over the University of Havana and what he then did.

I was attending the University when this happened, and was aware of what had transpired. When the article appeared and proved so contrary to my knowledge of this incident - I decided to conduct my own little investigation. In the course of this investigation I talked to approximately thirty students and discussed the matter with the school administration. I was now satisfied that I had discovered the truth.

As the article is too long, I will only quote here the first paragraph.

> "Backed by the guns of five hundred student militia men, a band of motley leftist diciples of Fidel Castro last week seized one of the last Cuban outposts of independence and freedom, the University of Havana. Their tool as a militant University Students Federation (F.E.U.), representing about 15% of the university's 22,000 students. They were led by Major Rolando Cubela, 27, a medical "student" (he never attends classes) whose beard testifies to his 1958-59 fight for Castro in the Sierra Maestra Hills, against Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Ignore the first sentence -- it's completely false. Here is what actually happened:

Cubela was elected of F.E.U. by an honestly held school-wide election. F.E.U. is the student government organization and has been in existence since before the revolution. This student government, through which the students have a voice in the management of the school, represents the majority of the students.

As for his never attending classes - everyone told me not only was that statement false, but also rather ridiculous. The school administration told me he has a average and regularly attends classes. Time could have been referring to the last three years of the revolution, for during that time Cubela did not attend classes. For that matter, though, no one else did either, for the University had been closed down!

Even the insignificant facts in this article are incorrect. The last sentence of the first paragraph had Cubela fighting in the Sierra Maestra hills -- he fought in the Escambray Mountains.

Democrats

[illegible] and the reception which the Young Democrats attended. Miss Marian Mathewy, Miss Norma Bottaro, and Miss Sandra Larkin attended the dinner held in honor of Robert Kennedy at the Hotel Vermont. Mr. Kennedy, in his speech before dinner stressed that the people in every state of the nation could help in the campaign by aiding in the drive to add new names to the check lists of those states. Mr. Niquette, Mr. Wilson, and Mrs. William H. Meyer were among the guest speakers who spoke briefly after being introduced by Frederick Pavette of Burlington.

This afternoon at 4o'clock, Leonard U. Wilson will address the Young Democrats at their meeting to be held in Room 240 Waterman. Sen. Jack O'Brien (D-So. Burlington) will introduce Mr. Wilson, who is the State Lieutenant Governor candidate on the Democratic ticket.

Bar B-Q Scheduled

The annual Homecoming Roast Beef Barbeque will be held this year October 29, in the cage, immediately following the football game. The barbeque will cost $1.75 for a menu consisting of one pound of prime roast beef - barbequed outdoors - special homemade barbeque sauce, potato salad, tossed salad, rools, ice cream, and coffee.

A crowd larger than usual 300-350 is expected, since the Alumni Association is sending a bulletin to the parents informing them of the Homecoming activities.

The Animal Industries Club, formed in 1952, sponsors the barbeque - non profit. They guarantee a good time and an unforgettable meal for all who attend.

unified and early in the evening developed a close liaison, in attention, with its audience. Heading the cast were Messrs. Strudwick, Carradine, and Worlock in the roles of J.B., Nickles, and Mr. Zuss. A powerful triumvirate, they interpreted their respective characters with an insight that was at least worthy of the commanding position held by these roles in the structure of the play. A sympathy in character was theirs, the passion of which was diminished, at times, only through inadequate development, by the playwright, of a lucid and succinct exposition.

Oliver Dunbar presented an adequate performance as Sarah. It seemed apparent that much of the success in the portrayal of this role was due rather to the dramatic invention of Miss Dunbar, than to the intention of MacLeish. The appearances of Messrs. Keena, Kuss, and Garner, in the tableau vivant and following action of the Comforters was commendable as a cynical example of one of the play's few moments of personal association.

Special credit is due to the excellent services of J.B.'s design and technical staff. Despite the confining facilities of Memorial Auditorium, stage design, dressing, lighting, and incidental music were most pleasingly co-ordinated to effectively complement the dramatic action of the play.

The Melting Pot

By ROGER ZIMMERMAN

I'm not apologizing for anything that I've written. Now that's a hallava way to start a column, but since I might now hold your attention, I apologize for the crude beginning. Actually, what I really mean is that I'm not apologizing for any of the ideas, or lack thereof, that have spawned my attempts at writing. On the other hand, the effect of an idea has been distorted because of the effect of poor writing - for this I am sorry, and to you I most sincerely apologize. You see, many times you get an idea which sounds pretty good. And after it's written, since you're already reading it from a biased point of view, the thing sounds great. Now if you like to garnish the whole affair with just a touch of esoteric spice, chances are that nobody else (rewrite staff excluded) will see the little creation until the day of publication. Then, lo and behold, something has happened. "My God", you say, "I didn't write this - I just didn't". Meanwhile, it turns out that you did write it. On the other hand, you can write something and put it away for, say, a year or two. This is really great. The way you never miss a deadline, considering you've been kicked off the paper two years ago for not handing in any columns.

COULD BE BUT

The aforementioned item of poor writing is a possibility, and a very real one. The columnists on the CYNIC, this one very much included, are strict amateurs. Our writing is to be considered from that standpoint alone. On the other hand, all of us have a responsibility. This is manyfold because the students make up only a part of the CYNIC's reading public. Thus the sphere of responsibility is not really so small. It is, in reality, quite large.

So when a columnist writes something, it should be the product of at least some planning, some creativity. Sometimes this is not the case and a "boo-boo" is made. Now relavant to the minor controversy of the past week or so, what can be said? I suppose in a sense the issue boils down to this: to be a rat or not to be a rat, that is the question. In essence, this means: to dump or not to dump. No. This is not the purpose of anything. To enlighten - Yes.

Writing a column, besides being a great experience in itself, is also a form of therapy. Something akin to a purgative. At the same time, there are limitations; the sphere of responsibility cannot be forgotten. If you write something, then expect to be criticized, and hopefully expect the criticism to be of a constructive variety. At the same time, should the criticism be taken as personal attack on the individual columnist himself? Obviously not, unless of course, the criticism is of a very personal nature. I merely ask the Sports Editor to consider this. Other than that the issue is dead.

P.S. Greetings to all returning alumnae. As a refreshing lift, I might recommend Max Shulman's column.

Why Not ?

by JULES OLDER

Certain rules at every university must be compulsory. ...t the women at the University of Vermont are treated ...as they were mentally retarded. The indignities are ... that they must suffer during their years ... school, should make the more intelligent girls ... fiery indignation -- or transfer to a more ... institution.

WSGA

The Women's Student Government Association is laughable if you don't happen to fall under its jurisdiction. To see so many little minds taking so many little issues in such a serious way is definitely ludicrous.

But if you're a woman student at our university, and have to actually adhere to these insane little rules, the whole thing ceases to be a laughing matter. And the women living under this system feel that they must remain anonymous if they have criticism of their government, the entire student body should prepare to take up arms.

KID STUFF

This paper has already commented on the mass meeting. Aren't they just a bit like grammar school? "If you cannot go to the meeting tonight, bring a note from your mother . . ."

The rule forbidding bottles in rooms is another gem. They mean empty bottles! Full ones are just too horrible to contemplate.

Along the same lines is the law against putting cellophane tape on the walls of the new dormitories. Really, now. Those walls are made of concrete. The tape won't hurt them.

THE PLEDGE

Every girl has to take an oath that she will be a good, honest, chaste young lady. This is called living under the Honor System. It is compulsory to sign the oath, which is in itself as ridiculous as a New Year's resolution made on a hangover. But to add insult to injury, the girls then have to write an essay on what a privilege it is to be allowed to sign. If this isn't hypocritical, then what is?

The kiddy rules and the rules test should go the same way as the hygiene course that used to be required for freshman females.

WE LOVE OUR WOMEN

Let's bring the women back into the University Family. Help stamp out mass meetings and rules tests. Bring the archaic laws up to date.

All of these things are within the powers of the WSGA. Let the students see some intelligent improvement from within. Then perhaps your organization will cease to be the laughing - stock of the campus.

Future Teachers Observe Schools

The desire to teach, which may be only a dream in freshman year, suddenly becomes a reality when the sophomore college student is introduced to the real classroom situation. These students, enrolled in College of Education and Nursing, are preparing to teach with grades seven through twelve.

The Participation program gives the prospective teacher not only an opportunity to observe and study children in learning situations, but provides illustrations of teaching techniques and pupil activity in various subject areas. The program gives a student, early in his college career, a practical experience which will help him reach an intelligent vocational decision, either within teaching or outside the profession. The college faculty and supervising public school teachers are able to evaluate the potential success of candidates for the teaching profession during the program.

The participation student is assigned to thirty hours of work in the classrooms of a selected cooperating teacher in a public school. Although students are encouraged to participate and to teach under close supervision. Participation should not be confused with Student Teaching which is provided in the senior year. The student is expected to allow time for conferences, correcting tests, preparing lessons, or such other teaching responsibilities as may be assigned.

The personnel included in the program are the cooperating teacher, who provides a short evaluation report on each student, the public school coordinators, who arrange class assignments and the University Supervisor who indicates the best type of assignment for each student.

The program has met with with great success and has student as well as faculty approval.

The rest of the article continues in exactly the same vein with each sentence filled with distortions. The article finally concludes with a statement which tries to link Cubela with Communism. It states that Cubela appointed Carlos Rafael Rodiequez, the Editor of the Communist newspaper, Hoy, as rector of the University. In the following week's letter to the editor column, Time retracted this "fact" by saying -- "Time erred -- Ed." I would say that this was a gross understatement.

This is just one example of the type of reporting given the Cuban Revolution. I can go on for hours citing others, but I believe just a few more will suffice.

FIDEL'S SPEECHES

I heard approximately twelve of Castro's speeches while having an English translation of each speech. I would listen to the speech and understand what he had to say. The next day I would read in the US newspapers a completely distorted account of the speech. The newspapers had quoted out of context and had attached whatever meaning to these quotes that they desired.

THE U.S. REPORTERS IN CUBA

This summer I discovered a successful technique in drawing out peoples opinions: make the person feel he is an authority, ask him questions, and agree to much of what he says - but not all. The person in order to win you over completely would reveal himself all the more. This technique proved effective in talking with the reporters.

I met one particular reporter at a huge rally for Castro. He confided in me the nature of his assignment. His sole assignment was to photograph an anti-Castro demonstration at the rally and write an accompanying article. We became separated and at the end of the day I met him again. He looked down troded and wearily told me he had been running around the whole day and had not seen any anti-Castro demonstrations. When I asked what he was going to do, he answered he would just have to write the article without including the pictures.

Another incident related to me by a CBS news photographer concerned a reporter he knew. This reporter visited one of the farm co-operatives. While watching some of the farmers tilling the soil, a soldier happened to pass by. The reporter asked the soldier to stand next to the fields so as to photograph him there. The resulting picture, the soldier, his rifle, and the farmers, was published widely as proof of slave co-operatives in Cuba.

I learned many facts in Cuba which I can now substantiate. Two of these which directly follow concern Cuban relations with the Soviet Union.

CUBA AND THE SOVIET UNION

When Cuba made the deal to sell her sugar to the Soviet Union, this was not something new. Batista had in 1954, 1955 and 1956 sold one hundred and eighty million dollars worth of sugar to Russia. This deal had never aroused our concern. We yelled Communist when Cuba completed an oil deal with Russia. The Soviet Union, however, has similar oil deals with four other Latin American countries - Brazil, Argentina, Uraguey, and Chile. Why hasn't this been a cause for alarm???

I have shown here only a small portion of the factual information which the U.S. Press Media has either distorted or suppressed. I hope now with this awareness you may gain a fuller understanding of the Cuban Revolution.

The men at [illegible] seem to be [illegible] their teeth, or is it the women? Anyhow, our pinning list this week is extremely [illegible]. In fact we are congratulating only one couple. Bill Atwood, ATO, recently pinned Bonnie Lantman, '62, MFK. Best wishes

The Acacia front yard seems to have become "Sweet Peas" spread bar. What with "free samples" and not "for sale" signs, the lawn is literally covered with junk. Move it Pete!

Last Thursday night Mr. and Mrs. George Brooks came down to supper. Later in the evening Bonnie Bain was pledged. Saturday afternoon there was a mass migration to Norwich for the game, after which Bob Gillis held an open house at his home in Bethlehem.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

We celebrated our Founders Day on October 17. We were happy to have our District Alumni Chairman, Mrs. Thomas, along with several of our Burlington Alumni here to join in the festivities. But, the most thoughtful event of all occurred the next day when the Phi Delts sent via the florist a huge bouquet of carnations for our Founders Day. Many thanks guys, we really appreciated it.

At the national convention of Alpha Chi Omega, held during the summer, Alpha Beta was awarded the "gold" Certificate of Merit for ranking first in scholarship the first semester in 1960.

We all appreciated the loving care we had received from Mrs. Gray, but we're all glad Mrs. Douglas was finally discharged from the Alpha Chi Annex of Mary Fletcher Monday.

We were all glad to welcome back [illegible] who recently graduated from Mary Fletcher Hospital and came to Burlington for the Teachers Convention. Teaching must be a demanding business - she has come almost almost a month now already.

Private Carol Beaupre appears to be our latest convert in Indiana - via a certain airman's letters she's been keeping up quite a bit to date.

By the way, has anyone noticed a grey shirt smiling around? Lotus seems to have misplaced it.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

The AE's had quite an eventful week. It all began with our Marcia Sonderman wearing the pin of AEP's Roger Silverman. Congratulations to both of you.

We are very happy to congratulate our new sisters Susan Ostrow and Betsy Lissman and to welcome Roanne Buckar and Eve Seltzer as pledges.

Our week also brought us new dinner company. First, we received our Phi-Mel exchange dinner and then we really had a blast at our Sigma Nu exchange dinner. Mark Michaelman put his foot in it but this incident only added to the great time everyone had.

Ball Party was a tremendous success and Iris Steinert did a wonderful job on the skits for Ball Party and the Sigma Nu exchange dinner.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

How time flies!

It seems as if it was just yesterday that the semester started and here it is - the end of October - with Homecoming just about upon us. Already the melodious sounds of hammers hammering and supervisors yelling are omnipresent throughout the house, as AEP's ready for Saturday's "Serenade".

Homecoming will be highlighted at the fraternity by a buffet Saturday evening and a "weirdo round-up" party in honor of Halloween after the buffet. Featured at the party will be the Vermont Jazz Quintet.

The brotherhood wishes to extend a hardy welcome to all our visiting alumni and parents. We feel confident that the hard work and planning that went into preparation for this weekend will insure everyone present of a really great time.

AEPi football: As of now the team is tied for second place in the league. We are in a position to be sole occupants of the top spot, depending on how we fare this week. Win, lose, or draw - we are proud of our team's accomplishments and are behind them all the way.

Speaking of football: Let's all get out to Centennial Field Saturday and perhaps if we yell loud enough, we can bring about the seemingly impossible - A UVM VICTORY!!!

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

At last the pledges of ATO have rallied forth and accomplished a long due project of renovating the party room. Rustic boards from a sawmill in Highgate have replaced the brick walls to give the cellar the appearance of the Olde Board Restaurant. All in all, everyone was quite pleased with the project, and we look forward to many gay parties there.

That night, Dick Atwood aroused the sleeping Taus with the news of his pinning to Bonnie Lantman, a junior at Mary Fletcher. Our congratulations, Dick!

By SANDY CAMERON

All eyes were glued to the "green-eyed monster" in the corner, as the Pirates whipped the Yanks in the Series. Everyone was very impressed with the enthusiasm Jim McCuin showed toward "Old Casey's Boys". Our deepest regrets that not all turned out the way he expected!

Our sincerest congratulations to Bruce (Yogi) Adams, Dick Angney and John Cooper --- all three were initiated into the Brotherhood last Friday.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

New officers of the pledge class are: President, Toini Kalinen; Vice-president, Anne Larrow; Secretary, Jeanne Pretch; Treasurer, Paula Stevenson; and Chaplain, Sheila McCuaig.

The sisters and pledges at 143 South Willard Street are busily putting together their Homecoming poster and planning for their Open House to be held after this Saturday's (Let's beat Northeastern) game. Also preparations are being made for an Open House with Delta Psi (vive la Delt!) after the Middlebury game.

Delta Delta Delta sisters welcome all alum's [illegible] returned this weekend to say Happy Homecoming. [illegible] one!

The house has finally recovered after many [illegible] days in Bermuda celebrating Bob Burtin's marriage to Martha Townsand, the daughter of the vice chancellor of that island. Although many came back right after the wedding, a few stayed as guests of Mr. Townsand.

Last weekend several members of the house went to Norwich to cheer the Cats on to victory. That night a meeting of fraternity representatives was held in the once Zeta Chi house on that campus. The cadets told us how their houses were put off campus and suggested what might be looked for before we suffer the same fate.

To keep pace with the growing university and party spirit a group of our men have purchased an abandoned farm house

ETA THETA BETA

Zeta chapter of Eta Theta Beta held its first meeting in the chapter room of its newly constructed home on North Street. President, Isa Pigge, presided. Other officers were elected, they include Vice-president, Iura Dogge; Secretary, Intha Knough, and Treasurer, Neva Rich.

We would like to congratulate Sally Alley for being elected "queen of the year." Good going, Kiddo!

GAMMA PHI BETA

The annual Gamma Phi Pie Party last Saturday was a huge success - lots of money collected for Burlington's New School for Retarded Children was collected to the music of the [illegible] by Jazz Band - while students and alums enjoyed coffee and delicious pies, baked and donated by the generous Burlington Alum-Chapter and Gamma Pi Mothers' Club.

Congratulations to Debby Hill who was named a winner of one of the 1960 National Health Scholarships in Medical Social work.

Coral Gillespie has been elected to be the Gamma Phi representative to the Class of 1963 Activities Committee.

The Gamma Phis are hoping to see lots of you at our Homecoming Open House, after the game this Saturday. -- an opportunity to see 381 Main from the cellar to attic. Hot cider and donuts will be served, and entertainment will be provided by Teppy Conners and his band. Everyone welcome!

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Either everyone wants to get away from their roommate occasionally or has developed interests elsewhere as about every other weekend, the house is emptied. Of course this makes very pleasant dispositions for the next week as the majority return with stars in their eyes and heads on the clouds.

Again Parents' Weekend was pleasant occasion. The Thetas hope all the parents were properly snowed by all the zealous entertainment.

Jeanie MacDonna does a splendid job planning the meals; two extra-special ones were had last week for two exchange dinners, one, Panhel, and the other with Phi Delt. From all reports, their interpretation of the mill was very authentic.

Instead of the usual choice of things to knit around and outside the house, one Theta has chosen baby clothes. She reports they're for her sister, but it looks like this girl is really anxious!

Betty Jean Harding reports that Beantown couldn't be better, even though she is being psychoanalyzed as she psychoanalyzes.

One finds it a little hard to imagine, but Carol Suhr is now playing the teacher role. She seems to like it though and will undoubtedly receive many apples.

Carol Tyler and Eunie Apgar attended the Theta alumni meeting last Wednesday night.

KAPPA SIGMA

Homecoming preparations have been revealed by Social Chairman, Rocky Cobleigh. An open house will follow the football game, a buffet and a party complete with floor show will be held at the Supper Club. As a supplement to this, a day in Montreal on Sunday is also planned.

The Kappa Sig's football team made it three in a row by humbling Theta Chi to a 31-13 count. Fred "Moon" Schnaars was the big difference once again scoring three touchdowns. Tom Allen and J.P. Hammond provided the heroics on defense with their superb play. The final league game will be with ATO this week.

Jerry Cassidy is back with us after playing pro-baseball in the Appalachian League. "Cass" hit .280 while leading the league in runs and scored and walks as Wytheville won the pennant. He was called the finest defensive player in the league.

LAMBDA IOTA

The Owl House is happy to welcome pledges, Rich Kenny and Dan Simpson in to the flock.

The Owl "gridiron seven" is having a season much like that of Vermont's. But the change over last year in heads up ball displayed by "Jake" Jacobs, "Polock" Klyzico, and "Cream'um" Cone is unbelievable. They are doing a fine job.

Bill Osborn, more correctly called "Oz the Miner" has been elected to the position of Assistant Treasurer.

The Owls are looking forward to another open house. This will be in November with the Slade girls.

PHI MU DELTA

WELCOME PHI MU DELTA ALUMNI. Weekend festivities are planned and we are awaiting your arrival. We hope that all of you alumni will attend the business meeting at the chapter house in the morning. In the afternoon, the alumni and the actives will attend the football game en force. Following the game, there will be an informal reception and the dedication of our new chapter house. After the Vermont Varieties, which we'll all attend, there will be a Halloween party at the house. All the alumni and actives are welcome. Watch out for the spooks.

If our float sticks together during the parade, it is destined to win. Here's hoping??????

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

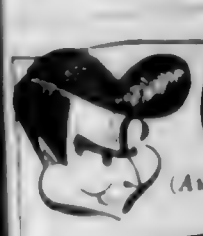
With all the weekend hunters around here, it's a wonder that there has been no accident. And since 56 Summit Street has become such an arsenal, we have decided to abandon the conventional waterfight for the more modern, progressive gunfight. Brother Stan "Wyatt" Maxcell is going to give quickdraw instructions to the novices. Meanwhile, the smell of Hoppe's #9 Cleaning Oil seeps through the house.

Congratulations to the four SAE's who are doing such a fine job on the Varsity Football team . . . Bill Moore, Bill Burke, CAPTAIN Maynard Ducatte, and "Vermont's Tiny Halfback", Frank Amato.

The Lion's record now stands at two wins and one loss in the Intramural Football League.

Homecoming is fast approaching, and this years festivities promise to be the best yet. Steward Ken Wyatt and Boris are planning the finest Buffet that the men at 56 Summit Street have seen in a long time, while the Float Committee, under the direction of Bill Bradford and John Tonseth has been making rapid progress on something big. Meanwhile Social Chairman John Stahler has been seen trying to steal orchids from the Hills Hall Greenhouse for our Annual Hawaiian Party. All in all, it looks like we're in for a really big Homecoming. But of course, the best part of Homecoming is welcoming back the "Grads", and we are looking forward to having a lot of the old Brothers back with us again.

Congratulations to John Tonseth, whose entry won the 1960 Homecoming Poster Contest.



SIGMA NU

Our thanks to the AEPhi's for an enjoyable exchange dinner last Thursday night. Once again "Little Earl the Muff" floored 'em with his footwork! Also "Three Diamonds".

"Slide Rule" Gunn and Billy B., affectionately known as Mouse Martel, and their corps of engineers send word through the "buzzer system" that the plans for the homecoming float are on the drawing boards. Tomorrow night will be another "all nighter". Homecoming should be a real blast climaxed by the Alumni party on Saturday nite. Jay and Skip, our vacationing brothers, sent word they plan to make it along with many alums and their families.

Congratulations to Vin Higgins, '63, Manchester, Vt., and Don Noble, '63, North Terrytown, N.Y., who were recently pledged.

A FRAT TO REMEMBER

Every year, as we all know, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Collegiate Fraternities awards a highly coveted prize to the fraternity house which, in its judgment, has done the most to promote and enhance the fraternity way of life. The prize this year—eight hundred pounds of white putty—goes to the Sigma Phi Nothing chapter of the South Dakota College of Dentistry and Renaissance Art.

The award this year is exceptionally richly deserved, for the Sigma Phi Nothing house is the very model of all a fraternity should be. It is, first of all, a most attractive house physically. The outside walls are tastefully covered with sequins. Running along the upper story is a widow's walk, with a widow stationed every three feet. Moored to the chimney pot is the Graf Zeppelin.

Indoors, the house gives an impression of simple, casual charm. The chapter room is furnished in homey maple and chintz, with a dash of verve provided by a carp pool three hundred feet in diameter. A waterspout rises from the center of the pool with the housemother bouncing on the top.

Members' rooms are gracious and airy and are provided with beds which disappear into the wall—permanently. Each room also has a desk, a comfortable chair, a good reading lamp, and a catapult for skeetshooting. Kidney-shaped desks are available for kidney-shaped members.

Perhaps the most fetching feature of the house are the packs of Marlboros stacked in heaps wherever one goes. If one wishes to settle back and enjoy a full-flavored smoke, one needs only to reach out one's hand in any direction and pick a pack of Marlboros—soft pack or flip-top box—and make one's self comfortable with a filtered cigarette with an unfiltered taste—that triumph of the tobacconist's art, that paragon of smokes, that acme of cigarettes, that employer of mine—Marlboro!

The decor, the grace, the Marlboros, all combine to make Sigma Phi Nothing a real gas of a fraternity. But a fraternity is more than things; it is also people. And it is in the people department that Sigma Phi Nothing really shines.

Sigma Phi Nothing has among its members the biggest BMOC's on the entire campus of the South Dakota College of Dentistry and Renaissance Art. There is, for instance, William Makepeace Sigafoos, charcoal and bun chairman of the annual Stamp Club outing. Then there is Dun Rovin, winner of last year's All-South Dakota State Monopoly Championship, 135 Pound Class. Then there is Rock Schwartz, who can sleep standing up. Then there is Tremblant Placebo, who can crack pecans in his armpits. Then there is Ralph Tungsten, who went bald at eight.

But why go on? You can see what a splendid bunch of chaps there is in Sigma Phi Nothing, and when one sees them at the house in the cool of the evening, all busy with their tasks—some picking locks, some playing Jacks-or-Better, some clipping Playboy—one's heart fills up and one's eyes grow misty, and one cannot but give three cheers and a tiger for Sigma Phi Nothing, fraternity of the years!

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Sig Ep traveled in force to the Norwich football game last weekend and along with Jates from Vermont College held a successful "Homecoming" party. After a close game with the Big Red, "Big Arm" Underhere and Jerry "Legs" Jarvenpa scored two quick touchdowns and thrilled an impressive Homecoming crowd.

The Jazz Band's two members "Dave" Rasmussen and Bob Williams would like to invite everyone to the Homecoming Jazz Dance after the football game. Highlighting the weekend will be a banquet commemorating the fraternity's Tenth Anniversary followed by a dance with the Jazz Band again. Three cheers for pledging the house.

The House would like to congratulate Bob Dutton on his outstanding performance which enabled him to win the CYNIC football contest last week.

SIGMA PHI

The Sigs have acquired a new mascot for the house in the presence of "Prince Rupert", a lemur who has been well educated in Greenwich Village life.

We'd like to extend our thanks to Pi Phi for the wonderful exchange dinner we had last week. Thanks again girls.

Sigma Phi will have an open house here with the Thetas after the Middlebury game on November 5th. Everyone is welcome.

The Sigs were very glad to entertain the Vermont Delta sweetheart house last weekend. We hope you enjoyed yourselves as much as we did.

Preparations are being made for hosting a successful float for this year's Homecoming, making the committee who great cheers and three "hard" jeers.

Congratulations from the house to Dave Seaplet, Jerry Wilson and Tim Burroughs for their fine performance and spirit that have shown through-out the football season. Beat Northeastern!

The local Sig Sisters met last Tuesday and have planned various projects to help brighten up the house.

TAU EPSILON PHI

This Monday evening the men of Tau Epsilon Phi will have the privilege of hearing Professor Leon J. Saidel and Attorney A. Stanley give their views of the current political situation as we come closer toward election day. These two gentlemen, both of the Political Science Department, are to be the first of many faculty guests who will dine with us and discuss a topic pertaining to their general field. It is our sincere hope that other fraternities will follow suit in fostering student-faculty relations by showing, as we hope to, that a fraternity stands for more than just a social and athletic organization.

With exams everywhere we are all cramming hard to meet the deluge. Scholarship chairman Charles Smith expects to see TEP on top of the Scholastic list this year.

THETA CHI

The TC house was visited by Dean Clifford last Monday -- for dinner. We offered to answer questions or give the correct version of any rumors flying around campus. Several questions were asked, and all but one was answered. Dean Clifford has agreed and been granted a vote in the vote when the time comes if it ever goes for Ray Steele to be other 0 as a result of that one question.

Evidently the Theta Chi football team lost another game in the intramural tilt section, for no one has seen anyone on the team for the past week.

Results of the Theta Chi effort in this combined Homecoming-Parent's Weekend should be evident as alums and parents crowd round the doors at 170 Spruce and sing "How dry I am."

Question of the week: Who is the nut that writes this column for the CYNIC anyway?

THIS 'N THAT

One sure way of knowing that homecoming is upon us is the clang of hammers, the z-z-z-z of saws, as well as laughter of many, which can be heard coming out of sororities and fraternities as each prepare for poster and float contests. Many alum's will be returning tomorrow and Saturday, as well as off-campus dates. Welcome, y'all!

He has worked as a rehearsal pianist, a backstage director, and as an administrative assistant.

Today he is married and has three children. He is the General Director of the New York City Opera Company and enjoys an excellent reputation as a very fine conductor.

Monday evening's performance of "Cosi Fan Tutte" (Women Are Like That) will be sung in English. The music is by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Libretto by Lorenzo Da Ponte, and the English version is by Ruth and Thomas Martin. The orchestra will be conducted by Rudel. The cast of characters will be Fiordiligi and Doratella sung by Doris Dale and Frances Bible respectively. Frances Bible was seen last year at the Memorial Auditorium in the Company's presentation of "Die Fledermaus" in 1959 singing Adele. Be sung by William Metcalf and John Alexander will sing Ferrando. Despina and Don Alfonso will be sung by Edith Rasmin and James Pease respectively.

The story of "Cosi Fan Tutte" is slight and frivolous, a rollicking, ironic tale of feminine frailty. In Da Ponte's libretto everything is cast in pairs. There are two sisters, Fiordiligi and Doratella, and their two lovers, Guglielmo and Ferrando. And to set the plot there are the cynical, Don Alfonso and despina.

Howard Taubman, reviewing for the New York Times said, "The New 'Cosi Fan Tutte' is the happiest production put on by the New York City Opera Company. If the town offers a better musical buy than this Mozart revival, which opened at the City Center last night, this deponent knoweth not where it may be found."

In the New Yorker Magazine, Winthrop Sargeant commenting on the opera said, "Mozart's 'Cosi Fan Tutte' was altogether superb. As a whole the New York City Opera's 'Cosi Fan Tutti' was not only one of the most admirable productions in the Company's career, but also perhaps the most memorable one I have encountered in a long list of 'Cosi Fan Tutte's', stretching back to the famous Reinhardt performances in Vienna in the early nineteen twenties."

On Tuesday night, "Carmen" will be the Lane Series offering. Julius Rudel will also conduct this opera, which is presented in four acts. The music is by Georges Bizet and the libretto is by Meilhac and Halevy. Carmen's role will be sung by Jean Sanders, Don Jose's by Ian Crain. William Chapman will sing Escamillo and Jay Clements will sing Micaela. Ian Crain has appeared in Burlington before in "Die Fledermaus".

The story of "Carmen" is majestic. There are soldiers, women, toreadors, and smugglers. Seville is the setting for this story of love and rejection. The clamic triangle of Carmen, Don Jose and Escamillo unravels until it ends with the death of Carmen.

The Opera Company handles this as well as "Cosi Fan Tutti". Both have been called superb by critics of leading newspapers and magazines. Each performance will be supported by an orchestra of forty as well as chorus, dancers and scenery.

CHEERLEADERS CHOSEN

New girls, new motions, new cheers, comprise the renovations in the UVM cheering squad. The five new cheerleaders Pat Ramson, '62 Dale Banner, '63 Hanna Crane, '63 Donna Herberg, '64, and Sue Weatherbey, '63 have joined forces with the incumbent cheerleaders Toni Franchesci, '61 Susie Sells, '61, Brenda Woodard, '63 Ann Mayers '63 and Captain Sue Hale '61, to lead students parents and faculty with cheering cheers for the Homecoming victory at this Saturday's game.

Bright new green pleated skirts will replace the original yellow lined skirts. In the opinion of the Captain, the new skirts create a much neater and sharper appearance. The former stiffness of the arm motions has been loosened up with lively twists and snaps of the arms, for both the new and old cheers.

Sally said that this year the judging of the new cheerleaders was very difficult since there was a lot of good material to select from. Approximately fifty girls competed for the five coveted positions. The old cheerleaders plus the faculty judges Dr. Donald Gregg, professor of chemistry at UVM, and Mr. Arthur J. Mahoney, CDSA, selected the girls on the basis of poise, voice, ability to jump, appearance, and endurance.

At the end of the football season the Senior cheerleaders will terminate their venture as a UVM cheerleader. The remaining eight girls will be divided into two squads, for cheering at the forth-coming basketball games. The groups will alternate in cheering for each game. At the beginning of next year the squad will be completed with new members.

Homecoming Game

Against Northeastern

By RICHARD RAPPAPORT

An integral part of every Homecoming Weekend is the varsity football game. In this year's encounter, before an expected near-capacity crowd including numerous alumni, the UVM Catamounts will face the Northeastern University Huskies.

From all indications, this contest could be one of the closest Homecoming games in years. Both Vermont and Northeastern with young, relatively inexperienced squads, are in the midst of almost identical rebuilding programs. We have a 1-4 record, while Northeastern registers a 1-4-1 ledger. A glance at the schedules of these teams, reveals that they have played two common opponents - Norwich University and the University of Rhode Island. The Huskies defeated Norwich 34-0, and lost to Rhode Island 20-0, while UVM only defeated Norwich 8-0, and lost to Rhode Island 48-8.

Saturday's contest is the fifth game between UVM and Northeastern, in a series which dates back to 1940, when the Catamounts won by a score of 7-0. Since that time, however, Vermont hasn't been able to duplicate their initial victory as Northeastern has taken a 3-1 lead in the series. This year's game will be the last between these two colleges in the forseeable future, due to Vermont's 1962 entrance into Yankee Conference football competition. With its entrance into the Yankee Conference, UVM will drop Northeastern and Rochester Universities from their schedule, and replace them with the Universities of New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Vermont will also be eligible for the Beanpot, symbol of football supremacy in the Conference. All of our varsity teams will then be [illegible] Conference members.

In the past five years the Catamounts have had only fair success in Homecoming Games, with an overall record of 2-3. One of these triumphs occurred in 1955 when Vermont defeated Rochester 21-12. [illegible] on from there to capture the Vermont State [illegible] finishing the season with a record of 3-3-1.

The following year UVM finished with a record of [illegible] wins and 5 losses, including a Homecoming loss of 14-0 to Maine.

In a close and exciting Homecoming game in 1957, Norwich upended the Catamounts 19-12. Vermont concluded the year with a 2-5 record.

In 1958 UVM was in a tie for the state title, despite a 2-4-1 ledger. Among the season's wins was a 25-7 rout of St. Lawrence, for our Homecoming game.

Before a disappointed crowd last year, the Catamounts were beaten by the University of Rochester 27-6. The Varsity's record of 4 wins and 3 losses was the finest turned in since 1954, when the team lost only one game and also won the state title.

New Gym To Be Started In Fall

By Steve Sohn

Five years ago the Alumni Development poll selected three Development Fund Goals:

1. Top priority for new classroom facilities.
2. A new library.
3. A new gymnasium.

To date, our accomplishments are--Lafayette Hall, the impressive new classroom addition to the Old Mill. The Old Mill has also had a complete renovation.

Ground breaking started this past Spring on our new library. The sight of its girders rising to the sky is testimony to our continuing expansion.

In June, 1959, President Fey announced that UVM would embark on the Gymnasium Fund Campaign in the Fall of 1959.

The Executive Committee of the Alumni Council met and unanimously recommended that the Council vote to make the $2,600,000 Gymnasium project an Alumni campaign.

Because of the magnitude of this goal, the Alumni Council proposed the following: 1) An extensive drive in the 1959-60 college year; 2) Alumni and friends be invited to make pledges; 3) All funds raised by Alumni effort to be credited to the Alumni campaign.

When our present gymnasium was erected in 1902, it was considered the finest physical education plant in New England. It has been left in the wake of time, it has and is not adequate for the University's physical education, intercollegiate and intramural programs. In current years, the staff and equipment have been over-burdened. With the huge freshman class this year, over 500 underclassmen are turned away from UVM's physical education program.

Our present gym is definitely inadequate as a home court for frosh or varsity basketball. We cannot rely on Memorial Auditorium, since it is a community, not a University, facility. As far as the complaints on our school spirit go, the fact that we must go off-campus for home games, and several social events is very undesirable. The Auditorium's 2400 seats aren't enough to accommodate student body, alumni, friends, and guests.

Just The Facts

The previous gymnasium has proved to be inadequate. How then will the new gym meet UVM's needs? The new gym will [illegible] three complete basketball courts in comparison to our present gym floor which is available on a part time basis only. Folding doors will give us two smaller floors for physical education.

The center court is three inches lower than the north or south courts. Folding bleachers will accommodate over 5,000 spectators for any center court activity, including Kake Walk, which now utilizes the 2400 seat Memorial Auditorium. During inclement weather the new multi-purpose gym can be the place for Commencement. Connecting the gym to the large field house will be Vermont's first intercollegiate swimming pool (of Olympic standards). The pool will be used for Phys. Ed. as well as extra-curricular facilities. The new field house will be wider than our present "cage" is long! It will house facilities for spring practice of the baseball team, a complete infield, and a quarter-mile dirt track for the Harriers. The field house will also house an indoor hockey rink, and ice skating facilities. The ice skating, as the pool is, will also be open to the students, faculty and community. What with the coming hockey facility UVM may add hockey to its list of intercollegiate sports.

The new athletic plant will be one of the show-places of the area. It will be composed of two major arches, one housing field house, and the other housing the gym. The pool, lockers and showers will connect the two main buildings. The parking facilities will easily take 1,500 cars.

President Fey's words sum up the program to be carried out by our coming gymnasium, "Our new gym, in keeping with President Eisenhower's Physical Fitness program, will be utilized with a new emphasis on intra-mural, and physical education in attempt to provide athletic and recreational activities for all students of the University."

So let's get behind the ball and keep it rolling until "The new gym in our future" becomes a new gym on our campus.

FROSH FROLICS

by Wayne Mirsky

The roof finally caved in on the Vermont Kittens. Faced with an almost impossible task of bettering last year's successful 4-1 record, the frosh ran into a fired up Williams squad. From the opening kick-off until the final whistle Vermont was never ahead. However, dismal as the picture was there were outstanding performances displayed by the Kits.

PERRAS, VAN HAM, THORENSEN SHINE

There are no words to describe the reaction of the fans as to the play of Tom Perras. With his dazzling runs, spectacular pass receptions and defensive ball hawking, Tom almost pulled the game out of the bag single-handedly. Another bright spot in the Vermont future is Wayne Van Ham, who Saturday, ran back a William's kick-off eighty yards for Vermont's first score. Wayne was also a demon on defense with his bruising tackles. It seems that whenever I write up a frosh football game, the names of Tom Perras and Ollie Thorensen always pop up. Ollie, although he doesn't share the same glorious spot light as Tom, is just as valuable. At six-one and two hundred fifteen pounds, he is the mainstay of both the offense and defense line. Thorensen leads just about every offensive play and is in on almost every defensive tackle. If ever two boys were slated for stardom, I can readily say that Tom Perras and Ollie Thorensen will someday brighten the now murkey football picture at UVM.

SCHOLARSHIP AND "FLUNKEES"

Needless to say, when a team has been so successful as the frosh have been, there are quite a few scholarship ball players on the team. Included in these are: Tom Perras, Ollie Thorensen, Chris Greer, Larry Erhan, Leo Davis, Bob Greco, Ronnie Oliver, Wayne Van Ham, John Fife, Al Brown and the injury ridden Bill Perlow. It has been a tradition here at UVM to make sure that the fewest possible freshman scholarship ball players make it to the sophomore class and ultimately the Varsity. Such cries as, "Why can't Vermont have a winning football team" or "It's a shame that we haven't won a game this year" are then heard around campus. Maybe if there was a little more cooperation between athletes and faculty, Vermont could someday leave its mark on the gridiron circuit.

The Winner of last week's Football Contest was Herbert Taboroff '62, of 383 College St.

Meet The Catamounts

by HOWARD GORNEY

Among the many fine athletes on the 1960 Catamounts, are four outstanding ball players whom we will meet this week: Captain Maynard Ducatte, Quarterback Bill Fleming, Halfback Frank Amato, and End Frank Bolden.

Maynard Ducatte is a junior from Cadyville, N.Y. He attended St. Johns Academy in Plattsburgh, N.Y., where he played football, basketball, and baseball. "Duke" was elected captain of the football and baseball teams in his senior year and earned the "athlete of the year" award in both these sports. Maynard is enrolled in the College of Technology, majoring in commerce and economics. Besides football, his extra-curricular activities include membership in Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and the Newman Club.

Maynard Ducatte

Sophomore End Frank Bolden comes from Brooklyn, N.Y., where he attended Boys' High. At graduation, Frank was awarded a scholarship for having the highest scholastic average of any member of the football team, 88.4. For his pigskin prowess, he was named to the all-city team. "Bo" is a pre-med student in the College of Technology, and is the former president of the Men's Residence Hall Council.

Frank Bolden

Halfback Frank Amato calls Oceanside, N.Y., his home. He is a sophomore in the College of Technology, majoring in commerce and economics. At Oceanside High School, Amat's was a three letter man in football, track, and baseball. He was captain of both the football and track teams, and was named All-Scholastic in football. Frank is a brother of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and vice-president of the class of 1963.

Frank Amato

Hailing from Valley Stream, N.Y., Bill Fleming is a junior in the College of Technology, where he is an electrical engineering major. Flem attended Tilden High in Brooklyn, N.Y. There, he earned letters in football. While in junior college, Bill was designated Junior College All-American Quarterback. It is easy to see why he was so named by observing his fine play on the gridiron.

Sports Questionnaire

Question: What effect do you think the new gym will have upon UVM students?

Steve Elias '63 — According to the plans for the new gymnasium, I believe that it's too good for the athletics that this school has.

Steve Sohn '64 — The new gym should influence campus life tremendously. The basketball games now played at Memorial Auditorium will be held there, along with other important athletic events.

Lucy Blau '63 — It should have a big effect on the students. No more trapsing down to Memorial for basketball games or skits. It should prove very pleasant to be able to go swimming once in a while.

Jon Kaplan — I hope that the new Hockey Ring means that we'll have a team in the near future. I follow the sport very closely, and would love to see UVM with a winning team.

"Moose" Ratner '64 — After the completion of this new gym, the athletic department will be able to offer a more varied sports program for the increasing amount of students, resulting in more student spirit.

Sollie Solomon '64 — The students will have an undefined pride, knowing that their's is the nicest gym in New England.

Billie Rubenstein '62 — If the basketball team is anywhere as bad as the football team, I don't think that the new gym should even be started. However, it sure will be nice knowing that you don't have to hike down to the Auditorium to see a game.

Joan Klonsky '64 — There will be a great upcline in the social life here at UVM. Maybe then, the freshman boys won't be scared to ask out freshman girls.

Len [illegible] '64 — It will have a greater effect on the growing sport of hockey at UVM.

Willie McClung '64 — I don't think it will really have much of an effect on anything.

Sue Levinson '63 — I think that the new gym will have a good effect on the students at UVM. It should instill more school spirit. We should be proud to have the newest gym in New England.

Fire Twirler Joins UVM Band

by Larry Klein

This year, someone new has been added to the UVM Twirlers and Marching Band. She is Sandy Kornstedt, from Bristol, Pennsylvania. If any of you saw her twirl at the Maine or Norwich games, I'm sure that you'll agree she's terrific.

Sandy started twirling when she was 13 years old, and admits, it was hard work at first. "She practiced an hour a day every day of the week, and took private lessons for two years.

At the end of her freshman year in high school, Sandy entered a championship twirling contest, sponsored by the M.B.T.A., which is the Pennsylvania State Championship. Girls from an area that included large parts of Pennsylvania and New Jersey took part at Bristol. Sandy captured her first trophy by winning two First Places for twirling: both one baton and two batons in the junior division of the competition.

By her sophomore year, [illegible] was playing with fire——flaming batons, that is. "So far I've only been burnt once, and that was only on a finger," [illegible] points out.

[illegible] developed her twirling techniques by attending summer camps in New York. At camp, [illegible] trained with 150 other girls. Some were high school majorettes like herself, and others were in college.

[illegible] Majorette for the duration of her high school career, Sandy has accumulated a large collection of trophies and medals. In 1958 she won another trophy by taking First Place in the single baton twirling championship for Bucks and Montgomery Counties at Hartboro-Horsham High School. In the same event, she received medals for her strutting and Third Place in the competition for twirling two batons.

Now 19, Sandy is a strikingly attractive brunette, five feet six inches tall. She can toss a baton higher than the Ira Allen Chapel, and then catch it.

Sandy's parents will be here for Homecoming to see her perform during the halftime intermission at the football game.

Among her other activities at UVM, Sandy is a member of the Outing Club, WRA, and was just recently initiated into Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

Miss Sandra Kornstedt, new fire-baton twirler.

Letters To The Sports Editor

Editor:

I've been around this campus for quite a while and while here as a Freshman the CYNIC under the editorship of Max Rosbacher was a good informative college paper. Since that time the CYNIC has gotten poorer and poorer and has now reached the point of lying.

Twice this fall you have printed pictures of UVM football games of last season and captioned them as this season's games.

The first bit of fallacious journalism occurred in your second edition this year and in your latest edition it has occurred again.

The specific thing I refer to is the football picture on the last page. It is a picture of last year's game between UVM and Rochester played at Centennial Field and a Vermont boy is making a tackle on a Rochester ball carrier. Your fallacious caption reads "Unidentified UVM ball carrier being flipped by Rochester tackler in last Saturday's game."

Such underhanded journalistic practices as this make me sick, especially when I have to pay a $7.50 Student Association fee, some of which goes into the printing of the CYNIC.

Instead of pulling any more stunts like this, why don't you cut down the size of the paper and include only pertinent and good worthwhile articles and save everyone some money?

Ducatte Scores On Pass Play

by JON KAPLAN

The UVM Catamounts notched their first win of the season with a stunning 8-0 victory over Norwich. The Cats putting on their finest defensive effort of the year pushed over the winning touchdown with less than four minutes remaining in the game.

The Cats, first and ten on their own 35, set up the score with a ten yard screen pass play from quarterback Paul Harris to end Bill Burke. On the next play, Harris hit left halfback Maynard Ducatte on the Cadet 30, and speedy little halfback went all the way. After picking up a good block from Burke, he faked out the Norwich safety man on the 10, and stumbled into the end-zone for the TD. Harris then hit Burke for the two point conversion and the 8-0 margin of victory.

The Cats missed a golden opportunity to score in the opening minutes of play. After kicking off to Norwich, end Frank Bolden recovered a fumble on the second play. Vermont, first and ten on the Cadet 34, drove down to the six where a red-dogging defense stopped the drive. From this point on, neither team was able to sustain a concentrated drive.

The only real Cadet threat occurred in the second quarter. Norwich, on the Cat 10 yard line, was stopped on an intercepted pass by Ducatte. The Cats drove to midfield before the half intermission.

The third quarter was a complete defensive stand off with neither team able to penetrate the other's 30 yard line. The defensive play of the Vermont line was superb, with Bill Mooza, Tim Luizetti, Tom Eldridge, Bill Burke, Bob Stone, and Buddy Lewis doing an especially fine job. A good game was also played by Dom Parlato, the Catamount work horse.

Vermont, after their lightning like score, had an opportunity to score again. Big Bill Mooza recovered the fumbled kick-off deep in Cadet territory. However Harris, continually red-dogged by the hard charging Norwich line, was unable to move the ball.

Norwich, deep in their own territory with less than two minutes remaining in the game, desperately tried to even the score. Two first downs and a Cat penalty moved them to the UVM 45 before Harris intercepted a pass that ended the game.

The Cats, with two contests remaining in the season will be looking forward to sweeping their remaining games. They will certainly have their work cut out for them in their Homecoming appearance against Northeastern. The Huskies defeated Norwich 25-0.

No, there will be no fraternity parties in Norwich.

THE PLANT

The construction on UVM's new $2.6 million gymnasium is slated to start next fall. The plant will be paid for in part through Alumni and non-Alumni gifts, and largely through a student athletic fee, to be established upon completion of the facilities.

The gym, which will house the men's and women's physical education departments and the inter-collegiate athletic department, will include the following

1. An entrance lobby which can be utilized as a physical education area, also housing athletic and physical education offices, a trophy case area, and ticket offices.

2. A gymnasium with three basketball playing surfaces and two smaller surfaces for physical education, converting into a basketball exhibition court seating 5,000, and a convention or commencement hall seating 7,000.

3. A regulation size swimming pool exhibition seating for 200, the same unit will also house ten handball courts, two squash courts, a multi-purpose room, physical education classrooms, and a physical education dance instruction room.

4. A field house containing an artificial ice skating rink suitable for recreational skating and ice hockey (with a maximum seating capability of 4,000), an indoor track 1 8th of a mile in length, which surrounds a regulation baseball infield and an area for indoor field events, The skating rink will convert to an indoor tennis area during the off season.

In addition, of course, the gym will include locker and shower areas capable of accommodating students, faculty and staff in scheduled shifts.

Also included in the $2.6 million cost will be the grading and laying out of athletic and physical education fields adjacent to the building, including additional tennis courts and four golf "cages." Although plans are not yet final, it is likely that most Varsity and Freshman sports, save football and baseball, will be located in the gymnasium area. Varsity football and baseball will remain at Centennial Field.

At the October meeting of the UVM Board of Trustees the Board voted to ask the 1961 Vermont Legislature to approve a $2,000,000 gymnasium bond issue, which will be paid off largely through a student athletic fee. UVM students at present pay only a general student activities fee of $7.50 per semester, which provides the budget for the UVM Student Association and its related services: CYNIC, ARIEL, etc.

The gymnasium-fieldhouse was designed by Freeman-French and Freeman, Architects of Burlington.

Perhaps this new plant will be an inspiration to perspective athletes to come to UVM. The new gym will be the most modern in New England, in contrast to the present one, which is the oldest.

I'm sure the new gym will be seeing many bright days ahead, and we all wish the building program the best of luck.

HARRIERS DEFEATED

by JOE LEVIN

The University of Vermont Cross-Country team dropped its first Yankee Conference meet on Saturday, to Maine, 22-34. The meet was held at the Burlington Country Club Course, scene of Vermont's home meets.

Mike Kimball and Ben Heinrich were first to finish as they crossed the line hand-in-hand for the Maine Bears. Their winning time was 23:05. 7. Sophomore ace Hal Billings was the first UVM Harrier to finish, as he came in 28.7 seconds after the leaders.

At the halfway mark of the 4.3 mile course, Maine had the first three runners. Billings, finishing strong, managed to salvage third place for Vermont.

A Maine sophomore, Bruce Wentworth, finished fourth. He was followed by Bill Stillson and Dale Burroughs of UVM and Harold Hatch and Tim Carter of Maine. Jack Chesney of Vermont finished ninth while Bob Keup of Maine was tenth.

This weekend the UVM Harriers travel to Kingston, R.I., for the Yankee Conference Championship Meet. Last year Vermont finished third in this meet.

Constitution Revision Progresses

by STEVE COHN

The University of Vermont Student Association is currently engaged in the momentous task of constitutional revision. This step is designed to give the Student Association a more concisely worded constitution that will retain flexibility and pertinence.

Last Thursday, the organization's committee met for the first time. Their task will be a long and complicated one, as evidenced by the overnight's debate on rewording the preamble and changing the name of the Student Association to the University of Vermont Undergraduate Association. Despite the fact that these two changes are relatively unimportant, the time spent on them gives a good indication of the long road that lies ahead.

Many people undoubtedly are wondering why this revision is so important. First of all, they should keep in mind that the Student Association is the only campus organization that represents the entire student body. Therefore, its activities directly affect every UVM student. Second, any powerful organization must possess a foundation of clearly defined principles. The aim of the Student Association is to acquire this goal through constitutional revitalization. Finally, a stronger constitution will lead to expanded S.A. activities, which in turn will elevate the role of the student in shaping University life.

For these reasons, the CYNIC deems the S.A.'s ambitious program to be one of the utmost importance. We hope that you will follow closely the triumphs and setbacks of this venture along with us.

UVM Welcomes Russian Visitors

Eight Russian students, ranging in age from 24 to 32 arrived in Burlington Monday evening for a four-day visit on the campus. The six men and two women will stay in University fraternity and sorority houses respectively.

Leader of the group is Miss Valentina Titova, vice chairman of the USSR's Communist Youth Organization, one of two members of the party who speaks English.

Accompanying the group on its U.S. tour are Mr. and Mrs. John Rimberg, of Baltimore, and Andrew Swatkovsky, Columbia University graduate student who is serving as tour interpreter. Rimberg also speaks Russian.

Prof. George T. Little of the World Affairs Information Center said that a tentative program has been lined up for visiting Russians, with details to be completed following their arrival Monday evening.

The program included a meeting with University Officials, a campus tour, a Tuesday afternoon press conference, and informal discussion in the UVM fraternity houses which will house the men of the group.

The University originally expected to be visited by a 12-member touring group, Prof Little said, but the group has been cut to eight. It is one of two groups of Russians currently visiting this country.

The UVM group arrived in Burlington around 7 P.M. Monday evening and left this morning for Putney, and a visit to the Experiment in International Living there.

Their visit is under a 1957 Cultural Exchange Treaty between the U.S. and Russia. Arrangements for their travel are being made by the Experiment in International Living and by the Council on Student Travel.

In addition to Miss Titova, the group included Miss Liya Isipan, secretary in a scientific institute; Telman Akiev, an administrator; Eugney Dadydov, chemical engineer; Oleg Dukhvalov, engineer, Boris Zatelpa, engineer in a clothing factory; Anatoly Mkrtchyan and Alexander Kudryshov, both journalists.

Kudryschov is the second member of the group who speaks English.

Israel's Musical Ambassadors To Play Lane Series

by PAT CONWIT

In the middle 1930's, a violinist, Bronislaw Huberman had an idea of organizing a full-scale national orchestra in Palestine. He planned to gather together many of the European musicians displaced by the Nazis during the war and combine their talents into a first-rate ensemble. The cynicism of many soon turned to enthusiasm in December, 1936 when Arturo Tosconini made his appearance as conductor of the newly formed Israel Philharmonic Orchestra. In years to follow, other noted conductors appeared with them. Dr. Malcolm Sargent, Felix Weingartner, Bernardino Molinari, Leonard Bernstein, Dimitri Mitropoulos, and with the foundation of the State of Israel came Jascha Heifetz, Arthur Rubenstein and Isaac Stern. This past season, guest conductors have been Eugene Ormandy, Alfred Wallenstein, Jean Matinon, and Jean Fournet; soloists have been Arthur Rubenstein, Yehudi Menuhin, and Isaac Stern. Among the singers to appear with them have been Jan Peerce, Richard Tucker, and Fernando Corena.

Next Wednesday night, November 9, as a part of their second U.S. tour, the Orchestra will present a program of Beethoven, Schubert, and Honegger at the Red Lane Series concert. The guest conductor will be Josef Krips.

Josef Krips conducts a rehearsal of the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra.

Mr. Krips is noted for his interpretation of Schubert and Beethoven. He was born and grew up in Vienna where he studied conducting under Felix von Weingartner. At nineteen he conducted the Vienna Volksoper, and at the age of twenty-two, he was appointed Opera Director in Aussig an der Elbe. During the next decade of his life, he performed as Guest Conductor with most of the important orchestras in Europe and was appointed First Conductor of the Vienna State Opera.

For several years during World War II, Krips was not permitted to take part in the music world of his native country. But, after the War he took it upon himself to help show the world that Vienna was not dead as a center of music, by taking the Vienna Philharmonic on its first European tour since the War had begun. At present he holds the Mozart Medal from Vienna, the Ring of the United Nations, and the Bruckner Medal both from the United States and Austria.

Mr. Krips has already won acclaim for this present tour by his performance at Carnegie Hall. As Miles Kostendreck of the Journal-American said, "the performance came alive musically as they do only when a master musician is conducting."

Krips is no stranger to this Orchestra which is quite

Student Elections Near

The month of November marks a turning point in the political activities of the United States. This November eighth is the date that the next President of the United States will be elected. On that same date, throughout the country, [illegible] will be elections for governors, Congressmen, and a [illegible] of local important officials.

The majority of the students on this campus are unable to participate in these elections. However, the [illegible] of the University of Vermont will have the opportunity to cast this vote but also to run a number of various offices.

Each fall the Student Association holds elections for officers for the freshman class and for council members from all three classes, for the S A. There are vacancies for the positions of President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer of the Freshman class. There are also offices open for three council members each from the Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes. Lastly, there is an opening for the office of subtreasurer of the S A.

Anyone who feels that he is qualified for any of the above mentioned offices is encouraged to attend a meeting, Monday, November 7, at 6:30 P.M., to be held in Room 48. At this meeting, the various offices and election rules will be discussed. It should be noted that anyone who is "on trial" or who is on probation of any sort is disqualified from running for any of the offices.

The [illegible] of the students of this school is not a matter to be scoffed at or put aside as a laughing matter. Just as having a good President or Congress is essential to keep up the high standards of the United States, a highly efficient student governing body is necessary to maintain student representation on this campus. Anyone who wishes to run for office should seriously weigh values and decide if he or she is the type of high calibre person necessary for these offices. They should also consider the sacrifices one must make in time and energy for these offices.

The formal elections will be held on Monday, November 14, in the Waterman Building. Every student has the right to vote in these elections. If the students of UVM want a better student governing body, this is their opportunity to [illegible] something about it.

Panhell Workshop Sunday

The UVM Panhellenic Workshop has been set for Sunday, Nov. 6, from 2 to 4 P.M., to be held this year at Kappa Alpha Theta. The Workshop, composed of various members from each sorority, is designed to create a clearer understanding of sorority organization and function.

The officers selected to discuss mutual problems and execution are all the sorority Presidents, Pledge Trainers, Rush Chairmen, Corresponding Secretaries, Treasurers, Stewardesses, and Social Chairmen. The Head Residents from each sorority are also invited as are all the Panhellenic Alumni Advisors. Miss Harris and Miss Wing will also be in attendence.

The primary purpose of the sorority Workshop is to aid each officer in understanding more fully the duties of her office. Obligations are to be discussed, extended and improved.

Individual meetings are to be held first to discuss specific offices. Each girl will be expected to contribute suggestions from, and methods used in her respective sorority. After the smaller meetings, all will join for a resume. Also at this time common "Greek letter problems" will be presented and solutions will be proposed.

Refreshments and informal hashing will conclude the meeting.

Outing Club

The Outing Club has made definite arrangements to show a feature length ski movie produced by Les Zyromski in the gym on December 3. The film is entirely devoted to skiing here in the northeast. It is in color and covers all phases of skiing from competition to last year's Easter Parade at Stowe.

The Outing Club also plans to include in the program a show of the latest fashions in ski clothing.

Air-Force ROTC Notes

Six University of Vermont cadets are among those students from 162 colleges and universities throughout the country who are now getting flight training as a part of their regular AFROTC course of instruction. Started only four years ago, FIP-Flight Instruction Program - has already proven its value in a variety of ways. Since the FIP program is available only to qualified seniors, many cadets are encouraged to continue ROTC instruction and thus gain an interest in the Air Force as a career. The program also aids in determining whether or not a cadet is suited for further flight training.

Slightly more than thirty-six hours flying time is logged by cadets who successfully complete the prescribed course. Actual Flying instruction is provided by Orin Carr, a civilian instructor. The program uses new Cessna 140s, a light, eighty five horsepower aircraft. The ground school subjects are taught by Captain John Kehoe, an AFROTC instructor. The flight operations are monitored and directed by the Federal Agency.

Those University of Vermont cadets participating in the program are John H. Martel Jr., Morton A. Lord, Vernon F. Fosler, Stanley E. Van Horn Jr., Frederick B. Harrington, Gordon H. Sprigg Jr.

AFROTC Detachment 870 of the University of Vermont is proud to announce that Cadet Airman 3/C Michael A. Leavitt has been selected as the Airman of the Month for October. Cadet Leavitt was selected by a board of cadet officers as the most outstanding cadet in Air Science 2. Candidates are their knowledge of drill and ceremonies, military bearing, knowledge of current events, leadership ability and attitude toward AFROTC.

Wagner Gives Cynic Special

Special to the CYNIC by Edward S. Crane

Sunday was the occasion for an unexpected visit by Mayor Wagner of New York City. He Arrived at 2:50 P.M. for a short layover in Burlington before proceeding to a speaking engagement in Plattsburg. A reception was held at the Hotel Vermont at which the CYNIC was granted an interview.

Mayor Wagner was very enthusiastic about Democratic chances for victory in New York and Vermont. He said that he had received "very enthusiastic reports" about the campaign in Vermont and expects the Kennedy-Johnson ticket to sweep the election. He dispelled reports of voter apathy and said that New York has an increase in registration of over one million voters, an all-time record.

The mayor felt that a Democratic administration would do much to aid education. He felt that the Soviet Union was obviously ahead of the United States in the number of scientists graduated but that we were still leading in the quality of our educational program. He said that the Democratic platform would aid education without Federal controls. The program would send funds to the state governments for their use as they saw fit. These funds could be used for school construction or aid for increased teacher's salaries. He chided Nixon's proposals which would limit this aid to school construction only. He said that he sympathized the financial plight of college student, having two sons of his own about to enter college.

Mayor Wagner did not comment on any possible choices for Secretary of State. Upon questioning, he said that Adlai Stevenson was a personal friend of his and that he had "great admiration" for the man. However, he mentioned, the only one to make this appointment was Mr. Kennedy and the last person to make a commitment of this sort before election was Thomas Dewey. "You remember what happened then?", he remarked.

He expected that the "Negro vote" would favor the Democrats by a majority of at least 3 to 1. He thought that Henry Cabot Lodge had "wriggled out of his promise" to have a negro in the cabinet and added that Mr. Nixon had repudiated it himself.

We then discussed the alledged "split" in the New York Democratic party. He acknowledged this split but add that the two factions (Tammany Hall and the "liberal wing") were now working separately but with the same purpose in mind for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket under the coordination of the Kennedy people. He denied any reports members of the Democratic party fighting among themselves.

He concluded the interview with an optimistic note for a Democratic sweep throughout the country on November 8.

Homecoming 1960 In Retrospect

A pep rally Thursday evening under the leadership of Sally Wade, the captain of the cheerleading squad opened UVM's 1960 Homecoming ceremonies.

Friday evening, Brian Little and Barbara Wool were crowned as king and queen of the Homecoming festivities. Both students are freshmen. Barbara hails from Burlington, Vermont, and represented the second floor of Simpson Hall. Brian is from Ridgewood, New Jersey, and was the candidate from the second floor of Buckham Hall.

A large crowd of students and alumni witnessed the crowning at Memorial Auditorium. Illinois Jacquet's band provided the dance music. The Jamacians, a five man dance and song unit entertained with music of the Virgin Islands during the the intermission.

Saturday morning some 2,000 parents and alumni arrived on campus to view the Homecoming events.

At noon Saturday, the Peerade of Floats commenced. The parade began on campus and travelled to downtown Burlington. Most of the floats entered by the fraternities and sororities predicted victory by Vermont over Northeastern in the football clash, but as it turned out the triumph was not Vermont's.

In the Peerade, first place for fraternities went to Sigma Phi Epsilon. Tied for second were Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Alpha Epsilon. First among the sorority entries was Pi Beta Phi followed by Alpha Delta Pi, second; Kappa Alpha Theta, third and Gamma Phi Beta honorable mention.

At half-time during the football game, which was won by Northeastern, 22-8, the UVM band played such sentimental tunes as "Cotton Babes" for the parents and alumni who attended the contest. Ray Weiner, who is the captain of the basketball team, and Howie Cutts put on a Kake-Walking exhibition.

Miss Sandy Kornstedt, a sophomore from Briston, Pennsylvania, dazzled the crowd of 6,500 with her flaming baton exhibition.

President John T. Fey was introduced to the crowd as the "most athletic college president in the United States." President Fey welcomed the parents and alumni and presented trophies to the king and queen of Homecoming.

John Tonseth, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, received a trophy for winning the poster contest.

Blankets were awarded to parents and alumni as follows: Dr. and Mrs. H.I. Varney, Chevy Chase, Maryland, parents from farthest away (550 miles); Dean R. Hill, Buffalo, New York, alumnus from oldest Class (Class of 1909); Roger A. Rivera, Class of 1958, alumnus from farthest distance (Eifel, Germany).

In the men's residence halls poster contest, first place went to Buckham Hall with Chittenden Hall receiving honorable mention.

King and Queen

Homecoming weekend came off very well for many UVM students, but for two freshmen in particular it was especially memorable. Says Homecoming Queen Barbara Wool, "Even when you take off the crown, shed the robe, and descend from the throne, you never abandon that special memory and 'inner glow' kind of feeling of being a Homecoming Queen". Barbara's royal partner, Brian Little sums up his weekend with the laconic but true statement, "It sure was busy".

Brian brings all 6'1" of his good looks from the land of the Kingston Trio where he was born and in which he lived for 15 years (San Francisco, of course). However, he now hails from Ridgefield, New Jersey, where he was on the football team for two years in high school and a member of the Student Council. Brian is enrolled in the Liberal Arts curriculum and eventually plans to enter the business world. His immediate views on campus life seem to be that the "upperclassmen have it all over the Frosh guys", but it is a general opinion that Brian Little needn't worry on that score.

Both Brian and Barbara are ski enthusiasts, but Barb's interest seems to have been acquired more by osmosis. "If you live in Vermont, you HAVE to ski". Barbara has lived in Burlington for all of her 17 years except for 4 months of her junior year in high school, when she went to Japan on the American Field Service Exchange program. This factor plus her plans to major in Political Science points to a career in the foreign service. In Burlington High, Barbara was Secretary of Student Council, a cheerleader, and a member of the Ski Team. Now at UVM, Barb finds campus life new and stimulating.

The royal couple was crowned at the Homecoming Ball Friday night. Saturday morning saw the King and Queen leading the Peerade to the football game where each received a trophy from President John T. Fey during the halftime of the game. An official introduction of the royal pair was given during the Vermont Varieties on Saturday, and though it wasn't on the schedule of royal duties, both Barbara and Brian attended the Freshman Ball in Southwick Memorial later in the evening. All in all, it was, as Brian puts it, a "busy weekend."

THE PARTY WEEKEND: ITS CAUSE AND CURE

With the season of party weekends almost upon us, my mail of late has been flooded with queries from young inmates of women's colleges wishing to know how one conducts one's self when one has invited a young gentleman for a weekend, so let us today take up this burning issue.

Well, my dear girls, the first thing to remember is that your young gentleman is far from home and frightened. Put him at his ease. You might, for instance, surprise him by having his valet sitting in a rocker on the station platform when he gets off the train.

Next, what kind of corsage should you send your young gentleman? Well, my beloved maidens, orchids are always acceptable, so indeed, are phlox and delphinium. In fact, most any flora will serve. Do try, however, to avoid carnivorous plants.

If you find, my esteemed fillies, that your local florist has run out of stock, do not be dismayed. Make a corsage out of paper. But pick good, stiff, durable paper—twenty dollar bills, for example.

Remember at all times, my fond wenches, to show your young gentleman courtesy and consideration. Open doors for him, walk on the traffic side of the path, assist him to the punch bowl, zip his parka, light his Marlboros. (What, you ask, if he doesn't smoke Marlboros? Ridiculous, my precious nymphs! Of course, he smokes Marlboros! Don't you? Don't I? Doesn't everybody who knows a hawk from a handsaw? What other cigarette gives you such a lot to like? Such easy-drawing filtration? Such unfiltered taste? Such soft pack or flip-top box? No other, my sweet minxes, no other. Marlboro stands alone, and any man worthy of you, my estimable damsels, is bound to be a Marlboro man.)

Surprise him when he gets off the train...

If you will follow the simple instructions stated above, my good lasses, you will find that you have turned your young gentleman into a fast and fervent admirer. There is nothing quite like a party weekend to promote romance. I am in mind of a party weekend some years ago at Miss Pentritt's Seminary for well-born females in West Linotype, Ohio. Serafina Sigafoos, a sophomore at this institution, majoring in napkin folding and underarm deodorant, received an invitation to a young man named Fafnir Valve, a junior at the Lower Kilmer School of Forestry, majoring in sap and boles. Serafina had been ape for Fafnir since high school, but Fafnir scarcely knew she existed. He was mad for a girl named Celia Fleshwound, the high school drum majorette who once threw a baton so high she impaled a southbound mallard.

Anyhow, Serafina sent an invitation to Fafnir, and he came, and she showered him with kindness and cuff links, and then he went away, and Serafina sat anxiously by the mailbox wondering whether she would ever hear from Fafnir again. Sure enough, two weeks later she got a letter. "Dear Serafina, Can you let me have fifty bucks? Yours, Fafnir."

Whimpering with ecstasy, she ran to the bank and withdrew the money and mailed it to him. From then on, she got the same request every week, and as a result, she became very well acquainted with Ralph T. Involute, teller of the West Linotype Savings and Trust Co., and their friendship ripened into love, and today they are happily married and live in Stamen, Oregon, where Ralph is in the extruded molasses game and Serafina is a hydrant.

Russian Students

On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week the University of Vermont was visited by some eight Russian students, including two women. This visit is important to both the Russians and the University of Vermont for a number of reasons.

The exchange of views necessarily brought about by placing the Russian students in living quarters with American students can have no other effect than to increase understanding on both sides. This, along with the Russians' contact with other Americans during their stay, inevitably performed a function of what may be called "education" on both sides.

The fact that the University of Vermont was chosen as one of the four or five Eastern colleges to host these students should be a source of pride to the entire university. The school can further be proud that this was the only school in the country at which the Russian students stayed in fraternity and sorority houses.

INDIVIDUAL CONTACT

Individual contact, except in the housing units in which the Russians lived, was regretably but necessarily at a minimum. It was physically impossible for these Russian students to reach the entire student body with any degree of completeness in the short time they were here. Nevertheless a program was arranged which gave them a picture of as much of the university, both academic and non-academic, as was possible in such a short time. Despite the lack of individual contact, therefore, the basic purpose of the visit has been accomplished.

Although the ages of the Russian visitors leads the CYNIC to doubt their status as "students", the visit of these Russians has nevertheless accomplished the purpose of enlarging contacts between the Russian and the American worlds. It would be foolish to expect to have converted these students to our way of life, but now they have a better idea of American life as we have a greater understanding of Russians.

Elections

This Tuesday, November 8, 1960 marks the day on which the election of the next president of the United States will take place. This day will mark the end of one of the hardest-fought campaigns in history, as millions of voters go to the polls to mark their ballots for either Mr. Kennedy or Mr. Nixon.

One can only hope that the votes cast for both candidates are cast because each voter has considered the record and abilities of the candidates. Such considered voting can and will strengthen the nation; a blind, unconsidered vote for either candidate can only weaken it.

SMALL PERCENTAGE CAST

It is strange that, in a nation which considers itself the bastion of democracy, such a small percentage of the voting public bothers to cast a ballot. In the last Presidential election only 64% of the voters cast their ballots, which means that something less than 35% could have decided the fate of the nation. The percentage will probably not be any larger this year.

VOTE!

The CYNIC has noted with interest the part that the Young Republicans and Young Democrats have played in this campaign. It hopes that this interest will be continued by voting age UVMers, both faculty and student, on November 8. We urge each and every voter to come out, Tuesday, November 8, and support the candidate of his choice with his vote.

Letters To The Editor

SA Refutes CYNIC

To the Editor

In regard to your recent editorial concerning the Student Association, I would like to state that the viewpoint of the CYNIC pertaining to the apathy shown by a lack of attendance at meetings is fallacious. There have been only four unexcused absences since our first meeting in September. The primary reason for a student's presence in college is to study. Extra-curricular activities are an important adjunct to curricular activities, but should not replace the student's major purpose. Failure to attend a Council meeting should not be misconstrued to mean a lack of interest. It was unfortunate that the Camp Abnaki Conference and the following S.A. Meeting fell in the midst of a deluge of hour exams.

Be of the Student Association realize our faults and problems. To quote Mr. Crane's answer to a recent letter to the editor, "We have always appreciated constructive criticism of our work. However, we are a little sick and tired of the habitual complainers". S.A. is now in the process of rewriting its constitution. Much work in this area has been accomplished and our hope is that it will be completed by the Spring election. Instead of continually trying to "rip down" an organization which is striving diligently to improve its workings. Why not try to offer help and support.

Sincerely,
Gerald F. Edelstein
S.A. President

Dear Editor:

Your editorial of October 27th condemning the S.A. and the lack of interest of its members was definitely out of place. If you had thought about it before writing it, you would have realized that it was unwarrented. We, of the S.A. were victims of circumstance as far as the meeting was concerned. It seems that a deluge of hour exams kept some of the members of S.A. Council from coming to the meeting. If you had checked the attendance record up to this time, you would have seen that there were only four unexcused absences - a pretty good record.

Going back to the aforementioned statement that we were victims of circumstance, it seems that S.A. activities were being overemphasized last week due to the Camp Abnaki conference the weekend before.

Certain parties thought that the conference would be discussed at the meeting. But, unfortunately, due to exams, it was impossible for all to attend the meeting. We think that you, as the leader of a campus organization, should realize the difficulties that arise when a meeting is scheduled for an evening before hour exams.

I don't think it is fair for the CYNIC, of all campus organization, to criticize us for failure to convene. If a quorum was not present at any other meeting, no one would have known.

Although this was an inopportune time for an incident such as this, and we realize this, it should not be taken as the general conduct of S.A. representatives.

Sincerely,

Jerome Gersten, Representative
Class of 1961

The Melting Pot

By ROGER ZIMMERMAN

In a short while, the people of America will elect the next President and Vice-President of the United States. All elections are crucial, this one is perhaps more so than important than the preceding two. From the international viewpoint, the U.S. is in a difficult situation. From the domestic viewpoint, problems centering around the issue of integration, the farm situation, and unemployment make themselves urgently heard. The man who is to be America's number one leader must deal with these problems of both international and domestic concern. And it would seem apparent that Vice-President Nixon is the man best qualified for the job. It is one thing to recognize that both candidates leave much to be desired. This is the usual case anyhow. But it is ridiculous to focus attention here, for then how would the public do its reasoning like taking the lesser of two evils to avoid? Therefore, let's concentrate strictly on what we do have.

DOMESTIC FRONT

Nixon has presented a domestic program which would maintain and advance the American Free Enterprise system. It is an economically conservative program whose fundamental policy is that of maintaining (while attaining) a sound and stable dollar. Within the framework of this basic policy, Nixon has been somewhat vague as to exactly what means he will employ to achieve and maintain this goal. However, he has a definite idea as to how far federal control should go. He says, "I do not accept the philosophy that Big Brother knows best . . . government should spend as much as it needs to, but not more".

Senator Kennedy's understanding of the free economic system seems to reside in his spending-and-cheap-money formula. Nixon, on the other hand, has kept, and will most probably continue to keep, a steady eye on the rate of real investment. A certain voter in a town in Michigan recently said, "There's a little more money in the streets when the Democrats are in office." But this same voter neglected to ask himself what kind of money. Kennedy's formula is fine, if stability isn't taken into account. It would seem, then, that Nixon's emphasis on real investment is by far and large the more farsighted policy.

Why Not ?

by JULES OLDER

[illegible] I aired my opinions concerning the [illegible] upon our female students. This week, in the [illegible] of equality, I'll talk about men.

[illegible] University of Vermont take ROTC. I took it. I had to -- it's a school rule. But if [illegible] did I have to take two years of ROTC?" The [illegible] department will undoubtedly answer,"WHY

[illegible] military department, I'll tell you WHY NOT. I didn't want to take two years of ROTC. I didn't want to take any years of it. I didn't have then and I don't have now, any desire to become an officer in the

I happen to be color blind. I was informed by Lt. Col. Elston B. White, then commanding officer of the ROTC program, that I didn't have a chance of getting into the advanced corps because of this condition. (The [illegible] also informed me that in spite of this situation, I didn't have a chance of getting out of the two year basic course.)

TWO YEAR WASTE

[illegible] men at this university are in the same position. They either don't want to take military leadership training or can't be accepted into the advanced course because of aphysical disability. Yet they will have to [illegible] two years as I did, learning minute parts of outdated weapons and marching around the gym floor. To my way of thinking, this is a total waste and is, in itself, reason enough for dropping the compulsory military training.

The fact that unwilling soldiers make poor soldiers and that training thousands of men to become officers who will not become officers is a colossal waste of time, should be reason enough for the leaders of the [illegible] serve branch of the Army to drop the compulsory rule themselves. But since they have not shown the foresight to take action inthis direction, the impetus must come from other sources.

THE VOTE

Last year the Student Association assumed leadership and held a referendum to determine how the students felt about compulsory ROTC. On April 1, 1960, 472 men voted to discontinue the mandatory system and only 170 voted to retain it. Unfortunately the trustees apparently saw fit to ignore the voice of disapproval. The results were sent by the Student Association to the University Council and never heard of again.

At other colleges and universities the issue has been debated at all levels, from the students to the trustee councils. Several schools have already changed to a purely voluntary training program. The time is here for our university to recognize this important issue. It must not be shelved again.

WHAT TO DO

There are several things the individual can do. He can think and talk about the issue and decide where he stands. He can let other people know where he stands. He can let the Army know where he stands. This may be referred to as griping -- I recommend it.

If the individual is a professor and objects to the required program on the grounds that it is a violation of academic freedom, he can let other faculty members and the administration know his feelings. Make it audible . . . WHY NOT?

Sounding Off

Dear Editor

Last spring I was one of the heard that annually transfers from UVM to bigger and better or smaller and easier places. Just about every week my mail includes a CYNIC in some state of disrepair but still readable. Last week I was delighted to notice some letters commenting on the unfortunate and unwieldy requirement that all women students attend WSGA mass meetings. From my observations of a very effective and spirited women's government organization here at George Washington University allow me to offer the following suggestions.

First, that instead of running as independents, the candidates get together, organize a party slate with a specific program of improvements or changes as their platform and campaign on this basis. With the present decadent system of nomination and balloting, it is no wonder that there is about as much interest in WSGA elections as in a three-sided flea race.

Second, that the administration leave something for the women to govern, and that the women themselves use every opportunity for service to their community and university. Here in Washington the WSGA sponsors a Congolese exchange student, an annual get-out-the-vote campaign and mock election, a torch-light Christmas caroling round of men's dorms and fraternity houses followed by an open house for all, a Powder Puff football game (in which football players are the cheerleaders and the girls play touch football--sounds corny, but it is hilarious fun) and also takes charge of all Queen campaign arrangements.

The girls use the student radio and television station to give campaign speeches and to conduct forums and debates. The WSGA has representatives on every major activity to keep the central council up to date and well-informed.

Undoubtedly the WSGA here has many more functions up its sleeve which I haven't heard about yet. However from all appearances it seems that the UVM WSGA could benefit by a wider scope of activities which would draw more women into direct participation via committee work and projects.

It would also benefit from an eradication of the onerous compulsory attendence rule, allowing the UVM women to function as any other segment of the free American electorate.

Sincerely,
[illegible] Siemer, '62

Cuba, Castro, And Me

by EDWARD KRITZLER

Intense poverty is widespread throughout Latin America, and the disheartening thing about this is that it is largely unnecessary. Latin American society is predominantly divided into two distinct classes - the extremely rich and the extremely poor. The former constitutes a minute segment of the society while the latter constitutes nearly all the rest.

Cuba's class structure was no exception. The revolutionary government set out to abolish this acute poverty, with the resulting raising of the Cuban's standard of living. President Dorticos has characterized the revolution as one " . . . of the needy, by the needy and for the needy . . . "

I had seen the slums in Chicago, in Harlem, and in our South, yet I was still unprepared for the acute poverty I found throughout Cuba. The state of these people is beyond anything imaginable. Still the happiness, optimism and fervor with which they support the revolution knows no bounds.

What is the Revolution for these people? How is the Revolution combating this poverty?

I believe this can most easily be seen by citing what is being done in Manzana Gomez. Manzana Gomez is the slum section of Santiago de Cuba, and it is here that two thousand poverty stricken families reside.

MANZANA GOMEZ

I spent two weeks in Santiago as the guest of Captain Casto Asmador who heads the "26 de Julio" organization (the revolutionary government) for the whole of Oriente Province. I visited Manzana Gomez twice with members of "26 of July"- The poverty was unbelievable - sanitary conditions were non existant; the housing consisted of rows of one room dirt floored shacks. An average of six people lived in each of these shacks which had no electricity, running water, or real furniture. The children ran around naked and lived their lives in a state of filth. One child out of four does not live past the age of five; 50% of these children's bodies are either tubercular or contain parasites. Preceding the revolution, if a child broke his leg, he would spend the rest of his life a cripple - there were no doctors, no dentists, no schools, no jobs, and nothing was done to alter this situation. There was no escape from this life. As one man told me, "Before the revolution, the only future I knew was the grave."

These people now however, greet the future with hope; happiness, and unbounded enthusiasm. This is because for once a government has come to Cuba which is doing something for these people, and is doing it rapidly and on a massive scale. "Work quickly. We have already lost 58 years" states one of the revolutionary slogans.

The Manzana Gomez project was started eight months ago. Since then a clean and modern community has sprung up, 900 homes have already been built. Each of these houses has 5 rooms with tile floors, running water, electricity, sanitary facilities, and new furniture. The homes are brightly colored, and have their own little plots of land with grass, shubbery, and many flowers. The streets and sidewalks are paved and well lighted. I have always described this project as a small scale Levittown; this week I found out, to my surprise I was correct in this description - a Levittown architect had designed it.

Three schools, a hospital, a baby clinic and a dental clinic, all of which are free have been built. For the children, there are spacious playgrounds and recreation centers run by social workers.

As most of the work for all this has been voluntary, the only real expense is for the materials. For instance, the houses are largely pre-fabricated, and have been constructed for less than two thousand dollars apiece. As soon as a certain number of homes were completed, families began moving in on the basis of the poorest first. They receive free outright ownership to these homes, with their only expense being for the maintenance.

This is all very good, but what about the people still starving and without any means to make a living. What has the government done about this? Whereas before the revolution Cuba's economy was dependent upon imports the revolutionary government is industralizing the country rapidly, to have a more independent economy.

In Manzana Gomez a screw factory has been built. Cuba had always imported screws from the United States, thus most of the money spent for screws did not stay in Cuba, but came directly back to our country. Now however, the manufacturing of screws not only gives the people jobs, but the money remains in circulation and the people's standard of living rises.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

The AEPi had two alumni guests this week. Mr. and Mrs. Kahn. We really enjoyed their pleasant dinner company and hope to have them at our house more often.

Andy Schwarz and Phoebe Hubbard did an excellent job as our Homecoming poster. Thanks girls for a job well done.

It was a true Homecoming at AEPi, however as we missed our alums Sharon Citron and Pat Trotter. Marilyn Blicher was here for the weekend to tell us about her student career at B U. With Homecoming now over we still hope to welcome many more alums in future weeks.

Last week the strains of "Sweetheart of A T O" resounded through Pi Phi and Mary Fletcher dorms as the singing Taus added two more Sweethearts to their list. Dawes Macomber and Bonnie Lantman were very impressed, and their boys Dot Morse and Dick Atwood were duly elated if not embarrassed by the whole affair.

Seems like second and third floor Coolidge are seeing a lot of certain Taus lately.

Good luck in the finals boys!

We had a very successful open house after the big game on Saturday, followed by a buffet and a party that night. Music was provided by Tippy Connor's band, and a terrific time was had by all.

NAME: John Hulse AGE: 27 MAJOR: Bus. Adm.

PRESENT JOB: Telephone Manager, Sioux City, Iowa

When John Hulse was a senior at the U. of South Dakota, he had his own set of "do's" and "don'ts." Don't become a mere cipher on somebody's payroll. Don't sit on the shelf waiting for your first taste of responsibility. Do get a job where you have a chance to show your stuff right from the start. Do the job.

John knew his B.S. in Business Administration could lead him into almost any field. He chose the telephone business and joined Northwestern Bell.

One of his first assignments: streamlining operating procedures for the telephone offices of Iowa's five largest cities. In this work John showed good judgment and sound organizing ability.

Today he is Telephone Manager of Sioux City, Iowa.

Besides managing day-to-day operations, helping plan tomorrow's telephone growth is an important part of John's job. A typical example is the work he does with the Sioux City Industrial Development Association. In this role, he's the answer man on projecting, planning and supplying the communications needs of new industry. He's shown above with Bob Sweeney, manager of the Sioux City Chamber of Commerce.

"You must always be thinking of the future in this business," John says. "We have to stay ahead. I think a man who has something to offer this outfit won't have a minute's worry about what it can do for him."

If you're a capable guy—looking for an action job with rapid rewards for the man who can handle it—you'll want to visit your Placement Office for literature and additional information.

The Thetas were very pleased and talk with Mrs. Eddy last Tuesday evening at dinner. Our former housemother looked well and was as charming as ever.

It was wonderful having Bett, Jean Harding and Jessie Sleugling living at the house last weekend. It would have been nice if more of the grads could have come.

Now that there are a pair of scales in the house, there is no more concentrating on dieting, but as would be expected, more groaning and artful rationalization. Julie Boney Bergen has to be different and complain because she isn't gaining.

Jeanie MacDonough, star debater is overjoyed that her team finally beat Dartmouth. Congrats, Jeannie.

Scottie and Lynda Folley report that Nancy Walden and Kathy King are making good money in Boston, but really working for it. They seem happy in the big city as do Karen Johnson, Sue Qeade, and Pat Reville.

Just a little advice from the Theta house to ardent knitters. Don't attempt to shrink a sweater by putting it in the dryer. Exhibit A is Bill Adams' knit by his teacher friend, Carol Suhr. Oh, well, she can always put it in her hope chest.

LAMBDA IOTA

Wow! What a Homecoming at the Owl House. There certainly was one huge group of alumni, who returned for the 125th Anniversary Kick Off. Between the new flag, ceremony, and the terrific dance Saturday night, a dazed Alumni returned home.

Speaking of dazed Owls, that was a great open house that John Crosscup had after the Norwich game. Thanks very much, John.

And speaking of Open House, there will be a good time at the "Scotch on the Rocks" open house that the Owls are going to have with Slade "Drums" Foley will be beating up a storm when the Owls provide the music. This should be a blast. With a thing like that how could it miss.

The Owls are licking their chops in expectation of a venison feast. Ed (O Great Deer Slayer of the North) Riebe dropped his deer with a bow and arrow. His only comment was "I Kneel Him" Meanwhile the rest of us are getting our "supplies" and guns around for the regular season which is just around the corner.

PI BETA PHI

During the whirlwind Homecoming weekend, the Pi Phis held an open house after the game. There was food, fun, and frolic for all -- a huge success! We thought Homecoming was really great and enjoyed participating in it by entering our poster and joining in on the spirit of the big fall weekend.

We are very happy to welcome Marty Russell and Sherae Fisk as new initiates of Pi Beta Phi. The initiation ceremony took place on Tuesday, Oct. 25. Congratulations girls!

The skiers in the house were overjoyed to see the snow on Mt Mansfield last week. Oh, to get out on those slopes!

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

The men of S.A.E. really enjoyed entertaining the Alumnae over the Homecoming weekend. The buffet was fabulous, the float was terrific, and as for the Hawaiian Party, we would like to see Ken Hyatt in a lava lava.

Recent victories over Delta Psi and Phi Delta Theta have moved the S.A.E. Intramural Team to an enviable 4-1 record.

And as to the hunting situation, it seems that we have two types of hunters here at 56 Summit. There is the Frank Boynton type, who requires five shots to down one bird and the John Tonseth type who downs five birds in one shot.

Here at S.A.E., although we are very proud of our four on the football team, we realize that football is a team effort, and so would like to congratulate all the men of the 1960 Vermont Catamounts. BEAT MIDDLEBURY!

TAU EPSILON PHI

Congratulations to our new brothers, Steve Waldner, Lou Reiner, Howie Schwartz, Al Glazer, and Joel Rutstein inducted this past week.

It was our pleasure having Professors Lyman Gould and William Steele as our guests for dinner and a short discussion Monday. We are all looking forward to hearing our next guest the ever popular Professor Gregg.

With Homecoming over we all look to basketball and our championship defense. The original Huff, back for another year of superlative coaching, promises a great and winning effort!

THETA CHI

Homecoming 1960 was a fine weekend at 170 Spruce. Approximately 60 parents, alums, brothers, pledges and dates attended the buffet and party Saturday night.

The night before was an all-nighter as the men worked diligently on the float. This explains the red-eyed, staggering group which attended the football game.

And, as the last carload of alums roars off into the west and the last farewell is made and brother Mil Simmons begins to wonder how he will ever get the house clean again, and the last parent wonders aloud why he ever left college 36 years ago, the house will gradually settle??? into the usual routine again.

UVM Will Seek Financial Aid

The [illegible] still ask the [illegible] Legislature for help [illegible] financing two new [illegible] buildings.

UVM will ask the state to [illegible] a new $1,500,000 engineering building, and to [illegible] a $2,000,000 gymnasium and [illegible] which would be largely paid off by the UVM students through [illegible] of a student [illegible] fee.

The [illegible] is similar to the one whereby UVM is [illegible] a new library under a 20-year bond issue to be paid off largely through a student library fee.

UVM President John T. Fey said that the University, through alumni and friends, has already raised nearly $400,000 toward the Gym's cost, and expects to raise an additional $200,000.

He said that UVM's existing physical plant, valued at more than $19,000,000 exclusive of dormitories and the library presently under construction, was largely made possible by the generosity of alumni and friends of the University. More than $15 millions of the total plant came from private philanthropy, he said.

"Our effort in the gymnasium campaign and the generosity of our medical alumni in making possible phase one and two of a new medical building program indicated," he said, "that UVM is pursuing help from private philanthropy wherever it is possible to do so."

He said that the University, as in the case of the engineering building, would turn to the state for building needs only when the pressure of responsibility combined with circumstances which make it apparent that building funds are unlikely to be available from other sources.

Shakespeare Festival A Success

The Champlain Shakespeare Festival, which completed its second summer [illegible] the University of Vermont campus this past August, enjoyed a 66 percent attendance increase over its first year. Festival Director Gregory A. [illegible] said the 1960 Festival attendance attracted 5,[illegible] patrons. The 1959 attendance was 3,0[illegible] he said.

Significantly [illegible] said, 14 percent of attendance came from children [illegible] eight percent of the Festival's attendance was drawn from the University's Summer Session students and faculty, he estimated.

The Festival played to [illegible] sell-out performances [illegible] It enjoyed none in its [illegible] ral year. In addition, two [illegible] three special children's matinee performances were sell-outs, he said.

The 1960 Festival presented Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," "Henry IV Part I," and "Macbeth" in [illegible] tinous repertory during the month of August.

Men's Council

One of the lesser known organizations that helps UVM run more efficiently is the Men's Residence Hall Student Government. This organization, which works in close contact with the Dean's Office, helps to promote richer dormitory life for the Freshman men.

The primary function of the Residence Council is to secure funds for and to help organize the social functions of the dormitories. Money for these activities is obtained from the Council treasury, after approval by both the Council and the University. These activities can consist of street dances, parties, hayrides and similar functions. In some cases all the dormitories will hold a special event together.

An equally important duty of the Council is the forwarding of recommendations for dormitory improvement to the proper University authorities. These recommendations, submitted by students to the Council, are discussed and [illegible] altered by the group before being forwarded to the University.

The Council members are representatives elected by their fellow men. These representatives bring suggestions to the organization's meetings for discussion. This year's officers are President, John Baldwin; Secretary, John McPeek; Treasurer, Peter Sparks. Confident that the Men's Residence Hall Student Government, as in the past, will continue to serve UVM.

HOW TO SQUEEZE A MILLION CALCULATIONS INTO ONE SECOND

Even though modern electronic computers work at almost unbelievable speeds the scientist is way ahead of them.

Put quite simply, scientists have been thinking up complex problems faster than even the fastest computers could handle them. To close this gap, IBM created STRETCH, the world's fastest, most powerful computer.

The first STRETCH system will go to the AEC at Los Alamos to aid in nuclear reactor design. This goliath can do a million additions or subtractions a second. It can "read" the equivalent of four million characters per minute from magnetic tape. It can print the equivalent of three good sized novels every hour. It can perform all these operations simultaneously and if necessary pause midway in the problem and tackle a more important one.

Creating such tools and putting them to work for science—or for business, industry, or government—is exciting, important work. It calls for talents and skills of every kind, from liberal arts to Boolean algebra to astrophysics.

So whatever your particular talents and skills, there may be just the kind of job at IBM you've always wanted. The IBM representative will be visiting your campus this year. Why not ask him about it? Your placement office can make an appointment. For further information about opportunities at IBM, write, outlining your background and interests, to

Physics Student Wins Award

[illegible] of Mrs. Margaret [illegible] of Burlington, De- [illegible] earned physics grades [illegible] 98 in the first and [illegible] semesters last year. His achievement is considered the more noteworthy, according to Dr Nelson L. Walbridge, chairman of the physics department, because Desautels continues to hold a part-time job, with one of the local Grand Union stores during the college year. He held the job all through high school and during his freshman year.

Dr. Albert D. Crowell, associate professor of physics, Desautels' physics instructor last year, said the award given to Desautels is given not merely to the highest-ranking student, but to the student judged 'most outstanding."

Student Delegates Attend Conference

Student delegates from teacher preparing colleges throughout New England attended a weekend professional conference at Sargent Camp here recently adopted a resolution urging "immediate appropriation of substantial federal funds to be used by the states for support of public elementary and secondary education."

More than 80 student teacher representatives from Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont at the Third Annual Student National Education Association Northeast Regional Conference voted for the first time to take a formal stand on the controversial issue of federal support for education.

Declaring that "control of education should remain in the hands of state and local authorities," the students at the same time has come for the federal government to assume a major share in the financial support of the nation's schools. In a key note the students judged that Federal funds be used for school construction and/or teachers salaries."

Officers of student education associations from every New England state affirmed the obligation of future members of the teaching profession to make their voices heard in the determination of educational policies facing the country. the future of quality education in America, they declared, depends upon prompt action to relieve classroom and teacher shortages through the use of federal resources to supplement local and state efforts."

Delegates attending the Sargent Camp Conference from UVM were Lynette Rankin and Sheila Whitney.

Locally, the John Dewey Chapter of Student National Education at UVM had their first business meeting at which this year's officers were presented. They are as follows Neil Adams President, Sheila Whitney Vice President, Maureen Seiler Secretary, Richard Smith Treasurer, and Elizabeth Sanguenetti Program Chairman. It was decided to start a membership drive which will last until November 11 1960.

On October 7 about 15 members of SNEA and advisor Mr. Joseph Gofft, attended the state conference at Johnson Teacher's College. Neil Adams, John Dewey Chapter President was elected president.

Democrats Hold Rally

Members of the Young Democrats attended a Rally held at St. Michael's College on Oct. 24. Leaders, candidates, and Young Democrats spoke on behalf of the Democratic candidates both state and local. Among those speaking were Bernard Leddy, William Meyer, Jr., J. William O'Brien, Robert Spencer, and Robert Larrow.

Mr. Leddy stressed the fact that the Young Democrats could do much to elect men like Russell Niquette, who knows more about Vermont and her problems than other men. William Meyer, whose record in Congress is the most amazingly honest and sincere one that a Vermont Representative has had, and Sen. John Kennedy, who is a man who is offering leadership, sincerity, and honesty instead of seeking these things.

William Meyer, Jr., speaking on behalf of his father, William Meyer, Vermont Representative to Congress stated that in his opinion students were thinkers. He went on to say that there were three major issues in the campaign: the issue of world peace, the issue of humanity, and the issue of honest and sincere stands on all main points in the campaign.

Mr. O'Brien urged the students to get out and work in the campaign as did Mr. Larrow and Mr. Spencer. All the speakers stressed the fact that the youth of the nation and Vermont could really further the campaign and their candidates election hopes by volunteering for work at the Headquarters of the party of their choice.

Thursday, Oct. 27, at 4 P.M. Leonard G. Wilson, candidate for Lieutenant Governor of the Democratic Ticket, addressed the Young Democrats. Mr. Wilson, commenting on the Republican Platform, stated that the "Republican program is one of the best kept secrets in Vermont." Mr. Wilson went on to say that the Republican program must call for more taxes and that the Republicans were not being honest in saying that they did not intend to raise taxes as they want a sales tax.

Speaking of the democratic program, Mr. Wilson stated that the Democrats were going to, as soon as possible, reorganize the State Government in order to start saving the money that the Republican Commission, investigating the matter, had stated could be saved by doing so. Also, stated Mr. Wilson, the Democrats will relocate the taxes so that there will be more equality of the tax burden.

Following the question and answer period, during which Mr. Wilson answered questions on pari-mutuel betting and the Democratic Platform, a short business meeting was held before the group adjourned.

The University of Vermont will be the fourth of 21 American colleges and universities counted in a special "Or the Campus" radio series being beamed to men and women serving overseas in the armed forces.

The program featuring a message from President John T Fey, and music and commentary on campus history, life and special events was prepared for the Armed Forces Press, Radio and Television Service by the Student Radio-Television Workshop staff. UVM's program will be aired Dec 1. Other New England institutions participating include Yale, Harvard and the University of Main.

Varieties Reviewed

By A. OJAMEN

Saturday night's performance certainly had variety. A variety of excellent sketches and a few very poor ones, all ineffectively introduced. True, the M.C. had a useless mike; but his greatest handicap was the script he used, which was not good and not interesting. The only point at which he served his function adequately was in introducing the King and Queen. What more need he say except here they are?

As for the varieties themselves, I point first to a sketch entitled "Phone, Parties, and People." I understand the title because there were phones, parties, and people in the sketch; but I have yet to decide whether this sketch was meant to be a cussing session or was written under the impression that one 'damn' was amusing--which it was--and two 'damns' and a 'hell' was hilarious--which they were not.

There were five sketches entitled "Vermont Politics", that was comprised of Vermont Humor. Having heard and played these jokes on out-of-staters myself, I feel that Ralf Bode, who can't speak a word of Vermontese, stuck to the purpose of the sketch; which was to put the joke across, not to see how much nasal twange could be packed into a sentence.

There were many good things there, too. The Shakespeare Minstrels singing Carole Demas's song, "Youth". Alice Zalon's second rendition of "Love Is A Simple Thing" was frighteningly well done. I particulary enjoyed the three dance routines, especially "Top Hatters." "Brand X" explained the food served at the cafeterias. Jon Tenzer with his piano almost stole the show. The funniest sketch was "Sparticus" with the line: "White meat or dark?"

My congratulations to the people who put their time and effort into the Varieties, for some of the sketches had a great deal of work put into them.

Twirlers Expand

Twirlers happily announce the addition of three gleaming batons to the Vermont Majorette Squad now that fall tryouts are completed and the new members chosen.

Carol Watters, Janet Arthur and Kathy Patric will join the squad as alternates this year. The new members were chosen by the Band director, head major, Band president, and the Majorettes themselves. Judgement was based primarily on the candidates twirling ability, marching and strutting, while attention was also given to attitude and appearance.

The Majorettes perform at all home football games, one away game, pep rallies, parades in which the Band participates, and at the Spring Band trip. The new alternates will twirl with the regular squad at pep rallies and may substitute at the football games when they have reached a degree of proficency and experience. The alternates are given regular positions when the rest of the Majorettes decide by vote that they have mastered the routines and the paterns of uniform marching.

This year's regular Majorettes are Diane Lundry, Head Majorette; Connie Robbins, Elaine Wright, Joanne Juel, Sandy Fryzell and Pat Conait. Sandy Karnstedt is the soloist.

During the football season, the entire squad rehearses regularly with the band on Mondays and Wednesdays, and often extra practice sessions are scheduled to perfect more complicated routines. Attendance at all sessions is required, unless an excuse has been previously given.

In the Spring, the Majorettes will choose a new Head Majorette, basing their choice upon seniority, leadership and twirling ability. The new captain then conducts the practices for the rest of the year, and throughout the following season.

College Of Agr. Takes 15 Awards

College of Agriculture students walked off with five of the 15 Hood Scholarship Awards annually given by the Charles H Hood Dairy Foundation. Recipients are Lester L. Breault, Guildhall, Walter C Gutzmann, Jr., Craftsbury, Clarke R Tabor, Jr., Brookfield, all members of class of 1962 and Lawrence G Hamel, Orleans, and Timothy J. INTERNATIONAL SCENE

A major portion, as of late, of Senator Kennedy's campaign is built around the prestige argument. Kennedy hammers away day after day after day on this theme. The U.S. has lost prestige all over the world. To an extent, Kennedy is obviously correct. But his observation is certainly not profound. Of course the U.S. has lost prestige. But whereas Senator Kennedy, if given the chance, would make our international policy one of a prestige rat-race, Vice President Nixon has recognized that the real stakes involved in the international struggle is a desire of a free people to maintain their system of government as opposed to that of the Communists. While we cannot allow ourselves to become complacent, Kennedy would have us bordering on the lunatic fringe of status-seeking.

Nixon's running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, has more than proven himself in the U.N. With Nixon and Lodge in charge of U.S. international policy, Americans could be more optimistic with regards to the Cold War. Kennedy, who has already disguised himself under a cloak of so-called liberalism, has given us a sample of what the Democratic party's international policy would involve. That party, under Kennedy's highly questionable guidance, would have us give up Quemoy and Matsu. Why? So that an excuse for further Communist aggression may be avoided. This plan of nonprovocation is just what the Reds are looking for. As Life Magazine poignantly observed . . . "nothing provokes a Communist like nonprovocation."

AS I SAW IT dept.

There is but one word to describe the Vermont Varieties of last weekend. Great'' The show was fast-moving, beautifully co-ordinated, well-staged, and chock-full of some real-genuine-honest-to-goodness talent. It is, to say the least, a rather delicate matter to start singling out any one person who played in the Varieties. But-- they shall give credit where credit is due. So, Jon Tenzer and piano seems to have been the star of the night. His fast humor and genius at impromptu keyboard creation gave his act a touch of that something more which is peculiar to the professional or near professional.

The audience was highly receptive throughout the evening. The dancing numbers went over beautifully, as did the singing numbers-especially those from the past musicals. And special laurels to Dave Hall, who gave us just a delightful hint as to what to expect when "Where's Charley" opens.

To those who gave their time and energy to the production of the Varieties, a hearty thanks for a most enjoyable evening.

GYM?

To the Student Body:

Now that we've welcomed the Alumni, we've celebrated Homecoming Weekend in the traditional manner, and perhaps through this added something to the Gym Fund, it's time we thought seriously about the use of that money.

It is my view that we do not need a new gym. If compulsory Physical Education were ended, the present facilities would suffice for varsity practice and intra-mural sports. The CYNIC Highlights column in past years emphasized the new gym as a site for Lake Walk, Lane Series, and other major campus functions, citing Memorial's cost and poor acoustics as major reasons. The plans for the new gym do not include concert hall acoustics--it is designed purely to accommodate Physical Education and related activities.

I sincerely believe that the fabled $2.6 million earmarked for a new gym could much more profitably be spent to improve and expand the academic offerings of the University. The Zoology Department is in dire need of equipment; the Sociology Department could be expanded, the modern European languages could be offered in greater variety; there could be a Department of Asiatic Studies. Obviously this is only the beginning of a major stride forward into the ranks of opportunity for UVM students.

I call upon you to consider this carefully, and decide for the future between the "Ivy League Plant" and the true learning which UVM has always attempted to exemplify.

Petite Pat Gitt represents Simpson second. The nineteen year old Junior, is also a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. This year Pat is co-production manager of both the Ariel and the CYNIC. Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gitt of Great Neck, New York, are her parents.

Another Simpson gal is Elaine Stauber, 18, from fourth floor. This happy sophomore is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She is also active on the Executive Council of the Freshman Class, is a member of the Young Republican Club, and ushers at Lane Series. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.A. Stauber, of Great Neck, New York.

Coolidge second boasts its House President Ann Van Gilder, 20, as their representative. Ann, a Junior, is a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Van Gilder, from Roselle, New Jersey.

This year the Military Ball is being handled by the Astronauts. Tom Hackett of Phi Delta Theta, is the chairman of the Queen Committee. He reports that the five candidates will be voted on next week in Waterman by the Student body. The results will be withheld until the night of the ball, when the queen will then be announced. The other four girls will serve as her court.

The new queen will then reign over the Military Ball and serve as Honorary Cadet Colonel of the Cadet Corps. Also, in the Spring she will attend the Military Review as the Honorary Cadet Colonel.

Concert

unusual because of the great variety of nationalities contained in the group. Musicians coming from Germany, Poland, Hungary, Austria, Russia, Switzerland, United States, Holland, Belgium, and Israel have combined to form a varitable U.N. This was done as Huberman said "to unite the desire of the country for an orchestra with the desire of European musicians for a country." By the force of World War II and the Arab-Asraeli wars this orchestra has developed to be one of the world's finest in existence today.

The organization of the Israel Philharmonic is somewhat different from others of this type since they are self-governing, elect their own three man executive committee, can decide their own pay scale, and have sole power to hire, fire or promote their fellow musicians. Another unique feature of it is that the members have a financial security which many musicians today do not enjoy. They have full time employment for ten months of the year and a vacation the remaining two months.

Many people are quite eager to see this combination of the orchestra called "Israel's best ambassador abroad" and a conductor with such world-wide experience.

Farce

To the Editor

We, a few women of UVM, would like to agree wholeheartedly with the article, "Why Not?" in last week's CYNIC. We, too, believe that WSGA is a farce. Naturally, any institution needs a set of rules and regulations, but aren't some of ours silly? One new law added to the no scotch tape or bottles category is no signs in the windows. What harm is a "cattle crossing" or "soft shoulders" sign going to provoke except maybe a few hearty laughs?

The women's honor system is also a bone of contention. Each girl must undemocratically sign the oath that makes tattle-taling legal. In most colleges and universities the honor system means much to the students. The pledge not to cheat in exams and on the whole this system has been completely effective. We would like to see this kind of honor system initiated at UVM where much cheating is in evidence. Wouldn't an honest academic student body be better than a mass of student spies?

I should like to congratulate the Homecoming Committee and all those who contributed to the success of this year's Homecoming for a job well done.

Special thanks are due the members of the men's and women's honor societies, the fraternity and sorority members who contributed their time and talent to the posters and floats, the UVM Marching Band, and all those who participated in the fine halftime show at the game.

NOTICE

Catamount Grange will meet Thursday, November 3, at 7:30 in Morrill Hall.

Trustees Meet

The University of Vermont Board of Trustees authorized increases in the Faculty Summer Research Grants recently. Six grants will now carry the value of $1,000 apiece whereas in the past eight grants of $750 each were annually awarded.

Also approved at today's meeting was temporary housing for the Home Management House. Plans have been finalized for a new Home Management House and bids are expected to be submitted in December. Meanwhile, the University has contracted for a house at 14 Wilson Street on a month-to-month basis at $150 per month. In an additional action, the board voted approval of the American City Bureau to assist the University in the final phases of the gymnasium program.

OPEN LETTER

In the CYNIC [illegible] you read an editorial entitled, SA Failure. The [illegible] of this editorial were [illegible] again at the SA Council meeting of Thursday last. Needless to say, no one was happy with the forcefulness of the editorial. However, according to many students I have met, the truth was heard. It upset some; others on Council were temporarily shaken.

Yes, the Student Association Council is apathetic, it is a bureau of the budget, it is ineffective, it is not directly responsible to the student body. There are reasons for this and among them are

1. A splitting up of the campus into various groups.
2. The Council's inability to arouse student interest.
3. A lack of interest on your part concerning the future of student government on the UVM Campus.

Some of you may feel this last statement is unfounded, however, if you desire an effective, responsible, representative, student government we on Council NEED YOUR SUPPORT!!

The Student Association because of the outcome of the Camp Abnaki Conference, is in the process of revision. We have plans for a more effective system of representation, finance, elections, structure and communications. We are in the process of correcting our all-too obvious faults. THE STUDENT ASSOCIATION COUNCIL HAS MET THE STUDENT BODY HALFWAY. Student Government is not a one way affair. It must have the ideas and opinions of the entire student body without which Student Government is bound to fail.

Perhaps some methods by which you may get your views to council are:

1. A letter to the Editor of the CYNIC.
2. Letters addressed to the President of the Student Association.
3. Attending one of the Student Association's Council meetings.
4. Asking a representative of your living unit to attend a council meeting with authority to bring your views to council.

I have shown you the necessity of your interest in Student Government here at UVM. Without it, SUBSERVIENCE.

Naturally, groups or individuals become tired of criticism. However, when criticism is justified it must occur where praise is warranted where praise is in order. Let us be objective about the Student Association Council--we do have a fine film program, do have a good Current Activities Committee and do try to treat campus organizations fairly in respect to financial matters. There is a fine group of leaders on the Council with a more effective organization this leadership ability will be used to its maximum.

STUDENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT, I CHALLENGE YOU TO TAKE AN INTEREST IN YOUR STUDENT GOVERNMENT IN THIS TIME OF REVISION; I CHALLENGE YOU TO MAKE MIGHT RIGHT AND I CHALLENGE YOU DARE NOT DENY YOUR INTEREST IF YOU SEE FIT.

"Skip" is a junior from New Bedford, Mass. At New Bedford High, Tom captained the football team. He was also a member of the baseball and track teams. After graduation next year, he plans a career in teaching and coaching. He runs the 440 for the UVM Harriers, and is a member of Kappa Phi Kappa, the education fraternity of UVM. His biggest thrill to date was the Catamount defeat of Norwich. As far as improvements to the athletic system of UVM, "Skip" believes we are on the right track. The new gym which will be up soon, and the increased amount of scholarships will prove to be a great deal of help to UVM's teams. "Skip" also holds inexperience as the culprit which threw the monkey wrench into our season. Tom looks forward to a winning season next year.

Being the winning quarter-back at the Norwich game was one of his biggest thrills on the gridiron. As an improvement to athletics at UVM, Paul would like to see physical education be made a major subject. He would like to see a bit more spirit at our pep-rallies, and believes a larger turn-out could be had if the rallies were held at Redstone Campus. He also thought that the lack of experienced ball players is a contributing factor to our record on the gridiron. The penalties we suffer from on the field are caused by inexperienced players. "Rebel" also believes our small squad and injuries have done our record no good.

Letters To The Sports Editor

Dear Mr. Sports Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to congratulate the writer of the article WHO'S TO BLAME, which appeared in the October 20, issue of The Vermont Cynic.

As manager of the 1922 Football team, perhaps one of the greatest teams that Vermont has ever developed, I would like to add my comments to the excellent editorial. To me the question is not only with the fault of inadequate coaching staff, but rather with the lack of athletic scholarships. Then too, during the past few years the University of Vermont has greatly curtailed enrollment outside of the state of Vermont. With all due respect to the coaches of the secondary schools in the state, the average candidate who comes from the state high schools-who goes out for football-is poorly equipped in the fundamentals of the game. In the 1922 team, not more than two or three men came from Vermont high schools.

Coach Donnelly and Evans are doing a fine job with the material at their command. I can well appreciate their headaches in attempting to mould together a winning combination. My chief criticism lies with the Vermont Legislature, who have forced the University to limit the number of students from outside of the state. It is an old slogan that if a school wants good--athletes, it must go out on the open market and bid for them. In order to do this, one must be prepared to make attractive offers in the form of scholarships.

One other disturbing situation, is that during the past few years the administration seems to have taken some joy in de-emphasizing football, and have gone for greater academic achievement. Needless to say I believe that every football player should also demonstrate ability in his studies. However, I believe that there are each year a number of potential good athletes who apply at Vermont, who are turned away because their high school grades do not meet the questionable high admission standards set by the university officials. In other words-these students who are rejected for admission are not given a chance to see what they could do once they are admitted. These same students who are rejected at Vermont have no difficulty in enrolling elsewhere.

Once again Mr. Editor, I enjoyed reading the excellent article. Keep up the crusade for better football at Vermont.

FROSH FROLICS

by Wayne Mirsky

FROSH WIN

While most of the school was busy shining their shoes, pressing their suits or dreaming about the romantic evening that was forthcoming, the frosh went out and completely dominated play for our quarters and brought home a decisive 28-7 victory over Union. Bouncing back from last week's stunning setback, the frosh were never headed. As in the past, this week produced another star to brighten the football picture here at UVM. Four weeks ago it was Ollie Tharensen, then Tom Perras, and most recently Leo Davin. This week, Wayne Van Horn "hogged" the here spotlight as he carried the ball almost every odd play and set up two touchdowns with his brokenfield gallops. A tremendous show was displayed by the entire defensive platoon, comprised of Doug Barrett, Ollie Tharensen, Lance Westerlund, Buzz Balmer, Artie Jacob, Ronnie Oliver, Hugh Harley, Paul Toussaint, and Willie McClung. On offense, Bob Greco and Chris Greer mixed up their plays with remarkable precision and kept the Union defense constantly on its toes.

BASKETBALL SEASON APPROACHES

With the termination of the football season next week, the hoopsters will don their sneekers and shorts and start practices under the able tutorage of Ralph Lapointe. Some good bets for stardom on the frosh five are Dick Lawson, Dave Strassburg, John Babcock, Chuck Glick, Willie McClung, Howie Jacobs, Moose Ratner, Larry Bender, Sol Solomon and Terry Finkel. Tryouts are slated for next week, and all hopeful candidates should check the gym bulletin board to find out the precise time and place.

FROSH DANCE SUCCESSFUL

Rounding out a highly successful and romantic weekend for many, Rick Nalen and his Night Riders provided some swinging music at Southwick Saturday night. Everyone let their hair down and rocked to the haunting beat of the Nightriders. Many frosh celebrities were present at this dance. Included among these were Homecoming King, Brian Little, Bob Greco, freshman quarterback who demonstrated the true art of the "slop" to the native Vermonters, Leo Davin, who showed why he was known as Fred Astaire in his home town, Moose Ratner, whose unique New York dancing style amazed the packed crowd, and Willie McClung, who made a rather curt appearance by staying for only two dances (both of which were slow) and then leaving starry-eyed with his date. All-in-all, this was a fabulous weekend for all the frosh, and I'm sure that it will be remembered for quite some time in the future.

Cats Bow To Northeastern 22-8; To Face Panthers In Final Contest

Large Homecoming Crowd Looks On As We Drop Number 5

by Steve Sohn

A Homecoming Day crowd of 6,500 students and alumni saw the UVM Catamounts defeated by the Northeastern Huskies last Saturday, by a score of 22-8. The only two bright spots in the picture were Norwich's startling defeat of Middlebury 26-0, and the fact that the Cats still have a chance to win the state title.

The first fumble came early in the first quarter, when UVM's Bill Mooza recovered John Kelley's fumble. After a First Down, Northeastern's Pignato recovered a UVM fumble, which led to a Husky touchdown. DiNino made good the kick, and Northeastern led 7-0.

After receiving the kickoff, Amato ran to the Vermont 39. On the second down, a UVM fumble was recovered by Miller of Northeastern. The Green and Gold got the ball back on an interception of Varnum's pass by Parlato. At the end of the first quarter, Northeastern held the ball.

On a short series of downs, Northeastern moved the ball from their own 30 to our 5. DiNino bulled over for the TD, and then kicked the extra point. Northeastern led at this point 14-0.

After a series of fouls, Northeastern's Ahern intercepted a UVM pass and returned it to the UVM 10. A Husky fumble was recovered by UVM's Burke, and after a 4-6 situation on the Vermont 15, Levins kicked the ball to the 50.

Another interception and fumble ran the clock out. At the end of the first half, Northeastern led, 14-0.

Midway through the third quarter, Fleming passed to Parlato for a 56-yard touchdown play. Harris hit Burke for the 2-point conversion. At the end of the third quarter, DiNino of Northeastern had the ball on the Vermont 50 in a 1-10 situation.

On the second down in the fourth quarter, DiNino ran the ball 13 yards for a First Down on the Vermont 37 yard line. On the first and second downs, DiNino carried the ball 5 yards to bring it to the Vermont 32. Brady carried on the third down and was thrown back for a 5-yard loss to the Vermont 37. Northeastern also had a clipping penalty called on them so the ball was placed at the Vermont 45 with a fourth down and 18 yards to go. DiNino punted the ball to the Vermont 16. With a first and 10 on the Vermont 16, Harris, the Catamount quarterback was forced to eat the ball for a five-yard loss to make it second and 15. On the second down Harris again lost yardage to bring the ball to the Vermont two-yard line and a third and twenty-four situation. Levins came in and punted to the Vermont 40; the ball was returned to the 33 by Miller. Perry got three yards for a second and seven on the 30 yard line. Parlato then carried for four yards to make it a third and three on the Vermont 26 illegal procedure was called against Northeastern to make it third and eight on the Vermont 31. Varnum tried a pass to Kinsella, but it was incomplete. This made it fourth and eight on the Vermont 31. On the fourth down play, Varnum was thrown for a 10 yard loss. With a first and ten on their own 41. Illegal procedure was called against Vermont to spot the ball on the Vermont 36 with first down and 15. After a short series of plays, Levins punted to Miller who returned the ball from the 20 to the 23. With a Vermont first and ten on our 29, Tom Perley intercepted the UVM pass on the 50.

Northeastern moved the ball to the Vermont seven yard line for goal to go. On the next play the ball was moved to the three-yard line, where Perry bulled over for the TD. Northeastern kicked the extra point. Final score of the game: Northeastern 22, UVM 8.

Vermont Hosts Annual Rival

by Robert Weiner

This Saturday, the UVM Catamounts face the Panthers from Middlebury College at Centennial Field. This series, dating back to 1897 has taken on greater importance since the Catamounts can clinch the 1960 Vermont State Championship.

Coach "Duke" Nelson's Panthers had a very impressive record through their first five games, by piling up victories over Wesleyan, Rochester Tech, Williams, Bates, and Rensselaer. They had an undefeated 5-0 record. On the strength of this record, they had to be considered as the favorites to beat out UVM and Norwich for the state title.

Last Saturday, however, their distinction as favorites was wiped out, as a hard fighting Norwich team handed them a 26-0 loss. The Cadets, given little chance to beat Middlebury because of their loss to UVM the previous week have completely altered the picture. UVM now stands a good chance to win the title, if we consider our victory over Norwich and the Middlebury defeat.

The Catamounts, on the other hand have shown increased power as the seasons progressed. After losing their first four games to the Coast Guard Academy, Maine, Rhode Island, and Rochester respectively, they beat Norwich. Last Saturday against Northeastern they lost a heart breaker 22-8. The score doesn't indicate how close the game actually was. Throughout the entire fourth quarter, with the score 14-8, the Catamounts threatened but because of penalties couldn't score. Northeastern scored with a few seconds to go in the game and then converted for two points.

Saturday is the final game of the 1960 season. Although the season has not been too successful, let's hope that we can end it on a happy note, namely a victory and the state title.

X-COUNTRY MEET SAT.

by Bob Munzer

The UVM Harriers, after placing a dismal sixth out of six teams competing in the Yankee Conference Meet will face Bowdoin, in what Coach Post terms the "Meet of the poor."

Last year we beat the Polar Bears 49-15. However, this is another year, but Bowdoin is reputed not to have strengthened. On the other hand, our squad has been showing way under form. In last year's encounter, Bill Perkins and Dale Burroughs tied for first when we swept the first 5 places. Perkins is not running this year, and Burroughs has not been true to form. The remainder of the squad sees one other returning letterman, John Chesney. The rest are sophomores.

With a return to form by Burroughs, and the rest of the squad running the race they are capable of, the meet should be ours, if we want it.

Kittens Win Game

by Richard Rappaport

The UVM freshman football team returned to the winning track last Friday, easily defeating Union 29-8 for their third win of the season in four games.

Grabbing an errant Union pass in Kitten Territory, fullback Lou Costa blasted 29 yards for the first Vermont touchdown of the game. His conversion gave UVM a 7-0 lead.

The Kittens increased their lead to [illegible] when [illegible] tossed a 13-yard touchdown pass to Tom Perras, who threw a pass for the 2 point conversion to [illegible].

Union spoiled the Kittens chance for their third shutout of the season, when they scored their lone touchdown in the third quarter and added the conversion.

UVM came right back and added another touchdown on Wayne Van Ham's 20 yard run. The last scoring of the afternoon came when Paul Hughes caught a pass for the conversion.

This Friday at Norwich, the Kittens will be out to finish the season with a record of 4 wins and 1 defeat. This was the [illegible] to last year's freshman squad.

Jockeying in for a fight to the finish.

On November eighth, the citizens of this country chose John F. Kennedy to be their President, and Lyndon Johnson to the position of Vice-President; and some of various Senators, Congressmen and Governors were chosen by their own "local" voters.

To the majority of UVM students, these elections were important and interesting events in which they were unable to participate. However, UVM'ers did have the opportunity to vote for various student offices this past Monday, November fourteenth.

The polls were jammed from eight in the morning until four-thirty Monday afternoon, as many an I.D. card was punched in the number "five" position. Posters had been up since late Thursday afternoon, handbills had been distributed and speeches promising "better days" on this campus had been given.

The official results of this election had been tabulated throughout the day and on Monday night the final results were made available to the public. The new officers are as follows: Freshman Class: President, Henry O'Dwyer of Weston, Conn.; Vice-President, John McPeck of Dedham, Mass.; Secretary, Lynn Baier of New Brunswick, N.J.; Treasurer, Larry Bender of Forest Hills, N.Y.; S.A. representatives, Suzanne Chagnon of Nashua, N.H.; Fred Parkhurst of Cape Elizabeth, Maine; and Gerry Sack of Brookline, Mass. Sophomore Class: S.A. representatives, Sharon Comey of Massapequa Park, N.Y.; James Newman of Gilman, Vt.; and Stuart Burroughs of Burlington. Junior Class: Mary Jane Edwards of Ridgewood, N.J.; Peter Lakis of Hollywood, Florida; and John Tomasi of Rutland, Vt. Senior Class: S.A. representatives, John Stanton of Rochester, N.Y.; and Jerry Gersten of Brooklyn, N.Y. And to the post of Sub-Treasurer of the S.A. goes Mike Collins, '62, of Swanton, Vt.

Kennedy Named President By Slender Majority

by ANNE CLARK

John Fitzgerald Kennedy won one of the closest elections in U.S. history last week to become the first Roman Catholic and the youngest man ever chosen by Americans for their president.

Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon almost matched him for the popular vote in a record turnout that exceeded 67 million. But Kennedy won the all important electoral vote, 336 to 188, subject to minor changes.

Kennedy and running mate Lyndon B. Johnson surmounted the religious argument, Nixon's peace and prosperity slogans, and President Eisenhower's personal intervention, to achieve victory.

Kennedy staged a campaign of unmatched vigor. His brief acceptance speech at the Hyannis Port Armory in his home state of Massachusetts climaxed this campaign and election.

As Kennedy delivered his speech he was surrounded by the members of his family. It was a proud moment for all the family, particularly his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, wealthy former ambassador to Great Britain. He stayed out of the campaign while his wife, Rose, and all the sisters and brothers worked night-and-day for the senator's election.

Perhaps the proudest of all in the big armory with 250 reporters, photographers, newsreel and television cameramen recording the scene of history was brother Robert, who managed the campaign that brought the senator his hair-breadth margin of victory.

With his pretty wife, Jacqueline, standing by his side, Kennedy read congratulatory messages from Nixon and President Eisenhower. Then, he went on to read his replies to these two telegrams.

And then the senator turned to the matter of his own presidency. Here's how Kennedy looked at the job ahead:

"The next four years will be difficult and challenging. There is general agreement by all our citizens that a supreme national effort is needed to move this country safely through the 1960's.

"We need your help. All our emergencies will be devoted to the interests of the United States and the cause of freedom around the world."

Kennedy will have one advantage over Eisenhower -- he'll have a Congress dominated by his party. Eisenhower, for all his personal magic as a vote-getter, couldn't get the people to give him Republican congresses to work with after his first two years.

In races for 27 governorships, the Democrats took 15 to 12 for the Republicans with men who continue as governors in holding terms, the Democrats will have 34 governorships to 16 for the Republicans.

SA Sends WSGA A Memo For Action

by STEVEN COHN

The WSGA controversy succeeded in producing flare-ups and frayed tempers at the most recent SA Council meeting. The failure of repeated CYNIC articles to draw replies from WSGA concerning its actions prompted some of the Council members to sponsor a resolution requesting that organization to reply to its critics. Immediately there were protests and heated exchanges followed. After much discussion, some of it quite bitter, the SA drafted the following resolution to be sent to the WSGA council:

The Student Association Council of the University of Vermont, in light of the recent and pointed criticism of the Women's Student Government Association, cannot understand the unwillingness of the Council of the latter body to comment on the criticism which has beseiged it. We feel that if the Women's Student Government Association were truly representative of the women students, it would have made replies to the criticisms and also would have publicized the measures they have taken to alleviate the situations with which the criticisms were concerned; namely, compulsory mass meetings and the Honor Code.

In conclusion, we would like to recommend that the Women's Student Government Association seriously consider the opinions recently aired by numerous parties as the Student Association Council feels a great deal of benefit would be gained by a self-study.

Members opposing the resolution centered their argument on the fact that the WSGA is an independent organization, and therefore is not compelled to answer criticism. Furthermore, it was stated by the group that the majority of UVM women did not feel that they were being treated like children under WSGA rules, as charged by those who favored the the resolution. Finally, the group contended that the entire affair was not proper business for the SA to conduct.

Proponents of the measure felt that a continued WSGA silence in the presence of growing criticism was an admission of guilt. Repeatedly expressed was the argument that compulsory meetings and honor codes do not respect the UVM woman for what she is a responsible, intelligent individual. In fact, some members of this group felt that the women should get up petitions protesting present rules and conditions and request that revision studies be undertaken at once. These petitions, it was felt, would spur a rather reluctant WSGA Council to initiate long needed reforms. The argument that action concerning the WSGA was not SA business was

Debate Tournament Here This Weekend

The Fifteenth Annual Invitational Debate Tournament will take place on the UVM campus Friday and Saturday November 18 and 19. Nearly fifty colleges representing New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Canada will participate. Each school will enter twenty debaters and will compete in a total of fifty debates.

The subject for debate is Resolved: That the United States should adopt a program of compulsory health insurance for all citizens.

The schedule of events for Friday and Saturday include:

Friday -

Registration at the Hotel Vermont

7:00 p.m. - Round One of debates - on Campus

8:30 p.m. - Round Two - on Campus

Saturday -

8:00 a.m. - Breakfast for Tau Alpha Members - Hotel Vermont

10:30 a.m. - Round Three (Novice teams at Burlington High School, Varsity teams on Campus).

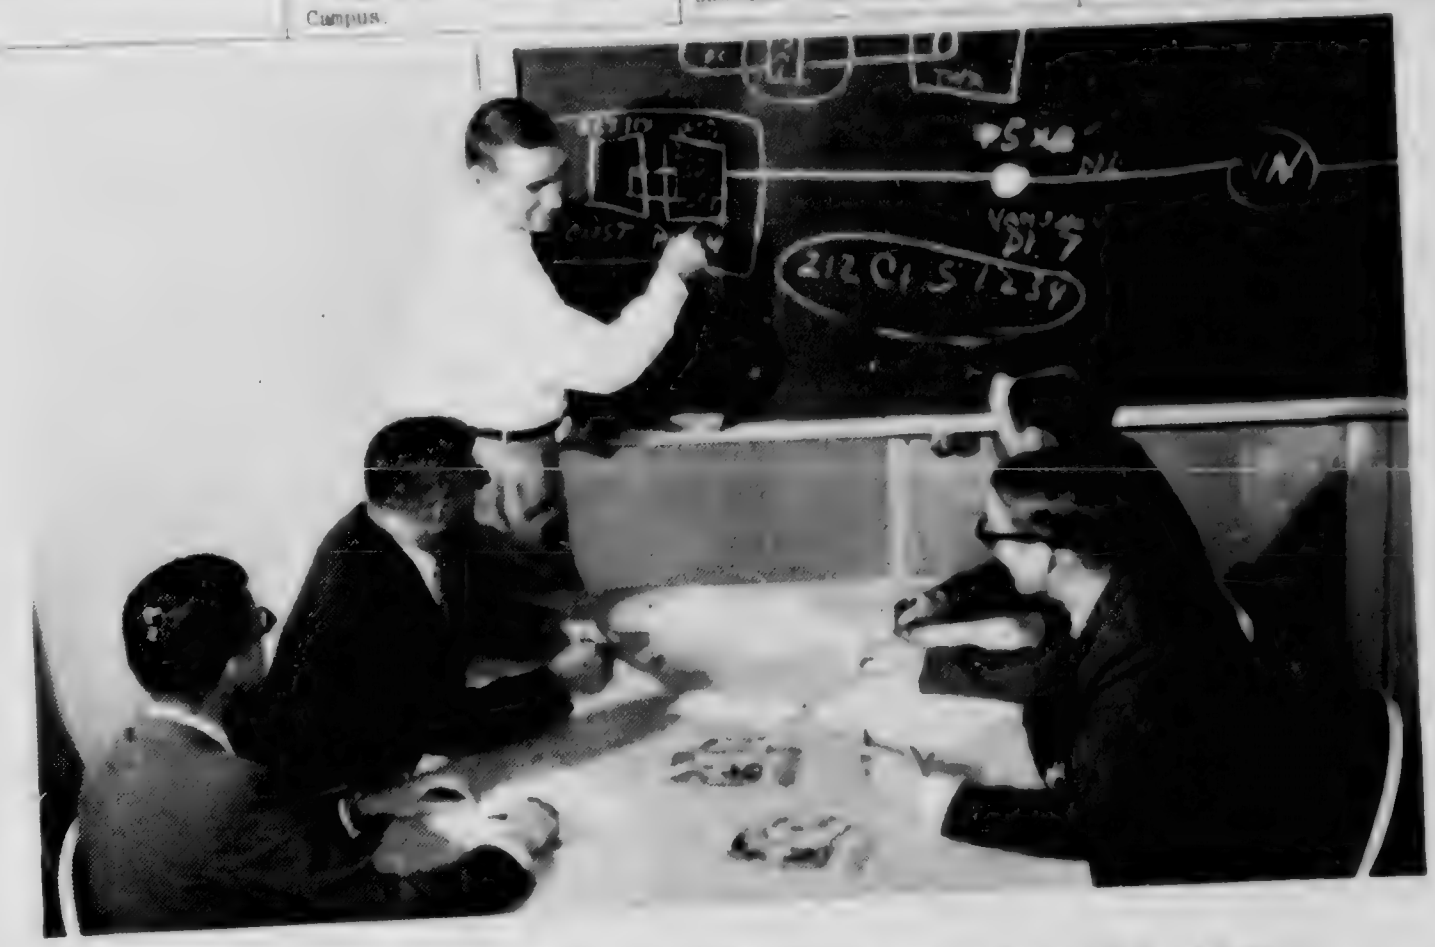
1:30 p.m. - Round Four - on Campus

3:30 p.m. - Round Five - Campus.

7:00 p.m. - Banquet at Waterman for debate participants - entertainment will be provided by the UVM Players.

Walkie talkie systems will be provided by ROTC and will be manned by the Pershing Rifles group. Through this system of communication the results of the debates may be known immediately.

Students in charge of the Tournament are: President of the Lawrence Debate Club, and President of the student organization, Charles Tierney. Student Chairman for the tournament, Nancy Barber. Assistant Chairman and chairman for procurement of timekeepers, Sheila Whitney, transportation chairman Roberto Eaton, banquet chairman, Peggy Waterman chairman and president of the local chapter of Tau Kappa Alpha, Robert Ronan.



UVM advisors from the Speech Department include Professor Robert B. Huber, Mr. Norman T. London and Mr. John C. Travis.

Judges for the debates will be the faculty coaches of the individual teams. The 350-400 chairman timekeepers will be volunteers from the student body.

The debate tournament began at UVM in 1946. Because squads were small and only occasionally did debaters travel to a debate tournament debating developed to give many students as much experience as possible.

The number of colleges participating in this event has grown from thirty to fifty through the years the student body has supported these events in the form of student administrators, and chairman timekeepers. Faculty members aid as coaches and provide transportation to and from debates. Students have been urged to offer suggestions for improvement of the tournaments. Because of good suggestions the annual invitational debate has grown to become one of the largest and most well run tournaments in the country.

Everyone is invited to a card party this Saturday, Nov. 19 at 7:30 at the SAE house. Prizes and refreshments will be given so come one and all. The Minerva Club of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, which is sponsoring this, asks for a $1.25 donation.

STU'S EXPLAINING HOW MACHINES WILL SOME DAY "OUTTALK" PEOPLE

"Stu" Smith graduated from Southern Cal with a powerful yen for excitement. His kind of excitement—Engineering.

He got what he bargained for (and a little more) when he joined Pacific Telephone. One of Stu's early assignments was to find out how existing Long Distance networks could be used to pipeline high speed "conversations" between computers in distant cities.

The fact that he did a fine job did not go unnoticed.

Today, four years after starting his telephone career, Senior Engineer Stuart Smith heads a staff of people responsible for telegraph and data transmission engineering in the huge Los Angeles area. As a pioneer in this new data transmission field Stu predicts data processing machines will some day do more Long Distance "talking" than people.

Stu contacted 12 other companies before joining Pacific Telephone. "I don't think there's any limit to where a man can go in the telephone business today. Of course, this isn't the place for a guy looking for a soft touch. A man gets all the opportunity he can handle right from the start. He's limited only by how well and how fast he can cut it."

If Stu's talking about the kind of opportunity you're looking for, just visit your Placement Office for literature and additional information.

"Our number one aim is to have in all management jobs the most vital, intelligent, positive and imaginative men we can possibly find."

Editorial:
SA Takes Action

Last Thursday evening the Student Association of the University of Vermont met for its regular weekly meeting. Among the measures and resolutions considered was one calling WSGA for its lack of response to recent criticism, and urging WSGA self-evaluation. This resolution was passed by the SA Congress.

The passage of this resolution was very important to those people who have been seeking the liberalization of both WSGA and the men's rules unnecessarily restricting the freedom of UVM women. For it indicates campus-wide interest in the problem. If WSGA had previously ignored the subject on the grounds that they were largely the work of a few troublemakers, the passage of the resolution should serve to show that interest is indeed campus-wide. If, on the other hand, the silence of WSGA had continued so long because it WSGA Council meeting or the difficulty of drafting a reply, the SA resolution should spur WSGA Council to action.

WSGA has already begun work on a reply to the major open-ended questions posed by the CYNIC and by SA. It is hoped that WSGA will eventually see fit not only to answer these questions, but to continue with a complete evaluation of its aims and programs. The CYNIC feels that such an evaluation would inevitably result in a situation in which UVM women would have more freedom and therefore more responsibility toward WSGA, and also a situation in which WSGA would represent the University's women in more than name and theory.

Improve MERP Week

This week has been designated MERP week on the UVM campus. MERP - Men's Economic Recovery Program - is Panhel's plan to alleviate the financial problems of UVM's hard-pressed men. As a constructive effort in the direction of co-operation between the male and female factions on campus, as well as a much-needed re-financing program, MERP week deserves the praise (and the heartfelt thanks) of every male on campus.

PROBLEM

However, there is a very real danger extant in the very nature of a reversal of roles such as that proposed by MERP Week. The CYNIC foresees the breakup of many romances which up to this point had existed through thick and thin, through good times and bad, as the men accept dates from strange women, and the girls, seizing the opportunity for self-expression, ask out other men. This situation would inevitably result in the complete breakdown of campus social life at the end of this week.

SOLUTION

It is with these factors in mind that we offer the following solution. The CYNIC feels that the purpose for which MERP Week was conceived and put into effect -- to alleviate the financial situation of UVM men -- is commendable and deserving of praise. On the other hand, the social problems inherent in the change in roles at the beginning and end of the week could be serious. Therefore we suggest that Panhel designate the school year 1961-62 MERP Year, thus solving both the problem of men's finances and the social problem involved in the current scheme.

Disagrees With Kritzler

Dear Editor:

After reading Mr. Edward Kritzler's ... and We" in the CYNIC of Nov. ... [illegible] seriously question his motives.

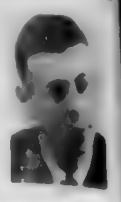
... in Cuba, we may feel that it is his responsibility to enlighten American people on what really goes on. He may want to stimulate unbiased ... [illegible] ... be desired. If this were his purpose it would be commendable.

However, this is obviously not his purpose when he goes so far as to continually refer to our foreign policy as imperialistic. Worse than that, by manipulation of words, he creates the impression that the U.S. is a war monger, because we have undertaken normal security measures concerning Guantanamo in a country where outbreaks and violent measures spurred by emotion are prevalent. I am referring to his statement that U.S. security is an open invitation to attack which would result in war between U.S. and Cuba and his implication that the U.S. could care ...

I ... is this enlightening factual information? Does this stimulate logical, unbiased thinking? Is this constructive criticism?

I also question Mr. Kritzler's ability to write in a sensible manner at all when he says that 9.5% of Cuban people have inside bathing facilities and 3.1% have inside toilets when only 2.3% have running water.

Either his arithmetic is ridiculous or he doesn't know how to say what he means. I hope the latter is the case throughout the above article. If not I am willing to give him the benefit of the doubt and say he is also emotionally immature. If this is not the case, then I suggest he make it official and join the Communist Party.



Yours truly,

1st. Lt., U.S.M.C.R.

Note: Although Mr. Kritzler agrees with neither official U.S. policy nor U.S. popular opinion, the right of freedom of speech still applies to him. The CYNIC feels that, in presenting this view of the Cuban situation, it is adding a different perspective to the average American's view of the situation. We welcome contributions to our Letters to the Editor column on the CONTENT of Mr. Kritzler's stories. We would remind future letterwriters that personal attacks on the ...

Why Not ?

by JULES OLDER

I'm basically a critic. And as a critic, I've been rather harsh with some institutions which are dear to the hearts of members of the administration, faculty, and student body. I believe that this is part of my responsibility as a columnist. But at the same time, some of my digs have been deep, and I know that there is some hurt and resentment from all those people.

FREEDOM AND COURAGE

It is definitely to the credit of the faculty and administration that no pressure has been brought to bear on the paper to shut me up. There has been no censor and no censor.

When criticism (even impudent criticism) is permitted in a society, it is a sign that the society is basically healthy and contains some wisdom. Intellectual freedom goes hand in hand with freedom of expression. It's a good principle for a university to observe.

I think that perhaps the students of UVM don't realize the extent of this freedom of expression. More and more letters appear in the paper without signature. Women interested in improving WSGA must have the courage to stand up and be counted. Don't worry, girls, you're not alone. Hiding behind a "Name Withheld" won't improve anything.

The same applies to men. If you aren't interested in joining advanced corps, you have nothing to fear by signing your name to a letter saying so. Two years ago a man taking Air Force ROTC wrote a damning letter about the corps and signed his name in bold print. He is now a leader in the school, a fraternity president, an honor student. And he passed ROTC. His graduation next year will be doubly pleasant because he'll see the Air Force go, too.

The freedom at UVM must not be abused, but, by the same token, must not be allowed to go unused. If the students do not take advantage of their rights, these rights will die through neglect and disuse.

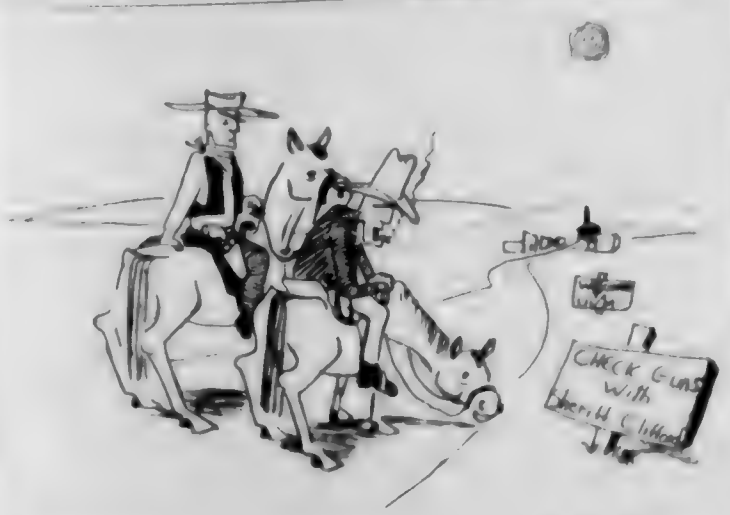
WISDOM AND AWARENESS

Don't take this column as an apology for things I've said in past issues. I'd say them again. I will say similar things again. My primary concern is improving the school in any way I can. One way I think I can do this is by making the university aware of its faculty. And I plan to continue along those lines.

An institution such as UVM, with the wisdom to permit criticism, should have the wisdom to evaluate and act upon it.

WHY NOT?

SA Shows "Long Hot Summer"



UVM's SA is showing 20th Century Fox's "The Long Hot Summer" at Southwick, Friday, November 18, at 8:00 P.M.

The movie based on several short stories by William Faulkner, concerns the turbulent relationships between a wealthy, fiercely aggressive father and his two grown children--one a frustrated unmarried young women, the other a weakling married man. The provocative interplay of emothions is examined as a shrewd stranger captures the fancy of the father who sees in him qualities he himself had as a young man.

The film, in color, is under the direction of Martin Ritt, and features vivid portrayals by such actors as Orson Welles, Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, Anthony Franciosa, Lee Remick, and Angela Lansbury.

Newman Meets

The University of Vermont Newman Club will hold its monthly meeting this Friday, November 18, at the Newman Center, corner of Williams and Main Streets. The guest speaker will be Richard Dowd of Albany, N.Y., editor of the National Newman News. The meeting will begin promptly at 7:30 P.M. and will last less than one hour, giving all the girls ample time to pick up their dates for the MERP Ball.

Reviewers Beware

No, don't put those words to pen.
For they may be sour and Tell them they were really great (That's something they'll appreciate
They'll clap, and laud, and hum.
Some may even kiss your han'.

No, don't say, "I did not like"
For they have stores of dreadful spite.
They'll rant-and-rave and say, "You poor
Guy, you're nothing but an amateur."
It is not safe to say, "I did not care"
Remember: to be safe; beware.

But; if you must put words to pen.
Do it with a free and flowing hand
A hand concerned with good and bad.
Not one that trembles to make them glad
Say what is good; say what is bad:
But do not fear to make them mad.

proximately 11 P.M. from Gordon Sprigg, president of the Astronauts. With the announcement of the queen by Thomas Hackett, who was officiating as the master of ceremonies, Ann, appropriately dressed in royal blue and wearing the queen's robe entered the ballroom with her escort, Ronald Pine, and led the royal court and its escorts through the archway of swords to the throne. After the crowning, the co-sponsors of the dance, the Ethan Allen Rifles and the Astronauts, represented by their presidents George Hatch and Gordon Sprigg, presented the new queen with gifts. The royal party then led off a dance to the music of the Catamounts.

An impressive group of cadets formed the entrance to the ballroom leading to the reception line. Honored guests of the reception line included Major General Francis Billado, adjutant general of the State of Vermont and his wife; Colonel and Mrs. Weston L. Blanchard, Professor of Military Science at UVM; Major and Mrs. John P. McGauhey, Professor of Air Science; Dean and Mrs. Lyman Rowell, Dean of Administration at UVM; Major and Mrs. Philip E. Hassman, Assistant Professor of Air Science at UVM, both couples acting as chaperones and Cadet and Mrs. Gordon Sprigg. Other invited guests included Major and Mrs. Charles T. Bailey, Assistant Professor of Military Science; Captain and Mrs. George D, Cram; Captain and Mrs. Wesley G. Jones; Captain and Mrs. Harold M. Serven, Major and Mrs. Hassman. All the captains are instructors of military science at UVM.

"It is hoped that in the future years the Military Ball can be made a weekend affair and more formal then at present." said Gordon Sprigg. Plans have already been discussed with that aim in mind

Cuba, Castro, And Me

by EDWARD KRITZLER

Herbert Matthews, associate editor of The New York Times, stated in an article two months ago:

> "The initial friendliness and admiration for Fidel Castro in this country was based on the naive belief that all he was going to do, was to drive away the dictator, clean out the corruption, hold new elections and leave the economic structure intact with its dependence on the United States, and carry on as before."

As I showed you last week, the U.S. dictated the economy of Cuba. Cuba was dependent upon imports from the U.S. to the extent that she was our sixth best customer, and nearly all the industry she did have was owned by American firms. This economic structure resulted in much of Cuba's money not remaining on the Island, but coming directly back to our country

U.S. OWNED SUGAR COMPANIES IN CUBA

What benefits did the Cuban people derive from U.S. interests? Cuba's main source of income has always been from her sugar sales. American firms originally owned nearly all of Cuba's sugar lands. By the time Fidel Castro came to power however, these firms had reduced their holdings. They then held only 40% of the sugar lands including seven of the ten largest latifundias (large estates). The rest of the sugar lands were owned by other foreign interests and a few immensely wealthy Cubans. These American interests were excellent investments. This is made evident by the fact that during the years 1935-1957, the eight largest American sugar firms made a total net profit (profits after taxes) of $265,500,000. This was an average net profit of 23% yearly on invested capital. Most of this money did not remain in Cuba.

HOW CAN SUCH HUGE PROFITS BE MADE?

The largest percentage of Cuba's population are farmers. Only a few own their own land; thus most have to work for these big land holders in order to make a living. Since sugar cane is the money crop, American firms did not bother keeping the land in production the year round, but only produced sugar cane. The sugar cane season lasts from three to four months. This meant the farmer, not owning his own land, could only work during these three to four months in the year. In this short time hundreds of thousands of farmers had to earn enough to enable them to survive somehow for the duration of the year. This proved difficult as the companies paid them an average wage of sixty-five cents a day for a ten hour day. This is what the Cuban's mean by Cuba Si! Yankee No!

On October 16, 1953 Fidel Castro made a defense plea for his attack on Moncada. (A military garrison near Santiago de Cuba. This garrison was the object of an unsuccessful attack on the 26th of July 1953, by Fidel Castro and 125 other young Cubans. The date eventually became the name of Fidel Castro's movement.) When asked in histrial where his support would come from, he mentioned among other groups the ". . . small farmers who live and die working on land that is not theirs, looking at it with sadness as Moses did the promised land, to die without possessing it; . . . who cannot love it, because they never know when a sheriff will come with the rural guard to evict them from it."

Later in his plea he continued about the plight of the farmers:

> "85% of the small farmers in Cuba pay rent and live under the constant threat of being dispossessed from the land they cultivate. More than half of the best cultivated land belongs to foreigners. In Oriente, the largest province, the lands of the United Fruit Company and West Indian Company (both American companies) join the north coast to the southern one. There are two hundred thousand peasant families who do not have a single acre of land to cultivate to provide food for their starving children. On the other hand nearly three hundred thousand 'Caballerias' of productive land (one caballeria is about 33 1/3 acres) owned by powerful interests remains uncultivated."

Because of the American quota system, the production of Cuban sugar was tightly controlled. The big sugar firms could produce their quotas on about half their land - thus about three million acres lay fallow.

WHAT PURPOSE DOES THIS QUOTA SYSTEM SERVE?

Little Pledge - Brother' fraternal game last week. The result was [illegible] and guess who won? As well, keep up the good work, women' spirit'

Last week we had an exchange dinner with the Theta's, and expect to have many more under the direction of our new social chairman Dave Halverick.

We hear that one of our alums Carl recently was carrying about how he was going to carry his wife around when he went into the service. However the army solved his problem. Not much sailing in Texas! And while talking about alums Dave Rogers, '60, and Howie Cutts, '60, are free lancing around the country this fall and winter until the draft catches up with them. They say it's hard to dodge the draft, but give it that old college try.

Hope all you kiddies remember to come to our 'hard-knitted' for Sock Sale this Saturday. You'll be surprised to see all the bargains you'll be able to pick up for Christmas! The sale will be held here from 2-4 p.m. and refreshments will be sold. Many hats, room decorations, ties, etc., will be sold in addition to solids, plaids and argyle socks.

MERP Week has had a booming business at 384 Main - Hope all the girls have their dates for the Twin Dance tomorrow night - we all do!

Thanks to the manufacturers of magic markers, Mrs. Douglas' cast has quite a bit of color added since she arrived from the hospital.

Attention Campus!
Green Death has just left . . .
Beware!

ALPHA DELTA PI

Congratulations to Carlie Otis on her receipt of the Howard Prize. We're all very proud of Carlie's high scholarship.

Our exchange dinner with the men of Phi Delta Theta was, in the enthusiastic words of one sister, "REALLY GREAT" The Phi Delta decorated their house to resemble a sugar house and then provided the authentic fixings . . . sugar on snow, doughnuts, and pickles. Many, many thanks, fellows!

Diane Lundry was elected Violet Girl of the month by the sisters. Nancy Thorn was chosen Pledge of the week. Nice going girls!

Now that the football season is over, we miss seeing Diane and Elaine leading the band in their formations, but we're looking forward to seeing Elaine again next year.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

The AO's enjoyed our little after dinner "song-fest". Paula Willig played the guitar while we sang calypso melodies. We hope to do more of this type of thing in the future.

Tuesday was a late but exciting night at AEPhi as it probably was everywhere else. Our TV set was working full blast as we watched the election returns. Some of us were disappointed to see the man of our choice lose the elections but now that it is all over we all intend to support wholeheartedly the new administration in the hope for a peaceful and bright future for our country and the rest of the world.

AGR extends thanks to Kappa Eta Beta for the Dessert Hour last Tuesday night. The food, the company and the conversation were excellent, [illegible]!

AGR also extends congratulations to one of its members who are on the crew rowing team. Hugh Spaulding, Bill Spellman, co-captains, Dale Burroughs, and manager Jon Pratt. They ended the season by attending the New England Finals in Boston.

Finally most of the leaves were raked up last week with the help of pledge details and "volunteers". Actually raking is only a "warming up" or conditioning for the snow shoveling coming soon.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Seems like a certain Mello Bird is having troubles lately. The other day he started the "crate" up and began a trek to who knows where, when he discovered that someone had placed a board in front of his "car". Result? One punctured radiator. Adding insult to injury, he rolled "the car" into the side of George Randall's car. Result? One banged in door, one embarrassed Mello and one "slightly enraged" Randall. Tsk Tsk! The things that boy gets into.

Once again all eyes were glued to the TV as the country finally decided to go Kennedy. Some of the guys are growing beards in preparation for the mass migration to Cuba, while Bob Geerman, Art Norberg and Dave Lennon are secretly laughing up their sleeves. Most puzzling of all was "chief" Decherd who voted for Kennedy but hoped that Nixon would win?!

On November 9, we had a very successful exchange dinner with the Pi Phi's. After a fabulous dinner, we all descended to the depths of the cellar where the Hokey Pokey was attempted by all - especially the combined efforts of the "Tiny Triad" of "Schmoo" Furgal, "Steam Roller" Beardsley and "Little" Gil Tornabene.

Don't forget the Vermont Invitational Debate Tournaments this weekend. It's the largest debate tourney in the country, so let's all get out and help make it a success, especially extending cordiality to the fifty some odd colleges that will show up.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

Last Thursday the Tri Deltas entertained their favorite professors at their annual Apple Polishing Party. And you can imagine we really worked hard to polish those apples! There was only one minor mishap: Prof. Wehorter waited on a street corner half an hour for his "date."

The Tri Deltas were happy to have Mrs. "Chips" Holden for dinner and our meeting ten weeks ago. We certainly appreciate everything that she has done and is still doing for Eta Chapter, as well as for all the other chapters in our district.

We had a hard time deciding who should represent Tri-Delta in the Powder Puff football game during MERP week, but we finally came up with our winning choice, hey, Marty!

Last Friday night we held an open house for the secretaries of GE and were pleased that so many of them took a genuine interest in the house. The brothers were electrified [illegible] of the farm house of Peter [illegible] other pastimes were [illegible] Monday. Peter Hunter over Timothy [illegible] and Martha Townsend from Sydney, Australia. Army was next on. The real work started and as their conveyance all [illegible] challenge canoe trip on the Winooski River.

The results of the recent movie contest held in the Brussel's World Fair Amusement Hall find the doubles of Bat Broberg and Baron Peter taking an early lead at the end of 82 yds.

The house is seeking a buyer for our farm house, as we have made a down payment on a coal barge. The barge is capable of holding 73 sober or 52 live baby alligators. The beauty of this new purchase is that it is off limits to all except federal agents.

Our triumphant basketball team has had overwhelming success so far this season. Our team headed by such notables as A. Godfrey, J. Morrill, Jim McCarthy, Ma Alger, Dick DelHagan, W. Chamberlain and M. Townsend are anxiously awaiting the start of the season.

The following are available for dates during MERP week: Gordon West, M. Towsend, John Goodrich, Dad Ward and Nick Roonelli. Please call this number if interested, Murry Hill 5-5300.

GAMMA PHI BETA

Saturday, November 12th, marked the Tenth Anniversary of the founding of Beta Nu here at the University of Vermont. We celebrated this occassion with a luncheon at the Park Cafe with the Burlington Alumnae Chapter. Later in the afternoon the actives and the alums participated in a ceremony commemorating this event.

While celebrating our tenth, it was fun getting together with Alpha Gamma Rho, the newest fraternity on campus, and the Owls, who are presently celebrating their 125th Anniversary. We also enjoyed meeting AGR's charming housemother, Mrs. Helen Simino, who spent the evening with us.

Thursday night the Gamma Phi's and the Sig Eps got together for an exchange dinner. After dinner entertainment was provided by the Sig Ep Jazz Band and Mike Bartenstein and his guitar. Thank you for the good time boys!

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Thanks to Lou Robust Reutelhuber, Theta had another win at volley ball last week. However, this might not have occurred if Sue Dane hadn't jumped into her "gym togs" at the last minute and joined the team.

What is it going to be like in the Spring if in early Winter the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of of pinnings, engagements, wedding plans, etc. Jim Karr pinned Darragh Wright last week. Jim is a member of Phi Delt. Meanwhile, others are turning their new-found vitality into making plans for June weddings. Those collecting pamphlets on china, silver and brides dresses are so far, Bobbie Crouch, Judy Morse and possibly Danny George. There are a few who wish they were and a few who are glad they aren't.

Yes, Susie Adams is back in the house. Just ask any member of third floor who has been trying to get anything done, especially in the way of sleep. However, we've decided not to ship her back as the house wouldn't be the same without her.

MERP Week is in full swing and the girls are trying to get "hairy" enough to ask some eligible fellow to the dance tomorrow. It seems the Powder Puff football game was really riotous. A coed game of the same sort might be even more so. The poor girls on campus have been skipping coffee shop for two weeks so that they could afford to give some lucky fellow a treak. Let's hope the fellows appreciate it.

The exchange dinner with SAE Wednesday was a huge success and a very interesting discussion followed. The dessert hour with Acacia last week was also much fun.

Theta celebrated their Founder's Day Tuesday. The alums prepared a delicious dinner and the speakers were Mrs. Brownell and Mrs. Flanders.

Congrats to Bobbie Crouch for receiving the pin for the highest scholarship. Also to Scottie Smith for the most improvement. What would nurses do without those Junior year affiliations!

LAMBDA IOTA

Congratulations to John Kawky and Mai Chaisson, a nurse to be at the Bishop DeGoesbriand, who was pledge pinned in traditional Owl House fashion.

A few hours before the Middlebury game, the Owls staged their own interhouse football game after a suitable pep rally. Needless to say a good time was had by all. By all except Carpenter, who lost his shirt in an all night poker game.

The Owls want to thank the wonderful Gamma Phi Betas for the dessert party they held last week. We had an excellent time.

The day after tomorrow the Owl House will be the scene of an Italian Dinner Party. This will be spaghetti at its best in real Italian style--complete with strolling musicians and of course romance. (This latter will be supplied by Orlando). Glucklich Danksagungstag.

PHI SIGMA DELTA

The house would like to congratulate "townie", Joe Levin, for being chosen Assistant Kake Walk Director. The Phi Sigs are well represented on the basketball team with three outstanding newcomers, Richie "Bugs" Ader, Peter "Twinkletoes" Brem and Bob "Swish" Agel, the veteran from South Burlington. The Phi Sig fraternity team, led by Steve "Hose" Fireman, has stated in a recent interview for this reporter, that we should go all the way. Due to some obesity on the team, Steve Fireman, Dickie Penn, George Kangissar, Mark "Sweetwater" Rosen, and last but not least, Steve "Two-ton" Reiter were doing extra exercises.

Congratulations also to our House President, Marc Pecker, on being accepted to Med School and "Three hoots hurrah" to Bob Goldman on being chosen to represent the IFC at its National Convention in California during the Thanksgiving Vacation.

In a recent election Al "Smiley" Nathan was chosen as Secretary [illegible] comrade!!! Keep [illegible] work, R.P.!!

Coming up on Friday night [illegible] an annual Thanksgiving Party with the Catamounts supplying the music.

Turning toward the sports scene the Phi's completed another successful football season compiling a 5-2 record and rolling up a division championship. In competition for the IFC title the Sigma Knights bowed before Beta Nu 21-0 in a hard fought contest. Leading the scoring parade for the Phi's were Spike Jarrett, Dave Kirker and Jon Wilkinson accounting for 11 touchdowns.

With the basketball season quickly approaching, captains Ray Wiener and Dave Kirker are grouping their forces for another victorious year. Last season the Phi's sported a 3-3 record, but are looking forward to playing the "dark horse" role in their league.

The bowling team is being organized under the guidance of Jon Graff, who is still trying to qualify for his starting unit. There are rumors that Tom Unsworth will make a surprise appearance to bolster the team.

During the past week [illegible] pledges were initiated into the brotherhood of Phi Delta Theta. John Hathorn and Dave Kirker now wear the coveted badge of the Phi. Now let's see you hold onto them, boys!

Also, on Monday night [illegible] new members were pledged Phi Delta Theta. Congratulations to Robin Erra, [illegible] Decavalcante, Mike Gest and Jim Cooke in becoming newest members of Phi Delt.

PI BETA PHI

The Pi Phi's are very [illegible] scurrying around making [illegible] ations for our annual [illegible] nando's Hideaway dinner [illegible] dinner will be held on Sunday, November 20th. This will be a good send off for the Thanksgiving holiday.

A buffet supper was held with ATO on Wednesday, November 8th. This not only included a delicious meal at the ATO house but also singing and a good time for all. Might add that [illegible] did not go back for seconds.

It was good to see the alums and have a get together with them last Tuesday. A dessert hour was in addition and we certainly enjoyed visiting with them over tea and cake.

ing for an end to this quota system and

"The present system already the Government controls the supply and price of sugar. Rates from the early Thirties. Its basic purpose was to aid or subsidize the Cuban economy but to hold prices two to three cents a pound above world prices, for the benefit of American sugar producers. American consumers pay millions of dollars a year more than they should, and in the process we make a mockery of our claims that we want free enterprise and free trade."

Besides who received this two cents a pound above the world market price? Be aware of the sugar lords, not the Cuban farmers. All the latter received was sixty five cents a day for the duration of the sugar cane season, and lived the rest of the year on the verge of starvation. If Cuba now only receives only half as much money for her sugar she will benefit more as the money now goes directly to her people.

To the Cubans the cry "Six quota pero sin azucar" (without quota but without sugar) has a great deal of meaning.

What would YOU do as an engineer at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft?

Regardless of your specialty, you would work in a favorable engineering atmosphere.

Back in 1925, when Pratt & Whitney Aircraft was designing and developing the first of its family of history-making powerplants, an attitude was born—a recognition that engineering excellence was the key to success.

That attitude, that recognition of the prime importance of technical superiority is still predominant at P&WA today.

The field, of course, is broader now, the challenge greater. No longer are the company's requirements confined to graduates with degrees in mechanical and aeronautical engineering. Pratt & Whitney Aircraft today is concerned with the development of all forms of flight propulsion systems for the aerospace medium—air breathing, rocket, nuclear and other advanced types. Some are entirely new in concept. To carry out analytical, design, experimental or materials engineering assignments, men with degrees in mechanical, aeronautical, electrical, chemical and nuclear engineering are needed, along with those holding degrees in physics, chemistry and metallurgy.

Specifically, what would you do?—your own engineering talent provides the best answer. And Pratt & Whitney Aircraft provides the atmosphere in which that talent can flourish.

Development testing of liquid hydrogen-fueled rockets is carried out in specially built test stands like this at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft's Florida Research and Development Center. Every phase of an experimental engine test may be controlled by engineers from a remote blockhouse (inset), with closed-circuit television providing a means for visual observation.

At P&WA's Connecticut Aircraft Nuclear Engine Laboratory (CANEL) many technical talents are focused on the development of nuclear propulsion systems for future air and space vehicles. With this live mock-up of a reactor, nuclear scientists and engineers can determine critical mass, material reactivity coefficients, control effectiveness and other reactor parameters.

Representative of electronic aids functioning for P&WA engineers is this on-site data recording center which can provide automatically recorded and computed data simultaneously with the testing of an engine. This equipment is capable of recording 1,200 different values per second.

Studies of solar energy collection and liquid and vapor power cycles typify P&WA's research in advanced space auxiliary power systems. Analytical and Experimental Engineers work together in such programs to establish and test basic concepts.

Warning To Students

During the last period of mid-term testing the use of "pep pills" (not as such suggested that some of the administrative personnel of UVM feel it necessary to point out the short comings of this type of self medication. These pills have the purpose of keeping persons awake for lengths of time beyond normal capacity. While they succeed in this purpose they do not always afford the student mental alertness. Furthermore, even if the student stays awake long enough to master the material at hand, there is a good chance he will not be able to apply, to his fullest capabilities, this knowledge on the exam.

Physically, each student has a different reaction to the effects of these tablets. There have been many suspected cases of poisoning resulting from an overdose. Dr. Amidon, Director of the University Health Service, reports that he has treated several students recently who had symptoms typical of caffein poisoning. This, it was established, resulted from the use of too many tablets.

Dr. G.C. Crooks, of UVM Chemistry Department, adds "It can only be hoped that those students who tried it (the use of pills) before the last Chemistry examination and were either physically ill or adversely affected mentally, or both, will pass the word along to their friends

A team effort, on the part of CYNIC [illegible] S.A., interested students, and administration [illegible] perhaps work on this idea. It seems that [illegible] time as the paper does get its own press, the [illegible] of the present production situation will [illegible] completely eliminated.

WHY DID IT HAPPEN dept.

A couple of weeks ago Toledo, Ohio was [illegible] dense fog. So limited was vision, that Pilot [illegible] to scout the take-off apron on foot so spot [illegible] that might be on the runway. Chesher, who [illegible] only for actual flying time, elected to take-off. He returned to the C-46 aircraft, gunned the engines, and the plane laden with California Polytech football students lumbered down the runway. Moments later an explosive crash occurred, and sixteen members of the team lay dead.

The accident was a result of nothing more nor nothing less than gross negligence. Not only was the plane overloaded, but the Federal Aviation Agency, in checking the records on Chesher, came up with information on Chesher that indicated he could scarcely be responsible for his own life, let alone the lives of others. He had been charged, during the course of his erratic career with dozens of violations of civil air regulations. And what was his biggest violation? When Chesher's body was uncovered from the wreckage, it was discovered that he had turned over the pilot's seat to a less experienced man.

The homecoming planned for the returning football team was turned into a mass mourning service. One can not but wonder as to the usefulness of an organization like the Federal Aviation Agency. Negligence in this case was so completely obvious. Chesher should have been suspended long before the day of the accident. If he had, perhaps Cal. Polytech. could have had a homecoming.

The schedules of classes for undergraduate students will be made up following pre-enrollment in the same manner as has been done for returning students in the fall of 1959 and 1960. Changes in pre-enrolled courses may be made at Second Semester registration, February [illegible].

Students enrolling in the Colleges of Agriculture, Home Economics, Arts and Sciences, Technology, and the School of Dental Hygiene will pick up in the Registrar's Office beginning Monday, November 28 at 8:30 A.M.

1. A paper of instructions
2. An enrollment card
3. An envelope with class cards
4. A schedule of classes for the Spring Semester

In the College of Medicine and Nursing, the student's advisers will have the material.

Thanksgiving Recess is but four days away for some, five for others. No doubt, on Saturday, November 26, many of you will be going to your high school homecoming football games. This is your chance to do something to benefit yourself and UVM. Whether you live in Vermont, New York, Maine, or Pennsylvania, it doesn't matter.

If you're a freshman, you should be in fairly close contact with your friends in high school. If you're an upper-classman, now's your chance to sharpen your rushing tactics. At that homecoming game, watch the field. Keep track of the outstanding players, and after the game, talk to them. Tell them about Vermont's athletic program. Next year we'll have a full Yankee Conference Schedule, (URI, Maine, UNH, UMass.. Construction of the new $2.6 million gymnasium is slated to start in the fall of 1961. The plant is to include the following

1. An entrance lobby which can be utilized as a physical education area, also housing athletic and physical education offices, a trophy case area, and ticket offices.

2. A gymnasium with three basketball playing surfaces and two smaller surfaces for physical education, converting into a basketball exhibition court seating 5,000, and a convention or commencement hall seating 7,000.

3. A regulation size swimming pool exhibition seating for 200, the same unit will also house ten handball courts, two squash courts, a multi-purpose room, physical education classrooms, and a physical education dance instruction room.

4. A field house containing an artificial ice skating rink suitable for recreational skating and ice hockey (with a maximum seating capability of 4,000), an indoor track 1/8th of a mile in length, which surrounds a regulation baseball infield and an area for indoor field events; The skating rink will convert to an indoor tennis area during the off season.

In addition, of course, the gym will include locker and shower areas capable of accommodating students, faculty and staff in scheduled shifts.

Tell your friends to come up to UVM for an interview, or to look it over. When they get up here, they'll meet Head Football Coach Ed Donnelly, and his assistants, Mike Vendetti, Ralph Lapointe, and "Fuzzy" Evans. If these boys can't make it up here, have them write to Ed Donnelly.

As it looks right now, with the returning lettermen on the squad and the frosh team (provided they remain in school), we should have an excellent season next year.

Meet The Catamounts

By Steve Sohn

DAVID R. SEQUIST "DAVE."

Dave is a sophomore from East Hartford, Conn., where he attended East Hartford High School. At East Hartford High, he lettered in football and track and co-captained the latter. He is interested in gymnastics. His football honoraries include All-District football team, and second stringer on the All-State gridders. Here at UVM, aside from being an effective tackle, Dave is a pre-veterinary major in the college of Agriculture. As is the opinion of most of our Catamount gridders, Dave believes inexperience and lack of substitutes constituted our teams' poor showing this year. It is also Dave's opinion that the new gym will be a much needed facility to UVM's athletic system.

Valley, and Twin State All-Star teams. Stoney also played football at Kimball Union Academy before coming to UVM. On the UVM Cats, Stoney is a staunch and powerful guard. He is a brother of Kappa Sigma fraternity and is enrolled in the College of Agriculture. Stoney likes to hunt and fish. He is a letterman at guard position on the line.

Sports Questionnaire

by MIKE STEINBERG

Question: A very unsuccessful football season has come to an end. Many opinions are now being stated as to what can be done to improve our team next year. One of these calls for the development of an Athletic Dormatory. What is your opinion on this subject?

ERIC OLSON '64--I don't think that an athletic dorm would be of any assistance, because it would hinder the functions of a college society.

JIM MCINTYRE '64--An athletic dorm would be very helpful, because it would give the more experienced athletes a chance to get acquainted with the new students. The former would be able to assist the boys in developing good study habits.

PETER MCKALLAGAT '64--This is a very good idea. It would cut down the percentage of flunkouts on the frosh teams. They could also learn helpful pointers from the members of the Varsity.

TOM MURTAGH '63--I think that this would be a great idea. It would give the team an opportunity to think as a unit, and they will show improvement in the seasons to follow.

PAM MIDDLETON '63--The idea of establishing an athletic dorm for enhancing the efficacy of a team is probably a good one. I would personally be against it, however, because I don't believe great emphasis should be placed on sports in a college career.

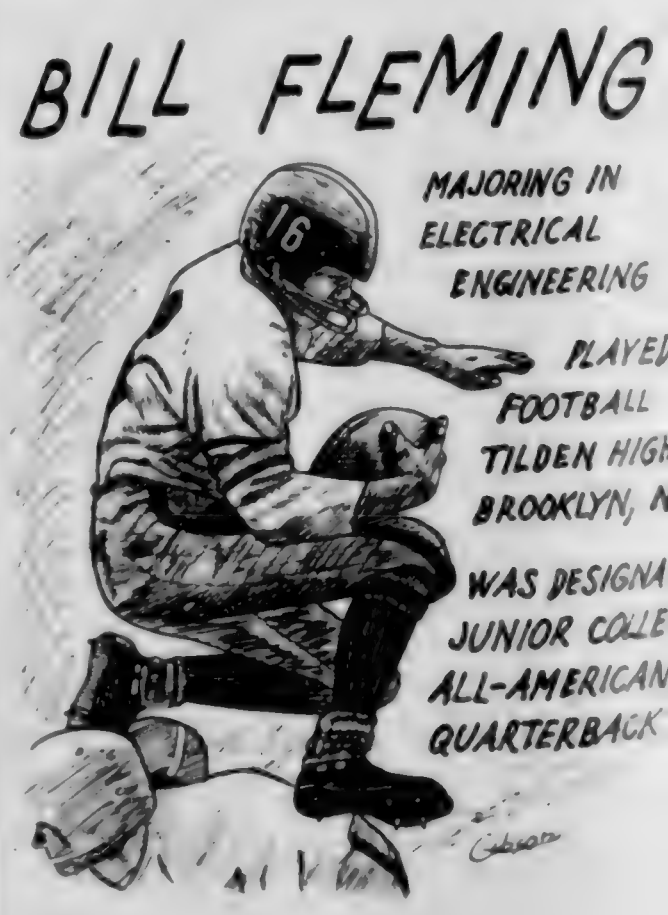
JIM LABB '64--The conglamaration of athletes in one residence hall has its own advantages. However, I feel that individualism is a basic part of college life, hence a dorm of this kind would obliviate this very integral facet of our education.

Five Lettermen Return

by RICHARD RAPPAPORT

The UVM Varsity Rifle Team which begins its season Saturday, is determined to improve last year's record of 3-4. Their hopes are based upon the return of lettermen, and the addition of five outstanding sophomores to the starting team. The Catamount rifleers did well in matches held at the conclusion of the 1959-1960 season is also encouraging.

The schedule for this year is a long and difficult one. It entails eight New England League Matches, the NRA sectionals, the Yankee Conference Match, and the New England College Sectionals, where Vermont finished second last season.



With a large turnout of 25 men for the freshman squad, the men who remain will be the cream of the crop, and should have a good year.

After rolling over Phi Theta 26-0 last Thursday, Sig Nu took the fraternity championship Saturday with a spirited 19-0 victory over Kappa Sigma. Sig Nu scored in the first and second quarters on pass plays to Johnny [illegible], John Maynes, and Bob [illegible], respectively to the delight of their fraternity brothers who were rooting from the sidelines.

There was little cheering among the ranks of the Kappa Sig supporters. Although the boys in the red jerseys played grim determined effort, it was ineffective against Sig Nu's sparkling offense.

SA Progresses Under Capable Management

by Pete Piche

The week before Thanksgiving [illegible] new half of Student Association Council was sworn in. Officiating at this [illegible] were S.A. President, [illegible] Edelstein, and S.A. Vice-[illegible]dent, Ted Edgecomb. Jerry [illegible]delstein, however, are not new [illegible]s of our Student Asso-[illegible]n, having been elected [illegible] last spring. Who are [illegible] men who introduce [illegible]ctions and aims of Stu-[illegible] Association to new council [illegible]ers? Who is to give con-[illegible]s to and execute the [illegible]mendations of S.A. coun-[illegible]mbers, S.A. being the [illegible]dent's only instrument af-[illegible]ting his own administra-[illegible]n?

Jerry Edelstein, a senior [illegible] Rockville Center, N.Y., [illegible]-law economics major and [illegible] member of Phi Sigma Delta [illegible]s our Student Association [illegible]sident. Jerry was very well [illegible]pped to talk about what [illegible]A. has and has not done in [illegible]e past and had very definite [illegible]eas of what S.A. should do [illegible]ld be in the future. The [illegible]dent Association has been [illegible]mewhat criticized for its [illegible]ctiveness, but in answer [illegible] this criticism Jerry point-[illegible]d out that last year one of [illegible]e biggest gains in S.A. [illegible]ser was of its own doing: [illegible]e Joint Social Activities [illegible]ard (J.S.A.B.) was dissolved [illegible] recommendations from S.A. [illegible] that any Association con-[illegible] with the University Coun-[illegible]l itself would not be done [illegible]rough an intermediary. Thus [illegible] action or changes wanted [illegible]our S.A., and consequently [illegible] the students would be [illegible]sented more quickly and more [illegible]readily. Jerry plans that [illegible]A. should use this new [illegible]ength frequently this year.

[illegible]re have been other criti-[illegible]sms, though which Jerry [illegible] see are not ungrounded. [illegible]ese are criticisms of the [illegible]eneric indifference ap-[illegible]rent in students, and more [illegible]ecifically S.A. council members [illegible]emselves; indifference to [illegible]e active and vigorous func-[illegible]ioning of student representa-[illegible]ve in the administration of [illegible]ost activities here at [illegible]VM. Absence of council mem-[illegible]ers from the weekly S.A. [illegible]eetings, lack of contact be-[illegible]een S.A. council members [illegible]d their classmates at large, [illegible]ck of new suggestions and [illegible]ticism from all student [illegible]ups, are some of the [illegible]ings which have beset [illegible]e Association and se-[illegible]ously slowed its progress. [illegible]ternally, S.A. has shown [illegible]e power to have changes [illegible]de to introduce new poli-[illegible]ies into the administration [illegible]f U.V.M. Surely, there is [illegible]ow a need for changes in [illegible]s large organization as [illegible]niversity. In this re-[illegible]ard both Jerry Edelstein [illegible]nd Ted Edgecomb strongly [illegible]el that all council mem-[illegible]ers constitute their own pro-[illegible]ms, solicit opinions from [illegible]heir constituents whom they repre-[illegible]ent. ASSA is said to have [illegible]ade some criticism this year. If this is so, women, let those council members hear about it! Probably the men would like to give a few suggestions on the ruling of the women, too.

S.A. Vice-President, Ted Edgecomb, is a Junior originally from Barre, Vt. He is a Navy veteran, married now and living here in Burlington. Ted pointed out that another large part of our S.A.'s function is the annual disposal of some forty-four thousand dollars ($44,000). If any student hasn't some idea of what he or she would do with such a sum, they aren't truly collegiate. When this figure was quoted at this writer's anonymously crowded coffee shop table, it was facetiously remarked that S.A. should use it trying to bribe the University Council on the drinking question. The humor of the remark was a compliment to the integrity of those gentlemen, but undeniably the sum is large and every student ought to be critically interested in what happens to that much of his own money.

UVM Debaters Fare Well In Tournament

In the University of Vermont 15th Annual Invitational Debate Tournament, held on Nov. 18-19, UVM boasted one undefeated varsity team, and four other teams ran up a 4-1 score.

The subject under discussion was: "Resolved: The United States should adopt a program of compulsory health insurance for all citizens."

More than 35 colleges participated in the competition. UVM entered six varsity and four novice teams, each composed of two members.

Undefeated was the varsity team of Marilyn VanGraber, a junior, and Charles Tierney, '61. Taking the affirmative stand, they overpowered Harvard, Williams, Siena, Bates and St. Anselm's. The teams of Germaine-Harvey and Litosky-Selden both won four matches and lost one.

In the novice division Edward Zuccaro and Richard Norton won four rounds and lost one. They were in competition for the first time. The team of Elaine Zak and Mike Cronin also racked up a 4-1 tally, suffering their first defeat of this season. Their record is now 12-1.

In future debating matches Tierney, VanGraber, Ronan and MacDonough will go to Pittsburgh for a cross examination debate tourney. Litosky, Selden, Smith-Elliott and Cronin will participate in the Invite Tournament at Tufts.

Prof. Robert Huber, Mr. Norman T. London and Mr. John Travis are the co-directors of the UVM debaters.

World-famed Pianist To Play Varied Program For Lane Series

by PAT CONWIT

Casadesus is a name well-known in the field of music. In France for several years such noted performers as Francoise Louis, Henri Gustave, Marcel, Rose, and Regina Casadesus have entertained with their musical talents, not to mention a member of the family, Robert Casa, who after shortening his name became an actor and director of the Theatre Francaise. His son, and probably the most famous of the Casadesus clan, Robert, will appear here on December 6 at Memorial Auditorium. The Red Lane Series will present this foremost pianist in an Homage to Schumann and Chopin, including selections from Chopin's Polonaise and Berceuse, and Opus 9 of Schumann's Carnaval.

Mr. Casadesus is not knew to the American stage, for he made his debut January 19, 1935 with the New York Philharmonic in Mozart's "Coronation" Concerto. Toscanini, hearing the performance, wanted the young pianist as his Philharmonic soloist and as a result, Casadesus has played every season, save one during the war, with the New York Philharmonic.

Because of a violin given to him at the age of five, Casadesus' grandfather decided that all of his children would be musicians. Carrying on this tradition, Robert entered the Paris Conservatory in 1899 and studied under Louis Diemer. His talent then won for him the "premier prix de piano", First Prize for harmony at the Conservatory, and the "Prix Diemer." By 1920 Robert Casadesus was known in Europe, South America, and North Africa. Honors which were bestowed on him are the Brahms Medal, awarded by the State of Hamburg, being made an officer of the French Legion of Honor, and being made a commander of the Order of Orange-Nassau of the Netherlands. These are only European, honors. In the United States Casadesus was named an honorary Doctor of Music by Lawrence College in Wisconsin and a year later in 1945 an Honorary Lecturer at Princeton University.
